New Maps of City Available at City Hall

With over 30 new street names added in the city within the past two years as result of development of the new housing sub-divisions in the east end of Belleville, even a long time resident of the city may be puzzled to know the exact location of any of the new streets.

All of the new streets are in Parkwood Heights, Churchill Heights, and in Bayview Heights and the veterans' housing development areas, and in all of you in doubt, the city hall is open to citizens who desire to know the exact location of any of the new streets.

All of the new streets are in Parkwood Heights, Churchill Heights, and in Bayview Heights and the veterans' housing development areas, and in all of you in doubt, the city hall is open to citizens who desire to know the exact location of any of the new streets.

However, new maps of the city brought up to date to include the housing areas now under development have been prepared by the city hall engineering staff. These maps, giving location and name of all streets, railways and parks are of good size and may be had at the city hall for fifty cents.

104 MINERS KILLED

Berlin, Oct. 19 — (AP)—The British - licensed newspaper Der Tag reported today 100 German miners were killed when a So-viet - requisitioned coal mine at Ochersleben (Thuringia) in Eastern Germany collapsed on Oct. 8. The paper said "a sudden catch of water drowned the whole pit, burying alive 100 miners."

In Appreciation!

Dear Contributors

The active campaign by the Navy League of Canada, Belleville Branch, for funds to carry on the work of the Sea Cadets for another year is being concluded. As it is not possible to write to each contributor to thank you for your generous support, we wish each of you to consider this letter as being addressed to you personally.

Please accept the thanks and sincere appreciation of the Executive for your gift which makes it possible to carry on our work for another year.

Official receipts for all contributions of $1.00 and over will be mailed direct from Navy League of Canada Headquarters, Toronto.

Sincerely,
John Thornbury
Chairman Finance Committee

TORONTO STOCKS.

Toronto, Oct. 19.—(CP)— Demand increased in industrials, lifting a wide list steadily upwards on gains ranging from fractions to more than a full point on the Toronto Stock Exchange today.

Base metals were also higher in the moderately active dealings and western oils showed a solid list of gains. Golds were the only losers, key issues sliding slightly.

Volume for the first four hours was 667,000 shares, about 37,000 shares more than yesterday's similar period.

Market leaders led the second day advance in industrials. Gains were more widespread than in the previous session. Papers, utilities, steels and textiles showed majorities of gaining in the groupings. Imperial Oil, Canadian Canners and Dominion Stores sold at new highs for the year.

Almost all western oils climbed upwards. Royalite added 10 cents at a new high of $9.

Senior golds were fractionally lower and several junior producers showed small declines. A few smaller stocks moved briskly for strong gains. The Porcupine group — Bonetal, Dunlop and Porcupine Reef — returned to the spotlight for good advances.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

Toronto, Oct. 19 — (CP) — Prices were steady in trading at the Toronto stock yards this morning. The bulk of the offering was made up of common quality. Receipts reported by the Dominion Marketing Service: cattle, 900; calves, 110; hogs, 200; sheep and lambs, 100. Left from the previous close were 1,200 cattle.

A few medium to good light steers and heifers sold from $18-$19.50. Medium to good heifers brought $17.50-$18.50. Common light steers and heifers ranged downward to $16 and boners to $13. Good cows sold at $14-$15 with canners and cutters downward to $12. Bulls were $12-$16.50 depending on quality. Good stockers and feeders ranged from $18.50-$20. Commons and medi ums were as low as $14.50.

Calves were steady at $26-$28 for choice quality vealers with plain to medium from $18-$24. Grazers and yearlings brought $13-$15.

Prices were not established on hogs. The previous close was $29.50 for Grade A and $29.10 for Grade B1.

Lambs were steady at $23 for good ewes and wethers with choice selling at a $1 discount. Good light sheep were also steady at $10-$11.50 with culls downward to $5.

Dolan Says Destruction Of Wildlife Should Not be Tolerated

Halifax, Oct. 19 (CP)—Director D. Leo Dolan of the Canadian Travel Bureau told the Canadian Tourist Association yesterday "wanton destruction of our wildlife should not be tolerated . . . Whether the destruction be on the part of Canadian citizens or our visiting americans."

"Full support . . . courageous support . . . of fish and game officers ought to be part and parcel of every tourist policy inaugurated in this Dominion," he said.

Steps are Taken To Form Citizens' League

For some months suggestions have been received by the Chamber of Commerce that an organization which could be known as the "Citizens' League", might be formed in this city, Mayor D. L. Storey told the Ontario Intelligencer today.

Membership in such an organization would be open to those citizens interested only in the welfare and well-being of the city as a whole.

The chief magistrate stated that following announcement some time ago that he would not be a candidate for municipal office this year, he was invited to act as interim chairman for a meeting to be called for the formation of such an organization. This, he said, he has agreed to do.

Interesting Subjects

Mayor Storey pointed out that the main object of this organization will be the creation of an arena for the discussion of public matters which will eventually have to be decided by the authorities concerned. For example he went on, the matter of a sewage disposal plant might be raised, or the problem of additional educational facilities; or if an issue should arise between different sections or classes in the community such an organization would form an unprejudiced atmosphere in which the matter could be debated.

In order to form such an organization, it has been decided to hold a meeting in the City Hall on Wednesday, October 26th at 8 p.m.

"Invitations to this meeting are being sent to every known organization in the city", Mayor Storey said. These include labor, charitable organizations, service clubs and church, etc. asked to send one official representative. Public notice to this effect will be published in the press in the event any organization is overlooked.

Will Prepare Constitution

He hoped, he said, that an executive will be elected at this meeting which will proceed with the formal organization, the preparation of a constitution and the outline of its aims and objects. At that time the sponsorship of the Chamber of Commerce and his interim chairmanship will immediately cease.

Mayor Storey urged that every organization in the city forward the name of a representative as soon as possible to the Chamber of Commerce.

GAINING EQUALITY

Toronto, Oct. 19 — (CP) — British women are making steady progress to gain equality and recognition in public life, said Mrs. Margaret Cole, author and lecturer, Tuesday. But they have not yet reached the ideal situation where the best person for the job is chosen, irrespective of sex, she added.

"Belleville, Ontario.

"MacLaren Quebec Power Company has notified us that storage run-off conditions are such that they will be obliged to reduce delivery of power by 3,385,000 kilowatt hours per week commencing October twenty-fourth. This represents a reduction of 550,000 kilowatt hours per day. Monday to Friday inclusive. With the balance absorbed over the weekend — reduction will be offset in part by arrangements which it has been possible to make through the co-operation of Gatineau Power Company and Canadian Niagara Power Company. A CHILD IMMIGRANT COMES

Canadians must be happy to be able to extend welcome to those who have been sorely tried in the afflictions of this world as a consequence of the Hitlerite aggression.

Fortunately for Canada her name is so fair abroad that people in circumstances which have been through trials have heard of her and look with yearning to the day when they may come to this land of promise.

Newspapers just now contain the touching story of a little Polish girl who arrived in a plane and found friends of hers, relatives who had preceded her to this country, waiting for her at the airport. They who had gone through great tribulation in the days when Hitler was riding high in his aggression did not forget the little girl, nor did they allow her coming to Canada to be unwelcomed. At the airport were three carloads of people with dolls and candy, among them were her aunt and uncle who will adopt her.

The story is touching, the cruel cadence only a cheap travelling bag containing two apples, a small bag of candy and a great many slices of stale dry rye bread.

This eight-year-old child is now in a land where she will have plenty to eat and where it is hoped she will grow up in a life of great happiness.

Canada like other young nations of the New World and like the struggling peoples in Australia, New Zealand and South Africa, which were discovered by dauntless explorers some hundreds of years ago, is privileged to extend a warm greeting to young and old people who have come to us because they have heard so much of these lands. These newcomers have come through the fires of affliction and a welcome to them is something sweet and elevating. Here is a little girl come to be a Canadian citizen. She was born during the years when Nazi terrorism was at its height. Since the end of the Second World War life for many has been most unsettled. And now in Canada they are in a land of opportunity.

CENTENNIAL OF BIRTH OF FAMED DOCTOR

One hundred years ago there was born in Bond Head, Simcoe County, a boy who was destined to place Canada high on the roll of honour in medicine. Health Magazine calls him one of the great medical figures of all time. He was William Osler, a name inseparably associated with McGill and Johns Hopkins universities. This year the centennial of this great physician and teacher is being observed.

Osler began his training at Toronto for the career which made him a world figure, then he turned to McGill and after serving as a professor at his alma mater and at the University of Pennsylvania he joined in 1889 the faculty of the new Johns Hopkins University in Baltimore. While there he published the first edition of his famous textbook, "The Principles and Practice of Medicine." In the year 1905 he became Regius Professor of Medicine at Oxford. He was a writer of international repute on the subject of the practice of medicine. In 1911 he was created a baronet by His Majesty King George V.

A recent issue of the Archives of Internal Medicine remarks of him, "who can ever truly estimate the greatness of such a man? His fame lies not only in his achievement as a physician whose judgment in all things medical was outstanding, in his rich knowledge of medical history and in his remarkable knowledge of the Greek and Latin authors and his familiarity with philosophy and literature throughout the centuries, but in something greater still: his broad culture, combined with a kindred spirit towards all things, great and small."

Doctors follow a career of service which is of inestimable advantage and value to mankind. There is a life calling for service of the greatest moment to the people. It is one of the indispensable lives which humans are privileged to follow doing good for those who need their ministrations of encouragement, of cheer and that sympathy and knowledge which are most important things to public and individual health.

His life and work have inspired many to devote their lives to the calling he adorned.

FIRE AND ACCIDENT

Matches and cigarette lighters intrigue children. They are fascinated by any type of fire — a flame gives them a thrill. Child experts point out that this fascination for fire must be carefully guided and controlled until the child is old enough to appreciate the dangers associated with stoves, furnaces and other types of flame.

Accidents account for more deaths in children than any single disease and statistics show that the majority of these accidents occur at home. Many of these mishaps are preventable.

The mind unlearns with difficulty what has long been impressed upon it.—Seneca.

WISDOM AND KNOWLEDGE

He who still carries laughter for a jest,
Patience and pity for another's plight
Has of life's stock of wisdom what seems best,
Though men decry it, God may call him wise.

He who knows sorrow and has learned the way
To bear and share it, comfort and sustain,
God may consider wiser than are they

Maxims and forms of knowledge are but part.
God may pass by logician, scholar, sage —
To place him first who knows the human heart.

LOOKING BACKWARDS

20 YEARS AGO
Oct. 19th., 1929.

The Hon. Robert Cooke will not be opposed in the coming Provincial elections and is consequently elected by acclamation to represent North Hastings. Mr. James F. Hill is also elected by acclamation to represent East Hastings. There will be a contest between Mr. F. H. Ireland the Conservative candidate and Mr. Harold Holton the Liberal and Prohibition candidate in West Hastings.

Mr. Jack Herity is home from Toronto to spend a few days.

Mrs. H. H. Thompson, Denver, Colorado, is visiting her sister, Mrs. Hudgins, Dunbar Street.

Oct. 19th., 1919.

The Ontario Oakwal Company Limited has secured a franchise from the City of Belleville in return of an agreement to erect and equip a plant to convert Belleville's garbage and waste material into a highly efficient fuel made under sanitary and scientific principles that insure the city being a cleaner and more healthful place by eliminating the dangers of infection and contagious diseases and creating employment for a number of citizens. It is understood that the company is not putting in the stock to the citizens as it has the necessary capital to build and equip the plant. The managing director of the company will address a public meeting here at which the proposition will be fully explained.

40 YEARS AGO
Oct. 19th., 1909.

Belleville's population has increased by 1625 during the past five years. This is a good sized town added to the city in half a decade and still they come. Tell this to the people who show signs of being pessimistic.

Capt. and Mrs. Osborne who have been jointly in command of the Salvation Army here for the past six months have been transferred to the command of Lisgar Street Barracks in Toronto and they will leave here shortly. Their departure from the city is much regretted.

Messrs. R. Fenety, J. Gay, J. Vandervoort and R. Zufelt have returned home after spending two months in Western Canada.

Mr. J. Coulson has returned home from Battle Creek.

50 YEARS AGO
Oct. 19th., 1899.

The Thanksgiving turkey will be absent from many festive boards; no one but a hotched capitalist can afford to look at a turkey at 25 cents per pound.

The Belleville High School Athletic Association has reorganized last night and the following officers were elected: Hon. President, H. J. Wills, K.C.; President, H. J. Clarke, B.A.; First Vice President, A. McGuire; Second Vice President, A. Smith; Secretary, F. W. A. Matheson; Treasurer, F. Wallbridge; Committee, A. J. Lingham, Bogart, Hayes, Henthorn and the members of the teaching staff.

Mr. Geo. E. Faz of this city took part in a concert at Napanee last night. Mr. and Mrs. Frank Brenton sang at a concert in Camilton.

Dr. Alf. Sleman, an old Belleville boy, now at Tacoma, Wash., is visiting friends here.

OF GREGORY CLARK

A fellow went to school with me, he was just an ordinary guy, then has become very wealthy; and long ago moved out of the social sphere of those of us who were his schoolmates. His son got into a mess with the police recently, a vulgar sort of mix-up. The father engaged another old schoolmate, a now eminent lawyer. And the lawyer called me over to his office for a talk to go about keeping the scandal out of the newspapers.

There, the three of us faced each other, schoolboys again. But the lawyer, his mien of his professsion, is an ironic and cynical man.

"Billie" he said to the rich man, "it's a queer thing, that you amounting all these years, you come running to us when you get into small trouble.

"I haven't amounted you," the wealthy man said, somewhat stiffly. "When I began making money, I wanted to spend it. It didn't take me long to find out that I was doing an injury to a lot of my old gang. They couldn't afford to spend the way I did; and they weren't sponges. I simply had to find friends among the people who could spend the way I did. For example: horses."

"Ah, hah!" remarked the lawyer, sarcastically.

"No!" cried the wealthy man, hotly. "All we own pets. Most of us have to be satisfied with a dog around the house. But a horse, as anybody who has been brought up on the farm or in the country knows, is a better pet. You can ride it. You take your pet for a walk in the park. I can my pet over the country. It's the same thing, exactly. You like a well - bred dog. I like a good horse. Some even go in for breeding dogs. You think that's all right. Well, how about me breeding horses?"

The lawyer was silent.

"See?" pleaded the wealthy man. "It doesn't cost a lot to afford horses for pets. So would you, if you made a lot of money and had some time on your hands . . ."

"No," declared the lawyer, suddenly recollecting his fastidiousness in argument, "by golly, I'd go in for Doberman Pinschers. Now I've got a Doberman, the most marvellous dog . . ."

War Orphan Met By Many Friends

Toronto, Oct. 18—(CP)— A shy little war orphan arrived by air Monday night from Poland to find she isn't alone in the world after all.

Eight-year-old Janina Chrapunj, whose parents disappeared after the Germans arrived in 1939, was met by three cowloads of persons with dolls and candy. Janina's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Zinowski of Toronto, will adopt her.

The child carried only a cheap travelling bag containing two apples, a small bag of candy and a great many slices of stale rye bread.

CHILDREN FEED CALF

Stouffville, Oct. 18 — (CP) — Katy, a calf penned in a pig display at Stiver Bros., general store here, is getting fatter faster than the feedmakers claim. Village children reach into the calf's pen with ice cream and other delicacies which are handed to Katy at ita inches to Katy's girth. Katy is quite content to eat and doesn't realize what the inevitable end will be when she is heavy

Poverty Worst Problem of India Says Nehru

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press News Analyst)

When Indian Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru was asked by a small New York schoolgirl what his country's worst problem is, he replied without hesitation:

"Poverty. We must have food for our people."

There is eight plain words Nehru summed up the paramount task in the new leader of India's 300,000,000. The statement was a blunt admission of a tragic fact.

The same can be said of India's sister state of Pakistan with its population of 100,000,000. The plague of hunger also haunts China and other oriental lands. The western world doesn't know the half of the trials of the east.

About 60 per cent of the 400,000,000 people in India and Pakistan are dependent on agriculture, and the average farming family doesn't get enough to eat.

Yes, four hundred millions live in some 700,000 little villages of the Indian peninsula.

The homes are little mud huts, which are fearfully dirty and have no sanitation. Frequently there isn't even a single "backhouse" for the entire group known to the western world. Cowdung, gathered by the women with their hands, is plastered on the outside walls of the huts to dry for fuel. Human beings and animals live pretty much together.

Amidst all this awful squalor, death and birth do their rounds, and the one who dies is lucky. Many babies are born dead, and often diseased babies, being cared for by small brothers and sisters while the parents work.

And these poor people always are hungry. They can see it in their faces and starved bodies. Hosts of them have only one meal a day and that consists of gruel made from a little grain. Sometimes they get a bit of bread or vegetables. In most areas rice is the mainstay.

But almost always the story is the same. They are hungry.

The average annual income of the Indian farmer has been estimated at about $26. Most farmers are in the hands of money-lenders and these lenders extract as much as 75 per cent interest on loans.

CONTINUES ALONE

Borje Johansson must continue his solo world's hitch-hiking jaunt alone. His fellow traveller, Akke Nesco, decided to marry and settle down after the two had covered 30,000 land and 15,000 sea miles together. They set out from their native Sweden in December, 1947, and Johansson's wedding plans were announced when they reached Vancouver.—(CP Photo.)

PITCHING HORSESHOES

By Billy Rose

The other afternoon I was snooping around the Metropolitan Opera on 57th Street, trying to dig up material for a magazine piece about an overture that I intend to call, "And They Hang Pictures."

In a shop off Fifth Avenue run by an old thief I'm very fond of, I stopped to admire a portrait of a grinning Dutchman.

"If it were hanging at the Metropolitan Museum," I said, "I'd be inclined to think it was by Frans Hals."

"It's the last of five imitations," said the dealer, "and I'll let it go for forty dollars, complete with frame. What's more, I'll throw in this story about the artist."

"You've got yourself a deal," I said, "providing the yarn is worth half a C."

"This one isn't," said my friend, "but I'll tell it to you anyway."

Some years ago, a girl who worked for one of the galleries married a man who was old enough to be her father's father. What he lacked in youth, however, he more than made up for in life insurance.

For a while, it seemed like a good match. The old gent got a big kick out of his beautiful companionship, and the girl got what she wanted, which was able to achieve in the art business — security.

Such as usually happens in such cases, the party of the third part put in the appearance during the summer of their wintry marriage, the girl met an easy - talking artist who looked good, had been to be painted, and who had been painted well for himself. Thanks to a series of monied and muse-struck matrons.

The girl soon discovered that his new girl friend's allowance was pretty enough for both of them, and so he concocted a swindle, or, rather, put a new coat of shellac on the old one.

Under his prompting, the girl took her husband on a "Cook's tour of the art treasures of New York, and after he had got religion she suggested that he ought to buy a few fine pictures himself — he'd be amazed at the pleasure he'd get out of them.

The girl moved in for the kill. "I know an artist who owns several outstanding examples of the 17th Century Dutch school," she said. "I understand he's pressed for cash and, as you know, art is always a good investment."

The following day the old man met his wife's protege, and before the week was out he had purchased five freshly — painted canvases. Three of these were installed in his living room and for the next couple of years the old coot seemed to get a good deal of quiet pleasure looking at them.

When he finally died, his complete collection was a big sellout. And a few days later the interested parties assembled in the living room to hear the reading of his last, will and testament.

The first part of the document was given over to bequests to charities, loyal retainers and relatives, but the last section was markably large to the girl. However, she had not known the extent of her husband's wealth and she was quite sure there would be plenty left for her.

Finally the lawyer reached the part of the which she had been waiting:

"Now I come to my wife and faithful companion," he had said in his listening to these words in the room where we spent so many hours together, I know she must be looking fondly at the fine paintings which grace the walls. I believe I know what she is thinking, and in honor of these thoughts I leave her my collection of Dutch masterpieces."

"Eighteen cents," said Billy Rose)

Strength for the Day

RELIGION IS NORMAL

"Yes, I believe in religion," says the up-and-coming go-getter. "I believe what you preach for everybody in the community. My wife would be overjoyed to see us there not for the churches. Religion improves real estate values. No one would want to live in a community made up wholly of atheists."

Now all this is true, but it is a poor statement of the value of religion to human life. Religion was never intended to be a means to an end; religion is an end in itself. God calls men to Him that His may have fellowship with them. The salvation of their souls is a by-product of something vastly greater and more significant, namely, friendship with the living God.

Religious people are usually prosperous. A religious life is more often than not a life characterized by physical health. Religion when if is real makes people more efficient. Even religion in order to have prosperity or health or happiness as one motive is ridiculous and tragic mistake.

Religion, let us repeat, is an end in itself. Religion is the normal condition in which the human soul finds its most complete satisfaction and fulfillment. "Righteousness" is the word by which we describe the normal behavior of a healthy, spiritual life.

Personal Health Talks

Address Dr. William Brady, care of this newspaper.)

CYANOSIS

Cyanosis is the medical term for a morbid condition in which skin, nails and mucous membranes appear blue from insufficient oxygenation or aeration of the blood.

Many infants are cyanotic at birth, due to feeble breathing, or failure of the lungs to expand completely, as they do normally with the first vigorous crying of the newborn.

In some instances cyanosis persists after the newborn infant has tried enough to expand the lungs. When this happens, the baby is a "blue baby" and the cause is defective development of the heart. The defect usually is failure of the foramen ovale (opening between right and left ventricles) to close as it should at or about the time of birth.

A reader asked recently about "blue baby" and how a dog comes into the picture. In my reply I said a dog has as much to do with the case as the man in the moon. One of my bosses said my answer was facetious and not calculated to give a good impression, and the boss is so right that I'm ashamed to insert the point in the reader's query. I thought the reader was worried about "snatching" — perhaps the prospective mother had been frightened by a dog or something of no real import as the basis in fact for the flabwife-tales of "marking" the baby, hence my facetious answer.

Nevertheless, as my boss says, I should have answered her dog query and given the reader a better answer. Something like this one, which arrived in the mail a few minutes ago.

Dear Dr. Brady:

The reference in your column to blue babies and the position of dogs in the picture...does the babies have always had very short life expectancy although some live into the fourth decade.

Recently a surgical procedure was developed, that allows more oxygenated blood to reach the systemic circulation.

This operation was developed by the use of small dogs at first and had added many years to the life of many otherwise to very unfortunate children.

I do not know your stand on the use of animals to further man's battle against poor health and death, but here is a fine example of the importance of dogs, in a role other than as pets, in bringing happiness into our lives.

It would be appreciated if our reader (Mrs. M. S.) were informed of the very important place dogs have played in the tragedy of blue babies.

The "very important place" he does not know my stand on the use of animals in experimental medicine. I told what I think about it here a week or two ago.

I said I would not give my own dog nor do I believe any one should surrender one of her dog for such use. But I think all stray unclaimed or unwanted animals should be used for medical schools and other institutions where experimental medicine and research and study are carried on under law.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

WAKE UP DIFFERENT!

In his whimsical style, Logan Pearsall Smith once wrote: "What a bore it is, waking up in the morning and finding yourself yourself . . . I wish I had lots of silver, and could change myself into pretty things."

I dare say that such a meditation has been the experience of all of us. Time and time I have hoped to wake up different. Many do. The feeling is that we always a happy one! I would like to wake up differently happy every day of my life. Who wouldn't?

The secret is that it is interesting, varied and stimulating, that do so much to keep up on the level of freshness, of zest, of bolder and braver things. It's monotony that kills and seals up the body.

There is a little secret about this waking up different and I believe that we all would if we retired at night with peaceful thoughts in our mind, leaving our worries and troubles safely buried. We are going to wake up different, in an inspiring manner, if our day before has been spent courageously, honestly and helpfully, doing the best that we know.

Many a friend, book, or unexpected event has changed the waking hours of many of us, transforming us into different, happy human beings, and that is the thing Influenced me on this day our lives. The poet Byron would sometimes wish to be himself famous, as many another has. But there are events that are more inspiring than that. Waking up, to find that you have brought an inspiring message to us will always give to anyone a different feeling that can only be found in a heart upon awakening to a new day.

The famous baseball player W. A. Sunday, who walked into the Pacific Garden Mission in Chicago, to listen to a religious service came out different, and became the most normal person, for his entire life was changed. Up the hotel corridor, he walked, later giving up his life to the service of others, as the great evangelist that he became.

The manner in which we go to bed rest for the night, mentally and spiritually, has everything to do with how we shall wake up. We are to wake up different, awake different — newly charged with hope and a determination to be better and more useful.

ONE MINUTE NEWS ABOUT JOHNS-MANVILLE

KEEP UNDERSEA FIGHTER DRY!

Have you ever wondered what keeps water out of submarines — out of the openings around the propeller shaft, the periscope and the hatches in the hull? Well, they're kept watertight by a material called Packing.

Today almost every piece of machinery depends for its efficient operation on this same material — and Johns-Manville makes long-wearing packings for every purpose a seal is needed to prevent leakage of water, gas, oil, and other liquids.

Years ago Johns-Manville began experimenting with this important industrial material. Today, J-M Packings and Gaskets are available in hundreds of styles and sizes. In addition, J-M specializes in "tailor-made" packings for special jobs. For complete details, write Johns-Manville Sales Corp., Dept. St., Toronto, or see your J-M distributor.

Interesting Talk On Visit to Europe Heard

The Soroptimist Club dinner meeting was held Monday evening at Latimer's' Town room. The tables were tastefully decorated with autumn leaves, flowers, fruits and vegetables, giving an air of Thanksgiving.

Two new members Miss Margaret Jones and Miss Ethel Willman were received and installed by Past President, Georgia Smith, with the traditional candle lighting ceremony.

A report was presented from the meeting of the Inter-Service Club Council, in which certain requests were made for assistance in connection with the establishment of juvenile court.

Paris Beautiful City

Miss Leona K. Riggs, who spent the past four months travelling in England and several countries on the continent gave an interesting account of her trip. Six weeks were spent in Paris, which is one of the most beautiful cities in the world, with its wide streets, beautiful trees, and vistas, and numerous beautiful gardens. Paris itself did not suffer during the war, but many of her people did. There are still some signs of the German occupation. During the observance of a national holiday many citizens were noticed placing flowers and wreaths under the plaques that had been placed in memory of the fallen.

Many things about Paris have remained unchanged. The students in the Latin Quarter are still growing beards of all shapes and sizes and dressing grotesquely. The sidewalk cafes, and the strolling musicians are still an interesting part of the atmosphere that is distinctively Paris. They still stomp three times before the rising of the curtain in the theatres.

While in Paris, Miss Riggs met and was entertained by several Soroptimists, the most notable of whom was Madame Noel, a famous plastic surgeon, who was the founder of Soroptimism in Europe. Two Italian Soroptimists from Milan were also in Paris at the same time attending the fashion shows. The Paris club held a tea for them where they had the privilege of meeting several of the members. The French people are very charming and hospitable.

Visited Catacombs

A visit was described to the catacombs, underground passages, where the bones from old cemeteries were stored. They were all marked telling who they were and from which cemetery they had been taken. It was necessary to carry candles and pass single file through the passageway.

The unusual freedom accorded the cats and dogs was very noticeable. The cats occupy prominent places in the shops, and the dogs were allowed to eat with their masters in the restaurants, as well as being allowed in the subways and on the buses.

Large numbers of people travel by bicycle, it was not unusual to see a whole family starting out on a bicycle trip. Several tandem bicycles are in use, and often the man and woman have matching riding costumes.

While in Florence, it was noticed that someone seemed to be the centre of attention, when the crowd dispersed. It was discovered that the centre of interest had been the Duchess of Windsor, very simply and elegantly dressed in black.

Some Language Difficulty

A certain amount of language difficulty is experienced while travelling in foreign countries but someone usually comes to one's assistance.

When it was discovered the visitor came from Canada, the people in practically all the countries were deeply interested. They all appeared to have a desire to some day come to Canada. In closing Miss Riggs stated that while it had been fun to travel and visit all the interesting people and places, it was also nice to get back to Canada and home.

The thanks of the club was expressed by Rachel Fox for an interesting travelogue.

Friends Honor Bride-Elect With Many Gifts

On Tuesday evening a lovely miscellaneous shower was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Leeman, 384 Bleecker Avenue, in honor of a bride-elect of the present month, Miss Alice Joan Newman.

The evening was spent in a social get-together, and the presentation of lovely gifts to the happy bride-to-be, for which she graciously thanked the givers, both for their gifts, and for their good wishes for her future happiness.

Refreshments were later served by the hostess.

SOIL EROSION PROTECTION

St. Catharines, Ont., Oct. 19— (CP) — Canada's farm and forest areas should be protected from soil erosion, Prof. Adolf Reifenberg said Tuesday night. Prof. Reifenberg, Associate Professor of Soil Sciences at the Hebrew University, Jerusalem, told the Optimist Club Canada should plan reforestation and use contour plowing on hills, thus conserving the soil.

Sarah Churchill Weds Photographer

Sea Island, Ga., Oct. 19—(AP)— Actress Sarah Churchill and photographer Antony Beauchamp were married yesterday in an idyllic setting by the sea. She is the auburn-haired daughter of Britain's wartime prime minister.

A Georgia country judge, Erwin W. Dart, married them as an autumn sun shed rainbow rays over the blue Atlantic Ocean.

The ceremony was a simple but exclusive one, attended by only 29 guests. Reporters and photographers were excluded.

Earlier, the bride, descended from a long and noble British line, and the groom had to go through a routine required of Georgia couples—health examination and certification.

The willowy Miss Churchill entered the Jones home on Beauchamp's arm. She was gaily clad in a beige and blue-green striped brocade skirt and a pale pink satin off-the-shoulder blouse.

She wore a three-strand pearl necklace with a rhinestone clip and an orchid tulle off-the-face veil with Sweetheart roses on it. She carried a bouquet of white orchids and carnations. Her shoes were brown, strapped and high-heeled.

BONARLAW

Bonarlaw—Mr. and Mrs. Wm. J. Barlow have returned from a motor trip to Hamilton, St. Catharines, and Buffalo, Mr. and Mrs. J. S. McKeown accompanied them as far as Hamilton.

On Wednesday of last week Meadowvale Everett Heath A. V. Brown, Jason Baker, and F. F. Baker attended the annual convention of the Hastings Deanery Woman's Auxiliary of the Church of England, held at Bancroft.

Douglas and Doris Morrow returned after spending the week-end with their uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Glen Morrow, at Enjoyable Card Party Sponsored By H.&S. Assoc.

A very enjoyable bridge and euchre party, sponsored by the Home and School Association, was held at Queen Victoria School, last Monday evening.

This initial project of the Association's winter program was convened by Mrs. A. B. Hunt, assisted by Mrs. F. Martin, in charge of refreshments, and Mrs. W. Judge, in charge of securing prizes.

Following the serving of refreshments the prizes were presented from the platform of the school auditorium which had been attractively decorated by Miss Peck's class. For bridge, the ladies' prizes were captured by Mrs. Jean Adams and Mrs. Helen Large while the men's prizes were taken by Mr. Joe Legault and Mr. Harold Mott. The ladies' euchre prizes went to Mrs. McFee, Mrs. A. Reid and Mrs. Scrimshaw with Mr. George McWilliams winning the special door prize. Numerous door prizes were drawn for and during the presentation of prizes a novel auction was held with Mr. Norman Hickson capably filling the role of auctioneer.

All the prizes were donated by the generous supporters of the Association and the proceeds of the evening will be used to carry on the Association's work in connection with the school.

WEDDINGS

SAVAGE—MALONEY

Marmora—A pretty wedding was solemnized at Sacred Heart Church, Marmora, at 10 a.m., Saturday, Oct. 15, when Mary Margaret Maloney, daughter of Mrs. Michael J. Maloney of Marmora, and the late Michael J. Maloney, became the bride of John Hedley Savage, son of Mrs. William Savage, of Campbellford, and the late William Savage. The ceremony was performed, and the Nuptial Mass celebrated by the Rev. J. A. O'Neill. The Rev. M. J. Malone, of Toronto, cousin of the bride, was present in the sanctuary. The altar and sanctuary were beautifully decorated with pink and white exhibition dahlias and snapdragons. The wedding music was played by Miss Mary McDougall, cousin of the groom, and Mrs. Kevin Graham, of Kingston, sister of the groom, sang Schubert's "Ave Maria", and "On This Day O Beautiful Mother". Given in marriage by her uncle, Mr. James McAvoy, the bride wore a gown of Chantilly lace, over white slipper satin, with satin panels. She wore a cameo pendant, the gift of her late father, and carried a shower bouquet of pink gladioli and white chrysanthemums. Her fingertip veil was of French tulle illusion, caught with a Dutch lace cap, matching her gown. She carried a white satin prayer book, with a white orchid and baby yellow roses on streamers.

Miss Jean Andrews, Reg.N., of Kingston, was maid of honor, in a pale green satin gown with matching velvet Dutch cap in hunter's green and matching muff with crescent of baby yellow roses.

The best man was Mr. Harry McDougall, of Belleville, and the ushers were Mr. Lou Woodcock, of Toronto, and Mr. John McAvoy, of Marmora, cousins of the bride.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the Royal Hotel, where the bride's mother received, wearing a gown of wine faille, black fur felt hat and accessories, and a corsage of Sweetheart roses. She was assisted by the groom's mother, who wore a gown of squamming crepe, hat and accessories of deep wine, and corsage of red roses.

The bride and groom left for a trip to Limberlost Lodge, Northern Ontario, the bride travelling in a suit of steel grey, with hat and accessories of deep wine. On their return, they will reside at 485 College Street, Kingston.

The bride is a graduate of St. Joseph's School of Nursing, Hotel Dieu Hospital, Kingston, and the groom is a member of Regiopolis College, Kingston. He spent several years' service overseas as flight officer in the R.C.A.F.

BROOKS—EMORY

Picton—An autumn afternoon wedding was solemnized recently in Picton United Church, when Betty Barbara, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Morley Emory, of Whitby, Ont., became the bride of David Allan Brooks, son of Mr. and Mrs. Manley Brooks of R.R. 1, Picton. The Rev. A. E. McCutcheon, B.A., B.D., was the officiating minister and the wedding music was played by the church organist, Mr. A. A. Benvie.

Mr. Albert Mitchell was the groomsman.

After the ceremony, a reception was held in the home of the groom's parents, where a profusion of snapdragons and zinnias decorated the room.

Receiving the guests were the bride's mother, wearing grey faille taffeta, navy hat, matching accessories and a corsage of pink roses. Mrs. Morley Brooks wore grey crepe with black hat and accessories and a corsage of Talisman roses.

Those who served were Misses Ruth and Lois Brooks, Eileen and Barbara Jones, Mildred Sealey and Mrs. J. Price of Whitby.

For a wedding journey to Montreal, Ottawa and North Bay, the bride chose a taffeta dress in red wine shade topped by a fitted navy coat, matching hat and accessories.

Mr. and Mrs. Brooks will later be "at home" at 33 King Street West in Oshawa, Ont.

Hospital Auxiliary Sponsors 'Arsenic And Old Lace'

The annual report was read by Past Secretary, Mrs. Lally, and Past Secretary, Miss Ivy Dickens. Business was discussed regarding purchase of hospital and nurses' residence.

It was decided to buy an oxygen tent for hospital and loan $200 to student nurses for purchase of a 16 m.m. projector for class room work.

Mrs. Stobie introduced Mr. Michael Sadler, who with Mr. Brian Doherty is producing "Arsenic and Old Lace", with an all Canadian cast, sponsored by the hospital auxiliary, and starring Canadian star, Catherine Proctor, the week of March 6, in Belleville.

The production is also playing Montreal, Toronto, London, Ottawa, Kingston, Peterborough, Sherbrooke, Windsor, etc.

Meeting adjourned and tea was served by student nurses, Misses Audrey Bitz, Mary Bongard, Estelle Gay, Isabel Bates and Margaret McIntosh.

MAN OF FEW WORDS

Hospital Auxiliary Gives Annual Report for 1948-49

The Women's Hospital Auxiliary was organized in April 1932. In 1941 there were 27 members. At present there is a membership of 125 with as many as 52 at some of our monthly meetings. This increase is not only very gratifying but it means a genuine interest among Belleville's citizens in the special work undertaken by the Auxiliary. With the ever increasing population of Belleville, we hope to welcome more new members in the coming year.

The year October 1948 to October 1949, has been a most successful one. The five major projects undertaken to raise funds realized $4,464.35.

In October 1948, the Opportunity Shop was opened in a partitioned off space in the Market Building made available by the City Council. This store contains new, nearly new, and used merchandise of all kinds.

Merchandise may be donated or sold on a 25 percent. commission basis. The store is open on Saturday afternoons and Thursday from 9-11.30 in the morning, 2-4 in the afternoon, and all day Saturday. All help is voluntary and the administrative committee are indeed worthy of the greatest commendation as the operation of the Opportunity Shop has exceeded all anticipations of the project, the Hospital Auxiliary received a revenue of $1,790.04.

On December 27th, 1948, a very enjoyable and successful Charity Ball was held with proceeds of $857.16.

On March 16, 1949, the Annual Fashion Show took place at the Capitol Theatre. Proceeds were $913.40.

On June 15th, 1949, a most enjoyable Garden Party was held at the country home of Mrs. Stobie, Trent Road. The proceeds of the Garden Party amounted to $161.05.

On September 24th, 1949, proceeds from the Annual Tag Day were $602.90. The Auxiliary appreciate such a generous response from the public and the numerous the surrounding district.

The January shopping bags stamped "Opportunity Shop" were distributed among members and friends in which donations could be placed for the Opportunity Shop. This collection proved most successful and many lovely gifts were received. For these generous contributions the auxiliary extend their sincere thanks.

In November 1948, the Polly Pig Tail Club, a group of small girls, presented the Auxiliary with $6.50, proceeds from a little sale they held. Thanks to these children for their thoughtful effort are extended.

Appreciation to St. Andrew's Guild who so kindly donated $10 to be used towards the Easter Basket Fund is also extended.

Under the very capable guidance of the sewing convenor, special sewing for the hospital is carried on continuously.

The Monthly Bulletin is much enjoyed by the members as it keeps all informed of the highlights of the past meeting and the business to be considered at the next meeting. The auxiliary is fortunate in having a most capable editor turning out such an interesting and informative bulletin.

The Blue Cross Hospitalization Plan has an enrolment of 32, The captain in charge of this section deserves credit because it does call for careful and patient work.

The nurses' scholarship amounting to $500 was awarded Miss Elizabeth Cormier, who is now attending McGill University, taking a post-graduate course in obstetrics.

At Christmas, $36.06 was given a committee to purchase suitable gifts for ward and indigent patients. Again at Easter $34.09 was spent on baskets for patients in the public wards. Both these gifts were greatly appreciated by the recipients.

The Beta Sigma Phi, Junior group, were given $36.48 to purchase flannelette for layettes to help re-stock the Good Samaritan Cupboard on the obstetrical floor. This cupboard supplies layettes for babies of the needy upon their dismissal from the hospital. The Junior Group have proved very helpful, giving generously of their time no matter what was required.

An indigent fund is maintained which provides small comforts which the patient could not otherwise afford them.

Three dozen cups and saucers were purchased for the nurses' residence at a cost of $25.20.

Pin-up lamps for the hospital were purchased at a cost of $19.80.

A cheque for $10 was forwarded to the Hospital Aid Association on account of membership dues.

Three electrically heated food conveyors were given to the hospital. These cost $1,245.

A croquet valued at $135 and three cribs at $114.00 were donations to the pediatric ward.

Mr. Wakefield, the superintendent of the hospital, addresses the meeting frequently and keeps us informed of interesting facts and problems. These talks are much appreciated and we thank him for his kindly interest in the work of our auxiliary in conveyed.

At the January meeting, Mrs. McDonald, Director of Nursing, gave an instructive talk on "A Health Program in a School of Nursing."

In April Mrs. Mikel entertained the auxiliary with a very interesting address on the "History of the Belleville Hospital."

At the May meeting, Miss Marshall, Science Teacher and Director of Education of the Belleville Hospital, gave an excellent paper on Nursing Education.

In September, Miss Potts, the new Director of Nursing, gave a instructive address on Good Nursing Service.

During the week following the Fashion Show it has been the custom to entertain the models of the Fashion Show to an open luncheon. This has become a very pleasant get-together for the members wishing to attend.

A social hour always follows the meetings and tea is served by the Director of Nursing assisted by three or four student nurses, and tends to give a friendly atmosphere to the meetings.

The executive of the auxiliary was as follows:

Christ Church Y.P. Observe Youth Sun.

The young people of Christ Church began celebrating Youth Sunday by attending Holy Communion Sunday morning.

Following the service the young people were served breakfast in the Parish Hall, prepared by Gwen Rundel and Jean Lambe. The Rev. J. Grant Sparling gave the blessing and at the conclusion of the breakfast the Rev. E. Mann spoke for a few minutes on the history of the Communion Service. He described how Communion was celebrated in the first century A.D., and how it has been modified through the centuries.

In the afternoon the youth of the parish again gathered at the Parish Hall, decorated in A.Y.P.A. colors by James Wright, Doug Tufford and Bert James. Here they enjoyed a buffet supper prepared by some of the members of the Senior A.Y.P.A., Alice Matthews, Joan Brandish, assisted by Marjorie Ashton, Joan Stark, Mary Keller and Joan Greene. Mrs. Greene and Mrs. Sparling poured tea.

When dessert was being finished, Mr. Sparling and Mr. Mann presented a "dualogue", entitled "Even Song". Mr. Mann asked several questions about the evening prayer service. From Mr. Sparling's replies the young people learned why certain passages from the Bible are in the service.

After supper the young people attended Even Song and several of them took part in the service. Audrey Stewart and Ed. Waterhouse read the lessons, while Bill Mack, Gordon Leggat, Eric Smith, James Wright, Harold Burley acted as ushers.

Women's Activities

TABERNACLE EVENING AUX.

The Evening Auxiliary held their October meeting at the home of Mrs. R. Lockyer. The Mission Circle of Holloway St. Church were the guests of the evening.

The president, Mrs. R. Lockyer, took charge of the meeting with other members assisting. Evangelism was the topic taken from the new book in use this year, "Growing with the Years" by Kenneth J. Beaton. Mrs. G. Ketcheson recording secretary, Mrs. E. B. Lally; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Irene Aman; treasurer, Miss Ivy Dickens; bulletin editor and press reporter, Mrs Howard Graham; bulletin secretary, Mrs. R. H. Tanner.

CHRIST CHURCH W.A.

The Redneresville W.A. was held on Wednesday evening at the home of Mrs. George Roblin with 27 members present. The meeting was opened in the usual manner. Mrs. Rorabeck took charge of the devotional. Reports from all the committees were read.

On October 19, there will be an all-day quilting with box lunch dinner at Mrs. Roy Wannamaker's. Monday evening a congregational supper will be held at Redneresville Church Hall to mark the 100th anniversary of Redneresville United Church. The W.A. annual bazaar will be held at the home of Mrs. and Mrs. F. Henderson on November 10.

Mrs. Roy Wannamaker took charge of the program: a solo by Miss Marylaine Adams, reading by Mrs. W. McLeod and a solo by Mrs. Leslie Fraser. A contest of jumbled words of the past kings and queens was won by Mrs. Ross Roblin, Mrs. Thos. Tompson, Mrs. L. Fraser, Mrs. Chas. Post, 2nd, and Mrs. Gerald Anderson, low. Door prize was won by Mrs. Chas. Post.

Mrs. Clifford Hillman gave a hearty vote of thanks to Mrs. Roblin for opening her home, also to her hostess for assisting.

The next meeting will be held at the hme of Mrs. Thos. Tompson in the afternoon.

GOOD MANNERS

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

"Groom should not be expected to pay for reception music, flower

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Please inform us as to whether the groom's expenses include the liquor, music, and floral decorations for the dinner tables at the reception. The wedding is to be a small catered affair in the evening, and all arrangements have been made by the parents of the bride-to-be. But they maintain that the liquor, music, and flowers are not their obligation. May we have your opinion, please? 2. And what actually does the groom pay for?

M. B.

1. The bride's parents are the hosts of the wedding reception, and therefore they are expected to pay all the expenses of the reception: food, flowers, music, champagne or whatever beverages are served. If their budget cannot include any of the items they would like to have, they should wisely plan a type of wedding agreeable to their budget. But they should not have poor bad taste as to suggest to the bridegroom that he assume any expenses he is not supposed to assume. That's a wrong way, a very wrong way, to start their relationship with their daughter's husband-to-be!

2. The groom pays for:

The engagement ring.

The wedding ring.

The wedding present to the bride.

The marriage license.

The corsage to the bride's mother, and the corsage to his mother.

The boutonnieres for the best man and ushers, and for the bride's father and his own father.

The presents to the best man and ushers. (Also decide on gloves.)

The car in which he and his best man come to the ceremony.

The fee or gift to the minister.

The expenses of the wedding trip.

"Open Church Weddings"

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I would appreciate an explanation about an "open church wedding." My husband is a close business associate of the father of the bride-to-be, and while we are on friendly terms with the family we are not close friends. Should I expect an oral invitation perhaps by telephone?

Perplexed

An "open church wedding" means that anyone is welcome to come, and since you know that this is the type of wedding you and your husband may attend if you wish it. (And I should think that, under the circumstances, your husband would wish to attend, as a friendly gesture to his close business associate.) You may receive an invitation by telephone . . . or your husband's associate may invite him by word of mouth, . . .but I see no reason to wait for a special invitation since special invitations are apparently not being sent or given.

BEAUTY

Low-down on hair dyeing

Time was when hair dyeing and bleaching—like the use of the lipstick—was not considered respectable. Plenty of water has run under the beauty bridge since those quaint days. A young woman who is prematurely grey is made happy when her locks are restored to pristine tints. The wife whose white hair makes her look older than her husband, and who is often mistaken for his mother, is justified in resorting to synthetic means of controlling the snowy crest.

Beauty shop bosses report that, while color rinses are going strong, there is less dyeing than in the past, that white hair is more fashionable than ever. But, if a woman doesn't like it, if she is determined to "do something about it," nobody can talk her out of taking the step. Why should they? It is her privilege to do as she pleases. But let her find out, before hand, just what she is in for.

Can she dye her own hair successfully? She cannot

Can she do the job herself? She cannot, though it is sometimes possible for her to touch up a few white threads at the temples without anyone being the wiser. Not all beauty operators are qualified to do the work. Only trained specialists with much experience can accomplish this great change act with success.

The woman who attempts the home treatment may have difficulty in selecting the right shade. Her impulse is to endeavor to match the color of the growth of her young days. The professional, realizing that the shafts are darker at the scalp than at the ends, usually matches the hair about five inches from the scalp, finding a neutral tone.

To attain the exact shade, it may be necessary to use more than one dye. To do that requires a knowledge of chemical actions that may take place.

Any coloring agent must be applied deftly and evenly, so there will be no streaks. Sometimes a diluted solution is put on the end of the hair which, being dryer, take the dye more quickly than the growth close to the scalp.

The woman who is flirting with the idea of changing the color of her brain crest must keep in mind the fact that the project is not finished with the first treatment. The shafts push out from the scalp at the rate of five or six inches a year, which means that the new growth must be touched up every six weeks or so. This treatment must be given with the greatest care, since application of dye should not overlap. As a woman cannot see the back of her head, it stands to reason that she will have to visit the beautytorium every so often. Considering that the work must be done by an expert, the charges make a considerable gouge in the good-looks budget.

Fashion Flashes

WITH US once more is the fox-collared tweed coat so good for travel and smart general wear. A rich cranberry-red tweed makes a handsome coat with a wide-length collar of white or lynx-dyed fox. Coat is worn either loose or with a self belt.

A REPLICA of the favorite frock with shawl collar, slim bodice and full skirt with side-shirred, cuffed pockets—so popular in silks and cottons—is here in both jersey and corduroy and bids to be the big favorite for Fall.

PERFECT for wear with an afternoon or theatre suit in silk or velvet is a blouse of pale pink Alencon-type lace. The deep round neckline and short sleeves are scalloped and backed by cut-out appliques of flowers from the lace.

LUXURY FABRICS in rich colors or glowing pastels are used for handsome and distinctive greatcoats for general wear. An equal mixture? of guanaco and cashmere in a rich citron shade makes a handsome coat with half-belted, bloused back; hand-picked lapels and front closing; and bellows pockets.

A FEATURE of casual and college clothes this Fall is the rich, glowing color, allowing for interesting schemes. For wear with taupe, green or rust there are blouses or weskits in citron yellow especially nice in corduroy for a vest or in wool jersey for a blouse.

NOVELTIES abound in tweed coats designed for smart general wear. Cut on loose, flaring lines, is a full-length coat of big black and white checked tweed. The seamless shoulder line is marked by black tweed inserts, and black also borders the long, loose scarf.

Evening Performance

By FRANCELLA WOOD

HANDSOME even in the all-handsome fashion parade which is Adrian's this season, is this glowing evening gown of Italian red satin, with its ankle flattering length before, and sweeping skirt behind . . . falling from looped drapes below a neat waistline in wide, trailing opulence.

The bodice is smooth, with no back and narrow shoulder straps, and on the left shoulder is a flange of the satin which cascades from bosom to waistline, or ruffs upright against the profile, as it is here.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX
A Job Might Solve This Problem

If, when a wife is having husband trouble, it is at all possible for her to go out and get a job that will take her away from home at least part of the time, I believe this is a very good thing to do.

Of course, if the woman is a young mother with small children, such a move is not always practical. But there are other women—and I hear from many of them—who have distressing marital situations,—often one concerning money, and, even though there is nothing to keep them there they simply sit...Some worrying about making ends meet rather than go out and earn some money themselves.

A woman who writes me that her husband lost his job because of his drinking, when he had only three years to go to get a pension for the rest of his life, seems to be in the latter group.

She says that her husband now has a job as a truck driver but does not work every day. Some weeks he gets only one day's pay, and she is under the severe nervous strain of never knowing how much money she will have to pay rent, buy food and fuel, etc. Lately, moreover, her husband has taken to lying about the money he receives, telling her he has not worked and so got no pay, when the truth was he had spent it for liquor. All her children are married except a 21-year-old boy who gives her $20 a week out of his small salary.

At one point, this woman left her husband and went to stay with relatives, but, she says: "I had enough of living with relatives in three days. They told me I should stay home, and that everybody gets bad breaks and trouble. They also said that if I stayed away my husband could change the lock on the door of the house so that I could never get in again."

Another difficulty is that his husband does not want his son to have any friends at the house and does not care to have any company at all unless they are friends of his own.

"I am so twisted that I don't care at times what happens to me," the letter ends.

Obviously, before this woman is going to make even a beginning of solving her problem, she is going to have to decide whether she wishes to remain with her husband or leave him. She is certainly not going to get anywhere by just letting the situation drift.

It might very well help her make up her mind what she wants to do if she would try working for awhile to find out how she gets along. If her husband was about ready to be retired on a pension, it seems likely that she herself is no longer young, and perhaps the job idea might not work out. This would be something to ascertain before cutting herself off from even the meager amount of money now coming in.

On the other hand, there are, of course, a number of different types of jobs open to older women, selling in a department store being one of them, and she might make out all right. It would certainly be better for her to be occupied, and it would also be fairer to the son who now hands over most of his pay. It is a very dangerous thing to tie a young lad down to supporting his parents if it can possibly be avoided, as this can easily lead to serious difficulty when, as he normally should do, he wants to break away and live his own life. I think this is something this mother should not fail to keep in mind.

To repeat: since the money angle seems to be paramount, she might try and see if taking a job would make things look any different to her. But if she feels completely unable to cope with her problem by herself, then I think she should go to a social welfare agency and ask for practical help and advice.

OLD ARGUMENTS

Tuesday's sitting although almost wholly devoted to the constitution had a one-hour break to which the Commons dealt with private bills.

Forty-two Quebec divorce bills were adopted in second reading—approval in principle—although their mass passages met opposition in all arts of the Commons.

At conclusion of debate on the touchy topic—one that cuts across party lines—a number of members rose to ask for a formal vote. They discovered the bills had already been passed. There was no objection to the speaker's ruling.

The split on Quebec divorce bills stems from the fact that Quebec has no divorce court of its own as do all the other provinces but Newfoundland. As a result any Quebec divorcees must go directly to the Senate and parliament.

Many members in the Commons are opposed to divorce in any form. That's particularly true of Roman Catholic members. Others object to the fact that parliament should have to deal with such matters.

The first petition for divorce has been received at Ottawa from the new province of Newfoundland. A C. Stewart told the Commons that the petition—first since Newfoundland entered Confederation last March—was received by the Senate Divorce Committee a month ago.

Claims Promises Disregarded

In the constitution debate, Mr. Diefenbaker accused Prime Minister St. Laurent of disregarding pre-election promises to the people.

Mr. Diefenbaker contended that the Prime Minister had promised to consult with the provinces on methods of amending the constitution. Instead the government was going ahead to get the power to amend the federal part of the constitution in Canada while leaving it to the forthcoming dominion-provincial conference to discuss ways and means of amending the constitution only on matters within provincial jurisdiction or of joint federal-provincial authority.

He reiterated that the current federal action should be held up until a national constitutional convention is held which would strive for unanimity on the procedure for general constitutional amendment. He again objected to what he described as a "piecemeal" approach.

He also criticized the C.C.F. "about turning". Mr. Diefenbaker said it indicated the C. C.F. wanted the federal government to have power to amend the constitution on all federal matters except for section 37. This section sets out that elections shall be held at least every five years and for annual sessions of parliament.

Afraid to Take All Claim

This is strange, he said, because it shows the C.C.F. wants a certain decree of power of constitutional amendment but is afraid to take it all.

In moving the amendment, Mr. Knowles said Canadians should be assured of a session of parliament at least once a year and of an election every five years. He did not think such matters should be left to the will of any government, particularly one that had a majority such as at present.

Roch Pinard (L—Chambly Rouville) replied to Progressive Conservative criticism that the resolution aims at segregating the powers or the federal government and provinces. He was, he said, aimed at giving parliament the same powers as the provinces now possess.

When the provinces wished to increase representation in their legislatures they simply passed an act.

The federal government could not increase representation in parliament without going to the U.K. parliament for permission.

To Support Gov't

Raymond Brunesu (Ind L Prescott) said that although he was an Independent Liberal he would support Prime Minister St. Laurent in every way to help obtain for Canada the power to amend the constitution as it affected federal matters.

Although Canada had long ago obtained freedom, she had yet to obtain sovereignty.

"Canada now is ready to walk, but she still has to rely on another government," Mr. Brunesu said. He did not believe there was any one in the Commons who would stand against Canada's desire to obtain her sovereignty.

Augustin Maltais (L—Charlevoix) said the people want action. They were tired of haggling over the lines of Dominion-Provincial jurisdiction. He was confident they were behind the present government action.

T. L. Church (IC—Toronto Broadview) accused the government of going at the job in a "haphazard" manner. He couldn't see the need for the rush with which the government was proceeding. There were many matters more important that should be dealt with and one was security.

TOP SPECIALISTS

He said he had "grave fears" for the economic future of Canada if dollars were not made available to Canada's customers. And when it came to buying food, Britain was one of the best.

Mr. Duncan explained at a press conference that the aim of the board was not to encourage undercutting of Canadian prices by Britain; nor was it to encourage any grabbing of Canadian markets which Canadian producers were trying to develop.

However, since Canada banned some United States goods as a measure to protect dollar and gold reserves, there was a market available to Britain to fill those markets normally available to the U. S.

Mummified Arm Of St. Francis Xavier Arrives in Detroit

Detroit, Oct. 18 (CP)—The mummified right arm of St. Francis Xavier one of the first Jesuit Priests, arrived today for four days of veneration in Detroit district churches.

St. Francis Xavier who was credited with the conversion of 700,000 Catholics in India died in 1552 and was buried in Goa, India. In 1614 his right arm was taken to Jesuit Church in Rome, preserved in a mummified form. This year the arm, resting in a gold case, is being conveyed around the United States by Father Arthur McGrath, U.S. Director of Apostleship of Prayer.

The hand will later return to Rome for permanent repository.

DUPLESSIS VOWS

The federal government holds that the B. N. A. Act is a law which can be amended in federal matters by the Federal Parliament. The Quebec leader maintains it is a contract between the provinces and cannot be modified in any way without the consent of the provinces.

Mr. Duplessis told convention delegates the abolition of different races, parties and religions, over a period of years.

If they had known the constitution was not a pact, he said, they would never have left their language and religious rights to the whims of a law which can be changed by any parliament."

"There never would have been a Confederation if that had been the case," he added.

The leader of Quebec's Union Nationale government declared that views contrary to his own "are a danger for the survival of the people of Quebec."

"It is not a question of separation, of fanaticism," he said. "It is simply a question of patriotism, well understood."

Regina, — (CP) — Want to meet an American from almost anywhere in the United States?

There's one part of Regina in which you are fairly sure to find him. The visitors' book at the R.C.M.P. museum shows that tourists from almost every state in the Union pause to admire the Mounties' exhibits.

And the chances are that when you discover the American sightseer, he'll be studying the museum's counterfeit money exhibit. The museum visitors' list isn't composed entirely of American addressees. Travellers from every spot in the British Isles and a few from Europe and Asia have dropped in to see the historical relics of the west.

The museum visitors take a lively interest in the samples of violence which come from various R.C.M.P. cases. A large share of tourist attention goes to a hangman's rope, the death cap of a condemned man, murder weapons and small arms displays.

Scientific Sleuthing

Other newcomers pore over plaster cast of footprints, fingerprint displays and samples of clothing have been "matched" to help solve a case.

Occasionally, the glamor of the Mounties is the visitors' drawing card. One woman begged the constable on duty to don his red tunic so she might photograph him.

Knife on Finger, Doctor Works by Touch Alone In Operations on Heart

By FRANK CAREY

Chicago, Oct. 18—(AP)—Single-fingered surgery within the human heart—with the surgeon using a knife secured to his index finger and working by touch alone—was described today.

The American College of Surgeons was told the new technique still is on trial but so far is encouraging in the right on a frequent disorder of the heart.

It is designed to combat a kind of log-jamming process involving the heart valve most vulnerable to the after-effects of rheumatic fever.

In the operation, the surgeon's finger explores and guides the knife through a single quadrant of the heart—an organ whose total size is about that of your doubled-up fist.

And the surgery itself is limited to the close quarters of the valvular gateway—the funnel-shaped "mitral valve"—linking the two chambers of the heart on the left side.

The operator inserts his knife-bearing finger through an incision in the wall of the heart—an opening only large enough to admit the finger. The opening is pre-equipped with a "purse string" stitch—ready for quick closure when the surgeon withdraws his finger from the heart.

The surgeon wears two rubber gloves on his operating hand. An opening is made in the outer glove at the base of the index finger on the palm side of the hand; another opening is made at the tip. Then the knife blade is inserted between the gloves so that in effect, it is lashed to the index finger.

When the surgeon gets his finger inside the heart, he explores to determine diseased structures of the involved valve that need cutting. Then, by a turn of his hand, he makes the necessary cuts.

The mitral valve is located between the two chambers of the heart that receive the blood after it has been sent to the lungs to pick up oxygen. The valve controls transfer of the blood from the upper chamber to the lower, whence it is pumped through the body. When the valve is constructed by disease, so that it can't open and close properly—like a well-regulated locks system — trouble develops.

The report on the new technique was made to the clinical congress of the surgeons by Doctors Robert P. Glover, Thomas J.E. O'Neill and Charles Bailey of the Episcopal Hospital and of the Hahnemann Medical College and Hospital, Philadelphia.

They said they had used the technique in eight cases—four of them resulting in "very satisfactory results" in re-establishing improved valve functions. There was one "fair" result and three deaths.

Special gloves figured in another report to the surgeons.

Brow Yields Milk, Goat Seeking Fame

Toronto, — (CP) — Dairymen may be able to stand up and milk their cows in the near future.

The directors of the Royal Agricultural Winter Fair are scratching their heads and trying to dig up an answer to a letter they have received.

Reason for the fuss and flurry is the request of one Wilfrid Nadeau, of St. Louis de Pintendre in Quebec's Levis County.

Mr. Nadeau, a farmer by occupation has been quite the point. He just wants to exhibit some animals—a normal request from any citizen who is interested in the Royal.

The catch is that among others, one of the animals is a cow whose claim to fame is a normal milking test right in the middle of her beautiful bovine forehead.

The Quebec farmer also has a pig with only two feet and a calf with paws that he would like to exhibit. A nice collection, but the Royal Winter Fair doesn't know what to do with this strange potpourri.

Mr. Nadeau feels that his livestock will be "scientifically interesting to agriculturists." The Winter Fair frankly doesn't know what to do with the strange trio. One official summed it up: "But it's never been done. Might be improper."

Meanwhile Mr. Nadeau and his three strange companions are waiting for the big yes or no. Fair officials are weighing the request—and why shouldn't they? After all it might be handier to milk a cow from its forehead—less stooping. And it would even hang the pail on the horns.

SHORTAGE CURTAILS GROUND WOOD PRODUCTION

Espanola, Oct. 18 — (CP) — A critical water shortage which means curtailment of ground wood production, faces this district unless precipitation is far above normal between now and freezup, it was stated today by a paper company official.

"All the water there is in the bush is what is in storage and that's not enough," he said. Current flow in the Spanish River is far below normal and a critical situation is approaching.

Field Marshal Smuts Is Still 'Youngest'

Pretoria, — (CP) — Eighty years old next birthday, Jan Christian Smuts will be the "youngest" of South Africa's political leaders attending the dedication of the Voortrekker monument, near Pretoria, Dec. 16. He will be the youngest, not in years but in fitness and youthful vigor.

The "Oubaas" never uses an elevator. He often walks from his Pretoria office to his home at Irene, 10 miles away. He still climbs Table Mountain when he is in the Cape. He keeps regular office hours, drinks an occasional glass of beer and eats with moderation.

One must be cautious in accepting an invitation from the field marshal to climb Table Mountain. He goes up and down again in a little more than three hours, with a three-minute pause at the top.

A week or two ago, a quick stroll from the Pretoria office to his farm at Irene led to his companion, a young woman member of his family having to have her blistered feet treated by a doctor.

"These old men have no business monkeying about on the mountain," he said recently when he encountered a 50-year-old man who had slipped and broken his ankle and was being carried down Table Mountain on a stretcher.

In response to the former prime minister's appeal for all South Africans, both English and Afrikaans-speaking, to attend the dedication of the monument if they can, many letters and telegrams are reaching his Pretoria office from complete strangers. They declare they will attend the dedication, travelling hundreds of miles to do so.

The monument commemorates the Dutch farmer who colonized the Transvaal and Orange River Colony in the 19th century.

Schools throughout the Union are to close before the normal holidays so that the children will have time to reach Pretoria by December 16, no matter how remote their homes.

And not a few South Africans believe the "youngest" there will be a greybeard—"Oubaas" Smuts.

Australia Beckons, Young Britons Leave

London, — (CP) — Australia has thrown open her doors to young British people. More than 200,000 jobs are waiting to be filled in the Dominion.

Australia House here says there's no limit on the number of unmarried young people it will provide free or assisted passage during November and December.

Steamship tickets are issued within 24 hours after applications pass proficiency test in desired trades and medical examination. Selection officers are stationed in 13 provincial cities.

Before the end of the year it is expected 40,000 Britons will have arrived or be on their way to Australia. Next year's target is 50,000.

In addition, thousands of others went at their own expense. Australia also has taken 50,000 European displaced persons during the year and will open her doors to a further 100,000 next year.

Russia Returns Nine Frigates To U.S. Navy

Yukosuka, Japan, Oct. 18. (AP)—Russia today returned nine frigates to the United States navy. They were the first of 27 lend-lease escort ships scheduled to be turned back here by Russia.

Rear Adm. R. W. Decker, commander of fleet activities here, accepted the nine warcraft at formal ceremonies. Only the admiral and his boarding party of ten were permitted aboard. News correspondents and photographers were obliged to remain on the pier.

The ships appeared to have stood idle for years. They had been stripped of everything Russian except a half-dozen soup plates. There were no tools or fittings.

Corrosion was general. One of Deckers party said mirrors were broken and plumbing apparently was stopped up.

Guns and depth charge equipment appeared in excellent condition, however. The 304-foot, 1,100-ton ships carry three-inch guns and 20-mm. Anti-aircraft as their heaviest armament.

Reds Boost Weapons Says Slav Teacher

Vancouver, — (CP) — The Russians have changed the familiar "guns before butter" slogan to "tanks before ice cream," a Russian-born teacher at the University of British Columbia says.

Dr. Hans Ronimois, newly-appointed associate professor of Slavonic studies, said Soviet production of "luxury" items is cut to the bone to increase military production.

A former economic expert in the U.S.S.R., Dr. Ronimois says food, housing and other economic items are restricted to allow production of tanks, planes and submarines. The kids are denied ice cream cones, though there is plenty of vodka for the adults.

Citizens of Russian cities are cramped into four square yards of living space per person because housing is considered an "unprofitable investment."

Dr. Ronimois is one of two Russian-born teachers brought to the U.B.C. through a $50,000 grant from the Rockefeller Foundation. His associate, James Ferrell, will teach Russian literature.

Warns Current U.S. Strikes In Steel and Coal May Wreck Canada's 1950 Tourist Plan

By RAE CORELLI
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Halifax, Oct. 19 — (CP)—The Canadian Tourist Association was told Tuesday that current coal and steel strikes in the United States may wreck the Dominion's 1950 tourist program.

Director D. Lee Dolan of the Canadian Travel Bureau declared before the Association's annual meeting: "There is a potential travel market being dealt a most serious and perhaps fatal, blow."

"We should approach the 1950 season with a degree of seriousness and full appreciation" of the problem. Such an attitude was necessary because most of the Dominion's tourist business came from the U. S.

Devaluation of Currencies

He referred to devaluation of foreign currencies and said Americans now could travel abroad for less. This, however, was not likely to have an adverse affect immediately on Canada. Also, more Americans now were vacationing within the United States.

However, he said, it's a terrible thing that some consider the tourist industry only in terms of United States dollars."America's friendship was more important.

Mr. Dolan said if Canada's tourist industry is to expand, further highway construction and continued maintenance are necessary. Some areas were "woefully lacking" in good roads.

"Remember," he cautioned, "the satisfied customer is still the best advertisement." No part of the industry needed improvement more than Canadian cooking and presentation.

"We cannot allow our natural facilities to deteriorate if we are going to make money for ourselves and provide a delightful vacation for the visitor."

U. S. industrial strikes would hit the Dominion hard because "the men who were earning travel dollars now are idle."

In his report, President George Martin of Gravenhurst, Ont., urged the formation of a committee to study the tourist industry on a national basis. This industry was second only to the newsprint business as a U. S. dollar-earner for Canada.

Mr. Dolan urged the Association not to rest on the 1949 record — "possibly the most successful tourist season Canada has ever enjoyed."

Five Killed In Plane Crash

Provincetown, Mass., Oct. 18 (AP) — A small chartered plane plunged into the sea off this town at the tip of Cape Cod Monday taking the lives of three adults and possibly two babies.

The dead were identified as Pilot Daniel Lacey, 28, of Westwood, Mrs. Harold Keppel, about 30, wife of a New York Times photo-engraver, and Mrs. Edward S. Davis, about 40, of Provincetown.

Mrs. Keppel's two children, Paul, 2 1-2, and Bruce, about one year, were listed as missing.

The bodies were recovered by the Coast Guard cutter Acushnet about four miles off Race Point. The Coast Guard resumed search for the babies early Tuesday — but doubted they would be found alive.

The plane, a Piper Clipper, was flying the 45 - mile over-water route from Boston to Provincetown when the pilot radioed he was in trouble.

The craft was about 10 minutes from its destination at the time.

Planes of the Cape Cod Flying Service, operators of the Clipper, spotted survivors in the sea shortly after the pilot sent a message indicating he was going into the water.

May Reduce Military Mission Of U.S. to Greece

Washington, Oct. 19 — (AP) — A 45-per-cent reduction in the 500-man American Military Mission to Greece is under consideration, officials said Monday night because of indications that the communist guerrilla threat may be over.

The military mission advising the Greek army was built up to its present top strength this year, to help the Greek army sweep the communist rebels across the border.

A reduction in the Greek armed forces, now totalling more than 200,000 also may be possible. Before any cut is put into effect however positive evidence is awaiting on these two points:

1. Whether the rebels will end their attacks as promised by the guerrilla radio.

2. Whether United Nations truce should be made possible for any child in the Highlands area to begin the study of Gaelic at such age expediency and the, circumstances of the area demand."

Since the Truman doctrine of helping the Greeks preserve their independence went into effect 20 months ago, in Uen months ago, the United States has put more than $500,000,000 into aid for Greece.

Latvian Conducts New Choral Group

Winnipeg, — (CP) — There are only about 300 Latvians among Winnipeg's foreign-born population but they are making a definite contribution to the musical life of the city.

During recent months, two former students of the conservatory of music in Riga, Latvia, have become well known among Winnipeg musicians.

They are Karlis Baloidis, a horn player who has joined the Winnipeg Symphony Orchestra, and Juris Druguze, a choral conductor.

A daytime laborer, Mr. Druguze who studied at the Riga conservatory and later at Marburg, Germany, has organized a mixed choral group of 30. The choir practises every week and plans to stage a concert soon.

Scots Mod Laments Demise of Gaelic

Inverness, Scotland —(CP)—The Gaelic tongue is becoming a forgotten language in Scotland due to the drift of population from the Highlands and Islands to the big cities, Dr. John Cameron said in a presidential address to the National Mod.

Scotland's population had risen from 1,500,00 to 5,000,000 in the last 150 years, but the growth was almost entirely in the industrial belt. The outlying areas had been stripped of younger people who preferred city life.

Because a good command of English was thought to be of supreme importance Gaelic is "retreating with alarming rapidity behind the bastions of the Outer Isles" Dr. Cameron said.

Industrial developments scheduled in the Highlands were unlikely to stimulate an interest in Gaelic.

"In my opinion, it is only youth that can now save our language, and the place for formal instruction of youth is the school. . .It

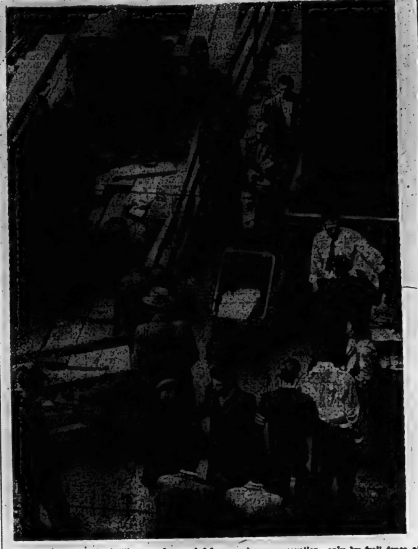
Experts Primed For Trial Census Among Canadians

Ottawa, Oct. 19.—(CP)—Government experts are primed for trial census among 120,000 Canadians this Saturday which will mark the beginning of streamlined and revolutionary changes in the official art of counting noses.

It will test new machinery and methods being groomed for the regular Canadian decennial census in 1951 but its results will be watched all around the world. Officials hope it will cut census costs by half and produce the main facts in from six to nine months, less than half the traditional period.

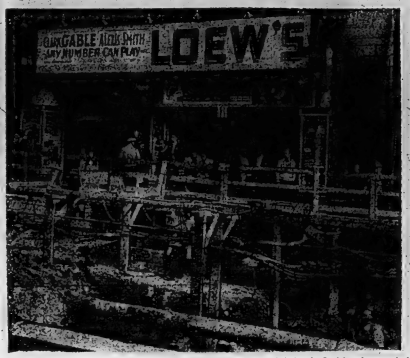
Seven areas have been singled out for the trial run, including the Lunenburg, N.S., parts of Montreal; a portion of Toronto Rosedale electoral district; parts of the Tabor, Alta., area; and a portion of Vancouver. A test will be conducted later in Eastern Ontario's Russell County.

It will make use of new high-speed, labor-saving machines for the first time in any census anywhere in the world.



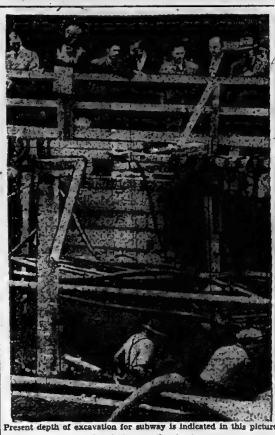
First the trial census will use the "mark-sense" method. For a long cumbersome form it substitutes a seven-inch card bearing 31 questions about the individual and his or her home. With special ink in a ball-point pen the enumerator who knocks on the door will mark down the facts he obtains.

This card becomes the permanent "punch-card" from which the census of 13,500,000 Canadians will eventually be compiled. It goes into an electronic machine where brushes, on making contact with the special ink, cause holes to be punched at the right spots and prepare the card for tabulation.



That means that a machine will do in a flash what used to be a laborious chore by hand.

Another electronic machine will cross-tabulate the results.



Canada also is decentralizing her census. It will be handled regionally where it formerly was directly controlled from Ottawa.

Black and White Show Success At Peterborough

Peterborough, Oct. 19.—(CP)—The Central Ontario Black and White championships Tuesday attracted 162 head of holsteins, shown by 63 breeders from the area extending from Simcoe County in the west to Lennox-Addington in the east.

Upwards of 500 farmers attended. Also present as observers were South American buyers from Columbia, Argentina, Brazil and Uruguay, who have been touring Ontario stockfarms.

For the fourth consecutive year Ontario County won the Canadian Holstein banner for the best county herd. George R. McLaughlin of Oshawa was designated as premier breeder with 24 points.

The show was sponsored by the Ontario Holstein Association. J. Derno of Woodstock was judge.

The junior champion bull was Ormadale Twilight, owned by Thomas McGriaken of Unionville. Reserve junior champion was Hillchee Sovereign Supreme, owned by H. C. McCloskey of Queensville.

MADOC

Mrs. D. Fleming Brings Interesting Talk to St. Peters

Madoc.—The annual thank-offering meeting of St. Peter's Women's Missionary Society was held in the Sunday School room of the church on Thursday afternoon with a good attendance. After the call to worship, Mrs. Heslip welcomed the visiting members from St. Andrew's, Belleville, and Tweed, and other visiting ladies.

Mrs. Field Allan read the Thanksgiving Psalm, while four members gave reasons for Thanksgiving. Miss Vankleek and Mrs. Heslip read letters received recently direct from two missionaries, Miss Anderson and Mrs. Rumble.

The special offering was dedicated by Mrs. McCaffrey. A beautiful solo "Thanks be to God" was rendered by Mrs. Allan Franks. The president introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. D. Fleming, of Belleville, and presbyterial president.

She told of the council meeting held in Calgary which she attended recently. These meetings were opened by very impressive devotional periods. She also spoke of the work of the Indians among their own people. One of the speakers, Miss Felton, a missionary in China, said in her address that the Christian missionaries were the only bright spots in the life of China today. The interest from the peace thank-offering fund is used to help train missionaries. The allocations had been raised slightly as the people out west are clamoring for missionaries. Some even go one hundred miles to church. She told of their trip to Banff and described the missionary pageant showing the growth of the society since 1884.

Mrs. George West moved a vote of thanks to the speaker and the Rev. N. W. Heslip closed with prayer and the benediction. Mrs. McCaffrey and Mrs. Curry poured tea during the social hour.

NORWEGIAN HAVEN

Oslo—(CP)— Plans for offering Norwegian citizenship to 200 more displaced persons — 50 of whom are blind and disabled — are nearing completion. A delegation will soon leave for western German D.P. camps to arrange their transportation to Norway.

TWO MONTHS FOR PERJURY

Hamilton, Oct. 18 — (CP) — "I don't think this calls for a long sentence, but probation is out of the question," said Magistrate Beamer W. Hopkins as he sent Kathleen Gillis, 16, to jail for two months for perjury.

The girl perjured herself during the trial of Joseph Zimba, Harold Whitney and Joseph Bienenda before Judge Schweyer recently. The trio faced trial for assaulting and car theft.

Vishinsky Drafting Last-Ditch Fight Against Yugoslavia

Trying to Keep Country Off U.N. Security Council

Lake Success, N.Y., Oct. 19—(CP)—Vishinsky warns the Soviet-led United Nations if Yugoslavia is elected to the Security Council over Soviet-backed Czechoslovakia.

And Soviet sources said today that Russia is lining up new allies to step up its worldwide battle to prevent a Yugoslav election.

They pointed out that Russia has ended Vishinsky's angry blast at the Yugoslavs and the four American supporters Tuesday. Soviet sources said that Vishinsky might try to carry the battle to the floor of the 58-member General Assembly before the Security Council's balloting tomorrow.

Vishinsky revived the Kremlin's bitter feud with Marshal Tito's regime at a press conference in which he also declared that the atomic bomb has been a "real weapon" for Russia since 1947.

A Security Council session tomorrow was promised if Vishinsky and Yugoslav Foreign Minister Kardelj fights to the floor during the session to fill 11-member Security Council vacancies.

Cast Vote Votes

In the Security Council Tuesday Yugoslavia got its 40th and 41st votes to kill French proposals for an agreement to begin armaments reduction.

Jakob A. Malik of the Soviet Union opposed the French plans leading to disarmament because neither included the atomic bomb. The Russians contend atomic weapons and conventional armaments should be lumped together. The west insists the U.N. control be handled by the U.N. Atomic Energy Commission.

Vishinsky's attack on the Yugoslavs was the second frontal assault on the United Nations organization for the Security Council. The Soviets last week sent diplomatic notes to the western government terming the election of Czechoslovakia a necessity.

He was particularly bitter over United States support of Tito's regime. Earlier, he avowed "the intention of moving further along the path of deepening the split and reducing even the minimum degree of collaboration in the work of the United Nations."

He said this was a "challenge to the Soviet government" and that it "cannot fail to lead to complications." He said the U.N. Security organization and to have painful consequences on the future of all-round collaboration."

Vishinsky contended there is a "real danger" of creation "on the basis of six geographical regions for the security of which countries fill the six non-permanent seat on the Security Council, Britain, France, Russia, Russia, France and China hold permanent seats.

Will Not Recognize Election

Vishinsky declared Europe's region, he argued, nominated Czechoslovakia and all other countries should be supported by the U.S.S.R.

Supporting his argument, Vishinsky said Czechoslovakia was elected for Canada when the Dominion was elected to the Council in 1947.

Canada and Argentina end their two-year council terms Dec. 31 along with the Soviet Ukraine—for the seat over which Yugoslavia and Czechoslovakia are battling.

Both say they have a majority supporting their election but Russia's veto claim to hold the two-thirds majority necessary for election.

Vishinsky declined to say that Russia will do if Yugoslavia is elected but he declared Russia will not recognize such an election "now or later."

Most western delegates have derided reports that Soviet Russia would withdraw from the United Nations if Yugoslavia is elected. Western delegates have expressed fears that Russia will boycott the Security Council in the eventuality.

VOTE TO END STRIKE

Buffalo, N.Y., Oct. 19—(CP)—The United Packinghouse Workers (C.I.O.) voted Tuesday night to end a nationwide meat packing strike and submit the principal issues to arbitration.

The aircraft company said Tuesday it plans to resume normal operations "as rapidly as possible" pending favorable outcome of the vote.

Original issues involved wages, but terms of the settlement were not announced.

Bucking Harris Sugar Washington Team

Washington, Oct. 19 — (AP) — President Clark Griffith announced today Bucky Harris has been signed to manage the Washington Senators baseball team for the next three years.

Harris will succeed Joe Kuhel who, with Griffith, C. J. Uhler Kuhel the Senators finished last in the American League.

Terms of the contract were not announced. However, there were reports that Harris will receive about $25,000 a year.

This is the third time that Harris has served as pilot for the Senators. He led them to pennants in 1924 and 1925 and managed as manager from 1935 to 1942.

Harris, who will be 52 years old next month, managed San Diego of the West Coast League this season.

In 1947 he guided the Yankees to a World Series championship over Brooklyn Dodgers. But he was dropped in 1948 when the Yankees finished 1-1 games behind the pennant-winning Cleveland Indians.

U.S. STEPPING UP ITS A-BOMB PROGRAM AT ONCE

Expansion Will Cost Above $300,000,000

Washington, Oct. 19 — (AP) — The United States is going to speed up its atomic bomb program.

An accelerated expansion of facilities and operations at two key plants, Oak Ridge, Tenn., and Hanford, Wash., will cost in excess of $300,000,000, it has been learned from authoritative sources.

Two moves in the Senate late Tuesday paved the way for the program.

One was the disclosure by chairman Brien McMahon (Dem., Conn.) of the Senate — House of Representatives Atomic Committee that President Truman had authorized the Atomic Energy Commission to boost its budgetary reserves "to get started on this proposition." The reserves to be used amount to approximately $30,000,000.

The second move was Senate approval of a measure by Senator McMahon to lift some of the spending curbs imposed on the A. E. C. earlier in the session. The bill now goes to the house for approval.

McMahon refused to answer when asked by reporters whether the speed-up action is the result of any recent discovery that Russia has had an atomic explosion.

He said only that it is a "major expansion effort" is being undertaken, emphasized that the expansion is not for immediate production that has been in the planning stage since last spring.

He would not disclose any details of the program, or say what additional operations are to be accelerated.

Hanford is the centre of the plutonium operations, while Oak Ridge turns out uranium — both key materials for atomic bombs.

Leaders Commend Princess on Statement Made

Toronto, Oct. 19 (CP)—Rolling glass leaders are unanimous here agree with Princess Elizabeth that marriage of citizens and irresponsibility in marriage are endangering today's home life.

The fact, many of them commended the Princess for having the courage to raise modern morals and for speaking publicly on the grave responsibilities of marriage.

Speaking Monday night at a rally of the Mothers' Union in London, she said one of the principles on which the family and nation are founded were being undermined "and the principles of which the Y.M.C.A. is a participant.

Personnel of the Y.M.C.A. board committees was appointed as follows:

$14,000 Damage Action Dismissed

Brantford, Oct. 19 — (CP) — A damage action of more than $14,000, brought by Stephen Flowers, an independent trucker, against William Eadie, gravel and sand pit operator, was dismissed here Tuesday.

Mr. Flower was injured in a sand slide at the pit last Dec. 22 while loading a truck.

Mr. Justice R. W. Treleaven ruled that the trucker assumed the risk if he was loading the truck without the assistance of machinery or employees at the pit. Evidence was that the accident took place in the pit area where Mr. Flowers could have loaded.

FIRST BIRTHDAY NOVEMBER 14

YMCA Has Been Community Centre For Many Years

Outstanding examples of community service by the Y.M.C.A. were presented to the Board of Directors at a recent meeting, by the various committees responsible for the work of the different departments of the association.

During the past year free swim campaigns were conducted in the pool, a total of 567 boys and girls were enrolled and less than a dozen failed to pass the minimum test.

29 boys and girls were taken to camp at no cost to themselves. Scholarships and privileges were extended to 58 boys and girls without charge. Free night lodging was provided for 62 persons.

Counselling and guidance has been given to several hundred young persons and adults outside of the membership, aiding them in the solution of financial problems, employment, housing, marital difficulties, and social adjustments.

A Community Centre

The Y.M.C.A. has been a community centre where 55 different organizations have been able to hold 74 meetings at below-cost charges and in many instances at no cost at all.

The Y.M.C.A. staff and committees have given leadership to community projects in leagues and recreation and has acted in an advisory capacity or made equipment available to many organizations.

These services have been made possible by the generous support of the citizens of the annual Red Feather appeal of the Belleville and District Community Chest of which the Y.M.C.A. is a participant.

Executive — W. H. Finkle, chairman; John W. Deacon, Wilbur J. Countryman, P. C. McGuire, A. B. Hunt, J. M. Wilson and A. J. Davis.

Taylor Franklin New President Of Kiwanis Club

Taylor Franklin, director of the club for the past five years, was elected president of the Kiwanis Club of Belleville for the 1950 season at the weekly luncheon held at the Kiwanis Center on Tuesday. In addition to serving as a director, Mr. Franklin is also past secretary of the club and was the chairman of the first Kiwanis Regatta, which was held last July.

Formerly of Mallorytown, Mr. Franklin is the Registrar of Albert College, a position he has held for the past 15 years. He is a past president of the Victorian Order of Nurses and is an elder and the superintendent of the Sunday School in the Bridge St. United Church.

Mr. Franklin is also a family man. He married a Belleville girl, the former Bessie Ketcheson, and is the father of twins.

Fire Chief Guest

The guest speaker, Fire Chief Gerald Vance, chose as his topic "Our Fire Department". He briefed the history of the fire department since its inauguration in 1918, when ten men worked 24 hours a day so as the present, with 30 men working a 72-hour week.

He pointed out that some taxpayers criticize the firemen for sitting around all day and wasting their money. "A city might better be using a fire as standby rather than by fire", he stated. "And remember that a every day the department is around, your city is not burning."

He pointed out that fire-fighting was not just indiscriminately pouring water on a fire but that preventative work must be carried out. In conclusion he stated that the fire-fighting force must be more than fire-fighters; they must be fire preventionists as well.

Zero Hour Now At Hand for Many Steel Users

New York, Oct. 19 (AP)—The "zero hour is now at hand for many steel users" hit by strike-induced shortages, the Iron Age, metalworking trade weekly, says today.

"Some have already shut down" the publication says. "Others will be idled this week. Still others closing may be closer than most people think."

The trade weekly estimates that by the end of this week the steel strike will cost 3,000,000 tons of steel production, and about $150,000,000 in wages in basic steel alone, it adds:

"If the strike should last a month it will mean a severe shortage of steel for from four to six months. Some users have an almost certainly hit purchasing power so badly that a sharp business setback will result."

Despite the strike mills still are receiving orders for steel, the Iron Age reports. Buyers were said to be ordering on the theory that when production is resumed the mills will schedule and produce all the old orders first and then enter the quota shipping dates on the orders received since the strike started.

BALK MEDIATORS IN EVERY ATTEMPT TO SETTLE STRIKES

Continuation Threatens Many Other Workers

(By The Associated Press)

Government mediators kept trying today to pave the way for peace in the United States coal and steel strikes but they did not appear very hopeful.

The mediators have been balked in every attempt to settle the strikes, the country's major labor disputes, which have made idle some 1,000,000 workers. Continuation of the strikes threaten a seriously curtail industrial production and make idle several hundred thousand other workers.

There were indications that if no headway is made soon the mediators will turn the dispute over to President Truman. However there was no word that Truman would step in although he would use a powerful labor-management settlement to get the strikers back to work.

Cyrus H. Ching, chief government mediator went to New York today to talk with officials of the C.I.O. United Steelworkers, and the striking United Steelworkers of America. Some 500,000 steelworkers struck Oct. 1 for free pensions and insurance.

Negotiations Deadlocked

The negotiations between soft coal operators and officials of the United Mine Workers remained deadlocked. There was no progress at Tuesday's talks at White Sulphur Springs and Bluefield, W. Va., or indication of any early settlement of the month - old strike of some 400,000 miners.

There were no peace moves by either side in the strike of some 16,000 C. I. O. United Steelworkers against the Aluminum Company of America. The union is seeking a company-paid 10 - cent hourly pension insurance package that would not be affected by future changes in Social Security adjustments.

Other labor developments:

C. I. O. United Auto Workers, by a vote of 618 to 373, agreed to end the nine - week strike at the Bell Aircraft plant near Niagara Falls, N. Y. The principal issues, wages and pensions, will be arbitrated.

U. A. W. representatives and Chrysler resumed negotiations in Detroit over pensions and other benefits for 83,000 workers. Union headquarters announced the talks are in a "receptive" mood.

Contract in smaller plants has been running in favor of acceptance. Final results at the big Rouge plant are not expected for at least a week.

Jury Returns 'Open Verdict' In Man's Death

West Vancouver, B.C., Oct. 19 (CP)— A Coroner's jury Tuesday returned an "open verdict" in the death of Joyce Monsterstead, 20, on Lake Stanley Park Pavilion cashier.

This came despite a statement by Dr. Harold Dyer, coroner, that "she was murdered . . . put in the water unconscious or dead."

The jury's verdict, in part, said the girl died "under very extraordinary circumstances" and a number of which the evidence does not disclose. Its concurrence, we return an open verdict."

Miss Monasterski, who came to Vancouver from Vancouver, two years ago, vanished Sept. 17 after boarding a street car to return to her apartment.

Her nude body was discovered by two boys floating in the water between rocks near Point Atkinson six days later.

Mrs. Lucille Myles testified she saw the missing girl arguing with a man resembling Jack Evans. Miss Monasterski's pavilion employer, in a cafe an hour after the girl was presumed to have left for home.

Mrs. Reaves testified that on the night of Sept. 17-18 he and his wife were at the Vancouver Curling Club.

Cabinet Considers More Rigid Cuts In Govt. Spending

Defence Services May be Affected in Retrenchment

London, Oct. 19 — (Reuters)— The cabinet is believed to be considering more rigid cuts in government spending than put forward in the government's new austerity program, not yet made public.

This belief was strengthened today by the highly sensitive attitude of quarters close to the government. They would neither confirm nor deny general speculation suggesting that the defence services may be materially affected by the cuts due to be announced Monday.

The top ministers in the cabinet held a late meeting Tuesday night at which it is believed various new proposals to expand the scope of the emergency economic program were put forward. Defence Minister A. V. Alexander was said to be the mediator.

One idea said to have been considered is that the government should give a lead to government departmental retrenchment by accepting cuts in their own salaries.

Prime Minister Attlee received £10,000 ($31,500) a year. Most of the other cabinet ministers are paid £5,000.

It was reported that Sir Stafford Cripps, Chancellor of the Exchequer, believes the program of cuts still is not large enough to meet the dollar crisis.

The biggest figure of total saving mentioned in speculation is £400,000,000 ($1,260,000,000) which includes the £100,000,000 import cuts agreed at the recent Washington financial talks. Included in this figure also are proposed cuts in capital investments.

Heavy Cost for Defence

One of Britain's biggest problems is the heavy cost of defence, due partly to her commitments under the North Atlantic Pact and Western Union.

In the present state of international tension, Alexander is expected to resist any sectional pressure for cuts in this department which would weaken Britain's ability to fulfill her international obligations.

Within the last few weeks there has been growing pressure from newspapers of different political opinion to end Britain's period of conscription.

But War Minister Shinwell frequently has emphasized the importance of conscription. It is likely that he echoes cabinet views that the opposition also backs the conscription policy.

Reductions in defence services are expected to be affected by the cuts, though possibly only on the administrational side.

There would be fierce opposition from Hugh Dalton, Aneurin Bevan and sections of the Labor party if there were any curtailment of the £250,000,000 a-year health or other social service benefits.

300 EMPLOYEES OF BELL AIRCRAFT RETURN TO WORK

Walkout Ends and Principal Issues Will be Submitted to Arbitration

Buffalo, N.Y., Oct. 19. (AP)—About 300 employees were recalled to work today following settlement of the four-month-old Bell Aircraft strike.

Local 501 of the United Automobile Workers Union (C.I.O.) voted Tuesday night to end the walkout and submit the principal issues to arbitration.

The vote was 618 to 373.

The local represents 1,700 production workers at the Bell plant, located at Niagara Falls, in telegrams from the company Tuesday. Bell said it plans to resume operations "as rapidly as possible."

The settlement was reached on Monday by company and union leaders through the offices of a State Board of Inquiry which ordered the dispute October 10.

Monday's agreement, in public session last night's vote, listed the status of 22 Unionists the company has called subversive as the first subject for arbitration.

Bell claims these men led riots and violence at the plant near Niagara Falls. Company refusal to rehire them was a principal obstacle to earlier settlement of the strike.

The men walked out June 13 in demand of pension aids and a 10-cent-an-hour wage raise. Bell called the demands "unreasonable", saying its wages averaged $1.76 an hour and were among the highest in the aircraft industry.

Men returned to work during the strike will keep seniority and other rights, according to the agreement, and will not be required to join the union.

Pending arbitration, both parties will follow the contract which expired June 12, the agreement added, and findings of the board will be final.

Four Drug Caches Figure in Trial Of Ten Accused

Vancouver, Oct. 19. (CP) — Four large drug caches, hidden by an alleged Dominion-wide narcotics ring, were described to the R.C.M.P., here, figured on the first day of trial of 10 men on charges of conspiring to distribute narcotics.

A photograph of Nick Agostino, one of the accused, was introduced as evidence by Inspector H. A. R C M P. narcotics squad, who allege it was taken as he picked up one drug cache from the base of a telephone pole.

Police officials testified they made a recording of a conversation of some of the accused as they hid one of the caches in a Vancouver hotel.

Inspector Allen, at one point they wiggled a light cord, causing static on the radio next door, to prove the suspected "medicine" to tune it down so conversation could be more easily heard.

Charged are: Carman Chiovitti of Toronto; Dan Gaberini of Hamilton; Steve Bobach, John and Frank Smokler, Benny Ugat, Mike Cushman, Irving Hess, Nick Agostino and Jake Goldhar, all of Vancouver.

Seven men arrested early in June when the R.C.M.P. climaxed a year-and-a-half intensive investigation with sweeps in Eastern and Western Canada.

STILL GOING STRONG

Springfield, N.S. — (CP) Dena, the 3 1-2-year-old sow of Clarence Allen, isn't resting on her laurels after producing a breaking litter of 21 last fall and another farrowed of 18 this spring. Dena produced 17 piglets this fall.

London's Civic Arena Nearer Reality -- Mayor

London, Ont., Oct. 18. (CP)—Construction of London's all-purpose civic arena, which has been hanging fire three years, may be nearer reality today if Mayor Roy Dennis' latest plans materialize.

Answering mounting criticism, he said in a radio address there are good prospects of getting an extra $100,000 from both the Dominion and Provincial governments. Also he thought that ratepayers should vote a second $600,000 toward the project.

Cost of the arena at Queen's Park is estimated at upwards of $1,000,000 today. It is aimed to return big-time hockey to London, provide for an annual winter fair, as well as agricultural and other shows throughout the year. Queen's Park is the home of the Western Fair.

Lack of financing with increased building costs has prevented a start on the arena to date.

Grants Earmarked

Also, government grants fell below expectations.

The Dominion government granted $200,000 and it was matched by another $200,000 from the province, but the federal grant was earmarked for agriculture-stock purposes only. A stock building is now under way next to the arena site.

Mayor Dennis said that after talking with Premier Frost and Alex. Jeffery, M.P., for London, he had new hope of additional government grants. But he warned it still might be necessary to reduce the seating capacity to some 8,000 to keep within the budget.

"It must be remembered, however, that all contributions to this project come from the department of Agriculture and they will only contribute in so far as the buildings benefit and serve agriculture in Western Ontario."

Veteran Killed In Hunting Accident

William Hay, 27, of Campbellford, who died Saturday evening following a hunting accident on the Trent River near Campbellford. Hay with two other men had gone duck hunting, the accident occurring as Hay attempted to pull a shotgun from the boat. He died en route to Belleville hospital.

Hay, a veteran of the last war, was born in Belleville, and was Japanese prisoner of war for four years in Hong Kong.

SHANNONVILLE

Anniversary Services Featured by Lovely Music and Flowers

Shannonville—Anniversary services were held in the local United Church both morning and evening on Sunday, October 10th. The Reverend L. Gilbert, of Foxboro, was the guest speaker at both services which large congregations attended.

The church was nicely decorated with baskets of autumn flowers. The flowers in front of the pulpit were donated by the Women's Association of the church. Several other baskets were donated by interested friends of the congregation.

Mrs. Harry Sine, church organist, presided at the piano. The instrumental music was greatly enjoyed by the congregation. Mr. Bruce Sills kindly loaned a Solo-Vox which was attached to the piano and gave the effect of a pipe organ to the music for the day. Mrs. S. E. Currie was guest soloist, and accompanied by Mrs. Sine, who played before and after each service.

At the morning service both the Junior and Senior choir joined in singing the selection "Sweeter Every Moment". The duet in this number being taken by Mrs. Damon Hinchey and Mrs. L. W. Scott. Miss Audrey Scott rendered a very pleasing solo "Thanks be to God". During the offertory, Mrs. Currie played a violin solo, accompanied by Mrs. Sine.

At the evening service the theme was "Thanksgiving" in keeping with the holiday.

The senior choir sang the selection, "Offer Unto God Thanksgiving", the solo part being taken by Mrs. Currie. A pleasing duet was sung by Mrs. Scott and Miss Audrey Scott entitled "Rock of Ages".

The Reverend L. Scott was the anniversary speaker at the services in the Marsh Hill church on the Foxboro pastoral charge.

company-issued yard when it was given to him. However, he insisted he knew the location of both his fire and boat drill stations.

Jean Cote, 30, of Montreal, testified he was one of four ball boys on duty. His work included cleaning up, and he started to clean out the social hall after the dance at 12 midnight, E.S.T.

Contents Dumped In Fall

He said it was the practice to dump contents of ash trays into a pail. The pail was kept in the ball boys' locker on N deck near the social hall.

Cote said he first knew of the fire when he saw the reflection of flames in the water standing on the port side of B deck. Leaning over the rail, he saw flames on C deck, a bit aft of amidships.

He said he grabbed a hose and tried to play a stream of water onto the flames but it wouldn't reach. He dropped the hose on a stairway.

Cote said he crossed over to the starboard side, and lowered himself over the railing down to C deck. There were two women there in night attire, and he lowered a Jacobs ladder. He said the women climbed the ladder was afire, declined to use it and jumped to the dock. He followed by the rope ladder.

Donald Copeland, Toronto taxi driver, said he drove Capt. Taylor and Miss Kerr to the ship and that Capt. Taylor was "quite alright".

RAWDON

Wellman's Church Holds Special Dedication Services

Rawdon — Wellman's United church, on the Rawdon circuit, held two special services on Sunday, October 16, on the occasion of their re-dedication, as the church has been newly decorated.

The sanctuary has been painted in harmonizing colors with a wide stencilled border into which has been incorporated the symbols of the three churches of union, Methodist, Presbyterian, and congregationalist, also various symbols of Christianity down through the ages. At the front is a beautiful picture of "The Good Shepherd", painted by the pastor, which is a work of art. A new vestibule has been built and various new arrangements have been made.

Beautiful flowers added to the setting of this service and worshippers were in attendance from nearby points.

Fine Music

Mrs. Lorne Watson presided at the piano and in the morning the choir rendered "Like Temple Bells". At the evening service they sang "God Is Our Refuge", and a quartet composed of Mrs. Frederick Rourke, Mrs. George Watson, Messrs. Angus Todd and George Watson sang "Hear My Prayer".

The pastor, the Rev. H. C. Vaclavik, conducted a special service of dedication and his morning subject was "Re-building for God", and in the evening "God in All".

History of Wellman's Church

He gave a brief history of the Wellman's Church for the past eighty years as it was built in June 1869 and is one of the oldest churches in the district and was the first brick structure at Wellman's. There were no weddings held in the church until 1949, when two of the young women of Wellman's were married in the sanctuary.

Visiting Pastor

The Rev. James Watson, of Winnipeg, who is now retired after serving many years in the west is visiting his brother, Mr. George Watson and he spoke briefly and extended greetings.

In the solemn service of dedication. It was stressed that Wellman's United Church will be used for the hallowing of family life; for teaching and guiding the young; for the upbuilding of all who believe; for the comfort to all who mourn; for strength to those who are tempted, and for light to those who seek the way.

A pie social and program was held in the church on Monday evening.

OPPOSE TRAP NETS

Brantford, Oct. 18 — (CP) — Gill net fishermen of Lake Erie north shore ports have launched a protest over a proposed plan to permit use of trap nets in the lake, it was reported here. They will meet tonight at St. Thomas with pound net operators to discuss their protest.

Britain May Never Build More Battleships

By HAROLD K. MILKS

London, Oct. 18. (AP)—Britain may never build another battleship.

The naval power, whose ships of the line have been famous since before the days of Lord Nelson, now has five. Well-informed sources say these are considered plenty for a long time to come.

"Certainly we won't build more unless some other country which may become a potential enemy starts building them," one source said.

Its Training Squadron

Four of Britain's five battleships have gone into reserve because it costs so much to man and sail capital ships in peacetime. The fifth, the 42,500-ton Vanguard, has been assigned to a training squadron.

This does not mean, one source said, that the admiralty thinks it has no further use for battleships. It means, he explained, that five are enough "for a long time."

Before it comes time to build more, scientific development may make the construction of giant capital ships no longer desirable or necessary," he added.

The Royal Navy's five battleships are relatively new and all have many years of useful life by present standards, it was pointed out.

The oldest, the 35,000-ton King George V, is 10 years old, its three sister ships—the Duke of York Anson and Howe—are slightly younger. The husky Vanguard was launched in 1946.

All four battleships in reserve could be brought quickly to active duty in case of an emergency. Under Royal Navy practice reserve battleships are kept manned by skeleton crews, which maintain them.

Royal Navy experts believe Britain's battleships still have great value, despite such developments as the atomic bomb and heavy guided missiles.

"A battleship is without equal for convoy duty, especially if your convoy is menaced by surface vessels," one said. "It is still the best teammate for heavy aircraft carriers because it provides a superb platform for anti-aircraft guns and the fire power to protect the carriers from attack by cruisers or other heavy-gunned ships.

The battleship has great value also for shore bombardment in support of landing operations, he added.

Naval developments of the future, particularly among countries which Britain must consider as possible enemies, will determine finally whether other and newer battleships are necessary.

But naval thinking in this country today appears agreed that regardless unforeseen demands, the five battleships Britain now has may be her last.

YOUR FRIENDS WON'T WISH TO RECOGNIZE YOU

If you want to look your worst for Hallowe'en, here is an example of what can be done to frighten even Dracula. First you cram a wig on backwards, so the hair falls over the face. Then trim the locks just under the eyes, giving a sheep-dog effect. Don't worry about being able to see as you can peer through the bangs. Then draw eyes, complete with lashes, on your cheeks with an eyebrow pencil. Use nail whiting for the whites. Or, if you're not good at drawing, cut eyes from a magazine and paste them on, and border these with eyebrow pencil lines. Lipstick the lower lip in a broader and fuller pattern than usual. But make the rouging of the upper lip thin to the point of near invisibility.—Central Press Canadian.

Large Cheeses Now Packaged In Small Lots

Toronto, — (CP) — New methods of packing Canadian cheese will be shown to farmers and producers when the Royal Winter Fair opens here November 15.

Through joint research by a large rubber company, department of agriculture and commercial organizations, a method has been evolved whereby large cheeses such as Cheddar may be packed and sold in lots as small as one-half pound. The small parcels, the research experts claim still retain their flavor and keeping qualities and do not harden as do some larger cheeses when once cut.

The small lots are cut squarely, thus enabling merchants to store them more easily and save space and the housewife to save room in her refrigerator.

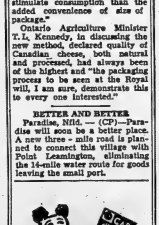
Because of modern living trends emphasis of practically all merchandising, the experts say, is towards smaller packages. Process cheese is, of course, familiar to most Canadian housewives who have been reluctant to purchase the larger cut varieties.

At least one method of wrapping cheese in a "film" cover is now in practical use and will be shown at the Royal, it was learned here.

In a report to the Ontario department of agriculture, Owen R. Irvine of Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph, declared cheese "because of its rich colour and appearance, lends itself remarkably well to wrapping in transparent film providing of course, that a film possessing the correct properties is employed. This quality of rich appearance should be fully exploited since it is a strong factor in impulse buying.

Must Protect Flavor

"The package should protect the product's flavor, not only by sealing in all the good qualities inherently present in the food itself, but also by sealing out undesirable flavors and odors. . . . mould must be rigidly controlled," he reported. "This has always been a bugbear in cheese and packages. Similarly, dehydration and oiling should be of such type that the first of these does not occur, while the second should not seriously damage the appearance of the package. And finally the package must have a fairly long shelf life. In this respect it should be sturdy enough to withstand considerable amount of handling."



A satisfactory film cover had been worked out by scientists of the rubber company, he said, and a "pressure packing" method devised. In this process, cheese, usually in 20 pounds squares, is cured until the desired state of maturity is reached after which the blocks of cheese are cut out into small pieces and made ready for retail sale.

Mr. Irvine emphasized that only excellent quality curd be used "since one must be sure that the branded packages going into the consumers' hands contain nothing but the best type of product. Indeed, packaging and merchandizing natural cheese under brand names with grades clearly indicated will probably do more to stimulate consumption than the added convenience of size of package."

Ontario Agriculture Minister T. L. Kennedy, in discussing the new method, declared quality of Canadian cheese, both natural and processed, had always been of the highest and "the packaging process to be seen at the Royal will, I am sure, demonstrate this to every one interested."

Time and Brains Pooled to Lower Building Costs

Clarkson, Ont., — (CP — Nine professional office employees turn manual workers two evenings a week and every week-end to build their own home at an estimated saving of $50,000. The money saved represents about 50 per cent of the cost of each house.

The men, employees of a large oil company 15 miles from Toronto have given up golf and other pastimes to build their homes on a co-operative money-saving basis. Often their wives and children accompany them to help with lighter tasks.

The scheme was originated last March by C.E. Campbell, an electrical engineer with the oil firm. He was so disgusted with trying to find a home that he decided to take matters into his own hands.

Eight of his fellow workers did not hesitate to pool their spare time in the scheme. They are accountant Jack Runnalls, who takes care of finances with advice from Er Fleming, a tax expert; Garth MacDonald, a lawyer who helped get expensive technicalities completed at minimum cost; Bill Chalmers and Harold Eastwood, architectural draftsman who provided expert advice on planning; Don Jannaway and Lloyd Johnson, chemical engineers; and Don Smith mechanical engineer.

They drew up a legal contract binding each man to do his full share. One of the terms was that each should work 16 hours a week on the houses. They agreed on Wednesday and Thursday evenings and every week-end.

Systematize Job

A record is kept of the number of hours each man works, and in turn he is entitled to the same amount of work from the other eight when working on his own house.

"We decided that each one should be responsible for his own financing," explained Campbell. "In addition, each chooses his own house plans and his own building site."

However purchase of materials is carried out on a co-operative basis, often resulting in a discount when large quantities are ordered.

Runnalls believes that the system works "amazingly well." He said slow and difficult job, such as laying foundations, were completed in short order because "it doesn't get so tiresome when a gang work together."

Work such as plumbing plastering, wiring or brick-laying for chimneys has been left for skilled tradesmen. Although each man hires the skilled help he needs, said Runnalls, "we usually hire the same man to do our work."

All it takes, they say, is careful planning, hard work and enthusiasm. But of course, the professional training of each man has done much to help the group on its way.

OPPOSED TO INCREASED FEE

Brantford, Oct. 19 (CP)—Brantford city council is opposed to any increase in radio license fees. The council passed unanimously a resolution that it was of the opinion that not only was an increase unwarranted, but also that the present fee of $2.50 is excessive and should not be levied. A copy of the resolution is to be sent to the Council of Ontario cities, the Canadian Mayors' Federation, Rose Macdonald, member of parliament for Brantford and Speaker of the House of Commons, and to the CBC and the Speaker in the House of Commons.

Their cargo derricks idle and only a skeleton watch aboard, these are six of a fleet of 12 Canadian ships "on the beach" at Halifax for lack of cargo. These six — all but one flying the Nova Scotian flag — are idle because their operation cost is about 25 per cent higher than those of other countries. Transport Minister Chevrier said the government was giving immediate and urgent consideration to the matter.—(CP Photo.)

U.S. Automobile Industry Soon On Borrowed Time

Detroit, Oct. 18 — (AP) — The United States automobile industry is operating on borrowed time as far as its steel supplies are concerned. Shutdowns of three weeks and more starting early next month are not unlikely.

This was the world today from an authoritative source inside the industry.

The car-and truck-makers had a four-to six-week inventory of steel when the steel strike began. But they have been eating deeply into these stocks and replacements have been cut off.

A top industry executive, who asked that he be not identified, said:

"An important thing that seems to be overlooked is that if we keep going and use up all the steel we have on hand it will take three or four weeks to store up enough more to permit resumption of car and truck output.

"Shutdowns of three weeks or more are inevitable for many of the car companies if steel does not start to come through again by next Monday."

No one auto maker wants to admit his steel position is any worse than that of his competitors. But most car and truck companies, especially among the "big three" of General Motors, Chrysler and Ford, have been producing at record levels for many weeks. Most of the G-M and Chrysler division has been working overtime to complete their 1949 model runs.

One of the effects of assembly line shutdowns next month, besides idling several hundred thousand auto workers, would be to delay new model announcers by G-M, Chrysler and possibly Ford. Ford of course, produces some of its own steel, but not nearly all it needs for even normal car and truck output.

The car industry is reported to have some 600,000 cars in dealers' hands or in storage.

Despite the threatened shutdowns, the industry is certain to break its 20-year production record within the next few weeks.

The record mark of 1929 was 3,358,420 cars and trucks. Factory output this year already is well over 5,100,000 units.

London Letter: Londoners Show Their Wit in Their Windows

By NORMAN CRIBBENS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Oct. 19 — (CP)— A Canadian visitor once remarked that Londoners wear their wit in their windows.

He was impressed, as many have been impressed, by the number of quaint signs employed by storekeepers to attract trade.

It all started during the war when the "business as usual" slogan was adopted by hundreds of small traders whose premises had been battered and broken by bombs. Typical of these was the sign hung out by a greengrocer after his front windows had been blown in: "More open than usual."

The custom has persisted. In Shepherd Market, East London, tourists often pause outside a little store the front of which is festooned with boots and shoes. Chalked across the window is the laconic announcement: "You provide the feet. I'll provide the shoes."

During the August heat — wave a Holborn tailor displayed on his window the somewhat clinical exhortation: "Don't stop outside and faint. Come inside and have a good fit."

Along the Edgware Road two clean collars and an immaculate shirt are displayed in a laundry shop window. Right in the centre is the avowal: "When Ma gets tired, we don't."

Then there is the hawker who regularly patrols up and down the Strand bearing a tray of needles, laces, razor blades and shoe horns. Tied to his chest is a placard bearing the legend: "This is on me."

Philosophers have said that London's humor is the product of a city always in the throes of change. When the Londoner's home is pulled down to make way for a new building project, he grouses plenty at first. But when the time comes to move he invariably goes on his way with a philosophical grin and a joke.

TO ONSTALL ICE PLANT

Toronto, Oct. 19 — (CP)—The Coliseum at the Canadian National Exhibition will have an artificial ice - manufacturing plant installed in the arena. City council Monday approved a $218,300 expenditure for the project and instructed the city solicitor to obtain the necessary approval from the Ontario Municipal Board. Seating capacity of the arena is estimated at about 8,000.

Oppose Increases Asked for Radio Licences, 'Phones

Brantford, Oct. 19—(CP)—Opposition to proposed increases in the cost of radio licences and the tariffs for telephone services was expressed Monday by city council.

Two resolutions, introduced by Alderman George J. Patte and approved by the council, described the present radio licence fee as excessive and one that should be eliminated instead of increased and termed the proposed increases by the Bell Telephone Company as "excessive and unwarranted."

The resolution pertaining to radio licences noted that receiving sets in the United States were not licensed and that many of the programs enjoyed by Canadian listeners originated in that country.

Adding that radio was primarily a medium of advertising, the resolution suggested that those using it for advertising purposes, especially national advertisers, should be charged an amount sufficient to make the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation a paying project, without taxing the public through radio license fees to make up its deficits.

Copies of the resolution are to be sent to other Ontario cities, the Canadian Mayors Federation, asking for endorsation, and to W. Ross Macdonald, K. C., M. P. for Brantford and Speaker of the House of Commons, and to the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation.

Council opposed the Bell Telephone request for an increase in rates as "being exorbitant," holding that increased business which the company recorded should mean lower rates.

Sea Monster Pops up Off Coast of Africa

Capetown, — (CP) — Another sea monster has popped up off the South African coast, this time a few miles from the fishing village of Hermanus, not far from Capetown. It is described as an eerie-looking creature, about 30 feet long, with a long mouth and "with a hole in its head."

The monster, spotted by the skipper of a fishing vessel, can prove a menace to small craft—according to the skipper.

POINT TRAVERSE

Wolves Make Havoc In Flocks of Sheep Wiping One Flock Out

Point Traverse—Roaming dogs or wolves are believed responsible for destroying many sheep on two farms in this vicinity within the last few days.

Fred VanCott reports the loss of ten ewes. Several of the animals were chased over a forty foot cliff into the waters of South Bay. Most all of the ewes were so badly bitten and mauled that they died after being taken from the water.

Roy Chapman, a neighboring farmer, has had his entire flock of sheep wiped out by either dogs or wolves. Several residents have reported seeing a large black animal, but all attempts have failed to destroy it. Last summer Mr. Jim Wilson of Castleton, veteran bushman and wolf trapper, spent ten days here attempting to track down wolves believed to be in the neighborhood. Definite proof was established that wolves are in South Marysburgh township, but it would require several days to locate their runways to capture them.

CONVICTED OF SMUGGLING

New York, Oct. 19 — (AP) — Eduardo Balarezo, 46-year-old ship's steward, Monday was convicted on narcotics charges running him as head of a $3,000,000 international cocaine - smuggling ring. Sentence was deferred. He faces up to 15 years in prison and fines totalling $15,000. He was accused in connection with cocaine-smuggling from Peru to New York on the Grace Line ship Santa Margarita.

FRANKFORD

Departing Minister And Family, Recipients Of Remembrances

Frankford. — The Friendship Group of the Frankford W.A., United Church, met at the home of Mrs. Walter Morrow on Wednesday evening, with 45 ladies in attendance. The President, Mrs. Carlisle, had charge of the Worship Service, and business.

A feature of the evening, was the presentation of a lovely cup and saucer to Mrs. Lackey. Mrs. Warren read a farewell address of appreciation to Mrs. Lackey for her untiring service in every way in the church organization, and wishing her God's blessing in her new field of labor. Mrs. Ada Bush had charge of the program, which consisted of a solo, "Teddy Bears' Picnic" by Sandra Morrow; readings by Mrs. Mervin Dafoe, Mrs. Harold Ferry, Mrs. Wilmot Rose and Mrs. Roy Osterhout. A contest was enjoyed and was won by Mrs. Slingerland. Mrs. Joe Williams won a second contest.

Dainty refreshments were served by Mrs. Bush, and Mrs. Morrow.

A congregational community night was held on Wednesday evening, Oct. 12, in Rose Lowery Hall to honor the Rev. R. Lackey and Mrs. Lackey, and boys, who leave shortly, to take up new duties at Claremont, near Toronto;

Mrs. Arthur Southworth, a member of the session, was chairman for the evening. A fine program was enjoyed by all, consisting of a piano duet by Mrs. Leslie Frost, and Mrs. Fred Charlesworth, a reading by Mrs. Harry Montgomery, and a vocal solo by Mrs. Walter Morrow. The Rev. H. Vaclavik, of Stirling, favored with two vocal solos, accompanied by his wife at the piano, which concluded the program.

Mrs. Fred Charlesworth then read an address to Mrs. Lackey on behalf of the Sunday School Bible Class, and Mrs. Williams and Mrs. Caldwell presented Mrs. Lackey with a reggsine table, vase and several small articles. Mr. Arnold Hicks, chairman of the Board of Stewards, read the address for the community gifts, and a chair, blanket and electric tea kettle were presented to Mr. and Mrs. Lackey. Allen and David were presented with books by Sandra Morrow and Ian Finnigan. After suitable and moving response a friendly hour was spent in circulation and talk and delicious refreshments were served.

This is only one of the many gatherings of farewell to the Lackey family, in which every appointment has paid tribute to their inspiration and untiring service in the ministry of labor.

RAWDON

Mr., Mrs. Ray Hedger Honored by Miscellaneous Shower

Rawdon—The spacious home of Mr. and Mrs. John Heagle, sixth concession Rawdon, was filled on Friday evening with friends from the Wellmans community, and surrounding district, when a miscellaneous shower was tendered their daughter, and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Hedger, who are now residing in Bellleville.

Mr. Frederick Beckett was chairman for the occasion, and extended greetings to the newlyweds.

Mrs. Lorne Watson conducted a round of community singing.

Piano solos were rendered by Mrs. Fred Beckett, Mrs. Lorne Watson and Mr. Gerald Taylor.

Mrs. Clifford Clancy sang a vocal selection with her daughter, Ruth, as accompanist.

Address of Appreciation

Mrs. Wellington Kosobucki read an address of appreciation which was signed by Lillian Rainie, Donna McGee, Ruth Clancy and Lucille Kosobucki.

The young couple were the recipients of a large array of gifts and June and Ray graciously extended thanks to all.

The ladies served refreshments, and the group extended best wishes and continued happiness to the happy couple.

FRANKFORD

Frankford — Messrs. Raymond, Carl and Harry Lohnes were among those of the village who were out for a duck hunt Saturday morning. They returned with four ducks . . . all decoys. However, not to be slighted by Dame Fortune, they embarked on a partridge hunt in the afternoon, and were quite successful in bringing home their count.

A number of the younger girls of the village spent Saturday about the streets, selling tags for the Canadian National Institute for the Blind. Reports are that the tag day was quite successful.

The Frankford Boy Scouts held their weekly meeting in the Community - Memorial Hall Friday evening, with a good turnout. A new Patrol came into existence, the Wolf Patrol, with Hugh Lyons as Leader. The evening was spent in recreation and instruction.

The Young Peoples' Union of the United Church are going ahead with plans for a Hallowe'en party to be held in the Rose - Lowery Hall on Hallowe'en night. Members of a Trenton Y. P. U. have been invited, All young people are cordially invited to attend.

Mr. Don Rogers, of Toronto, spent a few days this week with his wife and family in Frankford.

Glenna Wannamaker has started working Saturdays in Wallace's Grocery.

Mrs. Harry Wickson is clerking in Dafoe's Grocery.

Mr. Francis Casement called on his grandmother, Mrs. John Casement, Friday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Lohnes called on Mr. and Mrs. Carl Lohnes Friday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Burtch of Madoc spent the dinner hour with Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Smith, Saturday.

Mr. Gene Lohnes attended the Insurance Agents' and Representatives Convention in Toronto, on Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Phil Reeve, of Port Credit, visited friends and relatives in the village this weekend.

SAVES HIS FAMILY THEN PUTS OUT FIRE

St. Thomas, Oct. 18 — (CP)— Ezra Livingstone, living on a farm near Lawrence Station, 12 miles from here, awoke shortly before midnight to find his home filled with smoke. He got his four children out of the place then tackled the fire in the living room and when the fire department from Sheddon arrived had everything under control. The fire had been started by an electric pressing iron, on which the power had not been shut off. Loss was less than $200.

Boat That Outruns Airplanes Being Groomed for Shot At Campbell's World Record

Seattle, Oct. 19. (CP)—A boat that outruns airplanes on Lake Washington is being groomed for an assault on Sir Malcolm Campbell's world record of 141.74 miles an hour.

Just how fast the "Slo-Mo-Shun IV" actually travelled in its first semi-secret tests the owner, S. S. Sayers, would not reveal today.

"We were flyin' low," he grinned.

Friends of the Seattle automobile dealer and his designer and builders have been sworn to secrecy, but among themselves they agree the water-walking streak of noise is ready for an official crack at Campbell's record. The pilot of a small seaplane landed in a hurry and taxied to the "Slo-Mo-Shun IV" after a test run.

"Do you know how fast you were goin'?" he shouted.

Sayers laughed. "We have an idea."

"I hit a hundred-ten and dived at you," the pilot marvelled. "You weren't there!"

Sayers is not falsely modest about his boat. In fact, he's about to burst with excitement and the urge to get the craft into competition. But the experience of other speedboat fanatics has him bending over backward to avoid a build-up.

"Whatever you write," he said, "underline the 'if'. Many a man thought he had the world's fastest boat, has seen it perform phenomenally in trial runs, then had it fall completely when the chips were down. I'm not going to make any claims for this boat. It will have to do its own talking."

(Earlier this month Harold Wilson, of Ingersoll, Ont., failed in his attempt to break Sir Malcolm's world mark and abandoned his try until next year. Wilson tried for a new mark in his Miss Canada IV. But bad luck consistently hovered over the 35-foot craft during its run on Picton Bay.

(Wilson announced abandonment of the test Oct. 6 after Miss Canada IV broke a propeller shaft. During a trial run he hit a speed close to the world mark.

(However, Miss Canada IV was able to set a North American record of 138.6 miles an hour during the test.)

KILLED BY CAR

Ottawa, Oct. 18 — (CP) Nine-year-old Marie Marina Rochon dashed across a busy highway today to catch her school bus. She was struck by a car and died almost instantly.

A companion, Doreen Lacombe, 10, said Marie ran out into the Bowerville Road, near suburban Uplands Airport, and into the path of a car driven by Maurice DesChamps. DesChamps said he was almost abreast of the two girls when one of them ran out into the road and he was unable to stop.

Oshawa Generals Showing Form In Junior 'A'

(By The Canadian Press)

Toronto Junior Marlboros are still on top in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior "A" race after blanking Galt Black Hawks 8-0 in a Junior "A" doubleheader in Toronto last night. In the other game of the doubleheader Oshawa Generals moved into second place over point behind the Dukes with a 4-2 win over Toronto St. Michael's College Majors.

In the only Senior O.H.A. game last night, Owen Sound Mercurys won their first game in three starts, defeating Hamilton Tigers 4-3 at Hamilton. Hamilton and Owen Sound now are tied with two points apiece for second place, two points behind Toronto Senior Marlboros.

The Junior Dukes had little opposition from Black Hawks, blanketing the Galt team with superior speed and tight defensive play. Galt's best period was the second when they limited the Dukes to one goal. Marlies collected four goals in the first frame and cleaned up with three more tallies in the final stanza.

Stars in Goal

Bob Shropshire starred in the Oshawa goal against St. Michael's. Generals scored one goal in the first frame although the Irish continually carried play into the Oshawa end. Generals pressed Howes for two goals in the second period and Sandford leading the Irish offensive later in the period put St. Michael's back in the running. The college's offensive continued into the third frame but Hastings beat Howes with less than a minute remaining to cancel Diezen's goal for the Irish a few seconds later.

Louis Jankowski Ted O'Connor Gord Warner and Graham Hastings were Oshawa marksmen while Sandford and Diezen each scored once for St. Michael's.

Stukus Charges Bombers 'Made it Easy' for Riders

Winnipeg, Oct. 19. (CP)—President E. A. Armstrong of Winnipeg Blue Bombers said Tuesday that Coach Annis Stukus of Edmonton Eskimos apparently had his eye on the possibility of increasing gate sales for Edmonton's next game when he charged that Bombers had "made it easy" for Saskatchewan Roughriders last Saturday.

Stukus maintained that Bombers, who lost 47-0 to the Riders, "must have laid down."

The lop-sided score virtually assured Riders of the second playoff spot. Calgary Stampeders rallied down their top place position early in the season.

"To say the least, 'Dr.' Stukus like some up with a brand new diagnosis for what ailed us last Saturday," said Armstrong. "Friend Stuke (a former Toronto Sports writer and grid star) hasn't been in the west long enough to know that there never was a bomber team which would say 'uncle' to Regina. I prefer to think he was attempting to accelerate gate sales for next Saturday's games. . ."

Mild Surprise

It was a mild surprise for Tigers when Owen Sound Mercurys opened the scoring after a goal-less first period. A few minutes later Doug Gillespie put the visitors two up and it wasn't until late in the period that Liscombe gave the Bengals their first goal.

Jack Ingoldsby put Mercs two goals up in the third frame when Johnny Conick leading the Hamilton attack cut down the visitor's lead with a goal with a little more than a minute remaining. Bruno Favero however killed the Tiger's chances with a goal at the 19-minute mark.

Tonight two junior O.H.A. games are scheduled. St. Catharines Teepees meet Windsor Spitfires at Windsor and Barrie Flyers travel to Stratford Kroehler's ice.

All Six N.H.L. Teams in Action On One Night

(By The Canadian Press)

All six clubs take the ice tonight in the first full-scale night of National Hockey League warfare since the new season started exactly one week ago.

The card includes two of the first clash of the season between the pigtime's two Canadian foes as Montreal Canadiens versus the Maple Leafs at Toronto. The other matches have New York Rangers against the Red Wings at Detroit and Chicago Black Hawks against the Bruins at Boston.

With only three points separating all six teams, the standings may be well assembled by the deciders.

Dick Irvin's Canadiens, victors of their two starts, will be meeting another unbeaten team in the Toronto Maple Leafs, Cup champions. Hap Day's Toronto team whipped Detroit Red Wings 5-1 in their second start after tying Chicago 4-4.

The Leafs, after only two games of their 70-game schedule, are deadlocked for fourth and will need help from the liniment - and-tape department to dress nine forwards.

Four Forwards Injured

Toronto has four forwards on the injury list. They are centre Fern Flaman, who has a fractured wrist, winger Bill Ezinicki, whose weak ankle may respond to treatment in time, and left-wingers Howie Meeker, whose ankle was injured in practice, and who received in Detroit Sunday night, and left-winger Harry Watson, who has a bad knee and charley horse in the menu.

In addition, defenceman Gus Mortson has a leg injury.

Defenceman Bill Juzda, the surprise of the Leafs' camp, may be moved up to forward against Canadiens. He will work on the front line in a trial at Pittsburgh Monday night, when Leafs beat Hornets of the American Hockey League 4-0 in a benefit game for Bob Bartley.

To Introduce Rookie

Canadiens will introduce rookie Gilles Dube to Toronto fans. The N. H. L. newcomer plays Canadiens wing on a line with Maurice (Rocket) Richard and Elmer Lach, who changed his mind this fall after retiring last year. They will also have Grant (Knobby) Warwick, obtained from Boston in an off-season deal.

Toronto could climb over Canadiens into first place by beating them tonight.

The Hawks and the Bruins both will be trying to get out of the cellar in their game at Boston. Each has a tie and a loss in two starts, leaving them in a triple-deadlock for last place with the Rangers.

ANYONE LOSE RINGS AND WATCHES?

Toronto, Oct. 18 — (CP) — Has anybody lost a tray or rings and two watches?

Toronto police have the jewellery, and Arthur St. Armand, 17, charged with theft of it, but haven't any ideas, as yet, who owns the stuff.

How Christian Science Heals

"Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures"

by Mary Baker Eddy

After reading the first sentence of the first chapter, he thought, "Whoever wrote this had been very close to God."

He read on for several hours with such a sense of unfolding understanding as he had not known before, then realized that he was well. The healing was complete and permanent.

The complete explanation of Christian Science and its healing work is given in "Science and Health." Price, $3.00

TURNING THE PAGES OF

"CANADA UNLIMITED"

The sharp crack of axes pierced the frosty air . . . rollicking songs of shantymen rang through the Maritime woods . . . this was the lumber industry in the 1600's. Log cabins and ships were built from Canadian timber from the beginning of our history.

By 1700, export trade in ship-building materials was carried on with the West Indies. After 1760, sailing vessels braved the stormy Atlantic to carry New Brunswick timber to England for the ships of the British Navy. Canada took the lead in forest industry.

Lumbering opened up vast new areas along the St. Lawrence and the Ottawa valley. In 1803, Canada's first pulp mill was erected at Argenteuil, Quebec. There followed a rapidly expanding demand for pulpwood and newsprint. By 1900, Canada was supplying a major portion of the world's needs.

Today Canadian production of newsprint is greater than the combined output of the next five leading countries. 4,900,000 tons were produced in 1947. Research has led to the development of other wood products, such as cellulose, rayon and plastics. This rapid growth points to a wide future for Canadians. Yes, there's room to grow—in Canada Unlimited.

Just how much room is told in "Canada Unlimited", an illustrated 144 page book published by the O'Keefe Foundation. You may obtain your copy by sending 25c in coin (no stamps or cheques, please) to "Canada Unlimited", Dept. N2-19, O'Keefe House, Toronto, Ontario. Please print your name and address clearly. All monies will be donated to the Canadian Citizenship Council.*

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By KENO KINALDI
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Winnipeg, Oct. 19 — (CP) — That 47-0 lambasting by Saskatchewan Roughriders last Saturday was the bitterest pill Winnipeg Blue Bombers ever had to swallow.

Even the sport scribes, who tried to keep up flagging morale all through this disastrous season, threw in the towel for the once - mighty Bombers.

Gordo (Winnipeg Tribune) Hunter pessimistically writes:

"As far as Winnipeg fans are concerned, this year's edition of the Bombers was a complete loss . . . if there is to be any improvement in next year's picture, the Bomber executive had better get down to serious business, right now.

"Gate receipts fell off badly toward the end of the year and we wouldn't be at all surprised to see Bombers end up in the red. Present day football is a costly business and without the support of the Winnipeg fans, the Bombers can't help but take a financial trimming."

Scouting Advocated

In smiling vein, Bob (Winnipeg Free Press) Moir groans:

"The less said about Saturday's game the better.

"In fact, the only suggestion we're going to make is that Bombers do something about next year immediately. For instance, why not let Bob Sandberg take over the team for the rest of the year and send Coach Frank Parson out on a scouting tour — he has contacts in Philadelphia and New York — to see about next year's imports and also look at a few ball players in the east . . .

RADIO CAUGHT HIM

The Pas, Man. — (CP)—When Sam Kreller of Sherridon shot a moose that wandered into town, a radio station reported the incident on the air. Game Warden Joe Robertson of Cranberry Portage listened in and hunted down Kreller, who paid $25 in court for hunting out of season.

Here is an outstanding opportunity for training and experience in radio and communications. Young men joining the Royal Canadian Corps of Signals will receive this training in one of the finest schools of its kind in Canada.

The Corps offers a wide selection of specialist trades: wireless and teletype operation; radio and radar maintenance and repair work; line and cable laying; switchboard installation and operation. All training is carried out with the most advanced equipment and methods.

This is just one branch of the new Canadian Army Active Force. Every branch offers an interesting, exciting career . . . present and future security . . . and, pay that compares favourably with civilian rates. Visit your nearest recruiting office now. You are eligible if you are 17 years of age or over and can meet Army requirements. Bring with you certificates of age and education.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Montreal Canadiens are in first pace in the National hockey League championship race after the first six games of the new season have been swept by the boards. Canadiens with two successive wins are atop the ladder with four points. Toronto Maple Leafs, with one win and a draw are next with three points and are followed by Detroit Red Wings with two points. Three teams, Chicago Black Hawks, Boston Bruins and New York Rangers are grouped together with one point apiece.

* * *

Sid Smith, scoring champion of the American Hockey League last season is now embarked on winning the N.H.L. scoring title and is off to a good start. Playing left wing for the Toronto Maple Leafs, Smith scored two goals and assisted in two others in the Leafs two games and as a result holds down top spot among the scorers with four points. Seven players are tied for second place among the loop's top scorers with three points each. They are Maurice Richard, Canadiens, George Gee, Detroit; Paul Ronty, Boston, Fleming Mackell, Toronto, Howie Meeker, Toronto, Gilles Dube, Canadiens and Johnny Peirson, Boston.

* * *

Bill Durnan, five-time Vezina Trophy winner, is back on the nets of old winning road again. In two games he's allowed only one goal to get past him for an average of .50 goals against per game. He also turned in the first shutout of the 1949-50 season when he blanked Chicago on Oct. 12. Jack Gelinas, Boston's rookie goalie, has allowed four goals to escape him in two games for the second best performance among the netminders.

* * *

Montreal Canadiens are the most penalized club after the first six games of the season. Canadiens have a total of 24 minutes. Ted Kennedy, Toronto and Ken Reardon, Canadiens are the most penalized players with 10 minutes each.

* * *

Traffic will be terrific in the ring at the Memorial Arena on Friday night, when a four-man team match, with all four men in the ring together, will explode on the mat as the combination of Whipper Billy Watson and Pat Flanagan will swoop at the alliance of Fred Atkins and Hardboiled Hannigan in an all-out, unhampered fight to establish, once and for all, which is the better grappling team. Not only will the four wrestlers be in action in the ring at all times, but there will be two referees inside the roped square also, to handle the anticipated dynamic action. Thus the fans will be witnessing no less than six big men on the move under the spotlights throughout. Previous mat meetings between these two opposing factions have demonstrated that only an all-in test, with two officials, will be adequate to bring their feuding to a satisfactory decision.

* * *

Two other all-star bouts will complete the outstanding card. Tour Moryan will tackle Dangerous Dan O'Connor in the semi-final, with Tiny Tasker meeting Al "Krusher" Korman in the opener.

* * *

Lose rookies are performing in the National Hockey League in the 1949-50 season, a sudden way from what has been for the last few years. Thirteen fresh faces will be seen dotted among the lineups of the six N.H.L. teams this season whereas only three seasons ago, 30 players were making their debut in hockey's big tents, writes Ken Mackenzie, N.H.L. publicity director.

* * *

Boston Bruins, besides having the only first-year coach in the N.H.L., also have the most first-year players. Coach Buck Boucher has four players cutting their National League teeth. They are Goalie Jack Gelineau, Center Phil Maloney and Wingers Dave Creighton and Zellio Toppozzini.

* * *

New York Rangers and Chicago Black Hawks are next with three rookies apiece. The trio of New York freshmen are Gus Kyle, defenceman, "Bing" Juckes and Bill McDonagh, forwards. The Black Hawks' trio are Winger Bert Olmstead, Defenceman Jim Bedard and Centre Ray Powell. Detroit Red Wings have two players striving for their varsity berths. The new Red Wing players are Forwards Steve Black and Fred Glover. Montreal Canadiens' lone rookie representative is Gilles Dube, a French-Canadian left winger.

* * *

The Stanley Cup champion Toronto Maple Leafs, who only a few years ago had the greatest number of rookies on their team, do not have a single rookie this season.

LOTS OF WAY TO LOSE

New York, Oct. 19.—(AP)—Where are a lot of ways to lose a horse and a $2 bet.

Up charged up to grab the horse by a neck. The customers wondered why jockey Bobby Strange didn't unlimber his whip and whack Cornwall.

Strange explained later that when he raised the whip, a short piece of string at the end of the bat got caught in his collar. He couldn't yank it loose in time to hit the horse.

Night Racing Starts in Chicago

Chicago, Oct. 19 (AP)—Night thoroughbred horse racing, made legal this year, came into being in Chicago and Illinois for the first time Tuesday.

A crowd of 8,007 saw this bit of turf history being made at Sportsman's Park, popular half-mile track at suburban Cicero. The lights were used for the eighth race.

"This may be just what racing will need if it ever falls into a serious slump," he said.

Under the new law, running race meetings can be held either day or night.

Gordon Glisson Injured in Race

New York Oct. 19.—(AP)—A fractured collar bone could cost Gordon Glisson, darling of the $2 betting, chance to be the leading United States jockey in 1949.

Taken to hospital, X-rays disclosed the fracture of the right collarbone. Glisson will be out of action for an indefinite period.

RECONSIDERS DECISION

Toronto, Oct. 18 — (CP)—Fred Baverstock, holding his 14-month-old daughter in his arms as he testified, was convicted today of refusing to submit a city health inspector to his house. He was fined $25.

"I haven't got $25, so I guess I'll take the five days," said Baverstock. He handed the child to his wife, transferred a bottle of milk he was carrying—and went to his cell.

Fifteen minutes later, he reconsidered. He paid the $25.

Guelph, Galt To Have Spiel For School Boys

(By The Canadian Press)

The Guelph and Galt curling clubs will conduct the Ontario Schoolboy Bonspiel for the 1950 season, it was decided at the 76th annual meeting of the Ontario Curling Association held at Toronto Tuesday. Each rink entering the Ontario Bonspiel will make an entry fee of $4 and each member of the schoolboy section of clubs will be registered with the O.C.A. at a fee of 10-cents each.

A. M. Heron of Toronto, former first vice-president, was named president of the association, succeeding the late Dr. S. T. White, who died last July. First vice-president is E. Parsons, of Oshawa with F. J. Powers of Detroit, as second vice-president. Rev. John Mutch, of Hamilton Thistles was named chaplain and W. O. Tudhope, of Orillia and B. C. Tippen of Sarnia were named new members of the executive.

Leading North American badminton players will compete in an international badminton tournament at the Kitchener-Waterloo Badminton Club, Nov. 20 and 21, it was announced by club officials Tuesday. It is hoped the tournament will become an annual affair.

Coach Frank Goup of Hamilton Wildcats Tuesday night replied rumors that Al Dekdebrun has quit and said his starry United States import will be back in the lineup in their Big Four game with Montreal Alouettes at Hamilton Saturday.

The ducks and geese are on their way south. Ducks unlimited, international conservation, preservation, received word Tuesday from its Canadian agents that the annual migration began in real earnest early Tuesday, and should closing today into a spectacular movement.

Chicago White Sox Tuesday announced they have ratched Joe Tipton to Philadelphia Athletics for second-baseman Nelson Fox in a straight player deal.

Hermie Freeman, 134, Bath, Me., Tuesday night won a split decision over Jean Richard, 136, Montreal, in 10 fast, action-crammed rounds at Portland, Me. Richard, who has been a Canadian champ, was down for nine in the fifth from a right to the jaw and several punches to the head and body that landed while he was falling.

County prosecutor Gerald K. O'Brien said Tuesday night at Detroit he has ruled that no criminal negligence was involved in the ring death of Tuesday Bussey, Detroit boxer. Bussey died Oct. 10 after a bout with Luther Rawlings of Chicago.

The last Canadian entry was eliminated Tuesday while the favored Armand Savignano of Montreal, was defeated canuck entry.

Bridgeport vets will be back in the north Waterloo senior minor hockey league this year. They were re-admitted at league meeting Tuesday after their expulsion last season. The re-instatement brings the number of clubs in the league—Bridgeport, St. Jacobs, Elmira and the Clements—to four. The first game of the schedule will be at Elmira, Oct. 20, between Bridgeport and Elmira.

The Massachusetts Boxing Commission Tuesday night reported "in co-operation with the New York State commission" that middleweight champion Jake La-motta of New York has been suspended.

Lamotta, who won his title from Marcel Cerdan, was classified as "ill and unavailable" by New York, where the length of his suspension was not noted in the official bulletin.

Six Teams Closely Grouped In Darts League

With only two points separating the first and last teams in the standing, the Belleville Services Darts League is enjoying one of the closest races in its history.

The Hasty Fees team is on top with twelve points in the six team loop with the C.N.R. Veterans bringing up the rear with 10. Grouped in the middle are the Brewers' Warehouse, Army, Navy Air Force Veterans Follwell Supply and 9th Anti-Tank Regiment with 11 points each.

Games played this week saw identical scores in all three contests. Hasty Fees defeated the Warehousemen 6-5 with Follwell Supply turning back the 9th Anti-Tank Reg't and the A.N.A.F. Veterans taking the measure of the C.N.R. Veterans by the same score.

Following is the league standing to date:

	H. and F. E. Reg't, 12; Brewers, 11; Follwells, 11; A.N.A.F. Vets, 11; 9th Anti-Tank, 11; C.N.R. Vets, 10.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

New York, Oct. 19.—(AP)—Alex Kellner, who won 20 games for Philadelphia Athletics this season, originally was signed for $30 by the Toronto, Ariz., club, then a Cincinnati farm ... the Reds' bigwigs thought Alex was "too fat and too thick across the chest" to become a good pitcher, so they let him go for peanuts after Kellner refused to play for the same.

Safety First

Michigan State claims to have the smallest big-time tackle in 176-pound Don Coleman, but the Spartans found out a year ago that he's plenty rough ... It was when Jayvee coach George Makris asked for some practice for scrimmage his lads ... in about five plays, Coleman had flattened junior varsity players all over the field and was looking for more work. Makris yelled: "Get that guy out of here; he's ruining my team."

Shorts and Shells

Jack Dempsey, branching out as a boxing producer, unveils his first offering tomorrow. Automobile racing is the background for the first of Jack's one-a-year sports films ... and the one-reeler featuring heavyweight Roland Lastarza will be previewed next Monday at the International Boxing Club offices ... Princeton's 76-piece band will leave by train for Ithaca, Saturday for the Cornell game at Ithaca record return immediately afterward. Cost: $800 ... Nothing is as strenuous as football.

Sacos Lead In Major B Bowling League

Sacos took a firmer hold on first place in the Major "B" (Tuesday) Bowling League at Recreation Alleys last night when they rolled the top aggregate score of 3210 to defeat Hibbard's Electrics by a 7-0 count.

The Ontario Intelligencer "Ink-spots" continued their winning ways turning back the "Our Gang" team by 5-3 while the "Just Us" five defeated the "Pigeons" by a similey score.

The league leaders are gradually rounding into shape and some fine bowling resulted last night. Some good scores were rolled with seven getting three-strings of over 700 points. Three included M. Peoples, 778; J. Legault, 764; A. Hitchon, 717; Cec. Hardwick, 706; M. Moreau, 704; C. Watts, 714 and A. Whalen, 726.

C. Watts rolled the high single of 345 with Joe Legault turning in a 331.

The scores:

Sacos	(7)	3210
Hibbard's	(0)	3454
Out. Intell.	(0)	3132
Our Gang	(2)	3072
Just Us	(3)	3023

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

The bad breaks in bridge are sometimes of your own making. It may be from taking the wrong course of play. It could happen in a tournament deal like the one shown here:

NORTH

♣K Q 10 9 8 7

WEST
♠10 9 7

SOUTH
♠A K Q 8 5 4 3
♥7 6
♣4

South becomes the declarer at a grand slam contract of seven spades. Opening lead from west was a heart. When dummy hand goes down it is easy to see a choice of several plans of play.

One declarer banked his all on finding an expected club split of three and two. Trick one went to dummy heart ace. Three rounds of trumps pulled the opponent spades. Then clubs were led.

It was soon discovered that east could block the fourth round of clubs. This meant that south must finally lose one of his small red cards. By then there was no place to put it.

At another table a declarer went at it in another way. After dummy heart ace took the first trick, south tops took two rounds of trumps. Dummy trump jack was left for a future entry.

A top club was led by dummy and a small club was ruffed by south. The idea was to make sure the clubs were established. But this declarer foolishly ruffed small and went overruffed.

When heart was took the first trick safely, a declarer saw the plan of play that was an absolute cinch. Opponents can have only three trumps. Draw all of them and the play is sure.

He led a small dummy trump and won with south queen. A small south diamond was ruffed with dummy spade jack for safety. Final dummy trump was led and won with the south spade king.

Trump ace was cashed to pull opponent last trump. A club and a red dummy and south got two red sluffs on the other dummy top cards. Employment at cloches will save many flinches.

CASE CLOSED

U. S. Federal Judge Harold Medina closes his brief case in his chambers in New York after the 9 weeks' trial of 11 members of the Communist party hierarchy had been found guilty of plotting to overthrow the U. S. government. The judge, who demonstrated a Job-like patience throughout the trial, had his inning immediately after the verdict was returned. He cited five of the defence lawyers for contempt of court and gave them jail sentences ranging from 30 days to six months. They will appeal.—Central Press Canadian.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Oct. 19 (AP)—How does it feel to be Hollywood's only woman director?

Fine, says Ida Lupino. But she has advice for others of her sex who want to direct films: Keep your powder dry and your puff handy.

In case you don't know what a director is — for this case, she) is the only one who tells the actors what to do. She also selects the story, says that he is the key factor in the making of a movie; gives a terrible script, he can make or break a picture.

"Directing is a tough job in itself, but there are added hardships for a woman," declared Miss Lupino. "It takes more time for a woman to keep up her appearance than it does a man. And when a woman lets herself go a bit, she feels let down and depressed; it also affects the morale of the cast and crew.

Masculine Sphere

"Several times I shot until seven in the evening, then watched rushes until 11. I didn't have time for shampoos and pin curls. I found myself coming on the set with a scarf around my head.

"There was a noticeable lag among the crew. Right away I took time out for a new hairdo."

After a taste of producing "Not Wanted" with Anson Bond and her husband, Collier Young, she decided to direct "Never Fear."

The actress admitted she was nervous. To soothe herself, she did a typically feminine thing — she bought a new outfit.

"It did wonders for my morale," she recalled. "But I was still scared."

Capsule Reviews

"Pinky" (TCF) chips away at a massive problem — the Negro in the south. It is done with taste and restraint and thus loses power by failing to meet issues headon. But it rates high as entertainment, achieving a number of high points.

"Beyond the Forest" (WB) is belied plagued with the blurb "Nobody's as good as Bette Davis is when she's bad." Those who hold to this notion will enjoy this film. Betty was never badder than as the small-town hellcat who is out for thrills.

NOW FOR DESSERT

Katy, penned in a feed display in a Stoufville, Ont., general store is gaining weight fast. Much faster than the feed manufacturers claim. BAG LIMITS CUT

Edmonton — (CP) — Bag limits for big game have been cut in Alberta. This year a hunter may take only three animals — one male sheep or one goat; one male deer, moose or elk, and one grizzly, black, brown or cinnamon bear.

Jones, particularly heralded as a Nyrey combination, does two playeys have nevertheless had some of their most outstanding roles when making opposite each other. In "Duel in the Sun" she was the half-breed Indian girl who so subtly wound the late David O. Selznick's massive performances were turned in by the two players when they teamed in "Since You Went Away," and "Love Letters."

Now in "Portrait of Jennie" they play the romantic characters in a love story. It's a love story so extraordinarily unusual that it seems certain to outdo all their previous presentations.

AT THE CAPITOL — Star Leo Gorcey and Huntz Hall are perplexed when they find baby Judy Donne in their laundromat in Monogram's Bowery Boys comedy, "Hold That Baby," starting Thursday at the Capitol Theatre. On the same program, The Hoosier Hot Shots in "Singing Spurs". Matinee daily at 2.00.

FOR SERVICE

Oungre, Sask. — (CP) — In tribute to country practitioner Dr. James Brown, who died in 1944, a memorial bandstand was dedicated here recently. An inscription on the stand states that Dr. Brown "served us faithfully for 30 years as doctor and friend".

FOOLS DOCTOR

Two weeks after doctors had issued grave bulletins on the state of his health, 91-year-old King Gustav of Sweden was back at his favorite pastime — duck-hunting. Though fully recovered, the monarch takes his hunting a little less strenuously than formerly, now sits in a chair waiting for ducks to fly by.—Central Press Canadian.

CROFTON

Crofton—Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Munro were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Forrest C. Burr and family at Burr's.

A wiener roast for the Sunday school children and their parents was held at the church on Saturday evening and a large crowd attended. Progressive crokinole for the adults and games for the children formed the evening's entertainment. A silver collection was taken up and amounted to $11.00.

Mrs. Geo. Lefort is a patient at Prince Edward county hospital, Picton. All her friends wish for her a speedy recovery.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Luke and family have moved to Belleville for the winter months.

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Stevenson, of Arnprior, spent this week with his daughter, Mrs. Wilbert Salisbury, Mr. Salisbury and Janet.

Mrs. Ray Morrison and Wayne of Belleville, spent a few days last week with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. Jones.

Mr. Junior Miller spent the weekend with friends in Toronto.

Mr. Graydon Kainan, of Upper Crofton, called on Mr. and Mrs. E. Crook on Sunday afternoon.

FELLOWSHIP WINNER

Jack Douglas Herbert of Saskatoon who is the first winner of the Gustavus Blackstone King fellowship in external relations. A graduate of University of Saskatchewan, he is the son of Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Herbert. The award is for a year's study at University of Toronto and was endowed by a group of friends of the former prime minister.—(CP Photo.)

Answer to Yesterday's Puzzle

SOUNDS

Good sounds are herds singing, dinner bells ringing, and somebody saying "Keep the change" if they are talking to you at the time.

A sound nobody likes is the sound of snoring, being the reason some people are only popular when they are awake.

Another unpopular sound is a faucet dripping, your mother not liking it because she has to listen to it, and your father feeling upset it because he has to fix it.

Parrits make the sounds of different words without knowing what they are saying, so they have to be excused for repeating themselfs, but people who come to your house and keep on saying the same things are liked not to be invited again.

Some people are more patient than others with certain sounds, such as ladies with the sound of their own baby crying.

Some of the most important sounds are the letters of the alfabet, especially when they are mixed together to make words.

Little Benny's Note Book

I sneezed all my mite in school today, making everybody laff, and Miss Kitty said, Benny, was that necessery?

Mam? Do you mean the sneeze? I said, and she said, I mean making all that noise?

No mam, I said, and she said, Then why did you do it?

I wasn't thinking, I said, and Miss Kitty said, Then you will please remain after school and think until you have composed a composition on Sounds, considering that you are such an expert on the subject.

Being sourcastic, and I stayed and wrote the composition, being:

The Canadian Family owes much to... Ireland

MUCH OF THE STRENGTH and vitality of Canadian life and the rich quality of its democracy stems from the blending of racial and cultural heritages from many lands. Few countries draw more strength from more nations than does Canada.

Canadians are justifiably proud that so many races, without sacrificing their national characteristics, have united themselves into one great citizenship—the Canadian Family.

Probably no race has produced more emigrants than the Irish. A century ago, the Irish formed half the population of Canada and today, in every town and village from Newfoundland to Vancouver Island, one can find a son of the Emerald Isle. The Irish brogue echoes through all of Canada's history.

Blessed with the "gift of the gab", their industry and ambition, coupled with an imaginative humour, are qualities which have won friends and enabled them to contribute much to Canada's progress.

Calvert DISTILLERS (Canada) Limited
AMHERSTBURG • ONTARIO

Calvert, Secretary of State to King James I, and head of the famous Calvert family, founded one of Canada's first colonies in Newfoundland in 1622. Calvert and his descendants fostered the principles of religious tolerance and democratic freedom and thus helped sow the fertile seed of democracy in the New World.

Black Boom

By Paul David Preston

As to the actors who had pre-his threat and meant it. He capitated the main excitement here, they were now the quietest of the throng.

Martin Deale hot-tempered at best and nursing a grudge of suspicion and jealousy against Dal Tower anyway had plainly drawn his pistol on angry impulse. Nevertheless a gun is a gun; a shooting is a shooting whether premeditated or not, and any dead victim just as dead. The shot in this mob might have injured or killed anybody.

When he shot so quickly, Martin saw immediately the mistake that he had made. A girl had leaped in front of Dal Tower!

"Oh-h-h-h!" It was a man's groan of hysteria. Martin's arm seemed to freeze. He couldn't have shot again if he had tried, for he was too appalled, watching the results of his move.

Presently—it seemed like an hour in the moment of shock there—somebody reached out and took the gun from Martin's hand. His pinion was numb. He knew it was just a whirl of bodies and sounds before him. All at once he was breathing, with partial realization of what he had done. Somebody had his arm. He turned his face stunned mouth wide open as if trying to utter something. Thad Monroe was holding him.

Marti . . . Marti!" Thad was equally distressed. "Why did you have to do it? My gosh, Marti . . . I stopped you from that once! Why did you have—take it easy, Marti! We'll work it out. Take it easy!"

The gesture of friendship, slight as it was, broke through to Martin Deale's goodness. The boy who had been lonely at heart and hadn't known it, who was too inhibited for sparring and too introspective to understand a lot of things, suddenly leaned against Thad Monroe's shoulder to sob in tragic abandon.

"Look at him belief!" some hot head in the crowd nearby exclaimed, "He'd oughta be hung!"

"You're a fool!" snapped Thad Monroe. "And get back! Get back, or I'll let you have it with his own gun. My gosh, if everything isn't going crazy!"

The minute of crying was the best thing Martin could have done. It relaxed the physical and emotional tension so that he could regain a semblance of self-control.

"I must see her!" he said, tremulously, after a short interval. He turned from Thad and clung to his coat like the scared boy he was. "I must see her and tell her!"

He saw Lillian Mayfield turn to him a moment. She wasn't four feet away. But men began lifting the wounded girl and Martin lurched out again.

He and Thad followed the men carrying Baby Doll to the house. Lillian came to walk by Martin. She did not speak; she just looked at him with grey faces for a moment and saw Thad shake his head as if telling her not to say anything. There was still too much confusion and noise around them all anyway. Part of the crowd followed the wounded girl and Dr. Watkins. Lillian saw that the man who had fired Baby Doll's shoulder and was holding her head straight was Del Tower. He was very pale, but he was calm. Lillian ran then to walk with her mother, a few steps ahead.

Negroes made way for them at the porch. Jason Weems had taken charge. Both tall front doors were open wide and he hobbled on in ahead of the others, then he turned back to cut quickly behind those carrying the wounded girl, and Thad and Martin and Martin were in, Jason blocking the entrance.

"Don't you other folks try to come in, else I half to bur somebody in the face!" Jason growled

Baby Doll.

"There's some pain," Dr. Watkins murmured once to Mrs. Mayfield, "but beyond that I don't think—no." He went on with his work in silence.

Martin Deale, however, was the individual here who suffered most. That impressionable young man had been absorbed severely by his own outburst of anger, and now that Baby Doll Mayfield have wounded or possibly even dying, he was seeing many things anew.

For any pretty girl to tell a man she loves him is a stimulating thing. And Baby Doll Mayfield was undeniably pretty. Moreover, she was no longer a "baby doll", a fact that she herself had proclaimed often of late. She was five feet three and she weighed 109 pounds and she was almost 18 years of age. She had been the Mayfield "baby" only because Lillian was four years older. Martin was conscious of all this now. Especially did he see the beauty of her, the soft shapeliness and slimness of her there on the bed. Pain of regret was tearing at him for having first shot Baby Doll. Hearing her say she wasn't angry, but even loved him, only added to his distress. Obviously Baby Doll really did love him—him who stood with others has treated her as a mere kid, teasing her but never taking her very seriously.

He held her fingers now between his two hands and stroked them with infinite gentleness, looking at her face. She smiled at him and squeezed back.

Plainly Baby Doll thought she was going to die. She had touched her head and brought away blood on her hand, and of course if one is hurt on the head Her declaration of love, melodramatic and childish as it was, nevertheless was extremely real and everyone knew it. But in a little while kindly old Dr. Watkins sat back from her bedside and smiled at all of them.

"I don't believe," said he, gently, "that Miss Baby Doll will be in bed more than a week, if that long. The bullet just streaked across her scalp but it didn't do much harm. You'll have only a smear of blood on your curls. You'll need a shampoo, my dear."

Jazz Pianist, Blind Since Birth, One of the Best

By MEL MOTT

New York, — (AP) — Music fans who have heard George Shearing know that he came to the United States as England's number one jazz pianist.

They probably don't know he is blind. Shearing wants to let that be announced at performance, He wears sun glasses to hide it when he leads his band.

Shearing, blind since boyhood, says he wants "no advantage outside my music." He intends to stay in the United States where jazz competition and criticism are sharpest, he likes that.

At the age of 29 after two years away from England, the blind boy who insisted on earning his way at 16, now is rated among the "top six" jazz piano players of America. He still is climbing, critics harp on his originality of conception. One of the things he does is now known to the intiate as "singlee-finger and locked-hands bop."

Shearing likes the fact that so many people here know what that means, yet this easy-going but stubborn blind Englishman isn't satisfied with bringing down the house with his rapid playing of moderate "bebop."

Performing in New York's various "progressive jazz" meccas Shearing always insists on playing works of composers he loves like Chopin or Debussy for the jazz addicts because he thinks they should have a "varied program of music."

Would Remain Blind

Shearing, who always talks of his "seeing" the people he meets and the places he visits, says he "would refuse point blank" any operation to restore his sight.

He is "leading a very happy life" in the world of sound and touch he has known since early childhood. "If I had it back I wonder if I would—don't have to learn everything all over again.

Besides his music, his "very happy life" includes his wife, Trixie whom he met in a London air raid shelter, and their daughter, Wendy Ann. Long before Shearing had reached Wendy's present age of six, he was drawn to the piano in his home at Battersea, London, although his family was not musically inclined.

The sightless boy first practised on the piano with a hammer. At the age of five he had taught himself to play tunes by ear. Then he was sent to music school for the blind. At 16 he turned down an opportunity to continue through college because "I didn't want to wait until I was 21 to earn a living."

Shearing's first job was playing the piano in a pub. Every night after it closed he would go on to play in a struggling semi-pro band. When his employer objected, he quit his paying job. Then he toured England with an all-blind band and his fame grew until he had a regular band of his own.

In 1941 he was in an air raid shelter playing a piano to calm people's nerves. That where he was first heard by Miss Trixie Bayes. They were married eight months later.

WOMAN RUN OVER

Clyde, N. Y., Oct. 19 (AP) — Mrs. Catherine Graham was run over and killed by her own automobile in a farm driveway Monday. The car started rolling after Mrs. Graham parked it. A witness said Mrs. Graham put her hands on the hood to try to stop it, but the car grained speed and crushed her before she could reach the brake.

YUGOSLAVIA ELECTED TO SECURITY COUNCIL

Budget Speech Will Not Likely Contain Many Surprises

Abbott Not Expected To Speak Over 15 Minutes

Ottawa, Oct. 20 — (CP)—Finance Minister Abbott tonight will make his second budget speech this year.

He will reintroduce the 1949-50 budget, first read last March 22. Main details are expected to be unchanged, although there may be some additions. There has been no hint as to what these might involve.

He will present the budget plus any additional at 8 p. m. EDT. Gossip has it that he will not speak for more than 15 minutes.

The March budget, although it was made effective immediately, was not ratified when parliament was dissolved April 30 to permit holding of a general election June 27.

Personal income tax reductions were the main feature of the pre-election budget. The income tax exemptions called for $270,000,000 of the $369,000,000 reductions announced by Mr. Abbott.

Corporation profits tax also was reduced.

Basic income tax exemptions were boosted from $750 to $1,000 for single persons and from $1,500 to $2,000 for married persons. Exemptions were raised from $100 to $150 for each dependent child under 16 and $300 to $400 for other dependents.

The changes made retroactive to Jan. 1 removed an estimated 750,000 persons from the tax rolls. Three-quarters of those still liable to tax will pay no more than 15 per cent of their 1949 taxable income. In all, the income-tax cuts averaged 22 per cent.

Refund cheques for those knocked off the income tax rolls are expected to be mailed shortly after the budget is ratified.

Business didn't fare as well as the personal income taxpayer. The budget established two rates on corporate profits — a drop from 30 to 10 per cent on profits under $10,000 a year and an increase from 30 to 33 per cent on profits over that figure.

CANADA'S ARMED FORCES LOOKING FOR OFFICERS

Need Emphasized in Report of Defence Department Submitted to House

The need is emphasized in the annual report of the defence department, tabled Wednesday in the Commons.

"It is of extreme importance in the policy of the department to secure the entry into the services of an adequate supply of officers", the report said.

Universities with their naval training divisions, Canadian officers' training corps contingents and RCAF (auxiliary) flights were described as "most valuable" source of officers.

In addition the service colleges—Royal Roads of Esquimalt, B.C., and Royal Military College at Kingston—both of which are tri-service training schools, are helping fill the bill.

The need for officers falls in with the general defence policy laid down. That is to maintain a small, well-trained force in each service which would become the nucleus of expanded forces in the event of war.

Leadership is a prime necessity for speedy expansion and has a result officers are being given the fullest possible training. Versatility is important.

The training of officers for the assumption of high responsibility, in the event of a need to expand Canada's forces, is the next step after the actual supply of officer material is assured", the department's report says.

'Lie any Time' To Suit Purpose Says Witness

Sarnia, Oct. 20. (CP)—William Hanford, 59-year-old stock salesman, told a court of inquiry, Wednesday, that he would "lie any time it suited his purposes.

Hanford is a crown witness at the trial of four men charged in a joint charge of conspiracy to defraud the public in connection with trading of Greenland Gold Mines Stock. On trial are High M. Sutherland, managing director of Grantland Gold Mines and head of General Securities, and Robert A. McMillan, 53, president of Lobanor Gold Mines.

Under cross-examination, Hanford said a transaction with Grantland Gold and "A. H. Barpelt, New York, was fictitious. He added that he would lie any time to obtain money.

The trial is continuing.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

Toronto Oct. 20 (CP)—Synopsis—Wintry weather continues over the prairies and has moved into the Great Lakes area. Cooler while River regions where frosts are reported in the northern James Bay region. Over Central and Southern Ontario the weather remains unseasonably mild. The cooler air now shows signs of moving eastward and is expected to cover most of Ontario by Saturday morning. Tuesday is a return to more seasonable temperatures.

GOVT. WILL WAIT REPORT BEFORE AID CONSIDERED

Education Discussed In Lengthy Debate

Ottawa, Oct. 20 — (CP)—The Federal government plans to wait for the report of the Royal Commission on Arts and Science before attempting to determine "with any degree of precision" how the Dominion should help the provinces in the field of education.

Prime Minister St. Laurent made that statement in the Commons Wednesday during a debate on a private members' resolution asking the government to consider aid to the provinces for expanding and equalizing educational opportunities.

The principle of the resolution, sponsored by R. R. Knight (CCF, Saskatoon City), was supported by Progressive Conservatives. However, George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, said federal assistance should be free of attempts to gain indirect control of education in the provinces.

He urged that a Dominion-Provincial Conference be called at which the over-all financial position of the Dominion and province and all other matters could be considered, rather than taking "piecemeal" action on education alone.

Agreed With Drew

Mr. St. Laurent, who spoke briefly, agreed with Mr. Drew that any federal grants to the provinces would have to be ar-

Workman Dies Of Electric Shock At RCAF Station

Civilian foreman in the works and building department at the RCAF at Trenton, James F. Crosbie, 33, of R.R. 3 Belleville, Trent Road, Wednesday evening died of electric shock sustained while he was operating a power crane on the station.

Efforts of artificial respiration lasting for nearly ten hours failed to save Crosbie's life. After an iron lung rushed from Belleville by the fire department failed to revive the man, a second lung was flown from Toronto but he was pronounced dead by Dr. F.A. Bell-Irving, Trenton shortly before nine o'clock. The accident occurred shortly before noon.

Crosbie touched the electric shock he fell to the floor where he was picked up by fellow workmen. An inquest will be held.

Mr. Crosbie is survived by his wife. It is the third time in recent months that her family has been involved in death. Her mother died last fall, while a week ago a truck operated by her brother went out of control and killed a man at Trenton.

Short Circuit Causes Another to Give Alarm

Brantford, Oct. 20.—(CP)—A short circuit which started a small fire in Red Cross rooms today caused another short circuit which buzzed an alarm to sleeping assistant Chief Riley. He put out the fire with hand extinguishers.

Firemen said a short circuit in a thermostat started a small blaze. When the electric shock he fell to the floor where he was picked up by fellow workmen. An inquest will be held.

Mr. Crosbie is survived by his wife. It is the third time in recent months that her family has been involved in death. Her mother died last fall, while a week ago a truck operated by her brother went out of control and killed a man at Trenton.

PRINCE ENOCULATED

London, Oct. 20.—(CP)—Princess Charles, who will be one year old Nov. 14, was recently inoculated against diphtheria, it was announced today. He was vaccinated some months ago.

Princess Elizabeth Publicly Rebuked For Her Comments on Divorces

London, Oct. 20.—(CP)—Britain's marriage law reform committee today publicly rebuked Princess Elizabeth for saying that divorce had led to many of Britain's social evils.

Mrs. R. S. W. Pollard, chairman of the committee of divorce logists and lawyers who want divorces made easier to get, said the Princess had the wrong slant and her comment was regrettable.

"We have observed (it) with regret", she said.

Mrs. Pollard's statement to the press was unusual in that it constituted an open disagreement with a member of the Royal Family.

The Princess' statement was the strongest ever made by frocking British Royalty about specific sociological problems. Inspiring what she called failing moral standards here, she told a British mothers' union rally Tuesday that "divorces and separations are responsible for some of the darkest evils of our society."

Mrs. Pollard said that "divorce and separation are not themselves responsible for evils she refers to."

"It is the causes, such as inadequate housing, unstable partners, which lead to the breakup of homes. Divorce is not responsible for some of the bad effects to which the Princess referred.

"Divorce only recognizes in law an existing state of facts that a marriage has failed. The harm to children can be greater in a home where both parents are at loggerheads than if divorce ensues."

The Princess had said that children suffered through divorce.

Constable Says Capt. Taylor 'Smelled of Liquor' After Fire But No Intoxication Indicated

Toronto, Oct. 20—(CP) — Constable William Duggan of Toronto testified today that Captain William Taylor of the Steamship Noronic "smelled of liquor" after the fire but there was nothing in his actions to indicate he was intoxicated.

Duggan, a witness at the Federal inquiry into the cruise ship disaster, said he saw the captain after nine aboutt 3:25-3:30 a. m. (EDT).

"He was set, dishevelled, very red in the face," Duggan told Assistant Commission Counsel J. M. Godfrey.

Duggan said that other than the smell of liquor, there was nothing in the captain's actions to indicate he was intoxicated.

"I put down everything in his actions to shock," he said.

The constable said he first saw the captain in the company of a detective, who asked "are in escort him to a waiting room. We noticed he had a cut on his hand and wanted to take him to hospital."

Wanted to go Back

"Why did you feel you had to do Captain Taylor any harm?"

"He wanted to go back to the docks."

"What did you do then?"

"We took him to the other end of the waiting room."

"Sometime then there was a photograph?"

"Yes."

"And what was the captain doing at that time?"

"He threw up his hands . . . he said he didn't want to go to the hospital."

"Did you smell any liquor "

"I could smell drink."

"How far away were you "

"About a foot away from him."

Under cross-examination the inquiry did you notice anything that would indicate he was intoxicated?"

Actions Due to Shock

"Other than the smell of liquor, I put everything in his actions down to shock," replied the constable.

Constable Duggan said the captain's speech was coherent. As they set out for the hospital, they "almost slowed down" Captain Taylor and the trip to hospital was not taken.

Constable Leon Smith said he was with the previous witness on the docks and that he "could detect a slight smell of liquor" on Capt. Taylor's breath.

"His speech and walk were all right," he said.

"Why were you supporting him?"

"He threw up his hands and said he didn't want to go to hospital."

Taylor Denied Charge

In his evidence two weeks ago, Capt. Taylor denied he was intoxicated. He said on the night of the fire he had taken only one small drink.

The intoxication charge was made at an earlier inquiry in Cleveland by C. Sam Wilson, a passenger of that city. Other survivors said the captain was sober.

Following Wilson's allegations, C.S.L. counsel said instructions had been given to file suit for $250,000 against the person or persons making the charge.

R. E. Soplet, acting detective on the Toronto police force, said he was called to the docks on the night of the fire and stopped to "confer with Noronic."

The ship seemed all right then, and the time was fixed at 2.15 a.m. EDT, from a radio call he received and logged at that time. Firemen testified the alarm was turned in at 2.33.

Donald A. Williamson, of Toronto, told of rescuing six passengers from harbor waters, and four others from the ship after helping the fire from the street. He fixed the time at about 2.45 a.m.

Marcel Duplessis of Montreal, the cabin steward, recalled a discussion Capt. Taylor held with the purser and some bell boys about the importance of the fire, of keeping all on it post, or keeping stairways clear of flames so that passengers could reach the gangways.

Mrs. Arthur Pitre Granted Bail On Charge of Suicide Attempt

Quebec, Oct. 20—(CP)— Mrs. Arthur Pitre, key witness in the Quebec air disaster murder case, today was allowed bail of $500 after her preliminary hearing on a charge of attempted suicide was adjourned until Nov. 2.

Defence counsel Irenee Simard said his client was "very ill" and the 41-year-old woman led back to cells to await posting of the bail.

Mrs. Pitre is described as a friend of J. Albert Guay, Quebec jeweller charged with murder in the disaster which took 22 lives in 1949. Guay's trial on a charge of plane crashed Sept. 9. Guay is accused of placing a bomb aboard the one of the plane's passengers who died when a bomb exploded in the cabin.

She appeared calm as the hearing opened in a court room packed with a buzzing, murmuring crowd. But later she grew nervous.

Mrs. Pitre wore the same black hat, jacket coat and grey dress that she wore when she was a key witness at the preliminary hearing of Guay, charged with killing his wife in the plane crash Sept. 9 which killed 23 persons.

She had previously admitted that she was the "mystery woman" who put a bomb aboard an Pacific Airways plane a box which she believed contained a watch. Police say the box actually contained a time bomb which caused the air crash.

Mrs. Pitre has said she saw to shipping of the box at the behest of Guay.

Asked For Admission

Dr. F. X. Demers of Quebec, testified Mrs. Pitre asked during September for admission to hospital because of "abdominal pains."

"I saw her Sept. 20 and found nothing specifically wrong," he said.

She had arrived in hospital the night before and he had not been advised of anything abnormal during the night, Dr. Demers said.

Since she had not been ordered to take any sleeping drugs, the physician said he ordered her bandages searched. A quarter of a sleeping tablet was found.

"That would be difficult in a hospital", Dr. Demers said.

Mrs. Jean Marie Ruest said she saw Mrs. Pitre at her 49 Sept. 19.

"She was very nervous and she cried", she said.

She said Mrs. Pitre sobbed that Guay had told her he knew details of the crash, that she had better commit suicide.

Given Capsule by Guay

Mrs. Pitre told her Guay had given her a yellow capsule that morning.

"She was very excited. It was easy to see she was scared of somebody", Mrs. Ruest said.

Mrs. Ruest, who is married to a brother of Mrs. Pitre, said Mrs. Pitre had been given the car by Mrs. Pitre, but later she asked for them back.

Mrs. Pitre was going to hospital and have the tablets analyzed, Mrs. Ruest said.

"Did anyone suggest you call the police?" asked Mr. Dorion.

"No, I didn't want to," she said she would wait for her husband's return."

Brother Sees Pills

Jean Marie Ruest, brother of Mrs. Pitre, said that on Sept. 19 at Mrs. Pitre's home he had seen the pills also.

Crown Counsel asked if it were true Mrs. Pitre asked Guay Sept. 19, if he had any insurance on his dead wife.

"Yes", said the witness.

"So she was upset, but she thought to ask Guay if he had any insurance on his wife?"

"Yes", said the witness.

YUGOSLAVS CLAIM SOVIET TROOPS MASS ON BORDER

Charge Pressure Is Against Tito

Belgrade Oct 20—(AP)—Yugoslavia charged Wednesday night that Russian troops have moved into neighboring Communist states in tries to build up "war-mongering" pressure against Marshal Tito's regime.

The charges, printed in the official newspaper Borbe, said Red army troops have moved into Romania, Fortifications are being built under Russian supervision along the Yugoslav borders in Bulgaria, Hungary and Albania, the paper declared.

The solemn, well-informed intelligence officers said privately that Russia has placed five divisions along the Yugoslav borders in the last month.

(These countries British, American and Greek — said Russia was preparing to attack Tito was secretly backing plans for a revolt in the isolated Soviet satellite of Albania.)

Borbe's charges were the most serious yet published made in the Yugoslav capital. Tito accused Russia and her satellites of "raising their arms" in an attempt to intimidate Yugoslavia.

Move Into Romania

The article said also that the cominform countries with Russian help were strengthening their border guards and building trenches and bilateral pacts into their frontiers with Tito-land.

Borbe declared that war talk is being heard in Albania "under a slogan of "liberation" for Macedonia, which now is split among Greece, Bulgaria and Yugoslavia.

On Albania's side of the frontier, the official newspaper continued, "Intensive work has been taken over the villages, prohibition, terrorism, espionage is used and opened an increasing "warmongering propaganda campaign" against Yugoslavia.

EMPLOYEES FAVOR STRIKE

Cobourg, Oct. 20 — (CP) —A strike vote went in favor of striking "if necessary" at a meeting of Local 1457 of the United Electrical Workers (C. I. O.) here Wednesday night. About 400 were employees of the General Electric plant in Cobourg.

Charles Hicks, president of Local 534, said 94 per cent of the employees cast their votes in favor "to bring about a successful and speedy conclusion of contract negotiations."

Strike votes also are being taken at General Electric plants in Toronto and in Peterborough.

85-YEAR-OLD WOMAN SERIOUSLY BURNED

Toronto, Oct. 20 — (CP)— Envelloped in flames when her apron caught fire while cooking lunch today, 85-year-old Mrs. A. Turner was seriously burned about the face, neck and body.

Her daughter, Jessie Campbell, received first-degree burns to his hands when he beat out the flames.

Mrs. Glover's condition is reported grave.

New York, Oct. 20 — (CP) — Yugoslavia won a seat in the United Nations Security Council today over the Soviet-sponsored Czechoslovakia. The action by the 59-member General Assembly was a rebuff to the Cominform Soviet bloc.

The vote on the second ballot, was Yugoslavia 39 and Czechoslovakia 19. Thirty-nine votes were required for election. Yugoslavia thus squeezed by on the minimum number of votes needed.

The voting was by secret ballot.

Russia's Andrei Y. Vishinsky took the floor immediately after the results were announced.

Vishinsky charged the election of Yugoslavia was a violation of the U. N. Charter because it failed, he said, to take into account provisions regarding geographic distribution of council seats.

The west previously had contended that Yugoslavia was just as qualified to represent eastern Europe as Czechoslovakia.

Vishinsky claimed Yugoslavia's candidacy was advanced by the United States and British through behind-the-scenes manoeuvring.

Yugoslavia cannot and will not be considered a member of the eastern bloc," Vishinsky said.

U. K. Gives Support

Britain last announced in advance that she would support Czechoslovakia, but there was no indication how she actually voted on the secret ballot.

The voting began after Russia's Andrei Y. Vishinsky made a last-minute appeal to the Assembly to defeat Yugoslavia. His remarks, however, were ruled out of order by Assembly President Carlos P. Romulo.

Car Skids, Sails 25 Ft. Thru Air, Clears Fence

Brampton, Oct. 20.—(CP)—G. S. Leverence of New Hamburg, N.Y., had a strange experience today when his car left the road on the highway near here and sailed 25 feet through the air, clearing a seven-foot fence.

Small was charged with careless driving.

Roberts Says P.C. Discontent Directed Against Toronto Party Members

Toronto, Oct. 20 — (CP) — Kelso Roberts said today discontent in the ranks of the Ontario Progressive Conservative Association is directed against "individuals and not the party" as happens to live in Toronto and who exercise control which should be held only by the leaders of the party.

Mr. Roberts, unsuccessful candidate for the leadership of the Progressive Conservative party in Ontario, commented on reports of a "wide shake-up" expected at the Association's annual meeting here Nov. 7-8.

"There are lots of people who tell very independently from their own grounds about these things but when they come to provincial gatherings in the city they act like sheep," he said.

Mr. Roberts, a Toronto mining lawyer, said certain individuals who were responsible for failure of the party friction had played an important part in bringing the party to power.

However, the sort of activity they are in now can't go on without the party's parties of those cycles during which they can commit to order and complete overhaul. It's time the overhauling was done."

Dissatisfaction is said to arise from complaints of rural members of the Association that party patronage is controlled by "Toronto lawyers" who are not members of the Association.

INDIAN BOY, 13, ASKS $110,000 FOR SPINE INJURY

Injured in Accident With Truck; Will Never Walk Again

Brampton, Oct. 20 (CP)— White-coated hospital attendants carried plaintiff Clark Charles Elliott, 13-year-old Indian boy, into court today to give evidence in his suit for $110,000 damages in an accident Oct. 18, 1948.

Witnesses testified in Supreme Court hearing that Elliot was riding a bicycle during a race on highway and was involved in an accident with a truck, which police said was driven by defendant Norman Leslie, 19, of Streetsville, Ont.

Dr. A. J. Henderson, of Brampton, testified the boy's back was broken and "he will never walk again."

The boy has been in Sunnybrook hospital, in suburban Toronto, since the accident which injured his spinal cord.

$1 FUR COATS STOLEN

Toronto, Ont. Oct. 20—(CP)— Thieves forced their way into Adams Furniture Co., Ltd., west end branch store around midnight and stole 53 fur coats valued between $1,000 and $2,000, police said today. The robbery was discovered by a patrol policeman who found a rear washroom window opened. The furniture store had a large stock of clothing and furniture.

Skinned Shins Painful Results Of Pole Climbing

Several young football players are gingerly touching skinned arms, legs and other parts of their anatomy today, while their mothers are likely are gazing ruefully at torn pants and shredded sweaters.

The boys were kicking a football on the south end of the Collegiate Institute campus yesterday afternoon while the Bell "Grads" and the current senior team were playing.

One of them booted the ball in a low trajectory and it became lodged in the angle where an angle arm is attached to a hydro pole.

They tried every possible means to dislodge the pigskin, but there it stuck.

Finally one bright youth decided to "shinny" up the pole. He reached within a foot of the ball and then stopped. He gripped the pole tightly with his legs but the law of gravity was too strong and he slid down to earth. Again he tried it. And again.

Then another made the attempt. Standing on the shoulders of two of his pals he made a valiant effort to climb the pole but he, too, reached within inches and to the accompaniment of tearing pants, ripping sweater, not to mention pieces of skin being scraped from legs and arms, slid to the ground.

Finally a husky twenty-year-old came to the rescue. In a fine "Jack and the Beanstalk" effort he went up the pole and rescued the ball.

Effective Speaking Course Will be Started at 'Y'

Monday night will be effective speaking night at the YMCA for the next eight weeks, commencing with Monday, October 24, according to an announcement made by Bill Pope, program secretary of the local association.

The Effective Speaking workshop has been designed so that the fundamentals of effective speech will be presented by qualified instructors, where individual improvement will be encouraged through practice and constructive criticism.

Well-known speakers who will give instruction include Rev. Dan Amos, Edward E. Follwell, Malcolm Robb, Jerry Hyde, Nellie Merry, Linton Read, Court Miller and Frank Follwell, M. P.

The course is open to anyone, and only a basic membership in the Y is required. This costs two dollars and entitles the holder to all the other educational and social activities in the association for one year.

A Real Asset

Clear, effective speech is an asset whether in the home, at business, or in the world at large, is the aim of the Y workshop to give assistance to anyone—salesperson or industrialist, business worker or professional, man or woman—in learning to speak with confidence and effectiveness.

An award, donated by Frank Follwell, will be presented to the individual showing the greatest improvement in effective speaking at the completion of the course.

Each Monday evening the effective speaking program will be opened by a qualified instructor who will give a talk on some aspect of public speaking. Then the members of the workshop will be given an opportunity to participate by delivering short speeches on assigned topics. The concluding portion of the evening will be given over to friendly and constructive criticism.

Fifty-two Ontario Intelligencer newsboys and newsgirls spent a glorious two days last weekend at Niagara Falls as the guests of the newspaper management. Pictured above, the group is seen on the observation tower of the Table Rock House at Niagara. They had just returned from a visit to the tunnel below the falls when they were snapped in happy mood. In the background is seen the famous Rainbow Bridge which connects Canada and the United States, and the foamy cascade at the bottom of the famous cataract. The kiddies visited the well-known Brock and Laura Secord monuments, Queenston Heights, as well as other famous historic sites of the Niagara district.

Galt, Ont., Oct. 20—(CP)—Karl K. Homoth, member of the House of Commons for Waterloo South, today celebrated the 30th anniversary of his election to the Ontario Legislature at the age of 20, one of the youngest men to sit at Queen's Park up to that time. He entered the federal field in the 1930's. During his political career he has gone through 19 successful campaigns.

Tomorrow he will be back at his home in Preston to celebrate the 35th anniversary of his marriage to Minnie Rahn. The couple have three children.

SITE FOR NEW HOME

Toronto, Oct. 20—(CP)—William Goodfellow, Ontario Welfare Minister, said today that the united counties of Stormont, Glengarry and Dundas have purchased a site for a new home for the aged and building plans are already underway.

The home will be situated on a farm site in Stormont near Cornwall and actual building is not expected to start until 1950.

Provincial sanction for a new home followed a request earlier this year by officials of the united counties.

IN MEMORIAM

DRACUP — In loving memory of our dear mother, Bev Dracup, who passed away October 20th, 1945.
Sweet weary hours and days of pain
Her troubled nights are past,
And in our aching hearts we know
She has found sweet rest at last.
Ever remembered by Isabel and C020
A.E.

DRACUP — In loving memory of our dear mother, Mrs. Eva Dracup, who passed away October 20th, 1945.
There the buds from earth transplanted
To the coming truth and wait
For the flower garden growing
Just within the golden gate.
Though our hearts may break with sorrow
By the grief so hard to bear
We shall meet her some bright morning
In the upper garden there.
Sadly missed and ever remembered by Irene, Ewarts and Cecil. C020

WILSON — In loving memory of my dear mother, Mrs. Mary Wilson, who entered that Heavenly Home October 20, 1946.
We bring to you a special day
To bring you to our mind
For the days we do not think of you
We try hard to find
If all this world were ours to give
We'd give it, yes, and more
To see the face of mother dear
Once smiling through the door.
Lovingly remembered by daughter Grace and son-in-law Frank. C020

WILSON — In loving memory of my dear mother, who passed away October 20th, 1946.
You have left me mother, patient, kind and true
To other friend in all the world will be as true to you.
For all her loving kindness, she asks nothing in return
If all the world forsakes you to your mother you return.
So all I can do for you mother, is go and tend your grave
And leave behind a token of love to be seen by those who pass that way.
I'd like to think when life is done
Mother's arms will welcome me
That she'll be standing at the door
To say "Welcome home, son"
We pray who knows her
Cherish her with care
For you never know how heart aches
Until you see her vacant chair.
Lovingly remembered by her daughter Violet. C020

Falls From Tree, Strikes His Head Now Unconscious

Tweed, Ont.—(Special)—Robert Lynn, 76-year-old resident of Queensboro is in Belleville General Hospital in an unconscious condition resulting from a fall from an apple tree.

The injured man was visiting a relative Thomas Lynn residing there at this village on Tuesday, and was assisting him in picking apples when he fell from the tree, striking his head.

Towards evening he lapsed into unconsciousness and was given medical attention by Dr. F. McCue of Tweed. Ordered to hospital he was taken to Belleville by Bush's Ambulance.

Mr. Lynn had not regained consciousness at the time of going to press.

Tree Removal Attracts Crowd

Residents of Bridge Street West at Cedar Street, as well as pedestrians passing the area during the past two days have found an interesting sidelight in watching modern mechanized equipment dispose of a large maple tree which was removed to permit widening of the pavement.

Tuesday morning employees of the local public works department lopped off the branches of the large tree and then, using a power saw felled the trunk onto the street. The tree was then sawed up and trucked away.

But possibly more interesting was the removal of the stump. A mechanical shovel owned by the McFarland Construction Company tugged and pulled making but little impression. Then axemen chopped around the roots and a smaller shovel was replaced by a larger mechanical monster. A few tugs and snorts and the tree root, carrying with it quantities of mother earth and pavement, was hauled out and loaded onto a float truck for disposal.

During the entire procedure a gallery of from 10 to 25 persons watched the operations. The stump hole will be removed to allow widening of the street pavement at that point.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Oct. 20.—(CP)—Western oils held against a general downward trend on the Toronto Stock Exchange today. Demand was strong in key western oil stocks, lifting the list strongly upwards for the second consecutive session.

Fractional losses appeared in key industrials following Wednesday's upward swing that carried the group to the highest average price level in years.

Volume for the first four hours was 662,000 shares, about 5,000 shares less than Wednesday's similar period.

Royalite highlighted Western Oils, gaining 5 cents at a new high at $9.50. Anglo-Canadian, Calgary and Edmonton and Pacific Petroleum were also well ahead.

Pe-ses led the industrial list slightly lower. Agriculture, refining oils and liquors were also losers. A few steels and utilities brightened while foods were mixed.

Key Base Metals dipped fractions. Sherritt Gordon was the most active trader for slight loss. A few smaller golds were bright for minor changes while market leaders slipped.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

Toronto, Oct. 20.—(CP)—Cattle trade was dull on plain quality offerings at the Toronto Livestock market this morning. Receipts reported by the Dominion Marketing Service were: Cattle, 150; calves, 125; hogs, 75; sheep and lambs, 250. Left from the previous close were 500 cattle.

Medium to good heifers brought $17.50-$19 with common selling downward to $16. Good cows ranged from $14-$15 with canners and cutters downward to $10. A few bulls brought $13.50-$14.25. Common to medium stockers were $14.25-$17 according to quality.

Calves were steady at $26-$28 for choice quality with plain to medium downward to $16. Grass calves for slaughter were $13.50-$17.

Hogs were steady at $29.50 for grade A and $29.10 for grade B1 sows. Sows were $19 dressed.

PRODUCE MARKET

Butter prints were unquoted.

The egg market was steady but receipts were slow to clear this morning. Country shippers quoted graded eggs, cases free: Grade A large 60; A medium 46; A pullet 39; grade B 48; grade C 35. Wholesale to retail: grade A large 65-69; A medium 53-54; A pullet 43-44; grade B 52; grade C 50.

S.M. Philpott Will Address Sales, Ad Club

Stuart M. Philpott, sales manager of Northgrave Ltd., Toronto, will be the guest speaker at the Belleville Advertising and Sales Club at the Hotel Quinte on Friday night. Mr. Philpott will speak on the topic "The Age of Decision."

Arriving in the city at 1.15 Friday afternoon, Mr. Philpott will act as judge for the Window Display Contest which has been sponsored by the Retail Merchants Division of the Chamber of Commerce, in their "Buy in Belleville" campaign.

The Ontario Intelligencer prize for the winner will be formally presented at the banquet which gets under way at 6.30.

Tickets are still available for merchants and those interested.

Mr. Philpott comes well qualified to speak on this theme. He is a past president of the Advertising and Sales Club of Toronto and was for several years in charge of public relations for the Community Chest of Greater Toronto. He will be met and greeted on arrival in the city by officials of the Chamber of Commerce.

Another Marsh Area Ruled Out of Bounds

Placing of another Bay of Quinte marsh area in Mazzanaga town out of bounds for duck hunters was announced yesterday by Royal Canadian Mounted Police officers. The R.C.M.P. officials stated that buckwheat had been found in the marsh by inspectors and according to regulations the area within a half-mile radius of where the baiting activities were discovered has now been posted as being out of bounds for duck hunters.

On Tuesday evening, Cannifton United Church was the scene of the Fall Rally of Young People of the United Church of Canada in the South Hastings district. Sponsored by the rally's fellowship banquet served by the ladies of the church. At its close, a letter of greeting was read from the Presbytery president, Vivian Hendershot who was unable to be present. Loretta McDougall, convener of leadership training for the Bay of Quinte Conference, spoke of Guide-Mo-Lac-the Young People's Camp at Moira Lake: about the fellowship enjoyed last summer the work accomplished on the new buildings, and of the further work planned for next year. Don Williams next led a lively singsong including the many favorites of the unions.

The evening program, presided over by the president Margaret Hillis included in the church auditorium by singing "Make Me a Captive Lord." A resume of the activities of the young people of the South Hastings district, and financial report of the past year was given by the secretary-treasurer, Elaine Kolver, followed by report from the nominating committee.

Rev. M. G. Clarke, Speaker

Loretta McDougall introduced the speaker for the evening, Rev. Morley G. Clarke, M.A., Th.M., minister to the Thomasburg charge. His theme was "The Vicarious Life". He pointed out to the young people the great necessity of living that kind of life, not in the way that most people are living it today, but the kind of vicarious life that Jesus led, in which we suffer with Christ for the world, and not let Him suffer alone.

The president-elect, Doug Ross, expressed thanks to Rev. Clarke for an inspiring and challenging address.

Greetings were brought by the chairman of the Board of Christian Education Committee for Belleville Presbytery, Rev. G. D. Young of Marmora.

The young people were then divided into four groups for discussion under the leadership of the ministers of the surrounding district. The commission groups were: administration, Rev. F. R. Harback; Christian Fellowship, Rev. F. W. Madden; Christian Missions, Rev. C. A. Gilbert; Christian Citizenship, Rev. C. W. Neelands.

Officers Installed

The installation of officers was conducted by Lorne Shaw of the Belleville Presbytery, Rev. C. A. Perking, and was concluded by the candlelight service and singing the hymn "Blest Be the Tie that Binds". Rev. F. W. Madden, minister of Cannifton United Church then pronounced the benediction.

The list of the newly-elected officers of the South Hastings District Young People's Union:

Can You Guess How Soon Ice Will Melt Away?

Put on that old thinking cap and get out the pencil and paper for a lovely pair of Kenwood blankets is waiting at Walker Stores, Ltd., on Front Street for the person who can prove his or her guessing ability.

In conjunction with the "Enjoy Shopping" in Belleville" week Walker Stores, Ltd, are sponsoring a rather-novel guessing contest in which everyone is welcome to enter.

An exhibition in the store is a huge cake of ice weighing several hundred pounds in the centre of which has been frozen a Kenwood blanket. All the contestant has to do is to guess exactly the time it will take to melt the block of ice completely.

The contest opens at ten o'clock Friday morning and closes at noon on Saturday. The first prize winner will receive a Kenwood blanket and the second prize winner will receive a Kenwood sheet.

Community Chest Drive Extended Until Nov. 1

While the Red Feather Campaign has been proceeding satisfactorily, officials today announced that the drive will be extended to November 1st instead of finishing on the expiry day, tomorrow.

City territory has not been fully covered and workers have asked for extra time. Meanwhile, those people who have been overlooked, or not canvassed, may send their donations direct to campaign Headquarters in the Y.M.C.A. building.

The splendid work being done by the Y.M.C.A. the V.O.N. and the Children's Aid Society, if it is to be maintained, depends a lot on the voluntary subscriptions of the citizens in Community Chest Campaigns.

The quota set for Belleville, is $16,000 and every cent is urgently needed. By giving generously residents of the city can help these services to reach their highest standards of usefulness.

Campaign officials are confident that a generous Belleville will maintain its reputation of supporting to the fullest worthy humanitarian causes.

POWER ENGINEERS WITNESS FILMS

At a meeting of the Institute of Power Engineers for the Quinte district held at the Hotel Quinte on Friday evening, two films were shown by the Johns-Manville Company of Toronto. The first was entitled "Heat and its Control" while the other was on tranite, piping, etc entitled "Underground Arteries." Mr. Charles A. Hulse, staff manager of the Industrial Products department of the Johns-Manville Company, and M. Haddon sales engineer for the same company were present for their firm. Mr. C. McWilliams of the Mead-Johnson Company of this city is president of the Institute and there were more than 50 present at the meeting. The pictures were instructive and enjoyable.

MAY BE HELPING PREVENT ACCIDENTS

Cities and towns which have extended daylight saving time on into the late fall may be helping in Ontario's battle against the traffic accidents toll, the Motor Vehicles Branch of the Department of Highways points out in a communication.

Under standard time in November, Southern Ontario is in darkness by five o'clock; but under daylight saving time, most of the hour just after five comes just before sunset. Since the hour from 5 to 6 in the evening is always almost the peak period of the day for accidents, the added hour of daylight might be expected to reduce the risks where daylight saving is in effect.

The facts bear this out if Ontario statistics of November accidents in this peak hour are compared with those for the hour just before the communication states. In the pre-war and post-war periods, when standard time was the rule for November everywhere, the five to six o'clock hour (the first hour after sunset) had an average of 69.2 per cent more traffic accidents than the hour just before; while during the war years 1940-44 under daylight saving time the increase was only 28.9 per cent.

Highway officials point out that the slogan "slow down at sundown" calls attention to the great danger of accidents during the peak going-home traffic just as the days work finishes for most people. In October and November this traffic is mixed at the twilight hours and requires increased alertness and a reduction in normal speeds for safety. The greatest danger, they say, will be when the return to standard time in December suddenly darkens almost the entire evening rush hour.

BACK TO COLLEGE AT 80

This is an age of learning, knowledge and discovery, no one can doubt that when a doctor of eighty years has signed up for study purely out of pleasure, says the New York World-American. He is the oldest of 65,000 students at New York University. Dr. Thomas, the octogenarian, gave up his practice a year ago and went to New York to live.

He sees something in the age and the work beyond sitting on the bench. He has mapped out a three-year course of study at the university to prepare for years of enjoyable loafing in Europe.

This man was undoubtedly a student all his life, possessing the student's keenness and thirst for knowledge.

More than three hundred years ago there burst upon Europe that great interest in new knowledge, known as the New Learning and out of it has come much of what is progress today. The era of the New Learning opened up an entire new world of experience and was contemporaneous with the age of discovery which always goes with learning.

It need scarcely be said that this eighty-year-old student has in him the spirit of youth for learning is ever young, and so are discovery and invention and the mind that is responsible for these marks of progress.

DESK IS HIS CASTLE

Desks are like bureaus — are not inanimate things. They are infested with gremlins, who play queer and devious tricks on people, make fun of the neat and pay tribute to chaos.

The most-able-to-find-things of any one we have known in our profession was a wise and discreet fellow who evolved a set-up we can recommend as the sound system. When his desk got piled so high he could not see the door he whooshed it all off into various receptacles in a haze of dust, magazines, unread circulars and political pamphlets. But in the latter mound stages if he wanted to find a copy of the periodical on calendar reform, the latest from Ottawa on the tariff or the particularly amazing booklet about fishing on the Atlantic coast, he could put his finger on it with alarming alacrity. Whether it was a unique sense of color or smell we could never figure out.

If you simply piled things on your desk until the sight was unbearable, he said, you found eventually that nearly all the material had become unnecessary, people didn't give a hoot about it any more, your conscience was clean, and your desk could be too. It was his conviction that nothing in the paper age was more dead than yesterday's pamphlet, and that nature should be allowed to take its course. He only dread was the cleaner-upper; the hound of orderliness.—Hamilton Spectator.

JUST FOLKS

DETECTIVE TROUBLE

Trouble's a detective and the subjects of his quest
Instead of evil doers are the men who do their best.
He doesn't wear false whiskers; has no badge on his lapel.
Any one can recognize him and his name correctly spell.
It's for courage he is seeking; he'll be friend to those who stay,
But he lets no one escape him who attempts to run away.

The very simplest methods to detect a man he'll use.
He'll merely disappoint him or a cherished hope he'll break;
Strike a blow that really hurts him just to learn what he can take.
When he finds someone stout-hearted who will meet him face to face
His mission is concluded as another perfect case.

Some fear Detective Trouble and from him they try to flee,
But they wouldn't if they'd meet him as the friend for that he proves to be.
It's for grit that he is looking and the strength that lies within;
The man who'll take his loses and still keep the will to win.
And he leaves the evil doers for policemen to arrest.

Whitehall Notebook:
Lord Beaverbrook Slighted Claim of English Papers

By ALAN HARVEY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Oct. 20 (CP)—A new skirmish in the almost-wordless war between Lord Beaverbrook and the Conservative party has interested speculation about their relationship at the next general election.

It seems that when whips were handed around for the declaration debate in the House of Lords, Lord Beaverbrook did not receive one. It was the first time such a thing had happened to the Beaver, and two questions arose: Did a serious breakdown somewhere or is the Conservative party really angry at Lord Beaverbrook?

The Conservative answer, based on an official statement from party headquarters, was that the omission was purely an accident. The Tory peers, the statement indicated, thought that the Beaverbrook publication "scorns" and "despises" as a result of a deliberate act by the Marquess of Salisbury, Conservative leader in the Lords, and Lord Fortescue, chief Tory whip.

The independent Manchester Guardian, noted for its careful reporting, said the omission may have been a mistake, "but Lord Beaverbrook is a bad person to make a mistake with."

Political gossips speculated that the Conservatives wanted to get rid of Lord Beaverbrook in anticipation of a general election. A section of the party, it was argued still holds that the Beaverbrook newspapers contributed to the Tory downfall in the 1945 election.

It wasn't the first breach between the party and the man whose editorial columns crusade consistently for Commonwealth and Empire. Twenty years ago Lord Beaverbrook irritated Conservative bosses by sponsoring Empire Free Trade candidates, and this summer has been more or less ambitious ever since.

In and Out

Last January, Lord Beaverbrook stopped subscribing to his own publication, "some time before the new candidate did not support the publisher's Empire policies."

A Tory critic was quoted as saying Lord Beaverbrook was no longer in the party; Lord Beaverbrook was quoted as saying he certainly was.

The matter died there, and nobody was sure how things stood. Meanwhile, Lord Beaverbrook has reiterated his stand in the uncompromising words:

"My principal attack on the policy developed by Mr. (Winston) Churchill and Mr. Eden is that it is an empire policy, I am with them. If they fail, I oppose them."

Few visitors to the United States have attracted such sustained interest to their expression of view as has Prime Minister Nehru of India.

This is due in part, I take it, to the devotion and courage with which he attacks the paramount issues of the day, and in part to the fact that he is an apparently wise the great new leader of southern Asia's millions.

For example, in an address before the Overseas Press Club of America in New York Nehru struck a body blow at the imperialism which is struggling to retain its foothold in the Far East. Prime Minister declared that "next to hunger, nationalism in Asia still is the primary urge." And he added that Asia's Orient must "play a very important part in world affairs," have a say in the affairs of the world's wealth, and rid itself of foreign rule.

Nehru then made the startling prediction that within a few years" will see the last vestige of alien rule in Asia.

"A few more years" may seem like a short time to finish clearing imperialism out of Asia, but we must listen with respect to the man who, more than any other personality, led India to freedom. Gandhi, was responsible for the winning of the battle.

Another viewpoint of the Asiatic leader was expressed at a reception held by the United Nations Correspondents Association at Lake Success. During an informal question period one of the newspaper men asked Nehru whether he thought Asiatic and capitalistic societies could live side by side indefinitely.

"I don't think so," the prime minister replied. "It is possible, but ultimately one will influence the other. The society which delivers the goods — the better life — will survive.

"By better life," Nehru was taken to refer not only to material things but to spiritual and cultural matters. Of course to get the full significance of this appraisal of Communism one must read what he actually said ideologically.

As this column has reported previously, the prime minister is a moderate socialist, who believes in a mixed economy, a course providing for nationalization of key industries and leaving plenty of others free for development by private initiative.

Nehru's views are also exhibiting what he regards as best in both systems.

Flood Dead In Guatemala Placed at 1,000

Guatemala, Oct. 19 (Reuters)—Guatemala's flood toll was estimated today at 1,000 dead and 500 homeless after two weeks of torrential rains.

The Minister of Communications told Congress that damage to bridges, telegraph and telephone systems alone would be at least $3,500,000 and that the figure might be only one third of the actual damage.

Hydrographers are expected to attempt a landing on swollen Lake Atitlan today at Panajachel pilots and bring out 15 tourists stranded there.

Lake Atitlan, which followed the worst rainfall in 15 years, burst its banks of soft volcanic ash and ore and, though now receding, still cover huge tracts of land.

LONGER TERM GIVEN

Toronto, Oct. 20—(CP)—Underkeep guard, George Franklin, who last week made an escape attempt from Toronto city hall police cells, was convicted Wednesday of receiving stolen articles. Magistrate O. S. Hollinrake sentenced Franklin to one year in jail, to run consecutively with a two-year sentence for an automobile theft.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

LOITERING

Every once in a while I read in my newspaper that a certain person has been arrested for the crime of loitering. But this doesn't scare me. I like to loiter — among other things, in second-hand bookstalls. I like to loiter along the crowded streets of Chicago on Saturday shopping.' There is interest everywhere.

Some attractive shop windows, many decorated by highly paid experts, are so arranged as to catch the eye of the passers by as often an. Thanks be. I like to loiter and look. Each person one sees in the way and mood of one that I may see through a window, or a showroom, hoping for some tiny volume of "forgotten lore" that may give to me something far better than a discovery of gold.

I never visit a town without loitering along its streets, trying to size up to size up the city's character thereby. I stop to take a squint at the displayed photographs of charming women, and made-over men. I note the latest styles of women's wear in the windows. (I have always had a secret desire to design gowns.) And so I loiter, dream, and — enjoy myself, when not conferring with this little noiseless shadow that I have housed in a city office.

During recess in the summer weeks I loiter upon my small island retreat in Nova Scotia. I am a secret, but happy farmer there, among the great trees, the trodden, moss-covered paths, and along the stony shore. I have my camera and field glasses at such a time, for I loiter to watch the ways to be alert, ready for surprises. That's like the boy in me.

The dictionary I keep handy says that to loiter is to "linger as if from weariness, hesitation or duty." I don't like that last word. There is too much fun in loitering to spoil it all by defining it as "idleness." I'll let that pass, however, and I keep the habit, formed so very long ago and still abide by the admirable thing of the mind, when I "linger on the way." And I want to recommend this art, so enjoyable to me, to others — to you. Have you tried eye period!

Board Wishes To Make it Soft For Prisoners

Edinburgh, Oct. 20 — (CP)—Men in jail will be paid a weekly wage and have occasional weekends at home with the wife and kids if the Scottish Advisory Council has its way.

The council studied the treatment and rehabilitation of offenders under the Scottish prison system. Its report was published Wednesday.

A weekly wage of £3 ($8.30) is recommended, from which prisoners would pay for their maintenance in jail and contribute to the upkeep of dependents.

"We regard receiving of wages to be an important part in the training of responsibility," said the council.

The recommendation for weekends at home applies to men in "prisons without bars." But the council turned thumbs-down on women prisoners getting the same break.

"With great reluctance after hearing the views of expert witnesses," the report said it had been decided the dangers of allowing a woman out on parole are "much greater than in the case of a man."

POLICE OFFICER DIES

Toronto, Oct. 20—(CP)—Constable John Gaw, 46, placed on the police department's sick list last year after he was severely injured when beaten up by four men, died Wednesday. His attackers were later sentenced to seven prison and reformatory sentences ranging up to two years.

Personal Health Talks

TUBERCULOSIS AND "RESISTANCE"

The fact that tuberculosis flourishes in stuffy rooms and in cold countries where indoor overcrowding is inescapable and food is inadequate, would seem to lend some support to the notion that such a thing as "resistance" is involved. "Resistance" under these circumstances is presumed to "run down." Lack of heating, lack of fresh air and lack of sunlight are presumed to be instrumental in "lowering the resistance" of the victim thus making it possible for the causative germ to "move in."

This concept is shaded to some extent by the observation that tuberculosis often develops in individuals who have been subjected to none of the foregoing circumstances. Tuberculosis may develop in a person who lives under the most healthful circumstances and who may appear to be in normal health.

The degree of immunity (not resistance) a person may have to certain infectious diseases can be determined by tests. The Schick test used to determine susceptibility to diphtheria, and the Dick test used to determine susceptibility to scarlet fever are examples of these.

The word "resistance" is a meaningless term in carrying out these tests. A person undergoing all the experimental procedures to "lower the resistance," would not respond negatively to the tests to any greater degree, differently than someone else whose experiences were presumed to "raise the resistance." For instance, if a child responded negatively to the Schick test for susceptibility to diphtheria, and then underwent all the experiences which are presumed to "lower the resistance," he would still respond negatively if re-tested. If the original test was positive and the child underwent a course of serums designed to "raise the resistance" he would still be positive on re-test.

At present, there is no test which can be used to determine susceptibility to tuberculosis. Certain skin tests will indicate whether or not the body has ever been infected with the tubercle bacillus, (the germ which causes tuberculosis). When these tests are positive further examination is in order to determine whether or not the germ is dormant or still active. It is, of course, impossible to determine from the test whether the individual has a "low resistance" or a "high resistance." The way to avoid tuberculosis is to avoid contact with people who have it and to avoid any food which harbors the germ—the item of unpasteurized, un-scalded, un-certified, raw milk being the chief consideration.

TUBERCULOSIS AND "RESISTANCE"

How is one to know when he is in contact with some one who has tuberculosis? Unfortunately, one cannot know. For this reason it pays to avoid indoor areas where crowds congregate and ventilation is inadequate. Even this is not always possible There appears to be an inescapable hazard to living under most circumstances.

No one is totally immune to tuberculosis, but-some are much more immune than others. Immunity varies to some extent with age. Children are more susceptible than adults. Aged adults are more susceptible than those of middle age. Any child living in a house where an adult has active tuberculosis is almost certain to acquire the disease.

Any patient who has been pronounced by a physician and an X-ray examination to be "cured" is either in sufficient it itself, but the X-ray examination is absolutely essential.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Everybody Needs Iodine

Jr. All right for one who has had goitre removed to take the iodine tablets? If so, please send me instructions. (M. C. S.)

Answer—Ask your doctor. Every normal woman and child requires a minute quantity of iodine daily, suffers if he or she does not get it. On written request—no clipping, please—instructions for using the Iodine Ration, will be mailed to any reader who provides himself with a stamped envelope.

Hysteria

Just to save words, time, and postage we had better point this definition of hysteria: A mental, emotional or personality derangement of the most profound kind affecting the body or the behavior. Men and women are equally subject to hysteria.

Spastic Children

Papers so often mention spastic children and their care. Please tell me what is spastic birth. (Mrs. W. H. T.)

Answer—Spastic means spasmodic, rigid, stiff, contracted, the state of various voluntary muscles in children born with or developing in infancy cerebral palsies. Injury or illness of mother, difficult or prolonged labor, injury of child in delivery, asphyxia during birth, severe sickness of young infant—these are causative factors.

WORK CAN BE WORSHIP

One of the most interesting groups in the world today is the Iocian Community, a group of people occupying the little island off the coast of Scotland where the ancient Celtic missionaries to Ireland, Scotland, and England. The Iocian movement was one of the most significant enterprises in the history of the Christian Church.

Today a group of men under the leadership of Ronald Ian Cameron, George MacLeod, is attempting to bring back on that tiny island the spiritual power which meant so much to the British Isles' centuries ago. Worship, study, and hard physical work are the requirements of those who associate themselves with MacLeod and his colleagues.

It is significant that the morning service held at 8.30 is not closed with benediction. After that come hard manual work and periods of study and prayer. In the evening there is another service, and this latter service closes with a benediction. The idea of that is that work and study are just as much a part of worship as the service held in the sanctuary. In fact, they constitute the continuation of the worship service.

This is the practical application of the Christian teaching that unless we take our religion into our work it is not religion at all but pretense.

In commenting on the shortage of beds in hospital, Miss McGeary of the Victorian Order of Nurses, at a recent board meeting stated that many patients could be discharged earlier than usual, or in some cases cared for at home altogether, where a V.O.N. service was available in a community. Minor burns, and post-operative dressings can often be cared for at home. Treatment was given this little fellow without his going to hospital. The nurses dressed his burns daily according to the doctor's instructions. It wasn't long before he would run to meet the nurses saying "Fix hurt." When they stopped visiting they were fast friends.

The nurses made 1,685 visits last year to medical and surgical patients in their own homes, Miss McGeary stated. The Red Feather Appeal for a goal of $16,000.00 makes such work as this possible.

V.O.N. NEWS

The monthly meeting of the V.O.N. was held at the Y.M.C.A. last Monday with Mr. T. D. Huston presiding. Many items of business pertaining to V.O.N. work were discussed and dealt with.

The members present regretted the absence of Miss McGeary, nurse-in-charge. There was a great deal of concern expressed regarding Miss McGeary's injuries resulting from an accident which occurred while on a motor trip to Toronto in her own car. Her speedy recovery is the sincere wish of every board member.

The members of the board had the pleasure of a visit from Miss Reid, National Office Supervisor of the V.O.N. Miss Reid spoke briefly during the meeting passing along many remarks of interest and bringing the good wishes of the National Office.

During Miss McGeary's absence Miss Dorothy Conner is capably taking over the responsibilities of nurse-in-charge with the assistance of the remainder of the nursing staff and a relief nurse.

Miss Conner submitted a most interesting report to the Board members which was favorably received. The figures given in this report outlined clearly the tremendous amount of work being done by the V.O.N. nursing staff and the great service being rendered to Belleville and district.

During the month of September 440 visits were made by the V.O.N. nurses, which brings the total of visits for the year to 4,010. The duties of the nurses were increased in September by the opening of school and also monthly toxoid clinics and dental clinics were resumed.

The meeting was closed by the president, T. D. Huston who thanked the members of their attendance and enthusiastic interest.

CHATTERTON W.I.

The regular monthly meeting of the Chatterton Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. Lorne Reid with 11 members present. The president opened the meeting. The roll call gave "A Hint on Personality and Dress", after which the minutes of the last meeting were read and adopted.

The usual business period took some time, and the convenor, Mrs. Bleecker, gave an interesting paper on "How to Decorate Windows". A number of readings were given and Mrs. B. Finkle gave a demonstration on "Fancy Sandwiches", after which the meeting was closed and the

LINGHAM—McKINLEY

In the chapel of Deer Park United Church, Toronto, October 14, Miss Jean McKinley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Nathan McKinley, was married to Mr. Henry Thomas Lingham, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Lingham, Kingston. The chapel was lit by cathedral tapers and decorated with white chrysanthemums. Dr. Stanley Russell officiated.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a period gown of white satin, designed with a Dior neckline. Her fingertip veil was held by a crown of fleurs d'amour, and her bouquet was also fleurs d'amour with trailing ivy and stephanotis. Mrs. Renwick McComb was matron of honour, and Miss Joan Chalmers and Miss Elizabeth Pascoe were bridesmaids. They were slipper satin period gowns of sea green and hunter's green, with Dior boleros, and fitted floral headdresses. They carried informal bouquets of white chrysanthemums and yellow roses.

Mr. Jack Forman, Kingston, was best man, and Messrs. Donald Edwards and Bill Young were ushers.

The reception was held at the home of the bride's parents. On their return from the Laurentians, the couple will live in Toronto.

The whole group then visited Parliament in session. A tour of the museum ended the day's events.

Women's Activities

PHIAT CLUB

Prior to their regular Sunday night meeting at the YMCA, the Phiats held a reception to represent the Phiats in a debate with the Phalanx club to be carried over CJBQ.

Chatter over cookies and tea wound up the evening.

Eastern Star Presents Most Successful Bazaar

A mild and sunny afternoon brought a large number of guests and patrons to the bazaar and tea, sponsored by the Order of the Eastern Star, held in the assembly rooms of the I.O.O.F., Front Street, on Saturday.

Worthy Matron, Mrs. Harry Partridge and Mrs. Martin Lester received the guests at the door, while inside a riot of autumn color met the eye. Around the room were arranged the eight attractive booths, each one displaying their own color scheme, and articles for sale, and in the centre of the room there were large, restful-inviting chesterfields for those who could no longer keep going.

The first booth was that of the Pantry Shelf, so designated on its valance in large black letters, and was convened by Mrs. Ken Vivian and co-convener, Mrs. Wilmot Bailey, with the assistants: Mrs. Myrtle Croft, Mrs. Nora Westcott, Mrs. Nina Jenkins, Mrs. Clayton Hermon, Mrs. Edmund Sherry, Miss Leona Jenkins, Mrs. Da Westcott, Mrs. Mary Blatherwick, Mrs. George Read, Mrs. Floasie Laycock, and Mrs. Harold Elliott. Here could be purchased relishes, jams, conserves, pickled beets, sweet pickles, and mustard pickles, olives, lemon, mango, onion, soups, green tomato jam for cod meats, canned corn and a fancy basket with cookies.

Colorful Plant Booth

Then came the Plant Booth featuring a high brick wall atop of which the green and white Sultanas, geraniums with red flowers, pink flowered begonias, the shy African violet, tiny baby tears, the Wandering Jew, and the artillery plant. Above all these, in a bower of silver fern-like foliage, sat two brown owls, quietly taking it all in. The convener of this booth was Mrs. Mae Black, with her co-convener, Mrs. Cyril McMullen, and the assistants, Mrs. Violet Hazlett, Mrs. George McGie, Mrs. Murney Hick, Mrs. Bruce Bell, Mrs. Bruce Simpson, Mrs. H. Hicks, Mrs. Howard House, Mrs. Richard Black, Mrs. Earl Bush, and Mrs. Laura Valleau.

In the Novelty Booth with its rainbow crepe paper front, and curtains of red, green, yellow, white, were so many pretty and useful articles it was hard to choose. There were dollies, large and small, dainty wash cloths, red bath slippers with white flowers appliqued on the toes; hot mats of all shapes, and designs; soap turtles with crocheted shells, were crowding about among the shell earrings and brooches, and in one corner, Maggie's little black "Fifi" was peering steadily at a chocolate-colored mouse with white whiskers, which was trying to hide under some plastic clothes pins, while Sambo the rag doll, sat placidly watching it all. Over the rainbow were fastened pot holders, dusting mitts, and crocheted curtain pulls of several designs. This was convened by Mrs. Walter Elliott with her co-convener, Mrs. Lee Grills, assisted by Mrs. Morley Buck, Mrs. Albert Elliott, Mrs. Robt. Orme, Mrs. H. Phelps, Mrs. Eva Morton, Mrs. Joe Daly, Mrs. Lyle Pringle, Mrs. J. Thompson, Mrs. Joseph Whitehead, Mrs. Maude Elliott, Mrs. L. Reluf, Mrs. Sam Cherrie, Mrs. Mary Celgier, Mrs. Fannie Kane and Mrs. Mildred Morrow.

Cooking Booth Well Stocked

The home cooking booth drew many customers, and within a short time nearly every delicy confection had about disappeared. This was prettily decorated with a deeply fringed skirt of orange, having a valance of scalloped blue, the colors of the Order. Behind, on a tall standard, golden star on a white field, insignia of the Order, and nearby were baskets of red and orange colored zinnias; yellow chrysanthemums, white lilies, and blue batchelors buttons. Displayed for sale were so many lovely cakes and pies, one could scarcely choose. There were rice crispie delights; fruited hermits; gems with chocolate tops; some with green, and others with pink; nut filled brownies; taffy tarts; lemon tarts; berry tarts; coconut cake; chocolate cake; doughnuts; jars of lovely red apple jelly; lemon pies, and chocolate pies with high piled golden meringue; luscious looking and good. Over this delectable exhibit were the convener and her assistants, Mrs. William Harrison, Mrs. Fred Scott, Mrs. S. Lee, Mrs. Clifford Hatton, Mrs. Ernest Munroe, Mrs. Forbes McLean, Mrs. Lawrence Gray, Mrs. Leonard Reid, Mrs. Walter Elliott, Mrs. Fred Westover, Mrs. Jessie Wessels, Mrs. McFarlane, Mrs. Harold Little, and Mrs. Percy Kerr.

The red skirted candy booth came next reminding all that Christmas was but a little over two months away. Over it was suspended a huge candy cane. Selling the delicious chocolates, little colored suckers in bunches of four; little red cups full of creams, and many other mouth-watering varieties were: Mrs. Bert Adams and Mrs. Harold Armstrong with their assistants: Mrs. W. Wonnacott, Mrs. A. Brisson, Mrs. Stan White, Miss Vira Kindred, Mrs. Lois Adkins, Mrs. H. Eaton, Mrs. Olive McCoy, Mrs. Harry Stevens, and Mrs. H. Evans.

Around a quartet table were seated the conveners of the Bun-Wee Girls booth, raffling off a very lovely Dresden plate quilt in pink and blue. These were Mrs. Hazel Smith, Miss Vivian Scott, assisted by their group.

Attractive Aprons

Through an arch of royal purple and orchid colored gladioli flowerets was a dazzling array of aprons; some in yellow with appliqued pink roses; some in green plastic with ruffled frills; some with blue backgrounds with roses scattered over, and aprons of every size, and for every needed purpose. There were also some dainty little dresses for the three-year-old, and needing only the little face, and curly head to make the picture complete. This booth was convened by Mrs. Gordon Shaw; with Mrs. Clarence Clapp as co-convener, and assisted by Mrs. Ernest Pigden, Mrs. J. Nunn, Mrs. J. L. Good, Mrs. Selburn Westover, Mrs. Charles Brown, Mrs. John Bean, Mrs. Harry Newman, Mrs. Harry Dowsett, and Mrs. P. W. Dueberry.

The Fancy Work booth was a bower of green cedar with here and there little bunches of 'mums, and its convener Mrs. A. D. McLean; and co-convener, Mrs. Olga MacDonald, and the assistants Mrs. Stanley McDonald, Mrs. Lillian Hall, Mrs. Lionel la Tompkins, Mrs. Kenneth Juby, Mrs. Thurza Green, Mrs. Roy Dutch, Mrs. Allen Hamilton, Mrs. Clayton Stratton Mrs. F. M. Carscallan were busy wrapping up the dainty dollies, centrepieces, flower-like pot holders, guest towels, baby socks, booties, tea cloths, chair sets, mitts and bonnets.

In the centre was the grocery basket booth, with baskets filled to overflowing with goodies for the dinner, canned vegetables, jelly powders, soups, crackers, catsup and other articles too numerous to mention. These baskets would go to the lucky winners, listed later. The convener of this booth was Mrs. William Morgan; assisted by Mrs. Harvey Brown as co-convener with their assistants, Mrs. Maria Stephenson, Mrs. Celgier, Mrs. Robert Patterson, Mrs. Bella Mills, Mrs. William Spring, and Mrs. Bessie Clark.

Besides these booths there was one other, selling prettily packaged Christmas cards, and presided over by Miss Mary Carmichael.

Inviting Tea Room

Upstairs was the tea room with its rainbow of gold, and underneath the white open gates through which a steady column of guests were passing to the little tables beyond. Each little table had a tiny golden pumpkin with a Hallowe'en face lighted up by a candle. Round about the room were baskets of ferns and yellow 'mums, and in the centre, the tea table, with its beautiful cloth of Scotch lace, centered with a silver, floor holder sepreine holding golden rod bronze baby 'mums, and flanked with silver tri-light candelabra with yellow and bronze candles. Pouring at the glistening silver services were, during the first portion of the afternoon, Mrs. H. Noke and Mrs. Albert Wonnacott; during the second portion, Mrs. D. I. Storey and Mrs. Elmer Sandercock; and at the last period, Mrs. M. J. Barlow and Mrs. Elizabeth Tayler.

Those who served were: Mrs. Ralph Clapp, Mrs. Evan Barlow, Miss Isabel Orme, Mrs. A. C. Wilkin, Mrs. Ethel Stewart, Mrs. C. MacDonald, Mrs. Dorothy Clark, Mrs. Neal Hallam, Mrs. R. McPherson, Miss Betty Holst, Mrs. William Gardner, Mrs. Jack Boyle, Mrs. Bessie Mifflin, Mrs. Jack Carson, Mrs. D. E. Storey, Mrs. Harold Denike, Mrs. Fred Fisher, Mrs. E. Buchanan and Miss Jewel Bailey.

Those who replenished: Mrs. Thomas Law, Mrs. W. M. Barlow, Mrs. Arthur Nayler, Mrs. Herbert Reed, Mrs. W. Emburg, Mrs. Everett Liddle, Mrs. Harry Brown.

The hostess to the tea room was Mrs. Alcina Cornish and the treasurers were Mrs. J. Badger, Mrs. R. D. Adams, and Mrs. Bella Mills. The refreshment committee consisted of convener, Mrs. Jack Darrell, with the convener, Mrs. Dan Stewart, and their assistants, Mrs. Margaret Belson, Mrs. Paulene Wesley, Mrs. Nora McDonald, Mrs. Dorothy Millikin, Mrs. Jean Adams, Mrs. Florence Moon, Mrs. Annie Adams and Mrs. Rachael Lurgin.

The general convener over all was Mrs. Alexander McGlashon, and her co-convener, Mrs. Geiza Baker. Those who looked after the tickets were Mrs. Hayes Pitt, and her co-convener, Mrs. Everett Smith.

Prize Winners

The winner of the Dresden quilt was Mrs. George Noble; of the two pound box of chocolates, Mr. Alfred Evans; and of the one pound box, Mrs. Fred Westover. The winner of the doll was Mrs. Nora Elridge, and the winners of the grocery baskets, Mrs. E. Sandercock, Mrs. D. L. Storey, Mrs. A. Elliott, Mrs. E. Buchanan, Mrs. W. Day and Mrs. J. Bean, Mrs. W. Ironside, Mrs. H. Reed and Mrs. E. Taylor.

There was also a new innovation, a tiny room set apart as a kindergarten for little tots, with tables. These were served luncheons and fresh water as a beverage by its convener, Mrs. G. Baker.

Contact Club Of Christ Church Sponsors Autumn Tea

On Tuesday afternoon the Parish Hall of Christ Church presented a gala appearance for their sale of home-cooking and afternoon tea sponsored by the Contact Club. Baskets of golden marigolds, baby 'mums in beautiful Autumn shades, orange-colored bitter sweet, Japanese lanterns, maple leaves, and streamers of bronze, yellow, brown and green festooned the walls, and decorated every available space. Those who received the guests were the president, Mrs. C. Shapee, and Mrs. J. Grant Sparling, while Mrs. C. Colling, Mrs. R. Lennox, and Mrs. E. Follwell invited to the tea room.

During the hours from 3 to 5 those who presided were: Mrs. G. G. Wright and Mrs. Everett Smith, and from 4.30 to 6 p.m. Mrs. E. Hickey and Mrs. Horace Wright.

Those who served the tea and replenished the plates were Mrs. A. Theobald, Mrs. F. Beebe, Mrs. E. Baldwin, Mrs. F. Symons, Mrs. J. Pringle, Mrs. D. Montgomery Mrs. A. Miller, Mrs. H. Luttrell, Mrs. A. Matthews, Mrs. R. Best, Mrs. H. Clarke, Mrs. S. Bull, Mrs. L. Wilkins and Mrs. R. Phillips.

The treasurer was Mrs. A. P. Young.

Mrs. F. Adams was in charge of the angel cake, which was won by Miss M. Diamond, and the conveners over all this delightful tea and homecooking display were Mrs. C. A. Bateman and Mrs. L. A. Kells.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

It would be a very tragic and bitter thing, indeed, if all of us were to lose the confidence of our friends for good because we had made mistakes.

The degree to which one retains faith in a person who has made mistakes—as everyone does— is the measure of one's own maturity. When a very young person is disappointed in love, he or she is apt to feel that no one can be trusted. Maturity brings the ability to tell the reliable person from the unreliable and the judgment to know whether a person is basically trustworthy or not.

It seems to me that the person in the situation described in the letter I am about to quote still have a way to go before they are mature in this respect. As will be seen, they refuse to trust the young man who is in love with their daughter simply because he went through a phase when he wasn't wise enough to control his youthful irresponsibility.

"I am in love with a girl three years younger than myself, and she is in love with me," the man's letter begins. "Our problem is that my girl's parents do not approve of me or even want her to see me. The only time we can see each other is when she sneaks out of the house, and I certainly do not think this is the proper way to carry on a love affair.

"I really brought this on myself by doing things against the law—low flying, reckless driving, etc.—but I have fully realized my mistakes and have corrected them. I used to think I was smart to drive fast, etc., but I found out how wrong I was.

"However, I respect my girl's parents and their judgment concerning her, and I realize they are only looking out for her own good. But I love this girl with all my heart and soul. Before I met her I had 32 months in the A.A.F., 31 months as an officer. I have purchased a one-third interest in an airport and therefore am able to support a wife. When I first started going with this girl, I drank, but did not do the right things, but now I have wakened to the fact that I should start becoming a man.

"My girl and I have talked all this over, and we both agree that it is not right for her to sneak out, but we are so in love that we don't know what to do."

If I were this girl's mother, it would give me a great deal of confidence in this young man to know that he has had the insight to realize where he has been wrong, the character to admit it and the determination not to repeat his past mistakes. I would in fact, have more confidence in him, I think, than in a young man who to my knowledge had never made any mistakes. The future is far more hopeful for a person who knows where he has been wrong, and has decided to remedy it, than for someone who has had no occasion to test himself. I feel that this girl's parents are making a big mistake when they refuse to realize all this and continue to withhold their approval of their daughter's choice of husbands. The very fact that he does not want his relationship with the girl to be a clandestine one but wants everything out in the open is further evidence that he is honest and sincere.

Since things are as they are, however, I think this young man's best plan would be to try and have a frank talk with the girl's father and ask him to make a bargain. That is, he might suggest that he be given a definite period of time in which to prove that he has changed his ways for the better, say six months or even a year, if necessary. He should ask that, if in all that time he has not repeated any of the misdemeanors which brought down parental disapproval on his head, he and the girl could then have the parents' consent to marry.

If the latter agrees to this, then all should be well. If he does not, then I think these two young people are entitled to go ahead with their plans to marry when they see fit. For myself, I feel this young man can be trusted, and I hope the girl's parents will think things over and come to realise it too.

High Style Perennial

COLORS may came and go but black and white remain a perennial charmer, ideal when all other hues and color combinations pall. Pauline Trigere uses it for a most impressive and different evening costume. An ivory satin skirt is topped by a black velvet narrow-clinging neckline blouse which adds up to good fashion sense.

GOOD MANNERS

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

She wants to be a social secretary . . . —Here's how!

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

The other day I heard an acquaintance of mine say that she was about to start a new position as a "social secretary". This sounded fascinating to me, and I am wondering just what services this kind of secretary would have to perform, what the qualifications would be. I'd like to try it!

Beth

A social secretary is a very special kind of person with a very special kind of responsibility, and she must have very special qualities to be the efficient assistant she must be. She must have a charming personality . . . graceful and gracious manners . . . infinite tact and adaptability . . . unfailing understanding and loyalty . . . and a heart full of worldly knowledge. Quite an order, I'll grant, but since many women decided to be career women there is great competition in this field, and her success depends on her having the qualities that will give her employer faith in her ability to take over many responsibilities. Of course, positions vary according to the employers' demands and interests; and there are resident secretaries, some full-time, some for a certain number of days or hours a week, or month.

It is most important that anyone who aspires to be such a social secretary must know all the correct forms for all types of invitations, acceptances and regrets, all kinds of letters and notes and cards, and so forth. Her handwriting must be very clear and should have interest and distinction. She makes all appointments; takes charge of the accounts; very often has charge of the servants, hiring them and paying them. She also makes all arrangements for travelling, reservations, purchasing of tickets, checking luggage. And very often she takes charge of opening and closing town and country houses. A good social secretary is a jewel and a blessing!

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am to be married soon . . .to a man whom I first met when we were both undergraduates at the same college. We have a good deal of sentiment about our college meeting, and at our wedding reception we would like to have the small orchestra my father is engaging play the Alma Mater and other songs of our college. Do you think this would be proper and a good idea . . . or just a silly plan. If you think it would be proper, when should these be played?

Peg

Indeed it's proper to have the orchestra at the wedding reception play college songs . . . this is very often done, and in your case, particularly appropriate. (Better provide the music if there is any doubt that the orchestra may not be familiar with it.) Sometimes college songs are played by the orchestra (and sung by the members of the wedding party, or by the guests in general) between toasts at the bride's table. And very merry it is to have the "Here's to ——" songs of the college played and sung . . .with the name of the bride and of the groom filled in after the "to." But when the Alma Mater of the college is played and or sung, it is important, as you know, that this should be done with a special feeling of reverence.

Gifts to the Groom-to-be. Shower gifts, attendants gifts

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I have never before heard of giving a "shower" for a man. . . but yesterday my brother received an invitation from a man friend of his to come to a dinner at his house for a prospective groom, the guests being the men who are to be in the wedding party. The invitation stated that each man was to bring a small shower present, and also two dollars towards a gift they have planned to give the groom-to-be. How about this. . .is it a new idea, and is it considered a correct thing to do?

Bob S.

It isn't often that a shower is given for the groom-to-be, but it is sometimes done, and it is proper. Occasionally the groom's friends give him a handkerchief shower, or a shaving accessory shower. But more often it is the plan of the man in the wedding party to give him a group gift, perhaps at the bachelor dinner. The most popular gift for this occasion is a silver cigarette box with the top engraved with the facsimile of the signature of each attendant, or each of a group of friends. Or these signature facsimiles may be engraved on a silver photograph frame, or on a silver tray.

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMIESON

Considering the florid complexion

Very pretty and intriguing is the wild rose blush on the creamy cheek. When the blush extends itself over the entire facial premises it is too much of a good thing and the woman who carries this flushed appearance is usually mad about it. Excessive redness is probably due to some physical condition that is not normal. Then again it may be a family inheritance handed along by some old meanie. Plenty of healthy individuals have ruddy faces.

In England they call this type of complexion the beef-eater's face. Not a bad guess, as overindulgence in the good things of the table can be the source. An excess of protein in the diet may be responsible for the crimson map.

It has been observed that the woman who has a permanent flush is inclined to partake of highly seasoned foods. The beef-eater's is on the job when she absorbs groceries. She has to have plenty of mustard and meat sauces. Dietary stimulants are precisely what she should not have. The digestive motors get even with her by changing the delicate texture of the skin to a coarser fabric, causing the natural coverup to take on a glow that does not come off.

Cosmetics will keep the skin surface smooth; they should be used. A heavy cream should be applied at bedtime, an astringent patted into the flesh in the morning.

The florid complexion is the only type that is not benefited by light massage. Manipulations of any kind will further excite and stimulate vessels in capillaries that lie close to the epidermal surface and give coloring to the flesh. Corrective oils of all kinds should be applied lightly.

When washing the face, the water should be neither hot nor cold, but tepid. Some complexions of this character have an allergy to soap, in which event a cosmetic meal should be used. The meal is sprinkled on a moist washcloth, the flesh gone over lightly, after which a light cream should be applied. Ice rubs are definitely out. Too stimulating.

Coming back to the subject of diet, which is most important, fried foods are taboo, fish and poultry are preferable to meat, though boiled or broiled meat—a small portion—may be had once a day. The diet should include plenty of fruits and vegetables. Large meals should be avoided. Several glasses of water should be taken each day.

The florid brunette must be cautious about the colors she wears. Black, brown, almond and reseda green are safe bets. She can wear bluish lavender and blue grey but not steel grey. For decorative purposes she can employ a little coral or old rose, but not true red.

DRYING HELPS

In fresh skins the moisture content is often as high as 80 per cent, but in finished leather it is often less than 10 per cent.

STRIKE VOTE CALLED IN C.G.E. PLANTS

Trouble at Peterborough C.G.E. plant started over interpretation of ruling affecting pay of about 40 girls of induction motor department, some of whom are shown here. Union plans that a strike vote will be taken in Toronto and Cobourg C.G.E. plants which would finally involve about 7,500. Peterborough workers, after a brief "holiday," are back on job to permit re-opening negotiations.—Central Press Canadian.

Jack Morton, United Electrical Workers local president, talks to Peterborough employees of the C.G.E. plant where a strike vote was called over interpretation of a Labor Board ruling. Board Suggests Differences be Arbitrated

Brockville, Oct. 20. (CP)—A special committee of the Brockville General Hospital Board suggested Tuesday night that differences between the Board and the hospital medical staff be submitted to arbitration.

Senator A. C. Hardy, resigning from the Board last month, charged "violent hostility on the part of several members of the Board against the medical staff in general and a considerable number in particular."

Two other Board members, G. Elmer Johnston and G. H. Johnston, resigned later. None of the three resignations has been accepted. Meanwhile, Senator Hardy has offered to pay up to $500 of the cost of arbitration.

One source said part of the problem is a lack of definition of authority of the medical, nursing and administrative staffs.

Pastor's Case Is Adjourned

Toronto, Oct. 20. (CP)—A motion for an injunction to prevent Rev. Thomas Guthrie from participating further in the life of his Guelph Church—York Road Baptist—Wednesday was adjourned to November second.

The minister fell into disfavor with members of his church some weeks ago when it was discovered he had written love letters to the wife of a member of his congregation.

The adjournment was granted by Mr. Justice Kelliher Mackay of the Supreme Court at the request of counsel for the plaintiffs, who include five of the church's six deacons.

If granted, the injunction would prevent Mr. Guthrie from: (a) acting as "minister of or pastor of" the church; (b) interfering in any way in the administration and management of the church, and (c) trespassing or in any way making use of the church and grounds.

Staff Courses Conducted

"Staff courses are conducted to this end and the National Defence College for senior officers and civil servants gives intensive instruction in the broadcast aspects of defence in relation both to internal and external problems providing a ground for the necessary co-ordination between civilian and military points of view."

The report dealing with every phase of defence development in the year ended March 31 1949 covered a period in which training and operations were "the most active since the Second World War."

The navy during the year carried out manoeuvres with the British and American fleets; a Canadian ship was despatched to China to be available to assist Canadian Nationals; and in 1949 a summer cruise took Canadian ships to Hudson Bay waters for the first time. Naval aircraft trained at sea from the carrier Magnificent and during the summer at the Canadian joint air training centre at Rivers Man. personnel of all three services underwent special training.

The air force in addition to its training program marked by the first post-war wings parades flew almost 2,250,000 miles in transport operations and broke previous records in air photography by covering close to 1,000,000 square miles in surveys. More than 100 rescue missions were flown, involving 2,600 flying hours.

Proceed on Unification

At Rivers the army conducted extensive training and one infantry battalion was converted to a parachute-war transported unit. The army continued experimental training at Churchill, Man., particularly working at adapting the work of the forces to Arctic conditions.

"Canada has proceeded further in military unification than any other country, but the system is under constant examination with a view to improvement", the report says.

Many of the functions of the three services have been combined and "radical action has been taken to avoid overlapping and to produce co-ordination."

General research work, co-ordinated under the defence research board, was reported to be keeping step with other service developments.

The board is working with Canadian universities in developing techniques, many of which are secret. One involves study of combatting insects in the Canadian north.

The board is charged with examination of Canada's war potential and with keeping up-to-date a plan for necessary production.

MUST STAND TRIAL

Toronto, Oct. 20 — (CP)—John McCulloch, 48, of Cherry Valley in Prince Edward County, must stand trial on a charge of attempting to murder Mrs. Edna Blanchfield of Toronto.

At a preliminary hearing Wednesday, where McCulloch was committed to trial, Mrs. Blanchfield said she had known the man 30 years. She testified he was drunk when he arrived at her door recently with a rifle.

She heard one shot after McCulloch had followed her to a neighbor's house "and that's all I remember," she said.

The stork outraced an airplane over the Atlantic Ocean and delivered a four-pound baby boy to Mrs. Darinka Parker, shown here, of New York, when the Constellation was 40 miles from Shannon, Ireland. Mrs. Parker, 30-year-old Bavarian-born mother, was en route to join her soldier husband, Sgt. James Parker, in Welsbaden, Dr. Fred Henschel, a passenger on the sixtiner, delivered the baby. He was assisted by Stewardess Mary Jane Hinckley, a registered nurse. Said Dr. Henschel: "It only goes to show that a doctor ought never to go abroad without his little black bag."—Central Press Canadian.

2,800 Acres at $33,600 Purchased by Government For Manoeuvres and Firing

Picton—Extension of the training plan carried out by the Royal Canadian School of Artillery (AA) here by the purchase of 2,800 acres of land to be used for manoeuvres and firing range. This week representatives of the Department of National Defence are engaged in purchasing land along Lake Ontario, eastward from the Point Petre lighthouse. This, for the most part, is land used for pasturing cattle and runs across such farms owned by George Rose, Gerald Wood, Nelson Moore, Hilton Wood, C. McCaw, Clarence Tripp, Alva Collier, Fred Frost, C. L. McIntosh, M. Wadsworth W. Walmsley, Charles Bartman and covers a distance of more than two miles to Gull Pond. In places, land purchased is three quarters of a mile to a mile deep. Payment of $33,600 is said to be involved in the deal.

The R.C.S.A. has property in the vicinity of Point Petre light and a summer camp is operated there. Several thousand trainees came from all parts of Canada to train there. Sewers and water mains are being laid in preparation, for the erection of 200 houses which are to be erected by Central Mortgaging for service personnel. This is land purchased from farmers who live adjacent to the station which is located on the south side of the town.

Rotarians Told China's Condition Is Appalling

Picton—Conditions of poverty, suffering and privation in China are appalling and beyond description, declared H. A. Mackenzie, M.P. for Lambton-Kent, and a former member of the United Nations Relief Rehabilitation Administration, in an address at Picton Rotary Club yesterday.

Mr. Mackenzie felt that graft and corruption have been rampant under the Nationalist administration of Chiang Kai-Shek, and that conditions have been such as to favor that government overthrow by any movement which might offer a possibility of a change for the better.

"The present success of the Communist party in China does not indicate pro-Russian sentiment, for the general feeling is anti-Russia." Mr. Mackenzie stated. The speaker felt that Canada's reputation stands at a high level among the nations of the world, and that, in external affairs, Canada has followed a wise course by keeping to a "middle-of-the-road" policy, which does not favor parties either on the "right" or of the "left".

Good Returns

Returns from the tag day held by the Women's Hospital Auxiliary on Saturday were announced yesterday as amounting to $510. This money will be used by the Auxiliary to purchase bedding and other equipment for the county hospital here and to assist in maintaining furnishings. Mrs. Heath Morden, W.H.A. president, and Mrs. N. McKibbon were conveners.

The local Salvation Army has been conducting a Red Shield campaign here with an objective of $1500. Teams have canvassed the town, under the chairmanship of Mayor William Henley. Capt. John Morrison, officer in charge, as campaign manager. Though returns are not yet complete, the objective has already been overs subscribed.

BUDGET SPEECH

Made Retroactive

The rates were made retroactive to Jan. 1 along with a change aimed at elimination of the so-called "double taxation" on corporate profits. Common stockholders were allowed a credit against their personal income tax of 10 per cent on dividends.

This feature was aimed at eliminating double taxation — that is the tax on corporate profits and later on part of these profits in the hands of the shareholders.

The plan under which business losses could be carried forward for three years for tax purposes was extended into a five - year period. This means that, when a business loses money in one year, it may deduct the amount lost from its taxable income over succeeding years, rather than pay tax on the full amount of the latter profits.

The allowances for mining, oil and gas exploration expenses were extended through 1952. Under this plan, companies may charge against their profits for tax purposes, the full amount spent for exploration work on new sources of minerals, oil and gas. The tax-credit for deep-test oil wells was extended for 1950.

The exemptions for the first 3 years of new mines were extended to include mines coming into production up to the end of 1952.

Would Boost Revenue

Mr. Abbott estimated in March that the changes in the corporate tax structure would increase revenue from that source by about $12,000,000 a year.

This he said at the time, would help offset an estimated loss of $100,000,000 in the elimination or reduction of excise and war-imposed "nuisance" taxes. Almost $80,000,000 in excise taxes on soft drinks, candy, train tickets and other services were eliminated altogether, and another $20,000,000 was sliced off by reducing rates on jewelry, cosmetics, smokers' supplies, and other items.

However, the taxpayers did not enjoy the full benefits of the reductions. Railway and airlines obtained permission to increase their rates by the amounts represented by the income tax reductions.

There has been no tax since March 22 on long-distance telephone calls and extension phones, but the Bell Telephone Company now has applied to the Board of Transport Commissioners for increases in rates in Ontario and Quebec. The increases, if granted, would eliminate the benefits from tax reductions for telephone users in the two central provinces.

Many Other Benefits

But there were other factors in the March budget that brought general satisfaction to Canadians, including those old enough to distinguish between a nickel and a dime. Elimination of the two-cents-a-bottle tax on soft drinks brought the price of pop back to the pre-war five-cent rate. Chewing gum also returned to five cents and chocolate bars dropped from eight to seven cents a bar.

There were these other features:

1. The 25-per-cent impost on jewelry, fixed at the retail level, was changed to a straight 10-percent at the manufacturers' level.

2. Cosmetics, toilet preparations, luggage, hand bags and the like were reduced from 35 to 10 percent.

3. Pipes and smokers' supplies, pens, pencils and desk sets were dropped from the 35 to the 10 percent level.

4. Cigaret lighters, with a tax of 25 percent, and matches, bearing taxes at various rates, were dropped to a straight 10 percent.

5. There were no changes in general sight percent. sales tax or the levies on postage, succession duties, tobacco or liquor.

6. Despite the tax cuts a surplus for the year would be realized.

$87 Million Surplus

Mr. Abbott estimated in his March budget that he would have a surplus of $87,500,000 for the 1949-50 year—against $575,000,000 in 1948-49. The tax relief of $500,000,000 was estimated to be the highest in Canadian history. In a pre-war year, would have eliminated the entire government revenue.

He estimated revenues for this year at $2,477,500,000 and expenditures at $2,390,000,000. The year ends next March 31.

Any surplus is applied against the national debt which skyrocketed during the war years, when most expenditures were directed to the war effort—and little towards the general welfare of the people.

But taking part of the slack in war expenditures were such things as family allowances and increases in old age pensions. Family allowances were introduced July 1, 1945, and now cost the federal treasury close to $200,000,000 a year.

In pre-war years, old age pensions amounted to an average of $20 a month. Now the peak payment is about twice as much, being in the neighborhood of $40.

GOVT. WILL WAIT

ranged so as to avoid federal control, direct or indirect, on a matter which was essentially one of provincial jurisdiction. It was a question that had "possibilities of controversy."

The Royal Commission on arts and science is expected to report to the government next spring. Mr. St. Laurent felt it would not be wise in attempt to determine with any degree of precision how the Dominion should help in education until that report is received.

In opening proceedings Solicitor General Lapointe tabled an exchange of correspondence with Attorney General Corman of Saskatchewan. It indicated the government does not plan to investigate the possibility that a price-fixing combine exists in the oil industry of Canada.

Mr. St. Laurent said the government is not prepared to recommend setting up a House committee at this session to look into ministerial use of powers delegated by parliament. The matter will be given careful consideration and the government will indicate early in the 1950 session if it is prepared to establish such a committee.

Defence Report Tabled

Joseph Blanchette, parliamentary assistant to Defence Minister Claxton, tabled the annual report of the defence department. It claimed that Canada is leading the world on the matter of unification and co-ordination of the various branches of the armed services.

Shortly after the opening, division bells rang when T. A. Church (PC — Toronto Broadview) contested a ruling by Speaker Ross Macdonald.

Mr. Macdonald ruled out of order Mr. Church's resolution calling for government co-operation with the provinces and municipalities to cut down the loss of life from accidents on highways and at level crossings, drownings, fire and other causes.

The Speaker ruled that the motion would necessitate the expenditure of public money and therefore was out of order under the House rules which prevent anyone other than a cabinet minister from- sponsoring- money legislation.

The ruling was upheld 141 to 48, but three Liberals joined Social Credit and Progressive Conservative members in voting against the Speaker. The members were George Cruickshank (Fraser Valley), George Fulford (Leeds) and A. W. Robinson (Simcoe East). The C. C. F. supported the government.

In the Senate, debate continued on a bill to abolish appeals to the Judicial committee of the Privy Council and set up the Supreme Court of Canada as the country's last court of appeal.

All Canadians Concerned

In the main Commons debate, Mr. St. Laurent said all Canadians are vitally concerned with educational facilities. There was no doubt that since the war, education programs for veterans had been of great assistance in maintaining the efficiency of educational institutions. Many of these, without that aid, would have found it difficult to maintain standards.

He believed it would be necessary to continue the help that was necessary for high educational standards.

Mr. Drew said it would be necessary to examine the whole field of Dominion-Provincial relations so provincial requirements on health and other matters, as well as education, could be fully looked into so that the provinces could meet the demands of the people.

When he was minister of education for Ontario, he had made recommendations similar to those in Mr. Knight's resolution. He said the ability of the provinces to finance education that would give real equality of opportunity was one of the country's most important problems.

Mr. Drew said that the reason Ontario for a time did not accept a federal physical fitness grant was that it included a "direct attempt" to control the province's fitness program. It had strings attached.

When Ontario did accept the grant, Mr. Drew said, it was only after the attempt at "control" had been discontinued.

That incident indicated that in this type of grant, there must be a definite understanding that the full independence of all provinces would be preserved, the party leader said.

But if the provinces were to make full use of advances in education, Drew said, they must have additional sources of revenue.

Facilities Must be Provided

He said modern school facilities must be provided in remote areas as well as urban centres.

Teachers should be highly qualified and their salaries should be raised to levels in keeping with their responsibilities of educating those who later would have the future of the country in their hands.

It was important that provincial departments of education be assured of that "measure of support which is necessary to bring to reality the desire that real equality of opportunity in education will be extended to every Canadian."

Mr. Knight a former Saskatoon school trustee said education was vital for national unity security and even national existence.

The Canadian Teachers' Federation was on record for federal aid to education. So were the Canadian Legion and other bodies, Dr. A. W. Trueman President of the University of New Brunswick had said that there could not be equal educational opportunities in all the provinces without considerable federal aid.

Actually Mr. Knight said the only federal stipulation that would have to be made would be a condition that any Dominion moneys voted for education should be spent for that purpose alone. It could be spent for the type of education favored by each province.

Grants Suggested

Mr. Fleming, the son of a school teacher, said he hoped federal grants would make it possible for willing students, lacking means, to obtain the education they wanted. He suggested the grants be based on fiscal need.

He said he wished to make it clear that the autonomy of the provinces in the field of education must be scrupulously respected.

Dr. Gauthier said parents should be helped to educate their children. In Quebec there were large families it was not always possible to give the children the education parents wished them to have.

He said it was possible that if Mr. Knight's resolution carried the government would not obtain co-operation from the Union Nationale government of Quebec.

ONE MAN DEAD
OTHER WOUNDED

Antonio Sylvester, left, is in hospital and Frank, right, is dead after a shooting bout at Frank's home in Hamilton. Police believe Frank shot at Antonio, hitting him several times in the abdomen, then put a bullet through his own head. Their names have long been linked with bootlegging in Hamilton.—Central Press Canadian.

The Quebec government had refused to take advantage of legislation under which the federal government contributed to the building of community centres.

As a result of that lack of co-operation the province had lost $1,000,000 it could have obtained in federal grants. The community centres were valuable things particularly in rural areas.

ANIMAL PRODUCTS

Pakistan produces about 9,000,000 pieces of hides and skins and 250,000 tons of bones, which are exported chiefly to Europe and the United States.

The "breathing" ability of leather, or how much ventilation it provides, can now be measured by a recent developed machine.

Faraday School Heads Forestry Competition

Pupils of Faraday township public school S.S. No. 2 have been adjudged winners of the first prize of $25 in the 1949 school forestry competition sponsored by the Ontario Agricultural Association, it has been announced. Results of the contest were made known by Zone Foresters W. E. Edwards and J. D. Griffin of Napanee.

The Foxboro school, S.S. No. 12-14, Thurlow, with Mrs. Mabel Hayton as teacher was awarded second prize of $15, while S.S. No. 3 Elzivir with Mrs. Hilda DeClair, was winner of the third prize of $10. Teacher at this school winning first prize was Mrs. Eza Vance.

Special prizes were awarded by both Hastings and Lennox and Addington county councils for schools finishing below the first three winners.

In Hastings three schools, S.S. No. Montegafe-Herschel; S.S. No. 3 Wicklow-McClure, and S. S. No. 9 Tyendinaga, were tied for 4th place with a score of 78 and each received $7. Fifth prize winner was S.S. No. 3 Mayor (Herman), prize $4.

In Lennox and Addington S.S. No. 2 Sheffield won first prize of $12; S.S. No. 3 Kaladar, won second prize of $8, and Tamworth Consolidated School won third prize of $5.

The competition started last Spring with each school planting a half-acre or more of trees and was completed this fall with schools making a study of woodlot management and reforestation. A quiz on these subjects will be prepared later.

The competition was responsible for arousing considerable interest in reforestation among the pupils of the various schools participating.

MRS. ARTHUR PITRE

"He told her he had $1,000 on his wife."

"What did she say to that?" Crown asked.

"She said it was not much to lose 'your wife', Rusat answered.

Adrienne Cote, nurse assigned to Mrs. Pitre's ward Sept. 20-21 said she took Mrs. Pitre's temperature at 6 a.m., Sept. 21 and that it was normal. She found Mrs. Pitre sleeping rather heavily when she brought in her breakfast.

She said she found "a fraction of a pill" in her bed when she was ordered to search the woman's room. But she found no trace of a box of pills said to have been turned over to Mrs. Pitre before going to hospital. The pills were said to have been analyzed.

Milford Haven And Fiancee Reach New York

New York, Oct. 20—(AP)—The Marquess of Milford Haven apparently is going to do the talking for his family when he gets married in November. At least his fiancee, Mrs. Romaine Simpson, hardly peeped when they arrived here today.

The slender, dark-haired American divorcee and blonde David Mountbatten, second cousin of the King, were shy when the Queen Elizabeth docked — and breakfastless.

Questions about their romance and wedding plans mostly were brushed aside by Milford Haven who was best man for Prince Philip when the latter married Princess Elizabeth.

Mrs. Simpson was not present when Milford Haven talked to reporters and showed up reluctantly for photographers with her fiance. Later, she did consent to show her engagement ring — a huge square set in a circlet of diamonds —to reporters.

Mrs. Simpson has a 19-months-old daughter by her previous marriage.

Storm Pounds Shipping for Fourth Day

New York, Oct. 20—(AP)—Two gales today pounded shipping on the north Atlantic for the fourth straight day, and storm-damaged cripples began limping to port.

The three worst-battered ships were the French freighter Caen, the tanker John H. Marion and the Greek freighter Mathoes.

The 7,176-ton Caen neared Philadelphia under tow by the tug Marion Moran after three days of wallowing without engine power following a propeller accident.

The damaged tanker Marion, with one seaman dead, was heading for the Nantucket lightship en route to Baltimore under escort of the S. S. Pueblo.

Off the cost of Nova Scotia, where one storm now is centred, the Mathoes radioed she could no longer proceed because of the wind and seas, although she was in no immediate danger.

Canadian authorities were sending help, the coast guard said.

The weather bureau said the Nova Scotia storm, which moved north from the Delaware capes, apparently was slackening. There still were 60-mile-an-hour winds in its centre about 200 miles southeast of Nova Scotia, however.

Two Warkworth Youths Sentenced On Theft Charges

Pleading guilty to the theft of a 17-plate automobile battery worth $20, and also to the theft of 15 gallons of gasoline, two Warkworth youths, Howard Carr, 21, and William Yule, 18, were given suspended sentence for one year when they appeared before Magistrate T. Y. Wills today in county police court.

Provincial Police Robert Purdie who investigated the matter said the battery and gasoline were stolen from a sawmill in Sidney township which was owned by Clayton Dudley of Warkworth. One of the youths had worked for Dudley for a time, it was stated.

The battery was recovered while the youths promised to make restitution of $5.25 each for the gasoline. Court costs amounting to $16.50 each were assessed.

Harry Dewey, former driver for LaPalm's, appeared for sentence on a theft charge and was also given suspended sentence for one year when they appeared before Magistrate T. Y. Wills today in county police court.

Traffic cases predominated the court with seven motorists paying fines ranging from $8 to $12 for speeding.

Police Blotter

Missing since early Wednesday evening when he went out of the house without saying where he was going, 72-year-old Edward Navan, 27 South Front Street, returned home this morning. He had spent the night with friends.

When the elderly man failed to return home last night members of the family notified police and relatives in the city were checked without Mr. Navan being located. He returned home shortly before noon today stating he had stayed the night with friends.

A woman residing on Albion Street complained of a window being broken in her sunporch as result of a boy throwing stones. Police were notified of the incident and the name of the boy responsible was ascertained.

PRODUCERS PLAN CUTBACKS IF STRIKES CONTINUE

Everything Points To Unemployment

(By The Associated Press)

Major automobile producers are planning cutbacks unless the first twin steel and coal strikes in United States history are settled soon.

There's no indication of a settlement in the walkouts which have made idle around 1,000,000 workers.

Everything points to skyrocketing unemployment.

Only direct government intervention seems likely to end the stalemate which is costing an estimated $58,800,000 a week in lost wages.

The loss to U.S. business firms is staggering but there's no way of arriving at the exact amount. As one example, the coal-carrying Baltimore and Ohio railroad said strikes had cost it $1,500,000 already this month.

President Truman is keeping a close watch on the situation.

He's shown no sign of stepping in. However, if peace is not in sight by the end of the week he's expected to do something.

Ford, General Motors and Chrysler — the auto industry's "big three"—are agreed shutdowns are in prospect by mid-November if the twin walkouts continue.

A G.M. spokesman says some of its auto plants may go on a four-day week by Oct. 31.

Flaring Shutdowns

The twin strikes are costing the country 1,400,000 tons of steel and 11,000,000 tons of coal each week.

Last Monday from 16,000 to 20,000 C.I.O. United Steelworkers struck nine plants of the Aluminum Company of America. That costs the U.S. around 7,750 tons of aluminum each week and is a body blow to fabricators who had thoughts of switching from steel to aluminum.

The steelworkers, who are plumping for free pensions and insurance, are giving up about $30,000,000 a week in support of their demands.

Then comes the $80,000 striking United Mine Workers. They are losing about $22,800,000 weekly to back up John L. Lewis's demands for a new contract.

The idle aluminum workers are losing around $1,200,000 a week.

And the railroad workers on coal hauling railroads are out about $3,000,000 weekly.

Add another $1,600,000 for the 27,000 employees who have been laid off in the steel fabricating industry and it totals a whopping $58,800,000 every seven days.

Russians Reported Encouraging Nazis Into Public Life

London, Oct. 20.—(AP)—The government said today that Russian authorities in Germany "are openly encouraging Nazis and militarists to participate in public life in the Soviet zone."

The statement was contained in a note to Czechoslovakia rejecting that Russian satellite's protest that establishment of the West German Government was a violation of the Potsdam agreement.

Thirteen Couples Wed 50 Years Given Diplomas

Quebec, Oct. 20 (CP)—Thirteen couples, each married 50 years or more, have received "diplomas of long life" at a typical French-Canadian hoedown.

The elderly couples stomped across the floor this week at lowertown St. Malo's Paris where 600 parishioners threw a "rallies" for them.

The celebration, marking the parish's golden jubilee, was highlighted by the presentation of "long life" diplomas by Rev. Paul Bouille who released a few "vital statistics."

The 13 couples, he said, have a total of 196 children. The largest single family—23 children, belongs to Mr and Mrs. Joseph Edmont Paquet. Smallest family was five children.

11 Convicted Red Leaders Up for Sentence

New York, Oct. 20 (AP)—The 11 convicted United States Communist leaders come up for sentence tomorrow, facing no more than a possible five years in prison fines.

Most people had thought they could get up to 10 years.

However, a revision of the Smith Act carries a maximum penalty of only five years for conspiracy. They also can be fined up to $10,000 each.

Apparently, the revision escaped even the defence counsel. Throughout the nine-month trial that ended Oct. 14 they spoke of the maximum prison penalty as 10 years.

The Smith Act forbids any one to advocate violent overthrow of the U.S. government. The 11 defendants were convicted by a federal jury of conspiring to violate the act.

Ripe Strawberries Still Being Picked

(By The Canadian Press)

Ripe strawberries, normally a summer delicacy, are still being picked in three Ontario communities, although winter is almost due.

At Trout Lake, in northern Ontario, Mrs. Earl Phillips picked 10 quarts of the fruit from her garden patch during the last few days. She says there are plenty of blossoms on the plants of the everbearing variety.

Down south at Fort Erie, in the Niagara Peninsula, A. Ray, newspaper man who undertook to raise strawberries in a barrel this spring, made a meal of them last night.

At Killarney, a little fishing village 50 miles southwest of Sudbury, Mrs. Louis Prue has picked a pint of strawberries during the last week.

CREW ABANDONED BLAZING VESSEL AND ITS WATERY GRAVE

Smoke and steam are seen towering above the 1,345-ton lumber schooner, Salina Cruz, of Seattle, Wash., as she wallowed low in the North Pacific, 140 miles off the Washington coast. Boat capsized and quickly spread throughout the vessel. Seventeen members of crew who went over the side into whalebosts were rescued.—Central Press Canadian.

Gale Warnings Remain up In Maritimes

Halifax, Oct. 20 — (CP)—Gale warnings remained up in most Maritime marine areas today as an erratic Atlantic hurricane shifted course once again and headed westward.

The weather office said this would cause winds to increase to gale force in the Bay of Fundy, where the warnings were lowered Wednesday as the hurricane moved north-northeast past Sable Island, 100 miles due east of here.

Gusts as high as 80 miles an hour near the storm centre were expected, with gusts of 60 miles an hour were likely in some shore areas.

The storm itself was becoming less intense but the gales were beginning to cover a larger area. Halifax got a heavy dose of rain Wednesday but winds were moderate.

No ships were reported in distress and most small craft had taken shelter.

VOTE TO STRIKE

Montreal, Oct. 20 — (CP) — Some 2,200 members of the International Association of Machinists (A. F. L.) at the Canadair Limited aircraft plant in suburban Cartierville have voted to strike, it was announced Wednesday night. Louis Laberge, business agent for the Lodge, said no specific date has been set for the walkout.

JOE LIKES PRISON LIFE

Albany, N.Y., Oct. 20.—(AP)—Back in 1931, when Joe Sullivan finished a 30-day term in Albany county jail on a charge of intoxication, he asked the warden if he could stay a little longer.

Sullivan, now 65-years-old still doesn't want to leave, Warden Rensselaer Taylor said Wednesday.

Sullivan works during the day in the jail kitchen. He isn't paid, but contributions from the prisoners keep him in tobacco.

At night, he is locked up with the prisoners.

Taylor said Sullivan could leave anytime, "but he doesn't like the outside."

$2,464,190 in Irish Sweeps, Draw Started

Dublin, Oct. 20.—(CP)—Holders of tickets on the Irish Hospital sweepstakes for next week's Cambridgeshire race will divide up prize money totalling £784,-900 ($2,464,190).

The prize total was disclosed today as pretty Irish nurses began drawing numbers from a basket-shaped drum to determine those who will share in the payoff.

Fund officials also announced that 13 top prizes of £25,000 ($77,500) each will go to persons drawing the horse that wins the Cambridgeshire stakes on October 26 at Newmarket, England. Before the division of the pound the top prizes were worth $100,000 each, but fund officials don't expect any complaints from those lucky enough to win.

The 13 holders of tickets on the second place horse will get £10,000 each. The 13 holders of the third place horse will get £5,000.

Tickets for the complete, original entry list of 103 horses for the Cambridgeshire are drawn today. Fifty-seven entries already have been withdrawn. Holders of tickets on those non-runners and on runners which fail to place will receive £150 each.

The addresses of the non-Irish winners in today's draw will not be disclosed until after the running of the Cambridgeshire next Wednesday.

The first number drawn with any chance of winning big prize money was on the horse Starpoint, with odds at 40 to one. The number was KR11309, under the name or nom de plume "F. E. Ohrvall."

CHINESE REDS RACE WESTWARD TO FINISH DRIVE

May be Death Blow To Nationalist Govt.

Hong Kong, Oct. 20 — (AP)—The Communists stabbed westward today in what may be the death blow to the Nationalists on China's mainland.

Red Gen. Lin Piao appeared to be trying to split the shattered Nationalist domain in two with a quick knockout of its last big military force—the 200,000-man force of Gen. Chung-Hsi.

Lin's domination of the conqueror of Manchuria, Tientsin and Hankow sent veterans of the Reds' Fourth Field Army straight at Pai's home base, Kweilin. The Kwangsi province city is 350 air miles northwest of Canton.

The dispatches said two of Pai's armies were blasted along the Kwangsi-Hunan border. The Reds were reported racing along the rail line to Kweilin; and had either taken or by-passed Chuanhsien, only 70 miles to the northeast.

To the south, another Communist force commanded by Gen. Chen Keng, was reported slashing westward from the newly-won Canton area. These troops were said to be less than 50 miles from the Kwangsi border. Their drive was along the West River.

Extend Control Quickly

The push on Kwangsi seemed to itself evidence that the Reds are determined to extend their control quickly over the entire mainland.

Only two days ago, Nationalist quarters at Chungking expected the Communists' westward drive would be aimed at Kweichow, almost defenceless province just north of Kwangsi. They thought the Reds would take it and cut off Pai's armies from Chungking, new Nationalist refugee capital to the northwest.

Instead, Lin's Reds appeared to be concentrating their power on the cream of the remaining Nationalist forces defending Pai's native province.

Pai withdrew southwest into Kwangsi from Hunan when the Reds put the heat on Canton. He did it rather than risk Red entrapment by going south to defend Canton.

Named Spokesman For Atlantic Pact Defence Talks

Ottawa, Oct. 20.—(CP)—Air Vice Marshal H. L. Campbell, director-general head of the RCAF's big Northwest Air Command, today was appointed Canada's permanent military spokesman for Atlantic Pact defence talks.

He will become head of the Canadian joint staff in Washington and Canadian representative to the standing group of the military committee of the Atlantic Pact, defence headquarters announced.

The military committee comprises military leaders of the Atlantic Pact country. On the standing group are the United Kingdom, the United States and Canada but provision is made for consultation with any country on matters of immediate concern to it.

MAN CRUSHED TO DEATH

Shullsburg, Wis., Oct. 20—(AP) — A section of tunnel ceiling collapsed in a lead and zinc mine Wednesday night, crushing one man to death and injuring another. John Hebenstreit, 25, was dead when rescue workers pulled him free. Ralph Rowe, 33, suffered leg injuries. The men were working at the end of a 750-foot tunnel some 350 feet underground when a six-by 10-foot section of ceiling fell in.

IVANHOE

Young Fry Hold Colorful Rodeo In Fleming's Field

Ivanhoe—The young fry of Ivanhoe and vicinity all public school pupils, held a rodeo on Saturday afternoon in Ted Fleming's field a quarter mile east of Ivanhoe post office.

The fearless young riders in their colorful cowboy shirts, Mexican hats and chaps, skillfully put their horses through their paces with Carlyle Rollins as master of ceremonies.

At one the riders was one girl, Miss Ellen Mitts, who rode quite as well as any of the boys.

A small admission of 10 cents was charged with proceeds to go toward the purchase of another saddle as only two riders now own saddles.

After the horses had taken part in races, jumps, bucking and tricks, the riders generously loaned them to their chums, not so fortunate as to own a mount.

THOMASBURG

Thomasburg—The Thomasburg United Church held their anniversary services on Sunday. The ideal weather brought large congregations to both the morning and the evening services which were conducted by the Reverend W. H. Merrick of Selby, a former minister on the Thomasburg charge of 28 years ago, after having served for three years. The messages at both services were inspiring.

The church was decorated in keeping with the Autumn season, with cut and potted plants. The choir rendered excellent music with Mrs. Clarke as organist.

At the morning service an anthem was given, and Mrs. W. Grant of West Huntingdon was heard in a solo, while in the evening Mrs. Donald Holbert of Moira, was the soloist. An anthem by the choir was also rendered.

The Reverend Morley Clarke conducted the anniversary services at Selby United Church on Sunday.

Mrs. W. A. Morton and Miss Emma Porter accompanied Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Porter to Carrying Place where they spent an evening recently with the Rev. F. C. Beazer and Mrs. Beazer at the rectory.

Mr. and Mrs. Ervine Bateman, Miss Ruby Bateman and Mr. Gerald Bateman visited with Dr. Russell Bateman and Mrs. Bateman in Toronto during last week, and also attended the International plowing match near Brantford.

Mr. Donald Hobbs spent the weekend with his mother in Belleville.

Mr. and Mrs. Claude Dafoe and Billie of Carleton Place spent the weekend with Mr. and Mrs. Harold Morton.

Mrs. Will Holbert left on Saturday to spend the next few months with her daughter Mrs. (Dr.) J. H. Dennison at Fort William; she will be accompanied to Fort William by her daughter, Mrs. Elwood Kerruish of Kingston.

Mr. and Mrs. Percy Franks, of Belleville, visited with friends at Thomasburg on Sunday.

Mrs. Cameron, Miss M. Cameron, Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Geen and Mr. Robert Geen, were Sunday afternoon callers at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Allan Morton, in Belleville.

Mrs. T. Slush, of Tweed, spent a day last week with Mr. and Mrs. Donald Richardson.

Mrs. Gerald Bailey and Joyce, of Roslin, spent a day last week with Mrs. Wesley Morton.

Some from here attended church service at St. John's Anglican Church Moneymore, on Sunday evening when the Rev. F. C. Beazer rector of Carrying Place parish, and former rector at Moneymore, had the honor of dedicating the newly installed electric lights in the church.

The Reverend H. Fletcher conducted service in Christ Church, Thomasburg, on Sunday evening. The many friends of Miss Emma Porter were pleased to see she was able to be back to preside at the organ.

The Reverend Clarence Wright, of Bancroft, has been appointed to the Roslin mission and will be in residence by November 1st.

Mr. and Mrs. John Stephen, Marjorie and Norma Jean, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. T. Freeburn and other relatives at Flinton.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Porrett, of Tweed, spent the tea flour on Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Hermon Elliott.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald McTaggart and Terry, of Belleville, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Willard McTaggart.

Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Huffman and Mr. and Mrs. Percy Westover of Bellevile, were anniversary services at the United Church on Sunday, and were entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Emerson.

Mrs. G. A. Morton, of Belleville, spent a day recently with Mrs. M. Geen.

Mr. and Mrs. Paddy Herman of Trenton spent the weekend with Mr. and Mrs. George Walker.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond French have bought the home of the late Mrs. Shaw just east of the village from Mr. Eugene Shaw of Oshawa. This house has recently been occupied by Mr. and Mrs. John Stephen and children. Mr. and Mrs. French will be taking up residence in their new home in the near future.

The first heavy frost of the season came on Saturday night.

The unusual mild weather has been much enjoyed by everyone.

Sympathy of this community is extended to Mr. Roy Johnston and other members of his family in the death of his mother Mrs. Millie Frances Johnston at her late home at Crookston on Saturday. The funeral took place on Saturday afternoon from the Grant Funeral Home in Belleville to White Lake United Church for service and interment in White Lake cemetery on Monday afternoon.

The Reverend Mr. Merrick of Selby who was the guest speaker at the anniversary services in Thomasburg United Church on Sunday spent the day with old friends in the village.

ALLAN'S MILLS

Allan's Mills. — A rousing charivari was rendered the newlyweds Mr. and Mrs. Harry Mumby on Friday evening.

CZECH OFFICER SAYS SIBERIAN EXILE FATE OF STALIN'S DAUGHTER'S LOVER

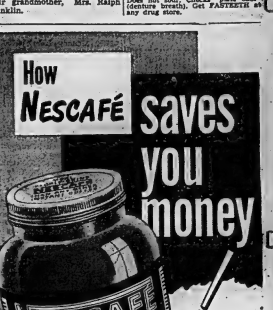
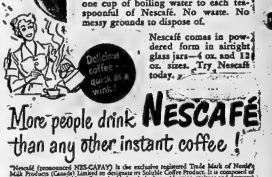
OUT OF ONE JAIL INTO ANOTHER



Ilse Koch, so-called "Witch of Buchenwald," is shown leaving Landsberg prison on her release after serving a four-year prison term for concentration camp atrocities. The smiling Ilse enjoyed only a brief period of freedom. She was promptly re-arrested by German authorities and faces trial before a German court on charges of murdering 25 Germans Jews. Her original life sentence was reduced to four years when occupation authorities, reviewing the case, decided that evidence in some of the charges, such as making lampshades out of the skin of concentration camp victims, was not conclusive.—Central Press Canadian.

FALSE TEETH That Loosen Need Not Embarrass



Many wearers of false teeth have suffered real embarrassment because their plate dropped, slipped or wobbled at just the wrong time! Do not live in fear of this happening to you. Just sprinkle a little FASTEETH, the alkaline (non-acid) powder on your plates. Holds false teeth more firmly. Does not sour. Checks "plate odor" (denture breath). Get FASTEETH at any drug store.

How NESCAFÉ Saves you money

Talk on Africa Features W.M.S. Rally at Madoc

The 75th Anniversary Sectional Rally of Madoc section of the Woman's Missionary Society of the United Church of Canada, was held in Trinity United Church, Madoc. The theme was "Growing with the Years", and about 75 women registered from out-of-town and the two sessions were most helpful and interesting.

Mrs. N. N. Broad presided both morning and afternoon, with the Presbyterial President, Mrs. A. Empey, also on the platform. After the opening exercises the Secretary, Mrs Geo. Wood, read the minutes of the previous Annual meeting and the President named Mesdames Geo. Young, Foster and Backburn a Courtesy Committee, with Mesdames H C. Barlow and S. Rollins a Resolutions Committee.

Mrs. Poulter, of Madoc, graciously welcomed the visitors and hoped the program would be an inspiration to everyone present. A member of the Cooper Auxiliary made a very suitable reply, Tweed Auxiliary conducted the Worship Service with Mrs. Elliott as leader and Mrs. Waco offering prayer. A solo by a Tweed member was much appreciated.

Officers Introduced

The officers and the guest speaker were introduced by Mrs. Empey. She welcomed Miss Broad, Sectional president, completing her first year in that capacity; Miss Carroll, Missionary Monthly and World Friends Secretary; Mrs. Elliott, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Bell, literature secretary; Mrs. Wood, secretary; Mrs. P. H. Naylor. Miss Millicent Howse the guest speaker and Mississippi also spoke briefly.

The roll call of auxiliaries and affiliated societies was an inspiration as one member from each of the different groups told briefly and concisely of the work accomplished during the first nine months of 1949. The reports from the junior organizations were particularly gratifying and the time and effort spent by the leaders and mothers of the young people will result in a group educated and willing to carry on the work of the Society.

A very pleasing duet was rendered by members from Tweed after which Mrs. Bell spoke, interestingly, of her department, "Literature". She urged the reading of the new study book, "Growing With the Years" as it dealt particularly with the work of the United Church since union.

Mrs. Naylor, in a unique way, placed candles on a beautiful birthday cake, which was inscribed "United Church of Canada 1925—1950", and which was cut and served at the close of the dinner.

Tells of Africa

Miss Howse then spoke for about three-quarters of an hour and her listners were thrilled by her message. She was born in Newfoundland, her father being a Methodist minister and from earliest childhood she was trained to be a Missionary. After graduating from University she went to Angola, Africa, where, after a few years she developed a serious case of eye trouble. She returned to America in 1945 to undergo treatments which fortunately effected a cure and she is planning to return to her work in Africa very soon.

In the most fascinating manner she told of the country, which although bordering on the equator, is 5,000 feet above sea level and the weather is cool compared with the temperatures in Canada and the States during July and August of this year. Strawberries grow abundantly 12 months of the year and oranges 10 months.

Disease affects practically every native African and their modes of living are most primitive—sod houses, of one room that the family, or several families, share with pigs and other livestock—a tiny fire for cooking their scanty meals and no under nourished children grow to adult life in conditions of uncleanliness that are hard to imagine.

Roads Being Built

The trails are being replaced by roads joining the numerous villages and where a few years ago the missionaries had to walk many miles to get from one church or school, through the missionary societies in this country, cars are provided and the work is more quickly and efficiently performed. The Christian church works in three ways: 1. Education is taught through the schools; 2. Health through the hospitals and 3. Spiritual work through the church. The work is carried on by native superintendents, ordained pastors, and deacons and deaconesses under the leadership of missionaries and trained workers.

The translating of the language presents many difficulties as many of the words in the English Bible have no meaning for the native African.

Miss Howse spoke again in the afternoon and in the course of her remarks spoke of the love of the people for music and how she would like to have a gramophone to take back, along with her movie projector and slides. The idea was greeted with enthusiasm and a special collection was taken which amounted to about $48 to go toward the gramophone.

Memorial Service

Marmora branch conducted the memorial service, seven members in this section having passed on during the year. They were Mrs. Herb. Bailey, of Madoc; Mrs. Earl Ferguson, Cooper and Rennington; Mrs. J. G. Blakely, the last charter member of Hazards, Mrs. Wm. Greig, Mrs. W. H. Sayers, Mrs. Robert Stewart and Miss Rebecca Purritt, all of Tweed. Mrs. Young acted as leader in the service with Mrs. Packard placing the flowers in the vases. Mrs. Prentice sang "Sunset and Evening Star", with Mrs. Barlow as accompanist.

Ivanhoe branch, with Mrs. Wood acting as leader, had a fine worship service and Mrs. Elliott spoke on the School for Leaders at Whitby. She stressed that the three letters W.M.S. stood for "We Must Serve". Mrs. O'Rourke, of Queensboro, had a very effective project on display and told of her work with the young people, assisted by their mothers, that was being done in her section.

The Resolutions and Courtesy Committees presented their reports, Marmora Branch invited the Rally to meet in their church in 1950. With the pronouncing of the benediction by Mrs. Poulter, the meeting was dismissed.

INJURED NEWSCASTER RETURNS HOME FROM TRIP TO TIBET

TYENDINAGA EAST W.I.

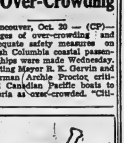
The October meeting of the Tyendinaga East W.I. was held last Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. F. Keyworth with a large attendance. The vice-president, Mrs. F. Hutchinson, opened the meeting. The roll call was answered by "Name an Educational Leader". The minutes and correspondence were read by the secretary, Miss Irene Mower. It was decided to apply for the legislative grant and to use the money to buy the book "Thunderbird" by Wallace Havelock Robb. It was also decided to send a "Care" parcel to the mother of one of the members who lives in Europe and to donate $5.00 to the blind. The members were divided into two groups, each one to make a quilt block to make some money. Mrs. E. Waddingham, and Mrs. R. Harvey were appointed as leaders of the groups.

The topic "Where Will Your Child Spend His Day", was given by Mrs. W. Hunter. Miss Geraldine Mowers had charge of the program. The following readings were given, "Music Appreciation in your children" by Mrs. C. J. Akey; "Agricultural Training in Ontario Schools" by Miss G. Mowers; "Snags and Snails in W. I. Work" by Mrs. H. A. Winter; "Why Chicago Fitted Mrs. Sawino" by Mrs. G. Provins.

Mrs. L. Gaylord gave a humorous reading, and Miss G. Mowers conducted an "Apple Contest" with Mrs. I. Hutchison being the winner.

After the meeting closed dainty refreshments were served by the hostess, and her committee, and a social hour was enjoyed by all.

Make Charges Of Over-Crowding



Vancouver, Oct. 20 — (CP) — Charges of over-crowding and inadequate safety measures on British Columbia coastal passenger ships were made Wednesday.

Acting Mayor R. K. Gervin and Alderman Archie Peterson criticized Canadian Pacific boats to Victoria as over-crowded. "Children are herded just like a bunch of cattle," said Ald. Proctor.

The T. L. C.-Affiliated Vancouver and District Trades and Labor Council said they will ask amendments to the Canada Shipping Act to provide sprinkler systems on all passenger vessels.

No special line of ships was singled out by the delegates who said coastal vessels "are firetraps."

"You can't even get out of the portholes on some of them," a delegate said.

Black Boom

By Paul David Preston

The others all laughed a little in sudden gratitude and relaxation. Mrs. Mayfield said, "Oh Doctor!" and was shaking so that Dr. Watkins comforted her and made her sit in a rocking chair.

"I'll just give you a little something for your nerves, my dear", he said to the mother. "And I'll stay here a few hours myself until everything quiets down. There's nothing to worry about."

That implied dismissal in the sick room brought other matters to a head. For Martin Dr-le was at the bedside and Dallas Tower, whom he had tried to kill lingered a few steps away at the door.

Dallas, though, was first to take Dr. Watkins' dismissal. He had learned what he wanted to know anyway—Baby Doll's condition. And while he could be happy about that, he could only be miserable about the affair as before. He turned, came to word out, and paused in the hall to tell Jason Weems that Baby Doll would be all right. Then he walked slowly down the long hall again, alone. All at once Lillian ran out tiptoe to follow him.

"Dallas!" she called, quietly. "Wait Dallas."

He stopped inside the big glass door. Many people were still milling around outside, he noted. In fact the number of people seemed to have increased, and their rumble of voices bore that out.

"Dallas, I—you mustn't feel badly! Not you!"

He smiled wanly, in thanks.

"It wasn't your fault, Dal", Lillian went on. "But I know how you'd feel about it because you're that kind. And it's not fair! Not fair to you, Dal. Martin means well but he is very foolish. And—"

"Lillian, girl, you're certainly a seeing person! Thanks, more than I can say. But the fact remains, every time I come around the Mayfields, trouble starts! This is the worst yet. I butted in today. Meddling. Popping off with my mouth."

"No, Dal!"

For a long lingering moment they looked at each other there, Dal holding her hand, squeezing it a little. He smiled down at her slowly, tenderly.

"No, Dal", she repeated, whispering now. "You were not meddling. You were right! Right about—about the oil business, and progress, and the old giving way to the new. It has to be that way, always, doesn't it? Our sleepy, narrow little old town has just been shocked, Dal. We need patience, that is all. I thought your speech was grand."

Again there was a moment of silence. Then Dal said, "I don't understand you, Lillian. I mean, your—your attitude toward me. One minute you—see here, about that stupid drunken girl in the dance hall at Kilgore, I simply must make you understand that—"

"Oh Dal, no! Forget that. I was in a pet about nothing. Some times I think I'm as childish as Baby Doll, or worse."

"You aren't angry any more?" Dal Tower, strong and self-contained as he was, now was quietly choking with emotion. It was the first time Lillian had ever seen him so that it did things inside her.

Together they turned. Thad Monroe was approaching slowly. He started to speak but when he saw their faces and saw Dal holding her hand, he pretended to look out the glass door. Finally he did say, matter-of-factly, "I'm certainly happy to know Baby Doll isn't badly hurt. Too many things are happening. We must—must think of some way to help Martin now. He's going to be on a spot."

Two hours after the shooting on the Mayfield lawn as estimated 1,500 men were on the streets of Rangeville carrying weapons openly. Shot guns, rifles and belt pistols were visible. And everywhere there was heated talk.

The sheriff and his lone deputy it developed, had been called away off to a far corner of the county where somebody had hijacked a wealthy oil lawyer to steal his money and his car. Mayor Scott here in town tried to keep matters in hand. He rode and walked along the streets asking people to calm down and go home about their affairs, and two or three other men tried to help him in this. On the whole, though, these few accomplished little.

When more sedate men, including members of the new Guardianship Society, tried to go in their stores or offices or homes and behave themselves, they saw newly arrived oil men outside with guns in hand. Natural reaction was to take down one's own gun, as a measure of preparedness. Next natural reaction was to go outside seeking friends for added strength. That brought both factions out in the open.

All manner of unreasonable suspicions and accusations began to be voiced, human nature being what it is. Vehement talk could be started on the slightest provocation. Old complaints that had no part whatsoever in today's excitement on the Mayfield lawn were aired again now.

"Thing to do", one hot-head orated in a crowd, "is gang up and tell these damned oil shysters get the hell out and stay out! We can run this town and this county. If there's oil money here, we want it and we deserve it!"

"Yea-a-a-a!" somebody shouted.

Then and there a mob fight almost started. Only the presence of Mayor Scott and two henchmen prevented it. They had their hands full.

The sheriff had been called by telephone but he hadn't arrived. By late afternoon the riot news had swept through the oil field, and immediately roustabouts and even executives out there had quit work, picked up any available weapons and hastened in to town. Rumor told them that they were to be attacked and driven out by force. They were instantly clannish.

Thad Monroe and Dal Tower had left the Mayfield home together. When they sensed the trend of things they rode around a bit in Thad's new car. Twice they were accosted by "friends" who swore they were "backing you to the limit, Doc" and that the only sensible course of action was to swing up any man who would shoot a girl.

Thad was greatly alarmed. "You are newer than I am here, Tower," said he. "I know these oil fielders. There's hot headed men enough to do a lynching about just so foolish a thing! They'd hang Martin on the slightest chance tonight!"

"I do. Or shoot him. A lot of scum come in here, as well as a lot of good people. It's the scum I'm seeing now. They go crazy. They'll do anything. Matter of fact, Tower, you won't be so safe yourself tonight. You championed one side, you know."

"I'll drop you back at your car. You take my advice and lay low, and I'll go back to Martin and rid herd on him best I can. Lordy, but things have gone to pot!"

The county sheriff reached town about 8 p.m. He drove around the streets for 10 minutes then went straight to a telephone and called long distance.

"I want the governor at Austin, ma'am", said he, "and hurry all you can."

"The governor of Texas, sir!" "That's right."

He had the governor in a bare two minutes, and he outlined the local situation in some terse words. The governor was deeply disturbed.

"You want maybe two, eh sheriff?"

"Well sir, I hate to ask for more one, but things look black."

"I'll send two. Phone me again at breakfast."

At a little before 8 p.m. a chartered plane dropped down on the new Rangeville-airport. Out two large, rather quiet Texans stepped off. Each wore ordinary business clothes, western cut including a characteristic ranch style hat. They nodded to the men at the airport and hired the first car in sight, ordering it to be taken straight to town.

They halted in the Public Square, West street entrance, and looked briefly with three or four men as they looked over the several hundred people visible in this plaza.

"You go left. I'll go right. We'll work toward that drugstore —Hightower's the sign says, yonder on the far corner. Half an hour maybe."

They separated and the man named Ed came immediately to a group of 18 or 20 men in front of a small cafe. They were arguing hotly. Ed allowed his coat to swing back, revealing a star badge.

"Gentlemen!" he said, impressively.

They turned to gawp at him.

"Texas Rangers are now in charge of this town, gentlemen. I am one of them. There'll be no more trouble, and the streets must be cleared at once. Unload your guns, please. Now."

"Nobody moved. A fellow near him, a 25-year-old who had perhaps a week's growth of whiskers, and who held a repeating rifle in hand, scowled and said "You can go straight to hell!"

Nobody quite saw the next action in detail. At least nobody could remember it afterward. But in a split instant the angry young man was flat on the sidewalk and the Ranger was holding his rifle. There had been one lightning-like fist blow.

Quickly he, the Ranger emptied the rifle magazine and gave it back to the man who was still sitting motionless on his hold back both sides of his coat, then stood with squared legs facing all of them.

YOUNG FOLKS CLUB VOTED 2 TO 1 FOR HEINZ SOUP

'N COMPARISON WITH WELL-KNOWN BRAND

A taste-test carried out as part of the refreshments served at a young people's club recently resulted in a 2 to 1 preference for Heinz Condensed Vegetable Soup after comparison with another popular brand.

A mixed group of young men and women were served two bowls of hot soup without knowing the brands they were tasting. Below is a record of the favorable comments on four different qualities registered by those who preferred Heinz.

	Women	Men
Appearance:	98%	68%
Flavour:	100%	93%
Seasoning:	72%	66%
Consistency:	68%	75%

Many of those participating added such compliments as: "Better than any canned soup I ever tasted". . . "Much superior". . . "Flavour more like homemade." A versifier among the men wrote: "3 bowls a day would be OK."

SAYS ARMY PLANS U.S. MARINES' DOOM

General Clifton Cates, U.S. marine corps commandant, is shown as he took the witness stand before the armed services committee in Washington in defence of the leathernecks. The general charged that a "top secret" plan, approved by the defence department, would destroy the marine corps as a fighting force and relegate it to a mere policing role in any future conflict. General Cates also named General J. Lawton Collins, army chief of staff, as author of a plan to transfer the marine corps aviation to the air force and assign all amphibious warfare to the army.

Canadiens Extend Front-Running N.H.L. Margin by Beating Leafs; Detroit and Boston Post Wins

By JACK MITCHELL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Big Bill Durnan is unfair to National Hockey League forwards, not to mention fellow-members of the craft.

The 24-year-old goaltender, best in the big-time in five of his six seasons, apparently is headed for another great year. He was Montreal's standout performer as the Canadiens beat the Maple Leafs 3-1 in Toronto Wednesday night.

The one goal allowed by the 190-pound native of Toronto means he has given up a meagre total of two in the Habitants' three starts.

The victory widened Canadiens first-place margin and humbled the Stanley Cup champion Leafs into a tie for third in the six-team league.

Detroit Red Wings hopped over Toronto into second position by swamping New York Rangers 6-1 before a 9,507 crowd in Detroit's Olympia. Boston Bruins tied Toronto for third with a 7-4 victory over Chicago Black Hawks as they made their old goalie, Frank Brimsek, eat rubber before a crowd of 10,522 at Boston Garden.

The Hawks and the Rangers still are tied for last place, each with only one point on a draw in three starts.

Durnan treated a Toronto Maple Leafs Gardens crowd of 13,645 to an exhibition of goal-tending at its best.

Poured 34 Shots at Durnan

Leafs poured 34 shots at Durnan and the only one that beat him was captain Ted Kennedy's close-in drive at 7.33 of the second session. The Canadiens had opened the period on an unassisted goal by Grant (Knobby) Warwick, Ranger expatriate, and made it 2-1 on centre Elmer Lach's tally midway through the same session. Joe Carveth iced the match by beating Walter (Turk) Broda again in the third.

Paul Runge, the blonde Bostonian, jumped into first place among the league's individual scorers by leading Bruins to their rout of Chicago's Hawks. The centre scored a goal and added two assists to bring his season's sharpshooting to three goals and three assists.

Besides Runge, the Bogion goals were scored by Mr. Sandford, Dave Creighton, Johnny Peirson, Kenny Smith, Woody Dumart and Bill Harrison. Jim Conacher scored twice for Chicago. Defenceman Bill Cowley and Doug Bentley fired the others. Gadsby also picked up an assist.

Big Line to Fore

The first period was scoreless and Chicago got back one Boston goal before the Bruins opened up on Sandford's tally after 18 minutes of the second period. Dumart, the usually even-tempered Bruin, drew a major for a fight with Doug McCaig during the opening period.

Sionsone else besides George Gee got into the Detroit scoring act as the Wings blasted Rangers. The centre who hitherto had scored all Detroit's goals —three in two starts—didn't even get a scoring point on their six tallies.

Detroit's Lindsay-Howe-Abel line were the big guns, figuring in four goals. Ted Lindsay led the lot with two and earned an assist.

Football Player Files Damage Suit Against Loop

It was almost certain to happen. The word is that football is due for a court case parallel to the much-publicized suit this year against organized baseball in the United States by Danny Gardella, Max Lanier and Fred Martin.

The principal concerned is Bill Radovich, 205-pound lineman with Edmonton Eskimos of the Western Canada Interprovincial Union. He has instructed lawyers, according to advice from the Alberta capital, to file a $100,000 damage suit against the National Football League and Detroit Lions.

Radovich played with Los Angeles Dons of the American Conference last year because, he claims, Detroit refused to release him from a contract with them and also because they didn't say among the league's individual season. Playing for the Dons, he "jumped" the N. F. L. and his contract with Lions, incurring a ban against his playing, or coaching, in the N. F. L. or any of F.I.L.-affiliated league.

Radovich told our Edmonton spies that the Detroit club, not taking up the option on his services before Aug. 30, 1940, forced him out of a job and left only one course open: jump the league and play with the Dons.

Radovich, who has played nearly 60 minutes in every Eskimo game this year, says the case will go before a Los Angeles court.

Gardella and Lanier and Martin were suspended from organized ball in the U. S. because they "jumped" National League clubs to play in Mexico three years ago. They were reinstated this summer and all dropped their suits.

And Now, Stuke

Word from Edmonton also is that Annis Stukus, Eskimo coach and former Toronto newspaper man, will write sports for an Edmonton newspaper (the Bulletin) when the Western Canada Football Union closes its regular schedule the end of the month.

Poker — playing Stuke must like the Edmonton air, or maybe he has the inside track on the 1950 Eskimo coaching job. Club directors haven't publicly stated their plans yet.

Rickey Ready To Trade Fielder For Good Hurler

Rickey and Fred Saigh, owner of the St. Louis Cardinals, held a 90-minute conference Tuesday.

It also was learned that Gene Hermanski, Brooklyn's lethanded hitting outfielder, and George (Red) Munger, St. Louis' right-handed pitcher, were among the names discussed.

"Our prime need is a front-line pitcher," Rickey told a press conference. "I am willing to trade one of my eight outfielders for such a man. I think there is a chance for such a trade.

Sid Abel scored one and had two assists and Howe collected one and one. Pete Babando and Jim McFadden notched the other two.

Buffalo Bisons On Top Rung In Division

(By The Canadian Press)

Buffalo Bisons today are in undisputed possession of first place in the eastern division of the American Hockey League by virtue of their 4-0 victory over New Haven Ramblers Wednesday night.

Meanwhile in the western section, Pittsburgh Hornets share top billing with Cleveland Barons as the result of their 3-3 stand-off with Springfield Indians. The Barons were idle Wednesday.

Providence Reds defeated Cincinnati Mohawks 6-2 and Hershey Bears earned a 4-1 victory over St. Louis Flyers to round out the night's schedule.

Goal in Last Minute

At Springfield, a goal by Eric Pogue with only slightly more than a minute remaining in the game enabled Pittsburgh to draw with the Indians. Church Russell scored the other Hornet marker. Hugh Sloane and Billy Gooden tallied for Springfield.

20 minutes of the game but a goal by Jackie Hamilton at the 3:31 mark of the middle session put the Reds ahead to stay. Pete Kapusta and Harvey Fraser were the big guns for the winners with two goals apiece. Johnny Chad and Hamilton completed the Providence scoring. Two defencemen, Roger Leger and Bud MacPherson, scored for the Mohawks, who went down to their fourth loss in five games.

Gordie Bruce led the Bears to their victory against St. Louis with a pair of counters while Frank Mario and Mark Marquess tallied singletons. The four St. Louis goal came from the stick of Henry Backor.

Whipper Watson Safety Club Formed in City

A Belleville branch of the famous "Whipper" Billy Watson Safety Club has been formed here with an opening membership of thirty-five safety-minded youngsters.

The well-known wrestler, idol of Toronto and other wrestling community fandom, addressed a meeting of the youngsters here several weeks ago and the aftermath of his talk is the formation of the club.

Members will receive autographed photographs of Watson on the back of which is printed the rules of the club. In addition they will be presented with membership pins.

Membership is open to any boy in the city, and at the present rate of growth, its numbers should reach the 100 mark in the very near future. Potential members are requested to give their names to Gordon St. Louis, captain of the branch here or send them direct to the sports editor of his newspaper.

CORNER BRIDGE and FRONT STREETS

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By CHIEF O. CARVER, Sports Editor

Dick Fitzpatrick, fresh from the recent world series and the Yale-Columbia football match in N'York, gave out with a bit of startling information this morning.

That is the equivalent perhaps of our picking the ticket on the winner of the Derby; granting the correct number of beans in the jar or being named the overnight heir to a million bucks and an ancient estate in Scotland.

Finally we extracted by devious methods the whole story. It seems a team of actibaliers, which would not, by any stretch of the imagination be selected as the "team of the year" on the sport page most likely to succeed, or for that matter, potential successors to the now defunct Edmonton Grads.

They are known as the "Suds Slurpers", the "Foam Fusiliers" the "Draught Deliverers" or the "Ale Angels" all depending on which you prefer.

In any event, these mushball marvels, represented the Belleville branch of the Brewers Warehousemen Institute, and they are now by virtue of their diamond prowess, the proud possessors of the Murray Davis Trophy, a handsome mug emblematic of the district championship of the province composed of squads from this city, Oshawa, Kingston and Peterborough.

The trophy was donated by Mr. Murray Davis, who between mushball manoeuvres is the district manager of the Brewers' Warehouse Ltd., or whatever it is called. He presented it for annual competition to the boys, and incidentally Mr. Davis is no mean softballer himself when it come to the scratches.

The four teams battled it out and when the smoke of battle was over and semi-finals had been played, Belleville and Kingston were left to joust in the mushball amphitheatres of their respective cities for the honor, the glory and the silverware.

The teams squared off, left pathetic relatives to the next of-kin, hitched up their buckles and threw themselves into the fray. And the Davis-Fitzpatrick squadron emerged with the scalps of the Kingston foemen dangling from their collective belts.

But they had to go all out and win it the hard way.

At the end of the fifth semester they were tied for short end of an 8-1 score. With two innings to go to regulation time they faced the terrific deficit of seven runs. A heartbreaking appeal for courage, team management; the love of their Alma mammy and the terrific thing at stake inspired these sons of the suds to their greatest mushball effort. You guessed it. They went out to do or die and they "do'd". At least there were no corpses in the field of battle.

At the end of the seventh, the score was tied at 8-all and under the darkening skies the lads swept into overtime. At the end of the eighth semester the scores was 11-10 for the Davis Dare-devils. They won the trophy and all that went with it, including a celebration unsurpassed and the libidos bubble.

Mr. Davis presented the mug to his own team, which incidentally he skilled materially before he strode to the dais and became a trophy hoister via the hard-fought up-hill battle.

RUGGED RUGGER, YOU?

There was a torrid battle of pigskin-punters played on the gridiron-less softball diamond yesterday afternoon when the school "has-beens" master-minded by invited pupils-present and present-pupils-invited took on the ever and present school team. Fitz and pinard his make-up team to a 17-3 victory over the school team. And he was aided in no small way by rugbeard Gary Schreiber of St. Mike Juniors, who did a neat job of receiving while on the dead gallop and surrounded by lowering school detectives.

* * *

It was no powder-puff brawl, and there was a morgue-like silence in the stands. Hundreds of spectators most of them knowingers nibblers with the odd member of the faculty standing around to add a touch of dignity to the proceedings. The old school spirit was missing. When Fitz hurled a forty yard flip to Garry who merely stepped across the line for the make-point he scored a touch. If it had it would have sounded deafening. Reminded one of the "dash old days" at Lords when Edmund took on "The Lot" and Fry, Mathews and brilliant cricket player elicited a mild clapping of the paddles and a "Bravo, old boy, well-played Sir."

* * *

The former Red Granger and Sid Luckman told no sympathy for the current crop of gridiron greatness. Nor did the current crop take their bumps without handing out a few choice chops to the chops and hoods to the noggins. In fact in the dying minutes two of the lads dropped their figurative shovels and enjoyed a spot of fisticuffs, of which we remitted a rosy chastisement from Referee Townsend, who did everything but throw forward passes. In fact the only thing "Red" Skrew, were the two pugilistic participants out of the game with the gentle but firm admonishment. "You can play or I'll fight. And since you're not playing anymore I'm cut out of the field and fight. I don't give a hoot what you do."

* * *

There was some rough play at times with occasional spots of good football. Both teams tackled hard and often, and if a ball-carrier couldn't get through he was forcibly down Field on his upholstered terms, he was sunk, there and thru. Even Field running was conspicuous by its absence due to the rarred defence of both teams. The aerial offensive were good with Fitzpatrick standing out with his bullet-like drives down Field.

WEE . . . THE . . . NAUGHTY, NAUGHTY, PETERBOROUGH C.I.

According to the public prints, the Peterborough Collegiate Institute football seniors are being handed the knife and the heave-ho, and such men have been invited to the Toronto Red Feather Football Tournament this weekend. Coach "Red" Townsend states that the Petes have not yet met their match of Quinte champions and due to this fact cannot be classed as COSSA winners. So what goes on here?

Teepees Pull Into Second-Place Tie With Oshawa

(By the Canadian Press)

It's go early yet in the Ontario Hockey Association junior race that anything can happen, but St. Catharines Teepees and Barrie Flyers have shown they will bear watching in the lengthy jockeying for playoff berths.

Teepees Wednesday night hung up their third victory in three starts, hammering out an 8-6 margin over Windsor Spitfires. The victory pulled the Teepees into a second-place deadlock with Oshawa Generals.

At the game time, Barrie Flyers scored their second triumph of the season. The hard-fighting Flyers, who reached the Eastern Canada junior finals last year, stopped Stratford Kroehlers 4-3 in Stratford Centennial Ice Rink.

There were no O. H. A. senior games scheduled last night. No games, junior or senior, are scheduled for tonight. Friday's hockey bill sends Kitchener - Waterloo Flying Dutchmen up against Toronto's senior Marlboros, while in the junior section Windsor meets Guelph, junior Marlboros go to St. Catharines, Ball plays Stratford and Oshawa tackles Barrie.

Heartbreaker to Loss

The game with St. Catharines was a heartbreaker for Windsor to lose, especially with a Windsor crowd of 3,500 persons watching the hometowners open operations. Goalie Stanklewicz turned in a five-goal performance, but even that wasn't good enough to check the visitors' victory march.

Taking an advantage of an edge in passing attack and in ability to break out of its own end, St. Catharines took a 3-2 lead in the first period, made it 5-3 in the second and added three goals early in the final period. Windsor tried to rally in the closing minutes with the speedy Stanklewicz potting two goals 12 seconds apart, but the flurry stopped there.

For Teepees, Obbie O'Brien, Mel Mullen and George Sullivan scored two goals each. Jerry Brickey White and Gord Byers tallied the others. Windsor's sixth goal was scored by John Bailey.

Three Without Hoyle

Cousin Bobcale scored for Barrie and Jimmie Pernfuss for Stratford in the first period of the match at Stratford. Then Barrie's Stan Long, Rick Hogg and Red McCarthy scored in the second without reply from Stratford and decided the issue. Doug Williams tallied for Stratford midway through the final period when Jarvis appeared to tire.

The loss was the second for Stratford in the first three starts. Flyers started out well by defeating Oshawa Generals 4-3. But, in a return game, Generals ran up a 5-1 victory at Stratford's expense.

BIG SEVEN

(By the Canadian Press)

Paul Rooky of Boston Bruins scored out in front of the National Hockey League scoring race with three goals and three assists for a six-point total. He stepped up from second place Wednesday by tallying a goal and two assists. Sid Smith, Toronto, Ted Lindsay, Detroit and Gaye Stewart, Toronto are in a three-way split for second place with five points each. Smith, Boston, Fleming Mackell, Toronto, and Sid Abel, Detroit, were grouped in the next position with four points.

The leaders:

	G	A	Pts
Rooky, Boston	3	3	6
S. Smith, Toronto	3	2	5
Lindsay, Detroit	3	2	5
Peirson, Boston	1	4	5
K. Smith, Boston	2	3	5

Sport Shorts From Britain

By SHAUN McQUILLAN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Oct. 21 — (CP)—"Algar Smith, take 12 months' hard labor."

Shock - headed, 18-year-old Algar, a plasterer's apprentice from Bexley Newington, burst into sobbing when he heard he was facing the prospect of being separated from his wife.

A short time ago, young Algar, 1949 Amateur Boxing Association lightweight champion, stepped into Harringay ring for his first professional fight. He left second later leaving Billy Jones of Bow wondering what hit him.

Half the ringsiders sat popeyed. The ring-wise other half sat smugly — they'd seen him do it before, as an amateur.

The question will be Burns' campaign of a dozen fights for him is as near a month.

"Boy, what a sweetheart that Smith kid is. The greatest natural of all time. He's got every thing. What wouldn't I give to show him in New York!

"He'd be a sensation at the Garden. Throws punches like the old timers. Best thing I've seen in England. Looks like Gene Tonzer when he was a little guy. There must be such some where."

Bannister, a probable for England at the Empire Games at Auckland next February, is training for the Olympic 1,500 metres at Helsinki in 1952. It's the history of another Oxonian, Jack Lovelock, all over again. Lovelock trained to a schedule for four years before winning the 1936 Olympic 1,500 metres in Berlin.

A United States coach recently said Bannister might even accomplish the four-minute mile.

It's a boy for Maureen Gardner, holder of the British record for feminine track-and-field firmament.

Maureen crashed world headlines in the 1948 Olympics when she ran the 80-metres hurdles so close behind the Dutch flash, Mrs. Fanny Blankers-Koen, that each was credited with a mid-air world mark of 11.2 "seconds for the course.

Maureen, married to her track coach, Harold Dyson, hopes to be back in training by November, and might yet make the United Kingdom team for the Empire Games in New Zealand.

Quebec Outlaw Baseball Loop May be Admitted

(By The Canadian Press)

The Provincial Baseball League, outlaw organization that between 500 and 600 players have by-passed outcasts from organized ball, wants to join the accepted fold at the close of circuit.

President Albert Molini said at Montreal Wednesday that application has been made for his six-team league to enter organized baseball and that all clubs are in favor of the move.

Molini has had much correspondence with George M. Trautman, head of the association of minor league clubs, and will attend the association's annual gathering in Baltimore December 5.

Molini said his league can meet all requirements as a class C circuit.

He said a $1 class salary limit and $21,000 to $22,000 would compare with $65,000 to $80,000 spent by his clubs in salaries last season. All clubs went in the red "but they can take it."

The big name players who went to the league were among those suspended from organized baseball for jumping to the Mexican League. There were such name players as Max Lanier, Sal Maglie, Danny Gardella and Alex Carrasquel.

The gridiron future of Tony Golab, ace plunging star of the Ottawa Rough Riders, remained in doubt today.

The big backfield star is under the care of Capt. Harry R.C.A.F. station Rockcliffe where he is stationed, with the rank of Flight Lieutenant. He presently is on sick leave.

Golab's absence at the station said Wednesday night that it would be impossible to tell how Tony's leg is mending until the cast is removed. The cast, extending from the ankle to the hip, will be removed after Golab returns from leave.

Doctors said there was a "possibility" the big fullback would be able to return to the Rough Riders lineup late in the fall. It would all depend on how the leg mended.

Jack Conahow, who piloted Chicago White Sox to fifth place in the American League race last season, will manage the club next season.

Charles A. Comiskey, vice-president of the club, Wednesday at Chicago made this announcement spiking rumors that the 63-year-old Conahow would be replaced even though his contract had another year to run.

Although the White Sox finished 34 games behind the pennant-winning New York Yankees, the team's 63-91 record was good enough to clinch sixth place.

The Buffalo Courier-Express said Wednesday night that Paul Richards has submitted his resignation as manager of Buffalo Bisons of the International Baseball League.

Richards confirmed local reports of his resignation when he was reached by telephone at his home in Waxahachie, Tex. Club officials at Buffalo refused comment.

This year Richards led the Bisons to their first International League pennant in 13 seasons, although the Bisons bowed to Montreal in the playoffs He has been mentioned as possible candidate for several other jobs, including coach with Philadelphia Athletics.

Establishment of a new organization to control thoroughbred horse racing in Ontario was urged Wednesday night at Toronto in a resolution adopted by the Hunter's Benevolent Protective Association. The present controlling body is the Incorporated Canadian Racing Associations.

The resolution called for equal representation from racetrack owners and horsemen members of the H.P.A. with an independent chairman elected by a majority vote of the members. It proposed new governing body.

A. W. Pickard, President of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, said Regina Wednesday night he has received an official protest concerning the transfer of Bronco Horvath from Royals players to Montreal Nationale but he isn't ready to comment on it.

The protest came from Frank Byrne, president of Montreal Royals, Nationales and Citadels are teams of the Quebec Amateur Hockey Association.

Mr. Pickard said he planned to get in touch with the QAHA for information about the case.

Montreal Caledonia Curling Club Wednesday announced an invitation 150-rink national bonspiel Nov. 28-30 to commemorate the club's centenary.

Competing teams will represent 32 clubs from Quebec, Ontario, New Brunswick, Nova Scotia, Prince Edward Island, Newfoundland and the eastern United States.

Toronto's Alan McFater won a five round decision over Danny Saunders of Hamilton in a 145-pound bout on an amateur boxing card at Hamilton Wednesday night. In another feature, a 10-round match between 135-pounders, Chick Hogan of Hamilton won a decision over Doug Brunsesu of Guelph

ALL PLAYER DROWNED

Alton, N.H., Oct. 20 — (CP)— Raymond L. Brehm, 30-year-old baseball pitcher, was drowned Wednesday in Gilman Pond near here while swimming to shore to get aid for two companions clinging to their overturned boat.

Brehm played with Osceola in the Canadian-American League in the 1949 season and the year before was with Auburn of the border league.

His companions—Harold Chapman, 22, and Clifford Henderson, 22—said their boat overturned about 75 yards from shore while they were fishing.

Chapman and Henderson were rescued.

Get the hang of defensive bids. Starting with the strongest they follow this order: Overcall in opponent suit, jump overcall, double for takeout, simple overcall.

Simple overcall shows five or more tricks, among which are at least two high cards, of which at least one is a sure trick. The bid suit should have no less than five cards.

Double for takeout shows a hand as good as an opening one bid. This means at least five tricks, among which are at least four highs, of which at least two are sures. No biddable suit is needed.

Jump overcall promises exactly eight tricks, of almost any kind. The bid suit is at least rebiddable. It is not forcing to game; asks partner to bid only if he has two or more tricks.

Overcall in opponent suit guarantees nine tricks; with no losers in the opponent bid suit. No losers means a void or singleton. It alone. Or the ace and king of the opponent suit.

What if you have some ingredient missing from the needs of any bid listed above? Simply resort to the bid that is immediately below it in the order of preference.

♠A K Q 10 8 6
♦7

But hold everything. An overcall in opponent suit says no losers in that suit. And this west hand has a possible loser in hearts. So, it should not overcall in opponent suit with two hearts.

Then what should it bid? Two spades; a jump overcall; the next lower bid in the order of choice. True it has more in one suit than it is not less in any.

Better be ensured with more than less that will make partner sore.

B.C.I. Old Boys Defeat Seniors By 16-8 Score

By DON ROSE

The Collegiate campus witnessed something different in rugby yesterday. The seniors played host to ex-collegiate fellows who still enjoy the game. In the exhibition D. Fitzpatrick, G. Schrieder, T. Schrieder and B. Pappas starred for the "so-called" Old Boys while D. Dorian, J. McBride, A. Galbraith and D. Walmsley made outstanding plays for the Collegiate. Homer Townsend and Bill Spafford handled the whistles. J. Burley, injured senior player, coached the Tricolor Seniors.

The Old Boys received the kickoff, but due to rushness made no advance. The boys never forgot how to block though because they held the more active Seniors for the first quarter. Two interceptions were made by Pappas and D. Robinson but the old timers couldn't get going.

The second quarter proved more active. Galbraith kicked a long one, 30 yards, over the dead line for the Collegiate's first point. The Seniors clicked again with a 30-yard aerial pass from McBride, quarterback, to Dorian, and the convert was good with Walmsley and McBride on an end run. This spurt of action made the Old Boys think. Fitzpatrick bullet passed to G. Schrieder, but the convert failed. Score at half B.C.I. 7 Old Boys 3.

Old Boys Take Lead

Galbraith kicked for a single at the beginning of the third quarter. Fair and clean play followed, but the lull was broken when Fitzpatrick passed to A. Wright for a major. T. Schrieder bucked through for the convert. Old Boys 11, B.C.I. 7.

The fourth quarter was full of action with both teams fighting all the way. The older boys came through again with the Schrieder and Fitzpatrick pass combination. The convert was unsuccessful.

The game ended Old Boys 16, B.C.I. 8, and the rugby reunion ended very successfully and a doff of hats to the good sports. The teams:

B.C.I.—Reeves, McBride, Galbraith, Allen; flying wing, McMillen; quarter, Lacey; middles, Moore, Locke; insides, Buchanan, snap; outsides Coughlin, Jacener; ends, Walmsley, Massey, Ewald, Erwin, Culbertson, Green McPherson, Brown, Rose, Dorian, Smith, Maser, Varley.

Old Boys—Flashes—Young, Fitzpatrick, G. and T. Schrieder; Dudley, Pappas, Arnott, F. and A. Carmichael, Spiegel, Rollins, Salisbury, Cooper, Green, Hogan, Wright, Lazenby, O'Hara, Ketcheson and Carr.

Officials: "Red" Townsend, Spafford and Davis.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Oct. 20 — (AP) — Humphrey Bogart, veteran of "The Battle of the Pandas," is back in Hollywood with no bitterness about the big-town battleground.

"Me bitter about New York? Nonsense!" he snorted. "I'll be going back there as soon as I finish my picture and Betty (Lauren Bacall) finishes here."

The movie mug and animal lover has just returned after a nitery skirmish. There were reports that he was being silent about his teapot-tempest with the glamor girl over possession of two giant Panda dolls.

But when I found him testing make-up and hair for "In a lonely Place," there was no indication he had clammed. In fact, it was Bogart on the half-shell. Verbally, I mean.

Great Town

"New York's a great town to knock around," he commented. "It bends but it doesn't break. It's the best fun town in the world. I don't know why anybody would go to Europe when they can get more enjoyment right in New York."

He, expressed admiration for a New Yorker acquaintance who has the right idea for a vacation: He spends almost his entire two weeks within the confines of 21, the Gotham watering place.

Bogart spoke nostalgically of the brief trial in which he was cleared of assault charges. The judge was "a nice guy — the Frank Morgan type." As for the actor's accuser, "he claimed all he wanted to do was pinch my panda—that's a laugh!"

McCARTHY—STIRRING UP TROUBLE. In this dramatic scene from Stanley Kramer's "Home of the Brave", now playing at the McCarthy Theatre, Gi Steve Brodie has a perpetual grips on because of the presence of the Negro (James Edwards) on a dangerous mission in the South Seas. His companions, Frank Lovejoy, Douglas Dick and Lloyd Bridges, cannot change his intolerant way of thinking.

THE FIRST
MOTION PICTURE OF ITS KIND!
"HOME OF THE BRAVE"
is about...

The Hayes: Young, still wet behind the ears. Bet a lot water around the cabins, from too many invasions!

Finch: A plain Joe—and a great one . . . who was what we—his fellow fighters—are, I also found out later!

The Corporal: ex-postoffice counter-jumper who knew teamwork . . . and knew it!

Moxey: He could—and did!—do anything any of the others could do, 75 percent say, "They're little brothers!"

Answer to Yesterday's Puzzle:

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop was reeding his paper and ma was reeding hers saying Oh dear I wish they'd stop talking about war and the possibilities of it. I wonder if fighting ever really did any good. William? she said.

I dunno it, although there never was a war that both sides didn't claim was for a good cause and in the intrists of peace, pop said, and ma said, How ridiculus.

Well why is it, ma? I said. There was a fite between Sid Hunt and Glasses Magee in Sherry Judge's garage this afternoon, and it really was in a good cause and for the intrists of peace, I said, and ma said, Now that's ridiculus.

No it aint, ma, and I can prove it, I said. Sid and Glasses weren't speeking to each other on account of a argument, so Sid claimed he wasn't going to invite Glasses to his berthday party, and Glasses claimed he wouldn't go even if he got a invitation in gold letters on a silver tray. But the other fellows want Glasses to get invited on account of him being sutch a funny guy at a party and besides we want him to bring his game of darts. So we staged a fite between them I said.

You did what for Peet sake! pop said, and I said, We talked the misto challenging each other to a fite a other'r make up at the end of it and be frends again, and Sherry Judge offered the use of his garage for nootral territory. But it turned into sutch a fierce fite we were afraid it'd never make up so we broke it up in the middle whn they were both glad to stop without admiting it, and they shook hands, and now Glasses is going to get a invitation to Sid's party, I said.

Well for land sakes, ma said, and pop said, Oh to be a boy again just for 10 years.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By GERALD PRATT
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Vancouver, Oct. 20.—(CP)—There is nothing the matter with tournament golf that a few more Pork Chops won't fix.

That's no apple sauce, says Eric (Vancouver Province) Whitehead in referring to Ed (Porky) Oliver, otherwise known as Pork Chop and late of the U.S. pro golf gold trail.

Oliver didn't make much money while at the races in the British Columbia Open, but in or out of the money he did golf a lot of good, says Eric. What tournament golf lacks, Porky has—color and showmanship. The fat man puts on an act, kicks up his heels, and the fans love it, says Whitehead.

"Get our local pros to relax and put the fans at ease and more folks would gamble a hard earned buck on being entertained, rather than being given a lesson in grim determination."

Easy Money Game

The easy money days for Vancouver sports promoters are over concludes Jim (Vancouver Sun) Kearney. Hockey promoters are getting used to the sight of empty seats.

Kearney quotes local ticket vendors as saying the money is "just not around any more."

The cure is a winning team but the unfortunate part of this says Kearney, is that not every one can win—at least not at the same time.

Darling

Walt (Vancouver News-Herald) Marlow says "Vancouver's curling future looks good." The new Vancouver Curling Club's long-range program should develop some of the finest curlers in Canada within the next few years", he says.

"With 80 high-school students being admitted free on Saturdays and a yearly B.C. junior championship planned, Marlow thinks there may eventually develop a big following for the sport.

"Catching the kids at an early age is bound to do something."

Sport Shorts From Britain

By MICHAEL O'MARA
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London—(CP)—Not only rival racehorse owners but rival politicians are getting a bit wearied by the successes of Winston Churchill.

The war-time prime minister's first colt, a French-bred three-year-old named Colonist II, won his first race at Ascot in the Churchill colors. Queries the Liberal News Chronicle:

"Did the ... cry on the race course: 'We want you back' echo in a spectral way through the corridors of Downing Street? Are the Labor chiefs, now engaged in casting the horoscope of the next election, asking each other anxiously: 'How far is this going? Suppose he wins the Derby?'"

"Election strategy might indeed dictate counter-action. The vision of (Prime Minister) Attlee modestly leading in a winner dropped, of course, in red rosettes has its charm."

The newspaper noted that "one of the odd things about the British is the affection which they show for a statesman when he takes to the turf", but, by way of comfort to its readers, recalled the case of the late Lord Rosebery:

"He won the Derby twice running when he was prime minister, and thereby acquired a popularity that his brilliant oratory and intellectual gifts had never achieved for him.

"Yet this did not prevent Rosebery's government from sustaining crushing defeat at the general election—which came 1895.

In his first over a bowler was no-balled three times. Said he apologetically:

Said the umpire with equal nonchalance:

"Neither have I umpired."

U. of T. Winner Of Track Meet Held at London

London, Ont., Oct 20 (CP)—University of Toronto is the winner of the 42nd annual intercollegiate track meet with McGill as the runner-up.

The fight Wednesday for the championship was a nip and tuck battle all the way. The final tally: Toronto 60 points, McGill 58.

In third place was London's own University of Western Ontario, with 38 points. In last position was Queen's University of Kingston, Ont., with eight.

Toronto and Montreal sent trim, well-balanced squads that put them well in front of the others in point scoring. Western's athletes turned in good individual performances but fell short of the all-round ability of the Varsity Blues and the McGill freshmen.

The final positions were undecided until the last race was over. McGill hopes were pinned on its second place in the mile relay, a race won by Western. A disputed point in the 220 low hurdles deprived McGill of another second and three valuable point, with Ivan Livingstone of the Montreal team being disqualified for knocking down three hurdles.

Two records were set in field events. Bill Farlinger of Toronto jumped 12 feet 8¼ inches to beat the old mark by one-quarter of an inch. Bob Bartlett of McGill was the second record-breaker, tossing the shot 44 feet 7¾ inches.

McGill's Jim Kyte won both the javelin throw and the high jump. In the high jump, Dave Blair holder of the record for McGill and for all Canada, came second. Kyte leaped an even six feet, compared with Blair's old mark of wbx feet 4½ inches.

Success Story Written in Midst Of Bad Smell

By MICHAEL O'MARA
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Compstall, Lancashire, England, Oct. 20—(CP)—A success story is being written here—in the midst of one of the worst smells in England.

This village in the Pennine Foothills boasts the only water-driven cotton mill in the country. Thirty million gallons drawn daily from the river Ethrow turn the turbines which transmit power to the looms.

The snag is that the Ethrow receives the town sewage, the sewage from two other towns and the waste products from a glue factory and a chemical plant upriver from the mill.

Old inhabitants seem to regard thewmilling stench as bracing. A party of visiting Canadian reporters found it distinctly oppressive.

Scroll or no smell, however—workers and management here are proud of their plant which turns out some of Lancashire's best-grade cottons. About 25 per cent of the mill's output goes to Canada where it is made up into men's shirts by local haberdashery firms.

Quizzed as to the high price of British shirt materials in Canada, executives gave these replies:

Because of the dollar gap, it is necessary to buy in the Egyptian market—where the price has risen 700 per cent since 1939. British cotton-fabric prices have risen, meantime, only 223 per cent—the margin of profit remains the same.

Canadian retailers generally marked up British goods by around 60 per cent. Possibly with sterling devaluation the price of British shirts would drop substantially to the Canadian consumer.

Canadian consumption of the mill's output is on the increase. One yard in every four produced here still is Canada-labelled, meaning that next year Canada will buy nearly twice as many material-yards from Compstall as she did last year.

Stomach Out of Order, Had Many Aches and Pains

"I have just recently obtained such good results by taking Syntona herbal compound that I feel I should recommend this medicine to other sufferers," said Mr. Hayward Rowswell, Scotland, Ontario, a few days ago.

"For almost ten years I suffered with stomach disorders and became so bad I could hardly eat a meal without having awful distress with gas, sour acidity and indigestion afterwards. I would have heartburn very badly and a full, heavy feeling in my stomach. I had also terrible sick and dizzy headaches and aches and pains in all my limbs, joints and muscles. My back was lame and sore. I felt tired, rundown and couldn't get my proper sleep at night.

"I read in the paper about Syntona and although I had tried everything else I knew of without benefit, I decided to try this medicine.

"After I had taken a few bottles I noticed that I was having considerably less trouble with gas and sourness. My appetite began to pick up and I was enjoying my meals better. I was very encouraged and kept right on taking it. Now I am able to eat just anything and am free from stomach upsets and gas, and from headaches and dizzy spells. Also, the aches and pains and that easy, nervous feeling has calmed down so I am getting more sound, restful sleep and I am not tired as I was before.

"I am glad to have found this herbal medicine a chance to help you, too! It is pleasant to take and results are quickly felt.

Abbott Announces Minor Additions To 1949-50 Budget

Drops Fuel Oil Sales Tax, Extends Dividend Tax Rule

Budget Highlight

(By The Canadian Press)
Finance Minister Abbott re-introduces March 22, 1949-50 budget with three minor" additional tax reductions.

Eight-per-cent sales tax removed immediately on all fuel oils used for heating or lighting purposes.

Tax on older and other wines containing less than seven-per-cent of proof spirits reduced immediately from 50 to 25 cents a gallon.

Personal income tax credit of 10 per cent on common dividends extended to include all classes of shares, retroactive to Jan. 1, 1949.

New tax changes to reduce government revenue by $3,000,000.

All 1948-50 tax reductions expected to cut government revenues by $346,000,000 this current year and $387,000,000 in full year.

Government's final 1948-49 revenues totalled $2,771,000,000 and expenditures $2,178,000,000.

Revised estimate fixes 1949-50 revenues at $2,550,000,000 and expenditures at $2,460,000,000.

Surplus for 1949-50 expected to be "fairly close" to the March estimate of $87,000,000.

No change made in March personal income tax exemptions.

By D'ARCY O'DONNELL
(Of a Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Oct. 21.—(CP)—Three small tax reductions were added Thursday night by Finance Minister Abbott to his revised tax-slashing, pre-election budget of March 22.

Reintroducing in the Commons the 1949-50 budget, not passed before dissolution, he cancelled April 30 for the general election in June, Mr. Abbott announced:

1. Immediate elimination of the eight percent sales tax on all fuel oils used for heating or lighting purposes.

2. Holders of both common and preferred stock will be able to charge up to 10 percent of their dividends against personal income tax. In the earlier budget this concession was given only to common stock holders. The change will retroactive to Jan. 1, 1949.

3. A reduction immediately from 50 to 25 cents a gallon in the tax o ocider and other wines containing less than seven percent, of proof spirits.

The reduction will represent a saving of about $1,500,000 for tax payers in the current fiscal year, ending next March 31. The saving won't amount to more than $11,000,000 in a full year—a drop in the bucket compared with more than $300,000,000 that Mr. Abbott presented to the country in miscellaneous tax cuts in his original budget.

Those reductions, in effect since March and in some cases retroactive to the first of the year, affected gasoline and every Canadian home, particularly personal income tax payers.

Could Mean Drop of Cent

The only ones who will benefit to any noticeable extent from the three new changes are users of fuel oil for heating and lighting. Removal of the sales tax on

Mrs. Arthur Pitre Remains in Jail, Cannot Raise Bail

Quebec, Oct. 21—(CP)—Mrs. Arthur Pitre, 34, wife of the Sept. 9 bomb-crash of a commercial airliner at Sault au Cochon, remained in jail today, unable to post a $500 bond in exchange for her freedom.

Thursday she appeared at her preliminary hearing on a charge of attempting suicide. Judge Alphonse Caron set the $500 bail bond and ordered the accused to appear for voluntary statement, Oct. 26.

Charge of attempted suicide was laid against the 41-year-old woman after Mrs. Pitre's Pacific Airlines plane crashed killing 23. Persons on board at the time were Constau, Que., J. Albert Guay, a Quebec city jeweller, is now awaiting trial on a charge of murdering his wife, a passenger on the plane.

Mrs. Pitre, a friend of Guay's, was found in hospital in critical condition, police said, shortly after an investigation had started into the cause of the crash.

She told police in a statement that she placed a parcel aboard the plane. Mrs. Pitre said that Guay had asked her to deliver the parcel, while provincial police were alerted that a bomb had exploded while the plane was in the air, causing it to crash.

Mr. and Mrs. Marie Hurel testified Thursday that Mrs. Pitre told them that she had been visited Sept. 7 by Guay, who advised her to disappear or commit suicide and leave a note saying she was responsible for the crash of the airliner.

P.M. ADVOCATES RIGHT TO EXTEND HOUSE IN WAR

Government Accepts C.C.F. Amendment

Ottawa, Oct. 21 (CP)—Right of parliament to extend its life beyond the normal five years in the event of war was advocated Thursday by Prime Minister St Laurent.

The proposal was placed before the Commons during discussion of a government resolution asking the United Kingdom parliament to give Canada the right to amend the constitution on federal matters.

It was the one provision with which the government accepted a C.C.F. amendment. Sponsored by Stanley Knowles (C.C.F., Winnipeg North Centre), the amendment would withhold from parliament the right to amend the constitution in respect to the clause which sets out that an election writ shall be issued at least once every five years and that the session of parliament must be held once a year.

Mr. St. Laurent said the government approves of the amendment with the provision containing the "unless circumstances" was to retain the right to extend the life of parliament in case of war. Such extension, he said, would be done, however, only with the authority and majority approval of the members.

The C.C.F. and Liberals were on common ground on the question. The Progressive Conservative and Social Credit groups also has expressed approval of the government resolution on the same grounds.

Complaints and Suggested Reforms Will be Presented to Authorities

London, Ont., Oct. 21 (CP) — Ontario hospital officials were today told to report on any employees' list of complaints and suggested reforms, all arising from the fatal beating a week ago of a 63-year-old attendant by a mental patient who had not been regarded as violent.

One complaint at a mass meeting Thursday was that nurses and attendants no longer receive a daily ration of beer, which was declared necessary to ease the strain of their jobs.

Dr. A. Kinsman, director of reforms and better working conditions Ontario hospital services department, $5,000 insurance coverage and an adequate alarm system.

Attendant Charles Yelf was killed when beaten about the head by a 36-year-old male patient wielding a large rubber floor brush. An inquest has been ordered.

Speakers protested that while Yelf was in charge of a ward of 83 patients he was not getting "top pay," according to

Survivor Who Alleged Ship's Captain Drunk Night of Fire Declines an Offer to Testify

Toronto, Oct. 21.—(CP)—The boatswain

Noronic disaster inquiry was told today that a survivor who alleged the ship's master was drunk had declined an offer to testify before the federal government-appointed commission.

J. W. Pickup, commission counsel, said C. R. Willson of Cleveland had been invited to give evidence here but declined.

It was at an earlier inquiry in Cleveland that Mr. Willson charged Capt William Taylor was drunk. Other survivors said the captain was sober.

The counsel for Canada Steamship Lines, owners of the Noronic, said after Mr. Willson made his charge, instructions had been given to start suit for $250,000 against the person making the charge.

Evidence Nearly Complete

Capt Taylor in his evidence two weeks ago denied he was intoxicated and said he had taken only one small drink ashore.

Mr. Pickup's reference to the Cleveland survivor's charge was made after the inquiry had heard the evidence today of assistant purser H. G. Sheppley, the fifth witness.

The commission counsel said that apart from a few questions he wished to ask the ship's chief engineer, the Crown's evidence was complete.

However at the suggestion of Frank McWilliams, Q.C., counsel for the inquiry agreed to question Mr. Sheppley on behalf of the crew.

They were Lionel Fournier, valoer, and Robert Morrison the boatswain.

Recalled, engineer Frederick Boone I of Sarnia said to his knowledge nothing happened on the night of the fire which would have caused an interruption in the ship's electrical system.

No Explanation to Give

The engineer told Mr. Justice Kellock he had no explanation for a lessening in water pressure reported in the evidence of crew members using hoses to fight the fire.

Earlier, the witness had said there was plenty of steam to keep pressure going for three or four hours after the fire started.

Oller Fournier had testified he got good pressure from one hose which he dropped to do something else for a few minutes. When he picked up the hose again no water came out of it.

Fournier, Morrison and Wheelmen Ted Calder and Ted Sheppley, who were aboard ship but off duty, described their efforts to fight the fire and assist passengers ashore. Their testimony closely paralled Crown's account of evidence.

Sheppley was sternly rebuked by the Commissioner for using the expression "monkeying around" when describing how he ran fire hoses into cabins through windows.

"You shouldn't have said monkeying around," Mr. Justice Kellock said. "You're a serious witness. Now pull yourself together and go on."

Sheppley told the Commissioner he helped Capt. Taylor get passengers out of cabins. "We made three or four anyway," he said.

SIGN OF HOPE APPEARS IN SOFT-COAL TALKS

Federal Mediator Says Situation Better

(By the Associated Press)

A flicker of hope that a break may come in the United States steel strike appeared today.

The situation in the costly, 20-day steel strike, says Cyrus S. Ching, Federal Mediation Chief, "is hopefully better."

But, Ching said in a statement in New York Thursday night after conferences with U.S. steel corporations officials, "we do not want to create the impression that there is a basis for optimism."

Ching's hint of hope, coupled with a strong against optimism, followed earlier comment by President Truman that he has no present plans for intervening in the United States steel strike or coal strikes or for seizing either industry.

Ching's statement came as the continuing steel-coal tie-ups choked off more of the country's industrial activity and threw idle more than 1,000,000 workers.

Federal conciliation and mediation officials planned to meet again with representatives of "Big Steel". They hope to get the steel companies and C.I.O. United Steelworkers to resume negotiations and attempt to settle their dispute without a strike.

There was some progress in the soft-coal, as far as the southern operators were concerned, but northern and western operators appeared far apart today in talks with John L. Lewis. The groups were to continue their contract talks today.

Lewis Not Present

Lewis was not at the meetings which are aimed at settling the five-week walkout of some 300,000 miners. He was in Springfield, Ill., visiting his 91-year-old mother who is seriously ill.

Further curtailments of U.S. industry were reported because of dwindling coal supplies. Local, forced production cutbacks today will be affected in 11 states.

Steel producers, which have hit many industries, threaten to force the layoff of thousands of workers by next weekend.

The first contract ending the 26-month against Ford Motor Company was announced at the office of Philip Murray, C.I.O. and United Steelworkers president. It was with the Copperweld Steel Company of Glassport, Pa., which employs 1,100 workers. The Union said a retroactive non-contributory pension plan, which was recommended by the presidential fact-finding board, was included.

In the coal dispute the Union has asked for a guaranteed annual wage. Operators have not yet formal royalty payments but has not specified the amount. The operators have offered a 20 cents a ton royalty into the Miners' Welfare Fund in absence of a new contract.

Say Bevin Gave Impression Britain to Cut Military Costs, U.S. Senators Voice Concern

London, Oct. 21 (AP) — Four United States senators said today they received the impression that Britain will make large cuts in military appropriations in an effort to ease her economic problems.

"We are vitally concerned, of course, because of Britain's role in over-all plans for defence of western Europe," senator Allen J. Ellender (Dem. La.) told a press conference.

Ellender is chairman of a U.S. congressional committee investigating European defense and the accomplishments of American aid abroad. Committee members talks held with Bevin Thursday.

Ellender's colleagues, senators Homer Ferguson (Rep. Mich.), William E. Jenner (Rep. Ind.), and Francis J. Myers (Dem. Pa.), said they also received the impression there will be substantial cuts in Britain's defence expenditures.

The cabinet met today to give final approval to an extensive program of economics necessitated by British's financial crisis. Prime Minister Attlee is expected to announce cuts in the House of Commons Monday.

Social services, government administration agencies and plans for public and private building programs are expected to be cut along with military appropriations in the economy drive.

Recites Gettysburg Address for Cause Of Community

Canandaigua, N.Y., Oct. 21 (CP)—Community chest workers were having a dinner in a hotel here Thursday night when they discovered Charles Laughton, the Hollywood movie picture star, in the dining room.

They asked him to join them. Laughton arose and announced that if everyone present would furnish a dollar for the chest drive immediately, he would recite Lincoln's Gettysburg address, complete with gestures.

They did.

He did.

Coaches too Big, Halt Train In Tunnel

Tonbridge, England, Oct. 21. (AP)—A train pulled up to a tunnel here and was there a sudden halt—its cars were too big to go through.

A spokesman for British railways it was a relief train made up in a hurry and its cars hadn't realized the cars would be too big.

Midland, Oct. 21—(CP) — A "lovers' telegraph" or acoustic telephone installed in Midland in 1886 by Jim Ryan, proprietor of a bakery and bake shop now is in service again as the Midland House Pioneer Museum. The model was recently found in the attic of the old hotel. The instrument—in-law of Mr. Ruby, and is believed to be the Midland box. It operates, not by electrical circuit, but by a long wire attached to two leather diaphrams.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

Toronto, Oct. 21 (CP)—Synopsis—The colder air had crossed into Northern and Central Ontario on Thursday by retreating northward and the mild air over southern sections of the province will spread to the Georgian Bay and Lake Ontario regions tonight. A disturbance over the Mississippi Valley will move over northwestern Ontario will move into the James Bay area on Saturday and a second air from the western United States will spread to the upper Great Lake region Saturday. Considerable cloudiness with scattered showers will accompany the milder weather over Eastern Ontario.

LARGE DISTILLERY BURNS

Nicholasville, Ky., Oct. 21 (AP) — Fire swept a large distillery warehouse near here last night, destroying 18,000 barrels (about 900,000 gallons) of bourbon whisky and causing damage estimated at $1,200,000. The Kentucky River, which flows beside the distillery, was "set afire" as burning whisky flowed into the water.

SLEET CONTINUES TO POUND PARTS OF MANITOBA

Many Centres Without Power Due to Sleet Breaking Wires

Winnipeg, Oct. 21 — (CP)—At least 150 men today were repairing southwestern Manitobe power and communication lines, severed and marred by two sleet and rain storms within 24 hours.

Power has been cut in La Riviere, Killeda and Darlingford in the Manitou area since hydro lines and poles snapped under heavy load of ice Wednesday. Hydro officials said their crews may not be able to restore power by today.

Weatherman at Winnipeg predicted today that the sleet, mixed with intermittent, freezing rain, would continue to pelt southwestern Manitoba and parts of the Red River Valley. Meanwhile, the first snowfall of the season hit Winnipeg early today.

30 Persons Taken To Hospital After Bus-Car Collision

Bus Rolls Over on Top In Ditch Near Orillia

Orillia, Oct. 21 — (CP) — A Gray Coach Lines bus bound for North Bay collided with a car near here today and some 30 persons were taken to hospital by ambulance and taxi.

There were about 25 passengers on the bus. Some were said to be severely injured. The passengers in the car — the number not yet known — were also removed to hospital.

At 12:45 p.m. police and hospital officials were unable to give names of the injured or details of their condition.

The bus was completely turned around by the force of the impact and then rolled over on its top in the ditch.

In Toronto, officials of Gray Coach Lines said they had not received any details.

Hospital Jammed

The Memorial Hospital in this town, 60 miles north of Toronto, received most of those who injured were in the corridors. Several doctors were summoned to the hospital to assist.

First reports said that about six persons appeared to be seriously hurt, one of them the bus driver and another the spare driver.

A drizzling rain started to fall in the area about an hour before the accident and the pavement was slippery.

The accident occurred as the bus went downhill and one theory was that it skidded on the wet pavement in an effort to avoid the car, Reports from the scene said the bus apparently took the ditch and his spare grabbed the wheel but the bus in an effort to bring it under control before the impact.

Would Convert Natural Gas To Fertilizer

Beyrouth, Lebanon, Oct. 21. — (AP)—Saudi-Arabia is anxious for every ounce of natural gas—a by-product of its huge oil industry —into chemical fertilizer.

It successful the program would go far toward to remedy the shortage of such fertilizers in the Middle East at the present time.

Engineers have discovered that nitrogen plants in King Ibn Saud's oil country would require, it is understood, the help of other neighboring countries and possibly the United Nations organization.

A committee report to the regional meeting of the United Nations Food and Agriculture organization held in Beyrouth revealed the proposal by the Saudi-Arabian government to build such a plant.

Boy of Seven Does What Father Long Wanted to Do

Pittsburgh, Oct. 21.—(AP)—David I. McCahill, III, is just a little boy of seven.

The brick was heavy but he grasped it manfully and carried it through the big plate-glass window.

His was David's father.

The window was part of a four-storey building being razed to make way for the new terminal of the Harmony Short Lines Bus Company owned by the elder McCahill.

A few seconds before McCahill placed the brick in the boy's hand he told him:

"Son, all my life I wanted to heave a brick through a glass window. Now you're going to do what I always wanted to."

Scattered Flock in Vast Cold Arctic On Top of World to Have New Bishop

Winnipeg, Oct. 21.—(CP)—The Arctic's cold, snow-covered world will have a new Anglican Bishop before long.

Bishop Archibald Lang Fleming, who has guided a scattered flock of whites, Indians and Eskimos in his huge domain on the top of the world, announced his retirement Sept. 18.

The new bishop committee for the election of bishops, provincial synod of Rupertsland, will meet in a Winnipeg office to determine his successor.

The job of "bishop" it is the end of a decade and a half of tramping, sledding, flying and boating in the rugged northland.

For his successor it means regular responsibility for the spiritual welfare of a flock scattered over nearly 1,000,000 square miles from Aklavik, N.W.T., on the west, east to Labrador, and from the north pole south to Fort George on James Bay.

The almost unbelievable "parish" is largely frozen muskeg, lakes, island, and, in the long winter season, snow. About 11,-000 persons make up the population, settled in lone outposts or tiny communities throughout the area.

"Archibald the Arctic, to give him his popular name, has lived it, has seen all of it.

Among all pioneer missionary's methods in bringing Christianity to the suspicious natives is a large painting for a front of the altar at his first tiny church at Aklavik. On it is depicted the Christ child and the Virgin both with Indian features, surrounded by Mounties, trappers and dogs known to the north people, paying tribute with gifts of pelts and furs.

"I don't believe the white man's God is for us."

Lost Child In Downtown Quite Unfazed

He was just a little fellow two or three years old trudging along in his rubber boots and sweater but he attracted more attention in the downtown section of the city than any other two persons on the street.

With his mouth full of alleys and carrying more in his hands (he had no pockets) the little chap trudged manfully along Bridge Street. He got to the main intersection of Front and Bridge Streets and not a bit fazed by the busy traffic crossed the street and continued his way toward the Quinte Hotel.

Men on the street laughed as they passed the lad while women blushed and turned away. Finally a lady took hold of his hand and brought him to a police officer.

This little boy did not come under the juvenile child category. There was doubt about his being lost — but in addition he had lost his pants!

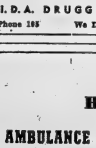
Merchants Report Business Upturn In Shopping Week

With Saturday the last day of the "Enjoy Shopping in Belleville Week", Belleville and district shoppers have just one more day to take advantage of savings up to 20 percent, which are being offered by several local merchants on certain lines of merchandise.

The week of outstanding bargains commenced last Saturday and will conclude this weekend. Generally speaking merchants have reported a very definite upswing in the numbers of shoppers coming into their stores while the sales bargains offered have been instrumental in the volume of business also increasing.

For instance some merchants as noted above are offering a 20 percent reduction on certain lines of goods, another merchant is offering a straight 10 percent on footwear and luggage, while still another is offering topcoats at $10 less than the regular price. Many Slips Deposited



The response that "Enjoy Shopping in Belleville" week has received is to a certain extent indicated by the number of sales slips which are seen being placed into the street barrels. And one minute bright some lucky shopper is going to win a $25 cash voucher which can be redeemed at a local store. Another shopper is going to receive a $15 voucher and still another one for $10.

Tonight the Ontario Intelligencer prize for the best dressed shop window will be decided with the winner to be announced at the Sales and Ad Club dinner meeting.

The appeal of the shop window and its ability to bring customers into the store is one of the points on which the winner will be decided.

Has Been Success

All in all merchants feel that the "Enjoy Shopping in Belleville" week has been a success. They feel, first of all, they have proven their claim, that practically all types of merchandise can be purchased in Belleville and at prices comparable to those in other larger centres. Also they feel they accomplished something in bringing greater numbers of shoppers into their stores. And in doing this feel greater numbers of shoppers have had the opportunity of realizing they did enjoy shopping in Belleville.

652 Children Received Service From CAS in Year

According to a statement just released by William C. Lockyer, Superintendent of the Children's Aid Society 652 children received service from their organization during the year, 225 of these children were wards under the direct supervision of the Society. Some of these have been permanently committed to their care, others temporarily. Records indicate that the reasons for wardship are the inability of the parents to care for them and in some cases they are unfit to retain their parental rights. In the case of temporary wardship contact with the parents if at all possible is maintained with the hope of re-establishing the child in his own home.

In the case of permanent wardship the Society is named guardian until the child is 21 years of age. The Society carries on extensive protection work with the families where there is neglect or disorder and danger of the home being broken up. Conditions sometimes do not warrant a child being removed from his home but necessitate supervision and the parents being advised and helped by the Society in a determined effort to see that the home is suitable safe for the child. The Society also assists in keeping the child in his own home if possible.

Gradual Recognition

Mr. Lockyer stated there had been a gradual recognition by Social Agencies that a child a drunken mother may still be a loving mother, and that father may be a warm and generous parent. It is now considered that the over-protectionism and even misery sheltered by brothers and sisters are serious breaks that cannot be replaced in any other setting and that assistance previous is taken when the child separated from his own family.

It is the preventive side of Children's Aid that depends upon voluntary contributions of the citizens given in Community Chests campaigns.

The Society continues to be alert and sensitive to recognize and move ahead to meet these needs. Citizens can help the Children's Aid to reach its highest standards of usefulness in giving effective support financially in the Community Chest Campaign whose objective of $18,000.00 it is hoped will be realized within the period October 14th-20th.

Neighbor Saves Large Garage From Destruction

Chance late homecoming of a near neighbor who discovered the lattice fence afire at a point near the garage saved the garage of W. H. Morton, Victoria Ave., from possible destruction by fire early this morning.

Walter G. Westfall, 247 John Street, was returning to his home shortly after midnight when he noticed the fence afire. Mr. Westfall promptly went into action and grabbing the lawn hose had the fire practically under control when firemen arrived.

Origin of the blaze was undetermined but firemen think it down either to a bonfire which was thought to have been extinguished, or to the work of prowlers who may have dropped a cigarette butt in dried leaves.

Firemen said the only damage was a section of the wooden lattice fence which was burned.

Highly Gifted Pianist to Give Concert

Citizens of Belleville and district look forward with pleasurable anticipation to Maria Laskaris' Concert to be given in the Collegiate Auditorium, Wednesday, November 9th.

On her choice of pieces Maria stresses the composition of the great Masters of Piano, such as Bach, Beethoven, Chopin, Liszt, and her skilful performances of these pieces will no doubt readily win the hearts of all who hear her.

The young artist, graduate of St. Michael's Music Studio, has attained unique distinction in her final examinations in June, when she scored a high honor standing in the duo role of Teachers and Solo Performers Courses at the Royal Conservatory of Music.

Maria has developed into a fine music much that is profound and sincere, while her radiant personality also reflected in her work, shows the depth of character which gave her the impetus to start her career.

The St. Michael's Music Studio, in sponsoring this program, is giving to you, citizens of Belleville, the opportunity to hear and know your home talent.

We do not doubt but your ready response to this project, as experience of past presentations, has proved your appreciation of such cultural arts. Already much interest has been shown by the numerous inquiries as regards detail.

SAME RATE AS IN 1881

Toronto, Oct. 21 (CP)—At the evening rush hour, streetcars on Toronto's Yonge Street, main north-south thoroughfare, travel within the six-mile-and-hour limit set for the city's first horse-drawn trams in 1861. This was disclosed on Thursday in a service club speech by H. W. Tate, the Toronto transportation commission's assistant general manager.

RESCUED FROM CANAL

Port Colborne, Ont., Oct. 21 — Karen Marion, 11, of nearby Humbertstown, was rescued from the Welland ship canal Thursday by Derek Bingley, who heard the cries of the girl's companion, Doreen Duggan.

The Marion girl struggled in the cold water for 10 minutes after her fall. Duggan lowered a ladder to her.

Mayor Storey Again Heading TB Association

Members of the Hastings County Tuberculosis Association are of the opinion that Christmas Seals cannot be worn, so they are already busy with their plans for this year's Christmas Seal campaign. Although the campaign does not open until November 21st, they held their organization meeting yesterday.

Mayor Storey pointed to the many tuberculosis services provided through Christmas Seal money such as operation of mobile X-ray units in the county and the X-ray of all patients at Belleville General Hospital and stated that the maintenance and extension of these was dependent on the Seal Sale proceeds.

"Combatting tuberculosis is a big job," the Mayor declared, "and it is too big for one man or one committee. It takes a whole community to put the campaign across, so I will be counting on you all to do your duties and that we could wipe out TB in this country if we were willing to devote enough money and enough energy to finding all the cases in the tuberculosis Christmas Seal Sale opens to make this community "Tuberculosis Free."

Judge J. C. Anderson has been appointed Honorary President and Mayor Storey has been named President of the Association.

SUGAR AND WOOL

Sydney, Australia, Oct. 21. — (NC)—Mr. Clan L. R. Latham, new Canadian High Commissioner to Australia, said today that Canada would like to buy more sugar and wool from Australia in the future. Latham, at his first press conference here, said that Canada produced substantial quantities of wool but sugar not enough to meet her demands.

Frank Sexsmith Dies of Heart Attack at Game

The 53-year-old painter and decorator, who is well-known in this city, suddenly slumped in his seat in the grandstand just after the eight innings had been completed.

Nearby spectators including Aldeyman Claude Tice of Belleville, went to his aid, while others raced to a telephone to call medical aid. Dr. Hall, coroner mayor of Napanee rushed to the scene but Mr. Sexsmith expired a minute or so before his arrival.

Stunned by the shock of the unusual happening, spectators and players alike stood silent. Heads were bared as the ball fell over the field as the late Mr. Sexsmith was carried from his last baseball game.

He had but recently recovered from a serious illness, it is stated, and had been ordered to refrain from excitement. Being an ardent fan, apparently he could not resist the temptation to see this game. The excitement proved too much for him.

Straying Animals On Highways Can be Expensive

Allowing livestock to stray on the highways can be expensive even when no accident results. It was shown in county magistrate's court on Thursday.

Two hastings County farmers were charged with allowing stock to stray on the road and both paid fines of $6.

One Thurlow township farmer permitted his herd of 11 cows on the highway without an attendant, while the other charge was against a Sidney township farmer whose unattended bull was found on the highway. Both farmers settled the charges out of court.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Oct. 21 — (CP) — Prices turned slowly upwards on the Toronto Stock Exchange today. Industrials added fractions to their comparatively brisk trading, more than recovering Thursday's losses.

Golds and base metals also brightened while western oils slipped under pressure of profit-taking sales on Thursday's strong gains.

Volume for the first four hours was 616,000 shares, about 46,000 shares less than Thursday's similar period.

Many preferred stocks attracted attention for stronger prices in industrials following the budget announcement extending the 10-per-cent personal income tax credit on dividends to all classes of shares, including common and preferred.

Many issues sold at new highs in industrials. The index of representative industrial stocks again broke through to the highest point in three years.

In western oils Royalite featured in early dealings, rising to a new high at $9.70 and then settled back.

Base metals and golds were quiet. Silver Miller sold at a new top in base metals and Quemont and Noranda were up fractions.

9 Plead Guilty In Theft Case

Pleading guilty to charges involving theft of merchandise stolen from the York Trading Company on Station Street, eight men and one woman were remanded for sentence when they appeared today before Magistrate T. Y. Wills in city magistrate's court.

The nine persons were remanded in custody and will appear for sentence on Tuesday.

Pleading guilty to theft charges were Elvin Robinson, Kenneth Robinson, Elmer Dafoe, Reginald Adams, Reginald Bulpitt, Garth Andrews and Wilbur Sherry, all former employees of York Trading Company. Pleading guilty to charges of receiving stolen property were Frank Brough, Thomsburg grocer, and Mrs. Lena Sharpe, 247 Station Street.

Harry Sharpe, 247 Station Street, also appeared on a charge of receiving and had his case enlarged until Tuesday, while Arthur Kleinsteuber, Sulphide grocer, was scheduled to appear this afternoon on a receiving charge.

Investigation into the thefts at York Trading Company commenced in September and was followed by the arrest of seven employees of the firm, and three others for receiving. All were permitted bail.

All nine pleading guilty this morning before Magistrate Wills had given written statements to police admitting their guilt. These statements were read in court by Inspector J. C. Hayes, when he presented summary evidence.

Curious Youth Finds Mechanical Device Works

Once upon a time—there was a man who held a lighted match over the opening in a gasoline tank in order to ascertain the amount of contents. He never found out.

It seems that a young man about town paid a visit to a fish dispensary. Looking around he saw a strange mechanical gadget with bells, wheels and knives on it. He was told it was an ice-crushing machine.

The machinery was put in action to give him a better idea of its operation. The wheels started to move. The bells sang along smoothly. Huge cakes of ice were conveyed along the line and crushed.

He was satisfied, but curious. He could not understand how belts with smooth surfaces could convey slippery cakes of ice. He was told that keys were placed at periodic intervals on the belts. He looked again. No knives were apparent.

The machinery was stopped. As it slowed to a near-stop, the curious young gentleman, furtively slipped his hand inside the belt and placed it on the slowly moving surface.

He felt a sharp tug at his hand. Quickly he pulled it away and shoved it in his pocket.

Later he was fully satisfied the belt carried knives.

Former Moderator Of United Church, A. Tuttle, Dies

Toronto, Oct. 21 (CP) — Very Rev. Aubrey Tuttle, 75, former moderator of the United Church of Canada, died Thursday night at Victoria, church officials said today.

Born at Pugwash, N.S., he entered the ministry in 1897 as a Methodist missionary in the old Methodist church. A former principal of St. Stephen's College at Edmonton, he was moderator of the United Church from 1940 to 1942.

He was a graduate of Mount Allison University, Sackville, N.B. His served several churches in western Canada before being appointed principal of Alberta College South.

That college was amalgamated with Presbyterian College at the time of union as St. Stephen's College. He became principal and professor of Christian theology and philosophy.

In 1918 and again in 1933 he headed the Alberta conference of the United Church.

Dr. Tuttle was elected moderator at the ninth general council of the church, replacing Rt. Rev. John W. Woodside of Ottawa. He was chosen on the first vote over six other nominees, including George J. Trueman, president of Mount Allison University.

Honored By Mount Allison

From Mount Allison in 1920 he received an honorary degree of doctor of divinity. The University of Alberta, Edmonton, awarded him the degree of Doctor of Laws in 1936.

Another former moderator of the United Church of Canada, Very Rev. R. J. P. Sclater, died recently in Scotland.

Dr. Tuttle is survived by his widow; three sons, Rev. M. J. Tuttle, Lethbridge, Alta.; A. S. Tuttle, Toronto, and Rev. George Tuttle, Toronto, and a daughter, Mrs. R. G. Gibson.

Police Blotter

Pleading guilty to the theft of an automobile owned by his "friend", John Butts, alias Steve Gracis, alias James Rutland Stevens, was remanded until Tuesday for sentence when he appeared in city police court today before Magistrate T.Y. Wills. The remand was requested by the Crown in order that the record of the accused may be determined.

Butts borrowed a car from his "friend" last Saturday and failed to return the vehicle to its owner who on Sunday laid the theft charge. Butts was arrested in Napanee and brought back to Belleville to stand trial.

A transient found trespassing on C. N. R. property was also remanded until Tuesday. The Crown intimated a second charge of being in possession of burglar tools would be preferred.

Two drunks were sentenced to ten days in jail when they were unable to raise the necessary $10 and costs, while two additional drunks were remanded until Tuesday when it was learned they were wanted on theft charges at Trenton.

Two motorists charged with drunk driving had their cases enlarged for one week.

A new sort of means thief has been brought to the attention of local police. He is a thief who steals from baby carriages.

A Front Street woman yesterday had her baby carriage parked outside a local grocetaria, in the carriage was a parcel of baby clothing which had been purchased. When she came out of the store the parcel had disappeared.

Another young woman complained that a passing motorist splashed her clothes when the wheels dropped into a puddle. She got the licence number and police later contacted the driver who agreed to pay to have the young woman's clothes cleaned.

VISITS OF OUTSTANDING MEN

No age has seen more wholesome travelling of dignitaries than this age. Latterly Canada and the United States have had as their political leaders and others high in their countries for their outlook on the political future of the world as represented in the United Nations. Such crossing of the oceans and of borders can only be for good and a more complete understanding.

A leader of international repute is Prime Minister Nehru of India, who has been visiting in the United States. Mr. Nehru is a man of real authority and represents one of the greatest sections of the human race, his authority as political leader being over no fewer than 600,000,000 people.

What is cheering to the nations who are organized for peace is the fact that Mr. Nehru is friendly to the principles of the United Nations. He said the other day to the United States Congress that his country would not be neutral in case there was any world threat to liberty.

MEAT CURING 3,000-YEAR-OLD ART

Curing of meats began over thirty centuries ago and is an art which developed almost independently of any scientific research. While curing formulas have been worked out for hams, bacon, sausages and some beef products as a result of experience, there is nothing in literature to suggest these recipes have a scientific basis.

In either dry or curing methods, the ingredients are salt, sugar and salt petre (sodium nitrate). With commercial curing mixtures and most commercially used curing mixtures, Sugar Facts says it is customary to substitute sodium nitrate for a portion of the salt petre, to obtain quicker color fixation. Sugar is also included in curing mixtures to produce higher grade cured products.

Present practice calls for from one to two per cent sugar per hundred pounds of meat. There is little exact knowledge about what changes sugar brings about in meat but it is believed that it establishes good color, preserves by inhibiting harmful compounds and through interaction with protein. Sugar appears to be useful in counteracting the hardening effect of salt, thereby improving texture of cured meats. Beet and cane sugar are said to be preferred sweeteners because they do not carmelise readily at lower cooking temperatures.

How much people owe to past generations for what they have today in food and in those things with which they surround themselves is recognized in this neat curing as in so many other matters of importance and value in modern living. People are more and more cognizant of the steady progress in the development of foods.

LOVER OF HORSES

That Winston Churchill should be, as an old cavalryman, lover of horses racing will be taken for granted. His recent success in English racing brings out the fact that his forbears on the American side had much to do with the development of racing as it is today in the United States. But it is certain, Mr. Churchill's venture into the racing field was not prompted by search for electoral popularity.

As a matter of fact Fleet Street in the Ottawa Journal remarks, Mr. Churchill's sudden emergence as a racing owner in the brilliant twilight of his career has puzzled most people. His triple success has, however, undoubtedly delighted all horse-racing enthusiasts, and not least the legion of small punters who will get quick pleasure from the sporting edition of an evening paper.

Any idea that Winston is thinking of electoral popularity may be dismissed. As an old polo enthusiast and cavalryman, however, he is naturally interested in horses, and not very long ago he turned out with a Hunt. Indeed his interest is bred. Winston took from his mother, who was not only a famous American beauty, but the daughter of Mr. Jerome, who, as Winston tells in his story of Lord Randolph's life, shared with Mr. August Belmont the claim to be the Father of the American Turf.—St. Catharines Standard.

Among the attributes of God, although they are all equal, mercy shines with even more brilliancy than justice. —Cervantes.

THE SICK DOCTOR

The day when Doctor Jones fell ill,
His fellow medics came and said:
"This can't be cured with any pill,
You'll have to spend the best
You'll probe your chest and rap your knees,
We'll tube and tap and graph and ray.
You're sure to find the trouble
Doctor Jones.
You'll test your meals upon a tray."

The room resounded with his groans.
His language caused a nurse to blush,
Though what they did to Doctor Jones,
No others, Doctor Jones had done.

He swore the pain would drive him wild.
He tore the sheets and tore his hair,
Though it was pain at which he'd smiled
When it was some one's else to bear.

Good Doctor Jones is well at once more,
And, just as all his patients do,
He tells the suffering he bore,
As if it were experience new.
He'll talk about his aches and pains
As long as anybody owns,
And while I chuckle that he explains,
While listening to Doctor Jones.

LOOKING BACKWARDS

20 YEARS AGO

Oct. 21st, 1929.

Miss Helen Cather, Alexander Street, spent the weekend in Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Denyes and Mrs. H. A. Elvins of Toronto were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Elvins, North Front Street.

Mr. F. F. Dickens is spending a few days in Toronto on business.

30 YEARS AGO

Oct. 21st, 1919.

In the Ontario Provincial election yesterday the Conservative Government led by Sir William Hearst was defeated and the Farmers' Party will have the largest group in the House, which, by alliance with either of the older parties and the Labor members, will command a large working majority. In West Hastings Mr. J. A. Ireland, Conservative candidate defeated the Liberal candidate, Lieut. Col. E. D. Ponton, by a majority of 435. Nelson Parliament, Liberal candidate in Prince Edward County, was re-elected over Robert Norman, Conservative candidate, by approximately 1000 majority. Henry Dayes, U.F.O. candidate, claims a majority of about 450 over Sandy Grant, the Conservative candidate in East Hastings. The returns are not all in yet, but it is evident that the Referendum the province has voted "dry." The standing in the House from present returns will be U.F.O., 40; Liberals 31; Conservatives 16; Independent Liberal 1. The Conservatives had 70 members in the last House.

40 YEARS AGO

Oct. 21st, 1909.

Mr. William Rogers, Reeve of Rawdon township, and Warden of the county, was in town today.

One hundred and four years ago today the great Admiral Nelson died, but his never to be forgotten words, "England Expects," etc., still goes marching on.

Mr. A. Shearing left today for Montreal where he will visit his son, Mr. J. E. Shearing.

Mr. H. G Pobinor of Kingston, Chief Instructor at the Dairy School, was in town today.

Mr. Blake Lockwood, who resides in the 7th concession of Sidney township, showed the Intelligencer staff today some potatoes which were grown on his farm. They are of the Sanitia variety and Mr. Lockwood states that he obtained seed they taste better than the imported kind.

50 YEARS AGO

Oct. 21st, 1899.

In addition to those previously mentioned as enlisting members of the 15th Regiment have volunteered for service in the Transvaal: Privates, George Phillips, F. Lynn, W. Newton, A. Brown, R. Cunnington, E. Fry and Pioneer-Sergt. J. Paterson, Lieut. Glencoe Hulme of the 15th Regiment, failed to obtain a commission, has volunteered a short time ago, but with true British pluck, he has offered his services as a private.

Mr. R. Tannahill, Jr., of the Bank of Montreal here, has returned to the city after spending some time in Muskoka.

Mr. H. K. Smith, Game Warden of this city, went to Bancroft today.

Messrs. Richie, Lazier and Gillen of this city are hunting near Bancroft.

TODAY'S TALK
By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

LIVE YOUR AGE — HAPPILY

Life goes forth in sections. Youth is perhaps the briefest of all, simply because it is so unlike the years that follow in zest and discoveries, and seems so endless. Before one realizes it, childhood is gone, and the more serious section is reached, in which problems accumulate, character is tested to the full, and the worthwhile values of life are appraised. Middle age is approached.

I would that every youth might take unusual advantage of every day and year of that glorious period which does come to every and so unannounced.. It's the gardening time of life, when so much is planted, not all the seeds bring forth flowers or wholesale grain, but some crop!

Having gone through youth, and experienced all its offerings, and now arrived at the more matured and ripened age, I can testify to its wealth and thrills as well. There are compensations all along the way of life. We may have lived through all the former years now have memories that youth pays no attention to. In addition, friends are cemented to our way of life, and a most precious gain it is, for without friends in one's maturer years one can be most unhappy and lonely in spirit.

We are forever, year by year, leaving acquaintances by the wayside. Each year, each day, we may receive new friends who help lighter human beings. Like lilyseas we can keep voyaging and reaching out for new worlds to discover and conquer!

No matter-where you may find yourself in life, live that age—triumphantly! Worry over no regrets. Nothing can be recalled. "Let the dead past burn its dead." Today is the only time you have within your grasp. Make it noticable and outstanding. Every hour can be assuaged. The bird with a broken pinion never soared so high again, but the song was sweeter!

In reviewing your life, just think of the many bridges you feared to cross that weren't there at all when you arrived! And so that worry—as are most worries are super useless, and ought never to have been. Live for today alone, and live your age. "Enjoy yourself — it is later than you think!"

BUCCANEERS STILL LIVE

Montreal — (CP)—They hoisted the Jolly Roger flag on H.M.S. Glasgow, flagship of Britain's America and West Indies Fleet for the visit of 100 youngsters from the Griffintown Club. Officers and men dressed as pirates to give the young fry a thrill and fed them sandwiches, cake and navy "rum" — red-colored cordials.

WATER IN NORTH

Fort Smith, N. W. T.—(CP)—This settlement of 300 persons just north of the Alberta border is to have a modern water supply system. The Northwest Territories Council at Ottawa has approved expenditure of $30,000 to start building a heated reservoir, chlorination plant and fire hydrant system.

GOOD ACTORS DIE BROKE

"The other night I had dinner with a film critic, and afterwards we dropped into a theatre in the 40's and watched the last act of a play from the back of the house.

"After the final curtain call, we strolled up Broadway and discussed the performances of the star of the show.

"He's terrific," said, feeling that a professional observation was in order.

"He's a bum," said the critic.

"Let's not split hairs," I said. "He works steadily and, by the way, I hear he's got plenty of money in the bank."

"That only proves he's a bum," said the critic. "Good actors usually die broke."

"All right, Mr. Bones," I said. "Why does a good actor usually die broke?"

"Because," said the critic, "the submerges his personality in the role he is playing and works for the good of the show as a whole, rather than personal glory. Consequently, people remember the whole play and not the actor who played it. On the other hand, stars like the fellow we saw tonight play a different character each and year out — same posturing, same voice tricks. Let me say you, have you ever seen Katharine Cornell, Lynn Fontaine or Judith Anderson, the actresses whom you were watching?"

"Sir," I said, "you are speaking of the women I love. And as for playing a part, what about Helen Hayes in 'Victoria Regina'?"

"Exception that proves the rule," said the critic. "In the case Ina Claire is more to the point. Ina had to retire because she got too old to play herself."

"You're piling on the arsenic plenty thick," I said. "Next thing, you'll be telling me that no one in the theatre today compares with the stars of thirty years ago."

"The old timers, as a rule, were even, year in and year out, terrific. "Richard Mansfield, Edwin Booth — great personalities and atrocious actors."

"Can you give me an example of a real one?" I asked.

"I could give you a dozen," said my friend, "but you wouldn't call the names. The best of the lot was Moffat Johnston."

"Johnston," I mused. "Sounds familiar, but maybe I'm thinking of the flood."

"Moffat was an honest actor and superlatively good one," said the critic. "His characterizations were so skilful that the customers, seeing him in two different plays, seldom knew they were watching the same man. But who remembers him now—except a few stage-struck dopes like me?"

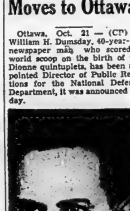
"What was he—comedy-wise, I mean?"

"His Characters in Search of an Author," said the critic. "H. R.'s 'King Lear,' 'Macbeth,' 'The Devil's Disciple' and a dozen other distinguished shows. He played the lead in 'Trilby,' a role that Jack Barrymore got rave notices for when he did it in the movies. The last appearance he had Johnston became the part, which on the movies the part became Barrymore."

"Whatever happened to Johnston?"

"The anonymity finally got him down," said the critic. "So he decided to do something to make theatregoers remember him. The whole a failed 'The Stag at Eve', in which a detective, to be sure, was the protagonist in his twenty-seven different characterizations. It was a tour de force, of course, but he calculated to make both critics and public sit up and take notice.

"It flopped, I suppose."



"It did not," said the critic. "In fact, it was a great success in the summer theatre where it was tried out. But Johnston never recovered from the fall opening. But until then he was the constant strain of playing himself down finally caught up with Johnston, and shortly before his play was fled to open on Broadway he died."

"Which proves," I said, "that it's better to be yourself, even if you're an actor."

"Which proves," said the critic, "that the actor who plays himself is no actor and, by the way, the star we saw tonight is a bum."

Wm. H. Dumsday, C.P. News Editor, Moves to Ottawa

Ottawa, Oct. 21 — (CP) — William H. Dumsday, 49-year-old newspaper man who scored a world scoop on the birth of the Dionne quintuplets, has been appointed Director of Public Relations for the National Defence Department, it was announced today.

WILLIAM H. DUMSDAY

Mr. Dumsday, now Ontario news editor in The Canadian Press Toronto bureau, starts his new job Nov. 1.

As a reporter for the North Bay Daily Nugget, he was the first newspaper man to reach the tiny cottage at Callander, Ont., where the five famous Dionne sisters were born in 1934.

He joined CP the following year and has worked in various capacities in the country and in New York since then.

During the Second World War he was a Flight Lieutenant in R. C. A. F. public relations in the Indian Air Force Command and flew operationally with R.C.A.F. crews for stories on the Far-East air war for Canadian fliers.

He began his newspaper career with the Sudbury Star, Port Arthur Herald, his hometown daily. He worked with the Regina Leader-Post and the Winnipeg Free Press before coming east to North Bay.

Mr. Dumsday succeeds the immediate past president of the Toronto Men's Press Club.

He now will head the public relations staffs of the army, navy and air force departments and service will retain their present individual staffs.

SEEK INDIAN SCHOOL

The Pas, Man. — (CP) — A school here for Indian children to replace one which burned two years ago was asked by town councillors at a recent meeting. Mayor Frank Sinclair said it is undesirable that Indian children should have to attend residential schools in southern Manitoba.

Mackenzie's Column
Yugoslav Choice Stinging Defeat For Moscow

By DeWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press News Analyst)

Yugoslavia's election to the United Nations Security Council is a stinging defeat for Russia, indicating as it does a fighting issue of the matter, with proud and fiery Foreign Minister Vishinsky leading the battle.

The big question of course is what Soviet reaction to the defeat is. It now that the election is an accomplished fact. Would the Russians go so far as actually refusing to participate in the deliberations of the Security Council or even withdraw from the peace organization?

The decision in the U. N. Assembly election revolved about the friendly attitude that has developed between Russia and Yugoslavia as the result of the Belgian coup which ousted Moscow's dictation. That dispute has been carried to the public is filching dangerously with war.

Russian Stand

The Russians took the position in the U. N. that the election of Yugoslavia to the Security Council would be a violation of the charter, highly significant as the proposal failed to take into account provisions regarding geographical distribution of the non permanent council seats. The United States replied that communist Yugoslavia was just as well qualified to represent the Slavic group as was Russia's satellite candidate—Czechoslovakia.

Actually Russia still will be able to stymie any measure she wishes to block by the simple expedient of using her right to veto as one of the Big Five.

It's hard to believe that Russia would let her indignation over the election of Yugoslavia lead her to the extreme of severing relations with the U. N. That would be cutting off her own nose to spite her face. The U. N. serves many purposes for the Soviet Union in three ways:

1. It enables Moscow to stymie any or all measures which come up in the all-important Security Council.

2. It provides a wonderful sounding board for Soviet propaganda.

3. It enables the Soviet to keep in closer touch with international developments through her big battery of representatives at the U. N.

BEFORE YOU CONSU LT YOUR SPECIALIST

It may be just as well to refrain from citing the latest census of physicians in practice in the United States and Canada. The facts revealed by the census indicate an unhealthy and alarming growth of specialism. This abnormal condition is not so bad in Canada, but in the United States it is rampant. If it were genuine one might view the change as a consistent one in this age of specialism. But it is not genuine. Most of the practitioners who hold themselves out to the public as specialists are not specialists at all. They engage in general practice to the limit of their ability to attract and hold patients, in competition with the family doctor of the community. They are what I call "title" specialists. Such people employ the term "specialist" to impress and hamboozle gullible customers. In Canada the doctor is required by law to have superior knowledge training or skill if he holds himself out to the public as a "specialist." Of course the law is over-ridden to a certain extent by the common sense of the public. Any doctor who has a license to practice medicine may hold himself out as a specialist in any or all fields of medicine. That is the law of the law.

A real specialist is a doctor who has had at least five or ten years of general practice found that he or she excelled in a certain field then has taken a post-graduate course of instruction in that field before he or she announced to the physicians of the community that his or her practice is limited to whatever special field it may be. If the specialist has any outstanding gift or skill the physicians of the community will unconsciously tend to refer unusual or difficult cases for the specialist's opinion or advice or treatment, assuming that the specialist is not competing with general practitioners for public patronage. The real specialist is a doctors' doctor.

Less than 5 percent of medical practitioners are specialists in the sense that I use the term. The real specialists are few because practice is so exacting. The difference between a specialist and an "ordinary" doctor—as so many of you children call the general practitioner when you write to me—is, say, 310 in favor. I mean the specialist does for only $15 what the general practitioner would ask you $5 for and does it just as well sometimes.

This is not to imply that any old family doctor or general practitioner has as much knowledge as the real specialist. He should have. But he does not. Nevertheless he is a useful person in his field. He is the ideal forward which every truly religious person must press.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

WHAT IS TRUE RELIGION?

Many people believe that religion consists in acquiring knowledge about God. This is the one of the important things to do, but it is not the only factor—or indeed the chief factor.

Important as belief is in religion, practice is more important. Above anything else, religion means practicing the presence of God. Brother Lawrence, a monk who lived many years ago, developed the art of practicing the presence of God so much so that he learned how to bring the Spirit of God into the humblest tasks of kitchen and field. This is the ideal toward which every truly religious person must press.

If we insist on cherishing a spirit which is contrary to the loving Spirit of God we cannot expect his presence to abide with us. If our wills are in constant conflict with the Divine will, all knowledge we may have about God and his ways only falls utterly to make us religious. The mind has considerable employment in the field of religion but willpower holds the chief place. If we find ourselves saying "yes" to a belief, there remains the great task of putting that belief to work in our daily living. We must cooperate to our benefit, and to God's glory.

Religion in its last analysis consists of practicing the presence of God.

THE PACKSACK

OF GREGORY CLARK

A back seat driver can be a positive menace to the safety of a car. Yet he or she can cost you money, if

A friend of mine has for his side-kick a notorious back seat driver. Like all his kind, he can function not only in the back seat but in the front seat. Half the time, you have the feeling he is about to lean across and seize the steering wheel from whoever is driving.

He keeps up a steady monologue, warning and cautioning not merely the driver of the car he is in, but the drivers ahead of him, all other drivers who pass, either way.

My friend had the misfortune to side-swipe a car that was just pulling away from the curb. There were twenty or more witnesses, fortunately, to have seen the crash and to turn in time to imagine they had seen it.

It was a ticklish situation. Had the person who was drawing out from the curb given any signal? Had he looked back to see if the coast was clear?

The back seat driver with my friend solved the ticklish nicety of the case. A strident, angry voice, he emerged from my friend's car, scolding: "Stupid, careless, fool! Don't you have I told you to go slow along these streets? Are you crazy?"

The man in the other car, who was also emerging, pen and paper in hand, replied to the back:

"May I have your name and address, please? I'm a witness." The seat driver, amiably. And, before bothering to note anything else, he proceeded to give the addresses of two or three other bystanders who had seen the crash from the driver's remark.

"I'm just saying to my friend here," the irate back seat driver began, hotly, from habit. But the witness took the friend's address and, and shut up.

My friend's insurance company, however, has already been charged to the other man's insurance company was paid by my friend's insurance company.

PICTON

County Junior Farmers Open Fall Activities

Prince Edward County Junior Farmers and Junior Institute commenced their fall activities with a splendid banquet at Bloomfield United Church Wednesday night. One hundred young people from all parts of the county heard a thought-provoking address by Norman Lindsay, B.S.A., Department of Education for Ontario, whose theme was recreation, enjoyed a musical program and applauded winners of various competitions who received awards

Wins Chicago Trip

All an award to the junior making the greatest contribution in the way of leadership to club work in the county, and to her community, Miss Betty Dempsey was presented with a $50 cheque from Prince Edward Federation of Agriculture. This to be applied on a trip to Chicago fair, was presented by Vice-President William Nightingale who paid tribute to Miss Dempsey's leadership.

Clifford Foster, East Lake, received the Livestock Showmanship trophy donated by F. J. Webster, B.S.A., open to County Calf Club members in 1949. He also received the trophy donated by R. O. Reynolds, President of Picton Fair Board for the highest standing in Picton Calf Club. George Young was runner-up. In presenting this, Mr. Reynolds expressed the thought that club work is the start of better farmers and farming.

The C.N.E. shield, awarded the highest contestant in the judging competition went to Lawrence Foster, East Lake. This was presented by Keith Walker. High man was Tommy May but as he had previously won the shield he was not eligible this year.

D. K. Spencer, club leader, presented Prince Edward Agricultural Society trophy to Lyn Cunningham, highest in the Hillier and Ameliasburg Calf Club. Thomas Johnson was runner-up.

Prizes For Pair Exhibits

The Juniors had a large display at Picton Fair for the first time this year. Miss Betty Dempsey presented $10 awards to Misses Marion Conklin and Sylvia Molley, who obtained the greatest number of points in the girls' section. Others who ranked high were Barbara Redner, Marilyn Barber, Lois Conklin, Betty Redner, Pauline Connors, Jean Ferguson, Sybil Redner, Anita Redner.

Similar Prizes Presented

Similar prize for boys was presented by the vice president of the Junior Farmers, Murray Read, to Lawrence Foster, East Lake. This was a silver tray.

Lewis Wight, president of the Junior Farmers, made an able toastmaster, Miss Irene Walker led in a lively sing-song. Reg Bishop of Wellington sang "Stella of the Sea", and as an encore gave a fine rendition of "The Open Road." A. A. Benvie was accompanist.

Mrs. Max Wallbridge conducted two amusing contests.

Mr. Lindsay, following his address, led in a novel sing-song. As speaker he was introduced by Alfred Cairns, Clifford Walker expressed appreciation to the Bloomfield W.A. members for a bountiful appetizing supper to those who had participated in the program and others who had assisted, including Mr. Taylor, Miss Marie Carson, Miss Anita Redner, President Lois Wight.

It was announced that the next meeting will be on Wednesday at Centre Church with a public speaking competition as a feature.

Agricultural Representative Don Taylor in charge of presentations, asked for continued enthusiastic support for the projects planned during the coming months. He said the banquet marked a rally to start the fall season and to recognize achievements during the year. He paid tribute to club leaders for loyal support. He felt a food start had been made with a junior exhibit at the fair and it had been credit to club leaders.

Mr. and Mrs. Allan Anderson of Bloomfield, who have spent the past month in Brandon, Manitoba, where they visited Mrs. Anderson, arrive home today.

Mr. and Mrs. Fletcher Webster and son, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Collver and sons, accompanied by Robert Walmsley, motored to Kingston and attended the rugby game on Saturday.

Mr. Ronald Collver who is attending the Ryerson Institute of Technology, Toronto, spent the weekend with his parents Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Collver, King Street.

Mr. Robert Walmsley, son of Major G. T. Walmsley and Mrs. Walmsley, who is in his final year at Trinity, spent the weekend with his parents at their home, Main Street East.

Mrs. Lyall Robinson who has been visiting her sister, Mrs. A. E. Chaplin and Mr. Chaplin in Belleville returns home today. Mrs. Daisy Noble motored to Belleville yesterday and visited her cousin. She returns today and will be accompanied by Mrs. Robinson.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Kelly of Winnipeg arrived in town yesterday and are visiting his sisters, Miss Blanche Kelly, Mrs. E. S. Theaker and Mr. Theaker, Paul Street. Mr. and Mrs. Kelly plan to go on to Pembroke where they will visit their daughter, Mrs. John Walker and Mr. Walker.

Mrs. Nick Sargent (Phyllis Mallott) has gone to Prince Rupert where she will visit her sister, Mrs. Tom Kelly (Marjorie). She will be gone three weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Garfield Mayne, West Lake, motored to Madoc last week where they attended the fair.

Plan Rummage Sale

The regular meeting of the Ladies' Guild of the church of St. Mary Magdalene was held in the parish hall, Monday afternoon. Mrs. J. C. Cooper, presided. Following the report business w[illegible] discussed. Members plan to hold a rummage sale at the parish hall, Saturday, Nov. 5th. Their annual bazaar and tea, which is always such a popular event, will be held December 7th. The members felt that would be better if reservations were closed at noon on Dec. 6th which would enable the members to prepare the guest tables, and plan on the guests who dropped in that day by a cup of tea. The Guild members will cater for the Masonic banquet next Thursday, which will be ladies' night. Light refreshments were served with Mrs. H. B. Tully, Mrs. George Williams and Mrs. Cooper as hostesses.

Mr. and Mrs. Calvin C. Spencer, Paul Street, entertained a number of friends at their home Tuesday evening, when five tables of bridge were in play. The hostess had arranged rose blooms and nasturtiums in the rooms. The winners of the prizes were Mrs. Glen Mowbray, Mrs. Gerald Norman, Mr. Heath Morden, Mr. Earl Benson, Miss Mary Spencer assisted with the social hour.

Evening Branch Meets

Members of the Sr. evening W.A. of the church of St. Mary Magdalene met at the parish hall, Tuesday evening. The rector, the Rev. W. G. Hope Swayne was in charge of the devotional period. The president, Miss W. Wycott was in the chair. It was announced that the members would have a table of fancy work at the Guild's annual tea and bazaar Dec. 7th.

Mrs. Swayne gave the members a brief account of the Deanery meeting held at Christ Church, Belleville, Thursday last. The hostess, Mrs. Morton Wark and Mrs. Fred Potts, served light refreshments.

Lytle Leaves Post as Sports Editor of Star

Toronto, Oct. 21 — (CP) — Andy Lytle will leave his post as sports editor of the Toronto Star at the end of October to take up a similar post with the Vancouver Sun.

This was announced today on the Star sport page along with the news that Milt Dunnell, Lytle's assistant for the last year, moved up into the sports editor's chair.

Lytle left the Sun 18 years ago to join the Star. He has been sports editor for eight years. He was born in 1897 in Norman, one of the three northwestern Ontario communities which later amalgamated to form the town of Kenora. He entered newspaper work in 1914 in New Westminster, B.C., and joined the Sun staff in 1921.

Dunnell, 43, was born at St. Marys near the southwestern Ontario city of Stratford. He was sports editor of the Stratford Beacon-Herald before he joined the Star staff, seven years ago.

"SPOOK SUIT" TO DISCOURAGE VISITORS

Not a Hallowe'en mask but a genuine Oriental "spook suit" is this grinning apparition which frightened visitors to "Lesiyn," the estate of Alexander Leslie near Kingsville, Ont. With the death of his widow, an auction of the estate's fabulous contents is being held. Curious spectators at the estate's two mansions, which few persons had ever visited, saw the treasures collected by Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Leslie in years of globe-trotting. For two generations the Leslies had continued to build additions to their mansions and to add to the curios from all over the world. They are said to have set booby traps for intruders and carried revolvers to discourage visitors. — Central Press Canadian.

Guelph, Oct. 21 (CP)—Some 300 Junior Farmers from all parts of southern Ontario converged on the Ontario Agricultural College today for the 19th annual boys and girls inter-club contests.

Those competing in today's events are the best judges in their field among 1,345 boys and girls clubs throughout the Province. The clubs have a total membership of 11,500.

A full day of judging got under way this morning as the expert junior judges competed in placing dairy and beef cattle, swine, poultry, grain and potatoes.

Destitute Woman, Placed on Bus, Doesn't Arrive

Brampton, Oct. 21 (CP)—Some time ago jail officials here placed a destitute 68-year-old woman on a Toronto-bound bus, where Salvation Army officials promised to care for her. She never showed up and police and Salvation Army officials are conducting a search for her.

Earlier this month the woman, penniless and without friends, was taken to jail when she was found sleeping on the verandah of a house at nearby Bolton.

Cash gifts totalling $100 and an offer of a monthly pension of $50 from an anonymous Toronto businessman have been received. But the aged woman can't be located.

OUT-OF-TOWN PERSONALS

Mrs. George Conners, 2nd of Thurlow, has returned home after attending the recent Baker-Mann wedding at Bridge Street United Church, Toronto, and also the silver anniversary of her daughter, Mrs. E. P. H. Fortner, (Verna).

WEDDINGS

CODLING—ROBINSON

A quiet, but pretty wedding was solemnized in Christ Church on Saturday evening, October 15, with the Rev. J. Grant Sparling officiating, when Winnifred Mary Robinson, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Robinson, became the bride of Charles Henry Codling, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. Codling, of Oshawa.

The bride was lovely in a powder blue suit with navy accessories and a corsage of pink roses.

The reception was held later in the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. Kirkpatrick.

Mr. and Mrs. Codling will reside in Oshawa.

JONES—STONEBURG

An autumn wedding was solemnized at the home of the bride's parents, 31 Frank Street, Belleville, on Saturday afternoon, October 15, when Berniece Adeline Stoneburg, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Stoneburg, Belleville, was united in marriage with Mr. Garnet Franklin Jones, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Jones, Trenton, Ontario. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. C. McCallum in a setting of ferns, and gladioli in pastel shades artistically arranged in tall standards. Pink and white streamers and white wedding bells also contributed to the bridal theme.

Accompanied by her father, who gave her in marriage, the bride walked down the stairs to the strains of the Wedding March from Wagner's "Lohengrin". She wore a gabardine suit of baby blue, a navy blue bonnet-shaped hat with veiling trim caught with a corsage of American Beauty roses. Navy blue accessories completed her ensemble.

Miss Lois Stoneburg was maid of honor for her sister, wearing a suit of grey gabardine, a small wine hat, matching accessories and a corsage of pink roses. The bridegroom was attended by his brother, Mr. Donald Jones.

The bride's table was centred with a three-tier wedding cake which had been made by the bride's aunt, Mrs. Leonard Stoneburg, of Oshawa. Tall tapers in silver candelabra, garden flowers and pink and white streamers also contributed to the decorations. Mrs. Leonard Stoneburg poured tea from the silver service.

Serving the buffet luncheon were girl friends of the bride, Miss Ruth Nevery and Miss Kay Bussey, of Belleville, assisted by Miss Jane Stoneburg, of Oshawa, the bride's cousin. The toast to the bride was proposed by the Rev. C. McCallum and responded to by the bridegroom.

Mr. and Mrs. Jones left later by motor amid showers of confetti and good wishes for Watertown and other American and Ontario points, and on their return will reside in Trenton, Ont. For travelling the bride donned a navy blue gabardine topcoat over her wedding ensemble.

BUSH—MOTT

Bridge Street United Church, Belleville, was the scene of a lovely wedding on Saturday, Oct. 15, at 3 p.m., when Shirley Jane, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Mott, 20 Bridge Street, Belleville, became the bride of Karl Robert Bush, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ray F. Bush, Sidney Street, Belleville. The Rev. F. R. Harbach officiated at the double ring ceremony, before a background of tall standards of white chrysanthemums tied with white satin bows, interspersed with tall white tapers also tied with white satin bows. The seats for the guests were designated by bows of white satin.

The wedding music was provided by Mrs. M. P. Duff, organist, and Mrs. G. R. Lawrenson, soloist, sang before the ceremony, "The Lord's Prayer", and during the signing of the register, "Because".

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was radiant in her bridal gown of ivory baronet satin with fitted basque waist, deep yoke of pearl net with narrow satin bertha collar embroidered in silk braid and seed pearls. A small Peter Pan collar edged the nylon neckline, and the basque was buttoned down the back, ending in a large satin bow. The hoop skirt featured a full circular panel, and long sleeves were long and tight-fitting, ending in slip-points over the wrists. Her full length veil of silk embroidered tulle illusion was caught by a corsage headdress of seed pearls, and she carried a shower bouquet of pink Delight roses and bouvardia.

Miss Jeanne Bennett-Poste was senior bridesmaid and Miss Mary Eva Gilmour, was junior bridesmaid. Both were gowned alike in autumn-leaf wine faille taffeta designed with full length bouffant skirts featuring tiered tucks. Their headdresses were of braided matching material, and they carried baskets of Pinochle roses and blue and white button 'mums, tied with blue and silver ribbon. Silver shoes completed their ensemble.

Little Miss Sylvia Anne Bush, sister of the bridegroom, was flower girl, dressed in her floor length frock of robin's egg blue faille taffeta, with sweetheart neckline, puffed sleeves, and full bouffant skirt, with narrow peplum. Her headdress was in coronet style of matching braided material, and she carried a basket of Pinochle roses and pink and white button 'mums tied with pink and silver ribbon.

Mr. Frank Bush, brother of the bridegroom, was groomsman, and Mr. Douglas Mott, brother of the bride, and Mr. Robert Mc-Millan, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, were ushers.

The reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, which was beautifully decorated with bronze and yellow 'mums. The bride's mother wearing a gown of forest green crepe, embroidered with old gold Rhinestone motifs, matching hat with black accessories, and corsage of cream roses, received the guests. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother, who wore a powder blue crepe suit with wine accessories, and corsage of cream roses.

For travelling the bride chose a wine colored gabardine suit with bustle back, white frilly blouse and navy blue suede accessories, and corsage of pink and white carnations. Upon their return from New York and other eastern points, Mr. and Mrs. Bush will reside in Belleville, Ont.

Prior to her marriage, the bride was honored at a kitchen shower given by Miss Kae Kerr, and Miss Mary Connolly, at the home of Mrs. John Govier, Parkwood Heights.

PICTON
Catholic District Teachers Convene At Picton

Picton. (Special)—The annual meeting of District No. 4 of the Ontario English Catholic Teachers' Association was held at St. Gregory's hall, Picton, on Saturday, October 15.

Registration began shortly after nine o'clock. At ten o'clock Reverend Father Cleary opened the convention with prayer and a greeting of welcome to the assembled teachers.

Business meeting occupied the time until twelve noon when Mrs. Nesbitt McKibbon, president of the Picton Branch of the St. John Ambulance Corps, demonstrated First Aid in the School. Mrs. McKibbon was assisted by Miss. Hunter and Miss McLellan. The members of St. Gregory's Parent-Teacher Association, as well as the teachers, expressed keen appreciation for this splendid lecture and demonstration.

Luncheon, provided by the courtesy of St. Gregory's Parent-Teacher Association, proved welcome interlude at one o'clock.

Speaks on English

The guest speaker, Vice Principal Emeritus of Queen's University, W. E. McNeill, M.A., Ph.D., D.C.L., L.L.D., F.R.S.C., was introduced by one of his former students, Rev. Father Cleary. Dr. McNeill, an artist in the use of the English language, chose as his topic "The King's English" and after stating the origin of the term outlined the use of English in Canada, the present and the future. The address was a real delight and its success may be judged from the number of resolutions to be more exact in choice of words henceforth.

Mr. Donald Baxter, M.P.P., briefly expressed his pleasure at being invited and in hearing so thought-provoking a discourse.

Other guests of honor were three of the members of St. Gregory's School Board, viz: R. J. Norman, Mr. David Harrington and Mr. Michael Finnegan.

Displays of Arts and Crafts by Rev. Sister Mary Anita, Miss Isabel McLellan, Mrs. Ennis Graves and Mr. Vernon McCaw, as well as posters and art pieces by the pupils of St. Gregory's School, added a decorative touch to the hall.

Examine Displays

The teachers spent much time examining the joint display of elementary books from fifteen educational publishers, courtesy of Miss Kathleen Doody of the Book Publishers' Branch of the Board of Trade of the City of Toronto.

Votes of thanks were tendered to the President, Rev. Sister Mary Domitilla, by Rev. Sister Mary Lenore, M.A., principal of St. Michael's High School, Belleville, and to the ladies who provided the luncheon, by Rev. Sister Mary Chrysostom, principal of St. Carthagh's School in Tweed.

The nominating committee returned the following slate of officers:

President, Rev. Sister Mary Andrew, Belleville; Vice President, Rev. Sister Mary Leo, Bailawa; Secretary Treasurer, Rev. Sister Mary Teresa, B.A., Belleville.

Wedding Plans Will be Delayed Through Injuries

Toronto, Oct. 21. (CP)—Joan Syms will not get married tomorrow after all, although she had said previously that the accident which put her in the hospital would not interfere with wedding plans.

Injuries sustained in an automobile accident last week at Bracebridge proved more serious than first supposed, so the bride-to-be who met her fiance through an accident and intended to get married on schedule despite an accident, will have to wait.

Her mother, Mrs. Francis Syms, said today Miss Syms has a fractured skull and will be in hospital for three weeks. The wedding has been postponed a month. Then the girl will have to return to the hospital for plastic surgery because of face injuries.

Michael Creob Addresses Christ Church A.Y.P.A.

Christ Church senior A.Y.P.A. led a youth rally Wednesday evening. The rally began with a sing-song led by Ed. Waterhouse, after which the young people joined together in a short worship and candlelight service in the chapel.

At the conclusion of the worship service, Mr. Michael Creob, speaker of the evening was introduced by the Reverend W. E. Mann. Mr. Creob a theological student at Trinity College, Toronto, spoke about the outdoors on life of today's average man. Then he referred to the true Christians, both past and present.

In Mr. Creob's concluding remarks, he discussed the A.Y.P.A. of today. In many cases, this organization like many people today, is self-centered. Mr. Creob also suggested to the members many ways to improve their organization in order that the young people would be working for the church and not for themselves.

While the members enjoyed refreshments they discussed the new suggestions presented to them during the evening.

Jean Lambe and Doug Tufford were in charge of the evening's refreshments.

Quinte Belles Hold Harvest Supper and Dance

The ladies society of the Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen under the capable management of Mrs. J. W. Dougherty as convener with Mrs. J. A. Ferris as co-convener, held an enjoyable harvest supper and dance at the Orange Hall, Church Street, last Monday evening.

Harvest fruit, flowers and autumn leaves adorned the laden tables. As the guests were seated the members served well-arranged plates. Upon leaving their tables the guests were shown to the upper hall which was decorated with colored bulbs and balloons.

Mr. Don Foster, as master of ceremonies, then proceeded with a very entertaining program and dance.

Tap dance by Deanna Mansfield accompanied by Mrs. Ferris at the piano; Sylvia Dee, piano solo; guitar and mouth-organ solo by Mr. John Kingston; an imitation and Negro act by Rushmouth Foote; vocal duet by Genevieve Tracey and Lois Galbraith; saxaphone solo by Bob Young accompanied by Mrs. Graham; vocal solo by Genevieve Tracey accompanied by Mrs. Graham; vocal solo by little Jane Grey, accompanied by Mrs. Ferris; bagpipes and song by Jamie Clark, and a humorous skit by several members and husbands.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

A "Good Kid" Who Got Into Trouble

I am always very touched by letters from teen-age boys and girls who are anxious to help friends of theirs in trouble.

The latest such letter to reach my desk comes from a girl, and concerns a boy who got into such serious trouble that he is currently in jail.

"I still love this boy very much," she writes, "because I think he was got in with the wrong gang of kids. I have been down to see him, but without telling my father and mother, because they don't approve of him now. He asked me if I would get steady with him when he got out, and I said I would.

"My mother and father say that I will never be able to go with him again, but I think too much of him to go back on him. When I was down at the jail to see him, the policeman said that he was a good kid, and that they thought a lot of him.

"When I go out with any other boy I don't feel right about it, because I keep thinking of this boy and I just don't know what to do. Will you please answer this in your column as soon as you can, for I am very troubled."

I am extremely sorry that this appealing young girl has parents who seem to have less heart and less understanding than she herself has. I wish they were the sort of parents upon whom their daughter could depend to cooperate with her in investigating this situation and straightening could be done about it. It seems to me that if the police believe this boy to be a "good kid", there must be something there that is worth some wise and sympathetic attention. Perhaps it is a home situation that is at fault, or some other situation that is basically responsible for whatever happened. The girl does not tell me what he did to get himself into such a bad spot.

What this girl might do is to go to some responsible older man in town—perhaps the minister of a church or a priest or rabbi—and tell him all about the incident and ask if something can't be done to help this lad get on his feet again. There might be someone at the local Y who could be appealed to, and who would know what action to take. Or it might be that the principal of the high school could be interested in the case.

The girl should realize that this is not something a teen-ager like herself can handle alone, but that, to get any results, an adult must be permitted to take the initiative in the matter. All she can do is to be "by" and interest someone in the boy, meanwhile continuing to help by letting him know she is his loyal friend and has faith in him.

Fashion Flashes

CONTRAST is a focal point of many of the new furs. Creamy white leopard goes the tuxedo and turn-back cuffs of a handsome coat of inky black Alaska sealskin. Cut on loose lines in back. It is the popular 36-inch length.

THERE'S NEWS in the collection of one designer who has come up with fur or fur-trimmed hats to match the lining and trim of cloth coats. Red felt, with flower appliques in grey squirrel, was shown with a matching red coat, cut on wrappy lines, and lined with gray squirrel.

VERY KIND to the budget is the new crop of match-and-mix clothes. Tweeds, suedes, velveteens, corduroys and jersey, done in luscious colors, lend a glow to the budget departments, as well as to the more expensive sports and casual fashion scene. Parma violet, used for a softly tailored shirtwaist type blouse in soft wool jersey, teams up well with a slim skirt of deep violet velveteen, adding up to a handsome ensemble.

TAGGING ALONG with the wrappy silhouette is the dolman line. Wool jersey in beautiful colors is used for a cozy blouse cut with deep dolman sleeve. A wide, circular yoke, a deep midriff and the lower part of the long sleeves and turn-back cuffs are all of ribbed knit.

FLUID LINES mark many of the new frocks, especially those of fine wool jersey. Deep black wool jersey on a silk back is used for an easy afternoon frock with flanges of black satin flanking the deep, softly curved neckline. Gauntlet cuffs of the satin finish the long, tight sleeves.

NEW LINES are emerging in the newest high fashion collections. One is a drapery (gypsy) line, traced in the skirt of a full length evening dress of white silk damask. It shows a curved-up, wrap-over front, diagonal pleatings and pinch draping at the sides. Intricate, but most handsome.

To keep strawberries moist, wrap in waxed paper, cover them with a cloth wrung out of cold water and keep in cool place. They will keep fresh for hours.

GOOD MANNERS

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

It's so easy to write correct reply to formal wedding invitation

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

How does one answer a "please reply" to a wedding invitation when the people who sent the invitation are strangers? Would it be proper to smilee the answer with the wedding present, or, if the gift is brought to the house, give an oral answer?

Anxious

If the wedding invitation is a formal invitation that includes an invitation to the reception, you must send a formal answer . . . whether or not you know the ones who sent the invitation. Write and mail this reply at once. The important point is that the hosts must know how many guests to provide for! Reach for a piece of double-sheeted letter-paper, and write the reply like this:

... Mr. and Mrs. John Alden ... accept with pleasure ... the kind invitation of .... Mr. and Mrs. Johnson .... for Tuesday, the 21st of December

That's easy . . . isn't it?

Poor "Timing" for Morning Reception

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. My daughter is to be married at our Temple, and we are inviting all guests to the ceremony and also to the reception afterward. The ceremony is to be held at 11.30 in the morning, and the reception to follow will last until 2 o'clock, at which hour we are planning to give, at a different place, a wedding dinner for the members of the immediate families and a few intimate friends. Do you think that on the invitation-cards to the reception I should mention 2 o'clock as the hour for the reception to end?

2. At the reception we plan to serve cocktails and canapes. Would it be proper to have the wedding cake on display at the reception, when it is to be served only to the guests at the dinner?

The bride's mother

1. I strongly urge you to plan to bring the reception to an end at an hour that will be before, not after, a usual luncheon-hour. . . since at the reception you are serving only pre-luncheon items. With the ceremony at 11 o'clock, (if possible) or promptly at 11:30, the reception might end at 1 o'clock or 1:30 at the latest. To have the reception purposefully to a close (say between one and one-fifteen) the bride might throw her bouquet, and then she and the bridegroom would depart for the place where the dinner is to be held. This makes the departure of the guests natural as far as the hour is concerned . . . if you name 2 o'clock as the end of the reception the guests might expect (and they would be quite justified) that a "wedding breakfast", which is really a luncheon, is to be served.

2. It would be very bad taste indeed to have the wedding cake "on display" at the reception and not have the bride cut it and have it served to the guests. My suggestion is that you either have the cake featured at the reception, or have two cakes, the larger one for the reception, and a smaller one at the dinner. However since all the dinner guests will be at the reception, why not serve the cake—festively—at the reception?

That In-law Ending

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

To settle a discussion we are having, will you please answer this question: When a wife is speaking about her husband's parents or a husband is speaking about his wife's parents, should they say, "my mother-in-law and father-in-law" or "my mother and father-in-law?"

J. R.

The "in-law" should be added to both "mother" and "father" . . . because each is an "in-law". If you say "my mother and father-in-law" this would mean that you are speaking of your own mother and your husband's father. (Or, instead of either "in-law" wording, a husband or wife often prefers the more gracious sounding "Mary's mother and father" or "John's mother and father".)

Presto Music Club

The Church School Hall of St. Andrew's Church was the setting for the October meeting of the Presto Music Club on Monday evening last. Hostesses for the evening were Mesdames A. C. Locke, C. E. MacDonald, C. Earle and G. Wright.

Members and guests enjoyed the following program:

Piano, "Polonaise" Op. 20 No. 1 (Chopin), Victorine Shadenman; vocal, "Shepherd's Cradle Song", (Somervell), Vy Day Stevens; piano, (Del Riego), Norma Arkles; banjo, "Barcarole" (from "Tales of Hoffman") Ella Wilma Allison; piano, "Impromptu in A Flat" (Schubert), Clifford Temple; vocal, "Melisande" (Alma Goetz), "All the Fun of the Fair" (Easthope-Martin), "Dawn" (Pearl Curran), Margaret Robbins; vocal, "Rain" (Pearl Curran), "A Birthday" (Cowan), Ann Davidson; piano "Allegretto" (Hydan), "Elegy" (Nollett), Clifford Temple; vocal "One Day When We Were Young" (Strauss), Frances Aspinall; piano, "Rhapsody in B. Minor" (Brahms), William Dromey.

A guest on the evening's program gave the Club two very unusual solos on oboe—"Concerto for Oboe" (Corelli-Barbirolli) and "Sicilliana" (Alec Templeton) by Lewis Lambert.

There has never been a time when sensible, well-designed, comfort-giving shoes were more available or more decorative, and never a time—it seems to your reporter—when so many women hobbled around on excessively high heels or wore shoes that do not make for foot health. Shoe manufacturers employ experts that know how human hoofs should be shod. They make these offerings. The wise woman accepts them and is grateful. The foolish one selects those of freaky pattern, perhaps to make herself conspicuous, or locomotes painfully on heels that throw her body out of balance, set her nervous system to bawling for relief.

The model that looks well on an other woman may be the worst choice for you

Whatever the individual characteristics of leg, ankle and foot, you can bring out your best by choosing wisely from the vast repertoire of charming footwear now on the counters. You cannot go wrong if you will remember that being comfortable and preserving foot health is the first step in being graceful and attractive to the eye. That means getting a shoe that fits properly, one that has plenty of room in the uppers and a leather sole to give your foot the flexible support and tonic effect it requires.

Remember, too, that the model that looks nifty on another woman may be the worst choice for you. So, although fashion-is imitation, for the best results in footwear, go along on your own. Think of yourself first; this policy will pay dividends in comfort.

The short girl who wears extremely high heels is off on the wrong goodlooks foot; they will merely emphasize short stature. Flat heels are also a wrong choice; they will make her appear infantile. If you happen to be a pint-size girl make the most of your dainty figure. Taller women with they were cuties, usually. Platform shoes are all right for this type of lassie. They enable each heel height to be raised unobtrusively and their leather soles give a proper cushioning support.

If the ankle is large, wear a trim shoe with a high-rising effect; short-appearing shoes will accentuate bulkiness. Avoid any shoe that forces the flesh to protrude over the top; the effect is anything but attractive.

Tall women should wear heels that are moderately high. They should concentrate on good proportions and body balance, and that is where shoes come in. A one-inch heel will cut height a bit and it is a nice idea to find models that are multi-colored, or of nubby textures. If the tall girl likes high-riding pumps she can choose them with up-swept fronts or select draped or gathered vamps. Contrasting stitching on leather soles will often serve to lend glamor to the feet and legs.

Take the shoe clerk into your confidence. It may surprise you to find how much help he can give you. Have an open mind and let his suggestions sink in.

Sunday School Lesson of the Week

Our Defence is Sure

By ROY L. SMITH.

M very frequently happens that one must know a good deal more than to be found in the Bible in order to really understand the Bible. This is the great contribution that the scholars make to Bible study.

The Ancient Belgium and Holland

The two little Hebrew kingdoms of Israel and Judah were the Belgium and Holland of the ancient world.

Up in the northeast, in the upper reaches of the Tigris and Euphrates valleys, there lay the powerful kingdom of Assyria — young, powerful, avaricious, brutal and ambitious. Down in the southwest lay Egypt along the lush valley of the Nile, also rich but voluptuous, enervated, decadent and unscrupulous.

Between the two, the little Hebrew kingdoms — the certain victims in the case any war should develop between the two giants.

Two Political Problems

Each of the little kingdoms faced an entirely different problem of survival. Israel, the northern kingdom, stretched from the desert clear across to the Mediterranean. It was impossible for an Assyrian army to march in attack on Egypt without crossing Israel's territory. All world politics became then of vital concern to Israel's kings.

The Sunday School lesson for October 23: "Isaiah Teaches Trust in God", Isaiah 7; 12:2; 26-26; 30: 1-17.

Judah, on the other hand, was an inland nation with no access to the sea. A corridor at least ten miles wide separated the territory of the kings of Judah from the Mediterranean. Along this bridge the armies of the Assyrians might march without ever disturbing Judah. It would have been possible for the smaller of the two little kingdoms to have kept out of world conflict.

Isaiah Was an Isolationist

It was the firm conviction of Isaiah that it was altogether unnecessary for Judah to become involved in any conflict. He feared Assyria and he despised Egypt, and dedicated his prophetic career to an effort to keep his nation free from any entangling alliances.

But his political policy was more than a mere personal opinion concerning military or diplomatic strategy. It was the supreme conviction of his life that God had chosen the Hebrew race for some devine destiny, and he was consequently sure that he would never allow it to be crushed under the wheels of history if it placed its trust implicitly in Jehovah. To seek an alliance with any pagan power was to the prophet a repudiation of the nation's God and a sure invitation to seek refuge in oblivion.

A Minority Leader

Throughout the entire period of the prophet's career he appeared as the leader of no more than a minority of the people, and at times he was compelled to stand almost entirely alone. The professional priests attacked him, the aristocrats undertook to discredit him, the rich landlords and money-lenders hated him because of his attacks on their despicable methods, and kings feared him because they could not dismiss the conviction that he spoke to them in the name of God.

His Gospel of Salvation

Isaiah's preaching savored somewhat of much of the preaching to be heard today from Christian pulpits both Catholic and Protestant. During the war Christian preachers of all faiths in Europe stood up in their pulpits and dared to say to the conqueror that the hand of God was against him. In some of the lands today under the harsh heel of Communism other preachers are standing out with the same courage and fortitude.

Reduced to its simplest terms Isaiah's Gospel declared that there was a moral authority in the world which was invincible and eternal, that any immorality was doomed, that the nation which put its trust in moral principles which had the approval of God might suffer but it would survive.

This is a message that needs to be preached from every capital in the world today. No nation is any stronger than the justice of its cause and the righteousness of its rule.

USE NYLON NETS

St. Thomas, Oct. 20—(CP)—Gill net fishermen Wednesday night discussed the use of nylon nets—first used this year—with Dr. W. K. Markness, Ganda Division of Fisheries and Wildlife. The 150 north shore fishermen wanted to know whether yardage should be reduced and meshes increased in size to prevent over-production. No decisions were made. Nylon nets are said to be more efficient than other types.

BOG THREATENS

Whitemouth, Man. — (CP) — The newly - organized chamber of commerce is taking steps to stop the large, growing bog northeast of Whitemouth. Already once-cultivated farms have been ruined by the bog and others are being threatened.

PICTON

Fire Destroys Truck, Driver Not Injured

Picton—A truck owned by L. R. Cluting was destroyed by fire yesterday. Cluting escaped injury. He had just left the R.C.S.A. (A.A.) station with a load of waste paper and ashes. It is believed the ashes set the paper aflame. Though the fire department responded to the call, they could not save the truck.

MOUNT PLEASANT

Rawdon—Mount Pleasant Two-by-Two Club convened at the church hall and the Rev. H. C. Vaclavik was in charge of the devotional period. Mrs. Merle Spencer read the Bible lesson and Mrs. Milford Wrightman gave the topic on "Neighborliness".

Mrs. Malcolm Sharp delighted with a piano solo and Mrs. Marguerite McMullen sang a vocal selection.

Mr. and Mrs. Menne Huizings were welcomed to the club, as they are the new Dutch family which arrived in May.

Mr. Eric Summers read an address to Mr. and Mrs. Richard Ferrier, and Mr. John Morgan made the presentation of a towel set.

Mr. and Mrs. Lindsay McThoughton provided a contest and games.

Refreshments were served and the club dispersed following "The Friendship Circle".

Mr. and Mrs. Ferrier left this week and they will be stationed near Ottawa.

ARDEN

Arden.—Mr. and Mrs. Wilmer Ficiler and family, also Mr. and Mrs. N. H. Gendron, spent Sunday with friends in Belleville.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Loyst have returned home after spending a few days with the latter's sister, Mrs. Anna Loyst at Flinton.

Mr. Albert Marshall has returned home after spending a week with his daughters, at Smiths Falls.

Mr. Albert Hornbeck of Saskatoon, is visiting his mother, Mrs. Oscar Woodcock.

Mrs. Elizabeth Scryver spent Thursday with Mrs. Wm. Loyst.

Mr. Charlie Delyea, of Sturgeon Falls, has returned home after spending some time with his nephew, Mr. Wm. Delyea, and Mrs. Delyea.

Miss Betty Clancy and brother, Bobbie, of Henderson, visited their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. W. Loyst, Saturday evening.

Mrs. George Nugent has returned home after spending a few days with friends in Kingston.

Mr. Leslie Marshall and sunt, Mrs. E. Scryver, of Arden, also Mrs. Molly Arney, of Henderson, visited friends at Ranville and Carleton Place, recently.

MARMORA

Marmora—In continuation of Sunday's seventy-fifth anniversary services at St. Paul's Anglican Church, another auspicious service was held there on Monday evening. Due to the fact that its corner stone was laid on September 1st, 1874 by Right Wor. Bro. S. S. Lazier, D.D.G.M. of Prince Edward District, assisted by other distinguished Masons at that time, it was deemed appropriate on the present occasion to invite Marmora A.F. & A.M. No. 222 and visiting brethren to a special service and subsequent informal reception in the Town Hall.

The rector, Rural Dean J. M. Brownlie was fortunate to secure Right Rev. W. L. Weight, D.D., Bishop of Algoma, as Grand Chaplain of the Order as special preacher. For this service the church was again well filled. The rector took the opening prayers and made announcements. Rev. P. A. Rickard of Norwood read the lesson and Canon W. E. Kidd of Deseronto took the Slate prayers. Rev. A. S. McConnell acted as Bishop's Chaplain. Other robed clergy were Rev. C. S. Wright, Bancroft; Rev. E. M. Caldwell, Shannonville; Rev. A. Anderson, Stirling and Rev. F. F. Downing, Tweed. The choir rendered the anthem "Break Forth Into Joy", Caleb Sergeant with La R. Rundle taking the solo part.

Striking Sermon

Bishop Wright delivered a striking sermon on the text "Bring them hither to me". Applying the story of the feeding of the five thousand to modern people and Masonic brethren in turn, he declared that never was there a time when the world stood so much in need of God. The disciples, he said, were faced with a definite crisis. One important part of the story is apt to be overlooked. St. Mathew puts in a sideline referring to the words of Jesus "Bring them hither to me". That is what he is saying to church people and Masons today, "Bring what you have to me and I will bring your grace to bear upon it. All this comes to us at the time when pagansitic truths of mankind are presented to us to be devoured. So many have so much to live with and not much to live for. It is the Church which is peculiarly fitted to proclaim good news and it is up to men to follow the teaching. Masonry too is peculiarly fitted to present the truths of God to mankind. Masons are called to give to others something good to eat and all alike should be militant evangelists.

Extends Good Wishes

At the reception, the rector read a letter in which Rev. Father J. A. O'Neill of the Sacred Heart Church extended congratulations and good wishes and expressed regret at his inability to be present.

Reeve V. M. Lynch extended his personal congratulations and those of the village. He said he was one of the number who could say he could remember the four ministers who had been rectors. He wished the parish all success and prosperity.

Rev. G. D. Young said it was an honour for him to share in the commemoration. On behalf of the official board and members of the church, he extended congratulations. He trusted that the years of history before the church would be as interesting and prosperous as those behind. A handclasp having been given the visiting clergy, Bishop Wright spoke further words of congratulations and encouragement.

The rector voiced his thanks to all who had cooperated to make the anniversary so eventful and particularly alluded to the ladies and the choir and organist, Mrs. John Lough, oldest lady member of the parish present was asked to come forward to cut the anniversary cake, the gift of Mrs. N. A. Kilpatrick. Light refreshments were passed around, concluding a memorable evening in the history of the parish.

SALEM

Salem.—Mr. and Mrs. Leslie McLaren accompanied Mr. and Mrs. Roy Badgley to attend the ploughing match near Brantford.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Robinson attended Melrose United Church Anniversary Services on Sunday morning and Carmel Anniversary Services on Sunday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Owen Roblin also Mrs. Willis Brenton of Corbyville, called on Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Sills on Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Geddes also Mrs. G. H. Curtis, Saginaw, Mich., called on Mr. and Mrs. Will Robertson and Mrs. S. Haight on Friday night. Mr. Geddes and Mrs Curtis are nephew and niece of the late Mrs. Sarah Haight and cousins of Mrs. Robertson.

On Saturday of last week several neighbors of Mr. Geo. Sills met at his farm with tractors and ploughs and held a ploughing bee. The following Monday neighbors of Mr. Clarence Hagerman held a ploughing bee on his farm. Mr. Sills is indisposed due to ill health, while Mr. Hagerman is indisposed due to burns received several weeks ago. A speedy recovery to good health is wished for both of them.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Robinson called on Mr. and Mrs. Jack Parrott, Kingston Road, on Sunday afternoon.

Mrs. S. Haight also Miss Joan Haight attended anniversary services at Melrose United Church on Sunday and were dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. E. Badgley. Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Badgley also were supper guests at the same home.

MARMORA

Marmora—Mrs. Wesley Buddy is visiting friends in Renfrew.

Mr. Tom Young spent a few days in Toronto last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Phillips quietly celebrated their emerald wedding anniversary on Monday. They were married in St. John's Anglican Church, Madoc, in October 17th 1894 by the late Reverend Mr. Burton.

Mr. and Mrs. L. R. Green spent the weekend with Mr. and Mrs. Maxwell Green in Fort Hope.

Miss Lena Sullivan of the Dominion Bank staff is spending a week's holidays in Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Moss spent the weekend with the former's parents at Woodstock.

Mr. and Mrs. V. Glover spent the weekend at Windsor.

DRIVE A NEW DODGE and one of the first things you'll notice is its riding smoothness. It's something more than the result of luxurious upholstery and "knee-level" seating comfort — it starts with the chassis.

On the right are described some of the outstanding chassis features which cushion road bumps . . . absorb shock and sway . . . eliminate vibration — to help bring you this smooth Dodge ride. In addition, the Dodge chassis has the ruggedness which assures you long, troublefree life — famous as Dodge Dependability.

Take a look at what Dodge gives you in beauty, roominess and performance. There's extra head and leg room, front and back . . . flashing performance of the powerful Dodge engine . . . extra smoothness of Fluid Drive on Custom models . . . and many other outstanding comfort, safety and performance features.

Let your Dodge dealer tell you why you'll drive more smoothly with Dodge . . . and low your dollars will go farther.

RUBBER INSULATION is a substantial contributor to the famous Dodge Floating Ride. There are soft, thick rubber cushions at all points of contact between the body and chassis. In addition, rubber limit bumpers on the springs eliminate hard metal-to-metal spring contact even under the most severe road conditions.

SHOCK ABSORBERS of "sea-leg" type are mounted on the rear axle to counteract sidesway. Dodge airplane-type double-action shock absorbers, front and rear, "rub out" road irregularities. Shock absorbers on the new Dodge have been raised 5 inches as added protection against flying stones and dirt.

FRAME CONSTRUCTION is box-type of double-channel, welded steel to give great stability, safety and long life. Front and rear bumpers are attached to the frame, the front bumper having a reinforcement plate for greater strength.

BALANCED WEIGHT DISTRIBUTION is an important factor in the smooth Dodge ride. The Dodge engine is located over the front axle and the rear seat is ahead of the rear wheels. The result is a car which holds the road and handles safely and easily. All passengers are cradled between the front and rear wheels where the ride is smoothest.

CHECK THESE "EXTRA" FEATURES WHICH ARE STANDARD EQUIPMENT ON THE NEW DODGE
Automatic electric clutch; Automatic ignition key starting; Rust-free alloy pistons; Four rings per piston; Low pressure tires; Chain camshaft drive; Oil bath air cleaner; Oil filter; Floating oil intake; Hotchkiss drive; Safety-lite wheels; Floating Power engine mountings; Chair-high seats; Full-width defroster vents.

"How do you make such lovely coffee, Joan?"

Joan makes lovely coffee but her recipe is no secret. It's simply this — buy Maxwell House and follow the rules on the container for making perfect coffee.

The Maxwell House flavor is distinctive because its blend is exclusive. Choice Latin-American coffees are blended by experts to combine the best features of many carefully chosen types. Radiant Roasting develops this wonderful blend to the peak of its flavor and goodness.

To win praise for your coffee ask your grocer for Maxwell House and make it according to instructions. Delicious Maxwell House costs only a fraction of a cent more per cup than the lowest-priced coffees sold!

IVANHOE

Rev. R.D. Duncanson Gives Stirring Message on 'Faith'

Ivanhoe—Anniversary services were held at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church on Sunday last. The board was fortunate to procure the Reverend R. D. Duncanson of Norwood, an outstanding young minister of the Presbyterian Church, who conducted the services for the day. This was his second time in five years that Mr. Duncanson had been invited to conduct anniversary services for St. Andrew's. The other occasion was during the time he served with the RCAF as Flight Lieut. at Trenton.

The occasion brought former members from distant points, and neighboring congregations joined in the worship. The weather was ideal and the day was made memorable by the large congregations and the inspiring messages.

In the morning, Mr. Duncanson on the subject "We Walk by Faith", as an introduction to his subject he spoke on the mistaken idea which was held by many, that "Faith" was a substitute for "knowledge" or that faith was a sort of dim uncertain kind of knowledge in place of true facts.

Mr. Duncanson pointed out "that faith in things and people, as these show themselves to be worthy of the trust is practical in our daily lives. So, our faith in God depends on God revealing Himself to us. "God has revealed Himself to man through Christ. Through Christ we come to know God. And through this knowledge, given to us by revelation in Christ, we have the gift of faith. "The faith therefore by which a Christian walks is not a one-legged faith; that is, the Christian does not walk by his own human reason only; nor does he walk blindly in an emotional acceptance of something that appeals to his heart. But faith, in the true Christian sense is an obedience of his whole personality to the God who has revealed Himself in Christ as the savior of the whole man, body, mind and spirit."

In the evening, Mr. Duncanson took as his text Matt. 16:24. "If any man come after Me let him deny himself, and take up his cross and follow Me." The speaker first pointed out that Jesus was, in this instance, speaking to His Disciples, and what our Lord said to the disciples, He says to all who will come after Him. "We make many decisions every day in every walk of life" said the guest speaker, and this challenge with which we are here confronted calls for us to make the greatest decision of all life.

"If we are to be disciples of Christ, we must do these three things: "Deny self", "Take up the Cross" and "Follow Him".

"This text calls upon us to deny self, that is we must abandon all self interest, all self importance, all self sufficiency, that is the negative aspect of our text. The more positive aspect is that we must take up our cross. Take up the interest of Christ, and His Church, as the main interest in all life. This task is to be done, not in our strength, but in the strength of the all sufficient one, Christ. The taking up of this master interest the work of Christ, must be done by following Him. We must follow Him in His thinking of others first; we must follow Him as he speaks words of love, and comfort to those in need; we must follow Him in His acts of kindness. But most of all, we must follow Him in doing the Father's will wherever we are, in whatever we do and in whatever we say. "If any man will come after Me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross and follow Me."

Special Music

Special music was under the direction of the organist, Miss Bessie Fleming. At the morning worship the choir gave an anthem "Walking in the King's Highway", Misses Margaret Haggerty and Joan McCurdy sang a duet "O Love of Christ."

At the evening service, Mrs. William Grant of Holloway sang "The Silent Voice". The anthem "From Every Stormy Wind that Blows" was rendered by the choir with Mrs. Grant singing the soprano obligato. At the conclusion of the sermon, Misses Margaret Haggerty and Joan McCurdy sang a duet "Take My Life."

The thank offering amounted to $491.

SMOKE JUMPERS RESCUE FIREWATCHER IN NORTH

Prince Albert, Sask., Oct. 1—(CP)— A Saskatchewan government rescue plane landed Friday Thursday with a para-rescue team and a 21-year-old provincial government firewatcher who had been stranded in muskeg country 100 miles north. The two smoke jumpers, George Horn and Jeep McKay jumped to help firewatcher Olie Wickers, stranded when a small lake from over and prevented the pontoon-equipped plane from landing.

CAPTURE OF A CITY, CHINESE STYLE

One of the incongruous aspects or the China se civil war is the way Nationalist troops hold on to a city until the Communists come within shooting distance and, then pack up and move out. The evacuation of Canton on Oct. 14 ran true to the pa tern. While Red armies camped on the northern suburbs, by agreement, Nationalist soldiers, top, mar ched out in good order to the southwest. Above, peaceful sa Sunday afternoon in a Canadian village is this scene in Canton, just after the city was evacuated by Nationalist troops, and just before Communist troops, who had been camped in the northern suburbs, moved in to take over. Barbed wire trestles, used for roadblocks, have been pushed to one side of the street. — Central Press Canadian.

Disapproval of Separate Schools Voiced by Anglican Clergyman

Ottawa, Oct. 21.—(CP)— An Anglican clergyman voiced disapproval yesterday of Roman Catholic separate schools in Ontario.

Ven. W. A. Townshend, Archdeacon of London, Ontario said separate schools are no longer necessary now that religious instruction is given in public schools.

Archdeacon Townshend, president of the Ontario Public School Trustees and Ratepayers Association, told the association: "The privilege of the separate schools was given to the Roman Catholics because of their plea for the opportunity to teach their Roman Catholic faith.

Open Opportunity

"Now that such opportunity is given to them in the public schools, through the broad and flexible regulations pertaining to the religious instruction program why have separate schools at all?

"No longer dare Roman Catholic clergy brand our public schools as being Godless and lacking in things spiritual."

In his presidential address to 80 delegates at the opening of the association's two-day annual meeting, he said a policy "which divides children in their most impressive years cannot achieve that unity we all so earnestly desire."

Miss Thea Davidson, a delegate from East York, said the association should be "on guard against developing the same sectarian spirit we deplore in others."

"Let's remember that Ontario is not the only province in this Dominion", she said. "In Quebec the Protestants are in a minority and we want separate schools there."

J. D. Mills of Toronto, secretary-treasurer of the association and managing editor of its publication, The Areo, recalled that reason the magazine was born seven years ago in order to let trustees throughout the province know "of the many aggressive attempts of separate schools to obtain public funds for sectarian teaching."

"There are those who erroneously class us as anti-Catholic", said Mr. Mills.

Ticket for One Purpose

"Nothing could be farther from the truth. We only point out that separate schools exist for the one and only purpose of indoctrinating Roman Catholic children in the Roman Catholic faith and practices, and inasmuch as these schools ask for public funds for that purpose, we find it necessary once in a while, to expose some of the things for which they stand."

Delegates on the platform at the opening session of the conference included vice-president Lorne Shantz of Kitchener.

STIRLING

Sister Hilda McGowan Instals New Staff Of Officers

Stirling.—The Installation and investiture of the officers of Laurel Rebekah, No. 211, took place in the lodge room on Tuesday evening, with a good attendance of members.

Sister Hilda McGowan, of Marmor, District Deputy President of District No. 4, was the installing officer, and carried out her duties in a most impressive manner. She was assisted by her staff of officers from Oakdale Lodge No. 134, Madoc.

The District Deputy President who was introduced by P.N.G. Sister Edna Fox, was welcomed by the Noble Grand, Sister Marion Heath, and installed the following officers:

P.N.G., Sis. Marion Heath.
N.G., Sis. Laura Shortt.
V.G., Sis. Hazel Mumby
Rec. Sec., Sis. Mildred Morrow.
Fin. Sec., Sis. Gena Spry.
Treas., Sis. Lyda McKee.
Warden, Sis. Bessie Patterson.
Conductor, Sis. Laura Brown
Chaplain, Sis. Marion Wells
R.S.N.G., Sis. Mabel Meggison.
L.S.N.G., Sis. Ethel Duffin
R.S.V.G., Sis. Isabel McIntosh.
L.S.V.G., Sis. Anne Brown.
I.G., Sis. Mabel Barlow.
O.G., Sis. Dora Coulter.
Pianist, Sis. Erma Clancy.

During the evening, Sister Ethel Duffin read an address to Sis. McGowan, District Deputy President, and Sister Mildred Morrow presented her with a gift on behalf of Laurel Lodge No. 211.

The retiring Noble Grand, Sister Marion Heath, was also presented with a Past Grand's Jewel, and voiced her appreciation to the officers and members for their co-operation and support throughout the past year.

She also thanked the lodge for the jewel and complimented the District Deputy President on the impressive manner in which she conducted the ceremony of installation.

Brief addresses of thanks were also given by Sister Laura Shortt, Noble Grand, and Sister Hazel Mumby, Vice Grand.

Following the installation refreshments were served and a social hour enjoyed.

Finance Minister Plays Santa Claus Twice This Year

But so far as the little taxpayer was concerned, he could as well have called off Thursday night's second budget visit.

For the finance minister unloaded his pack of gifts for Canadians last March, and in this reintroduction of his 1949-50 budget there was nothing to cause the man-in-the-street to throw his hat in the air.

Spread across the country, the minor tax cuts will run to something under $1 a head per year for each Canadian.

In all, they won't amount to more than $11,000,000 a year.

Among individuals, the only ones who will benefit to any noticeable extent from Thursday night's budget are users of fuel oil for heating and lighting, and holders of preferred stock in Canadian companies.

The budget slices off the eight-per-cent sales tax on fuel oil of this kind, which might mean around a cent a gallon if it is passed to the customer.

Make up Increase

But, as it works out, about all the cut will do for many householders is to make up for an increase just put into effect by oil companies as a consequence of dollar devaluation.

The oil tax reduction is expected to amount to $10,000,000 altogether—including what is saved by users of industrial oil.

Something less than $1,000,000 will be the amount saved to holders of preference stock, who will be able to charge up 10 per cent of their dividends against their person tax bill. In the earlier budget, this concession had been given only to common stock holders.

Aim of that move was to stimulate investment in the share capital of Canadian companies.

The third—and last—tax reduction is, by Mr. Abbott's admission, "very small". It cuts the excise tax on apple cider and other weak wines from $2 to 25 cents a gallon. It's aimed at benefitting the apple industry, rather than the consumer.

It Would Seem That Albert is Final Winner

Baltimore, Oct. 21.—(AP)— When he won a commission in France in 1944, Albert Miller raised his semi-home allotment to $170 a month.

The United States Army got it mixed up and made it $270. While Miller was discharged he was told: "You owe us $2,000. Please remit." Miller paid.

Then, early last year the army wrote again: "You owe us $2,300. Please remit."

Miller carefully put the letter away for a possible contingency. It came a day or two ago, a letter which said, in effect:

"You owe us $2,300. Please remit."

NEIGHBORS PITCH IN TO HELP DISABLED FARMER

Good neighbors, indeed, are friends of Mort Corman, of St. Catharines, Ont., seen with his wife, who pitched in to help on farm when Mort was disabled by a post-hole digger which cut off his right foot. They are also taking up a collection which they hope will be big enough to pay his hospital bills and buy him an artificial leg.—Central Press Canadian.

Thirteen volunteers filled Corman's silo and performed various other jobs on place, asking no reward other than having satisfaction of helping their injured friend. Corn volunteers, Allen Coombe, is seen treating his matched roan Belgians to a helping of corn after a hard day's work on Corman's farm.—Central Press Canadian.

Daylight Raids by Armed Gangs Bring New Terror to Rangoon

Rangoon, Oct. 21 (AP)—Daylight raids by armed gangs have brought a new terror to Rangoon, capital of Burma, where violence has increased since the dawn of independence.

Flying bullets heighten the terror when gangsters shoot it out with police on the streets and public highways. Uniformed gangs using fast moving jeeps show a persistent contempt for the law and those trying to enforce it.

Police records show no one is safe, whether government official, military personnel or ordinary civilian. The gangs strike with the intensity of a jungle beast, swiftly, silently and precisely, then disappear into the forest of thatched dwellings which ring the city.

Officially, the gangsters are described as bandits. But it is also admitted officially that they may be Communists, or army deserter rebels racing into the city to replenish by plunder their stocks of arms and stores needed to continue their anti-government campaign.

They recall a raid at the northern suburb of Amayut, five miles from the city, when a gang of 200 surrounded the town and for two hours ransacked every house in the area.

No one was spared. They cordoned off a movie house and robbed every member of the audience. Women were stripped and left nude by the roadside. Guards posted at strategic points battled police reinforcements with armored cars while the main body escaped with its booty.

Another raid the police remember with embarrassment was on the government civil supplies treasury in the heart of the city, next door to a police station.

A dozen men, armed with Sten guns and heavy-calibre revolvers over-powered the sick-bay guard and burst into the room where scores of traders were depositing advance money for rice and canned goods. The bandits escaped through a rear exit with nearly 25,000 rupees as the police drove up.

UN Awaits Russia's Next Move in Stalin-Tito Fight

No Prospect Soviet Bloc Nations Would Walk Out

LADY AMBASSADOR

The wife of an artist and the mother of two children, Mrs. Eugenie Anderson, Red Wing, Minn., was nominated by President Truman as ambassador to Denmark. She is the first woman in U.S. history to be offered such a diplomatic rank. The other U.S. woman diplomat, Mrs. Perle Mesta, representative to Luxembourg, is a minister. — Central Press Canadian.

Lake Success, N. Y., Oct. 21— (CP) — The United Nations today carried on with its routine business, aware that its root did not fail in following the election of Yugoslavia to the Security Council over Russia's vehement protests.

Nobody walked out. It appeared that nobody will walk out.

It left the United Nations wondering what were the "painful consequences" Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky of Russia warned of before the 58-member General Assembly yesterday picked Yugoslavia in preference to Russian-supported Czechoslovakia.

There was no indication when the consequences might come.

A Czechoslovak Embassy spokesman in London said Thursday night that there is no prospect that the Soviet bloc nations would walk out of the United Nations as the result of the Yugoslav victory.

"No doubt," he said, "this is what many western countries would like us to do."

But Ambassador Jean Acheson of the United States said Thursday night he didn't foresee any rift in the U. N. because of the election.

The Soviet Ukraine, which now sits as Russia's only teammate on the Security Council, doesn't vote in matters European seat until the end of the year. There was every indication that Russia and satellites until then at least, would pursue their usual course. They said Yugoslavia's election over Czechoslovakia would never be considered legal.

Vitriolic Blast

Vishinsky Thursday followed up his vague threats only with a vitriolic blast at Yugoslavia and her supporters in one of the most tense sessions in U. N. history.

Yugoslavia, India and Ecuador were elected to replace the Soviet Ukraine, Canada and Argentina on the 11-member council. The retiring countries end their two-year terms Dec. 31.

Canada, however, will take up duties on the economic and social council to which she was elected with five other countries. The Colombian secretary on the 18-member council from 1946 to 1948.

The election by the 58-member General Assembly of the Security Council went more quickly than expected with Yugoslavia receiving 39 votes — just enough to win — on the second ballot. Czechoslovakia got 16.

BISHOPS CALL UPON PRIESTS TO SHARE SUFFERING

In Secret Letter Priests Requested Not to Accept Wage Increases

Prague, Oct. 21 (AP)—Czechoslovakia's Roman Catholic bishops declared today the communist government had turned the country into a "suffering nation".

The bishops called upon Catholic priests to share the suffering of these "thankful times". Particularly, the church leaders said, priests should reject the wage increases offered to the clergy under the government's new laws controlling the church.

Government wage increases should be rejected, the bishops said in a secretly-circulated letter, especially "at this time when tens of thousands of our fellow-men and other citizens are abducted from their homes and hundreds of thousands suffer in prisons and labor camps."

The bishops delivered the message to the country's 7,000 priests through the clandestine courier system set up after the suppression of the Catholic press. The church and the government have acknowledged that some priests and laymen have been jailed for participating in this underground communication channel.

The bishops bitterly condemned two laws for control of the churches enacted last February by the communist-controlled Czechoslovak parliament. The bishops said these laws aimed at the "total subjugation" of the churches and the "liquidation" of the dominant Roman Catholic Church.

This stand of the church authorities was taken at a secret meeting of bishops or their deputies held in Prague last week, three days before the church bills were passed by parliament.

VETERANS TO MEET

St. Catharines, Oct. 21 — (CP) — Seven hundred veterans of the Lincoln and Welland Regiment met here Oct. 29-30 for a reunion they plan to make an annual affair.

It will be held during the week-end closest to the date of the battle of Bergen-Op-Zoom in Holland, in which the "Lions and Winks" suffered heavy casualties.

This year's get-together will include a dinner, church parade, band concert, other entertainment and receptions. The regimental electors will be formally deposited in St. George's Church.

$150 Limit is Said To Irritate Americans

By RAE CORELLI
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Halifax, Oct. 21 — (CP) — Repeal of currency regulations affecting Canadians holidaying in the United States was urged at the wind-up of the Canadian Tourist Association here Thursday.

A resolution said the restrictions were unnecessary because "the differential in currency places a natural deterrent on U.S. travel." The $150 limit was "irritating" to Americans.

The resolution was one of 16 passed as the association finished its three days of business and re-elected George A. Martin of Gravenhurst, Ont., as president.

The group strongly protested the indiscriminate use of foreign flags—the Stars and Stripes in particular—as a dollar lure for Canada's visitors. The resolution held that such flags should be flown only on the proper occasions and in the proper places.

Other resolutions asked:

1. "All possible haste" in construction of the Trans-Canada highway.

2. More uniformity in the date for daylight saving time.

3. That the next federal census contain information on hotel and accommodation.

4. Fish and game restrictions be strictly enforced.

5. That the federal and provincial governments encourage hotel construction by instituting fixed taxation rates until "the critical need" for good hotel accommodation is alleviated.

6. That the Federal Government grant certain income tax concessions on hotel investments.

The convention called for an awareness among Canadians of the value of wildlife resources and for greater financial appropriations for trained woods personnel.

RICH HERRING HARVEST

Vancouver, Oct. 21 — (CP)—A rich herring harvest is being reaped by a small armada of west coast fishermen. In the past 24 minutes after the fishing fleet began operations Thursday in the Gulf of Georgia, a catch of some 2,500 to 3,000 tons was landed. That's enough herring to supply one to every Canadian.

ACCUSED OF SWINDLING ELDERLY PAWNBROKER

Baltimore, Oct. 21 — (AP)—A 37-year-old junk dealer was in jail here today facing charges that he swindled more than $250,000 from an elderly pawnbroker.

Nathan Brenner, the junk dealer, was arrested by a Grand Jury presentment or swindling 83-year-old Harris D. Miller out of $252,026 in a quick-profits scheme to buy and sell carloads of steel.

11 Top-Ranking Convicted Communists Given Chance To Make Court Statement

New York, Oct. 21—(AP)—The United States government today recommended 10 years imprisonment for each of the 11 convicted Communist leaders.

The recommendation to Judge Harold Medina was made by U.S. Attorney John F. X. McGohey. He made no recommendation for a fine. The law provides for a $10,000 fine.

McGohey contended the law revision cutting the possible prison terms for the 11 defendants from 16 to five years does not apply. The 10-year penalty provided by the Smith Act, under which the 11 men were tried and convicted, was cut to half last year.

McGohey said the crime charged in the indictment of the Communists—conspiring to teach forcible overthrow of the United States government—was committed before the law was revised.

McGohey's statement came after Judge Medina delayed sentencing Communist leaders until they and their lawyers could make statements in court.

The judge said he was sure the defendants had waived oral argument and asked the court to rule on their motions by today, he would "take up the matter now."

John F. X. McGohey, United States attorney who prosecuted the Communists, read into the record an affidavit opposing the defence motions.

Medina then said he would give each defendant and his lawyer a chance to speak before sentencing.

The defendants, convicted last week of criminal conspiracy, immediately began speaking with Eugene Dennis, General Secretary of the Communist party, taking the floor first.

Asserting that "the nation will look back on this facist-like trial in the years to come with shame and anger," he declared: "I protest, said that the party would continue to exist and may."

Not Guilty is Claim

"We are not guilty of any crime," Dennis asserted, "and, least of all, of the allegation that we conspired to violate and advocate the overthrow of the government by force and violence."

As soon as Dennis finished, other defendants rose in order and said his statement would serve for them.

Then Benjamin J. Davis, Jr., Negro defendant and member of the New York City council, rose a moment later and announced that he wished to speak separately "inasmuch as I was denied an opportunity to serve as my own counsel and to address the jury."

Davis, a lawyer, said American Negroes "have been oppressed for over 300 years," and added:

"This verdict and sentence will only continue their oppression."

Lawyers Decline Offer

After the defendants' statements were completed, Abraham Isserman, a defence lawyer, told the court that he and the other defence lawyers wished to say anything. Then, in an atmosphere of mounting tension, McGohey began a lengthy summation of the careers of the defendants, preparatory to telling the judge that he thought the government thinks should be imposed.

Mrs. Dunkelman, Zionist Leader, Dies in Toronto

Toronto, Oct. 21.—Canada on Thursday lost one of its prominent citizens in Mrs. David Dunkelman, formerly Rose Miller, eldest daughter of Mrs. H. Miller and the late Mr. Miller, of Toronto, who passed away Thursday morning, October 20. Mrs. Dunkelman was national honorary vice president of Hadassah, the women's branch of Zionism, which for many years had been one of her main interests. As a leader and guiding force in World Zionism, Mrs. Dunkelman was prominent in supporting the establishment of Israel and was noted throughout the western world for her untiring efforts to assist oppressed people in many countries. Through her work many thousands of children were rescued from Nazism and settled in homes in Israel. She was prominent in the Canadian Red Cross and took active part on the Family Allowance Board. Following World War 1, Mrs. Dunkelman took a leading part in bringing war orphans to Canada. During her life she gave practical assistance to all worthy causes, regardless of race or creed and for her services to humanity was presented in 1937 with the George VI Coronation Medal. She was a noted cook and tester of new recipes and originated and edited the well-known Hadassah Cook Book. As a mark of respect, the factory and stores of Tip Top Tailors, of which her husband is president, will be closed across Canada, October 21.

Surviving are her husband, David and her sons Joseph, Benjamin and Ezekiel, of Toronto, her daughters, Mrs. M. Wilner (Zelda) of Washington, D.C., and Mrs. W. Annenberg, (Bernice), of Philadelphia, Pa., her brothers, Dr. Benjamin Benjamin and Milton Miller her sisters, Mrs. Isaac Lorenter (Adelaide), and Mrs. John Dick (Thelma). Funeral services will be held Friday, October 21, at 2 p.m. from University Avenue Synagogue.

PASSENGER TRAINS DELAYED

Toronto, Oct. 21—(CP)—Westbound Canadian Pacific Railway passenger trains were held up more than two hours today after a tractor-trailer transport was clashed on a wetside cross-ing.

Gerald Sullivan of Toronto escaped with minor facial injuries when the truck went out of control, crashed into a railway embankment and came to rest on the tracks. He told police the vehicle hit a hole in the road.

Buses were dispatched from Toronto to handle passengers from a Montreal-to-Chigo flyer and an Ottawa-to-Toronto train, delayed while twisted tracks were repaired.

COMMUNIST OFFER TO OPEN PEACE TALKS REPORTED

Gen. Hwang on Way To Meet Nationalists

Hong Kong, Oct. 21—(Reuters)—A usually reliable Chinese source reported tonight that Nationalist representatives have left Hong Kong with a Communist offer to reopen peace negotiations in the Chinese civil war.

The source said that Gen. Hwang Chi Hsiang left by plane 3 days ago for Kweilin, capital of Kwangsi Province, 323 miles northwest of Hong Kong. Gen. Hwang was reported to be carrying the Communists' terms for peace to Gen. Pai Chung-Hsi, Nationalist commander of a 200,000 man army with headquarters in Kweilin.

Gen. Hwang formerly was Gen. Pai's personal representative in Hankow. But when the peace negotiations broke down a year ago at Peiping, Hwang joined the Communists.

Dr. K. C. Chiu, secretary-general of the Nationalist presidential office, also was reported to have flown from Hong Kong with a letter from Gen. Hwang containing the same Communist terms for peace.

St. Thomas, Oct. 21 — (CP) — Mitchell F. Hepburn, 53, former Liberal premier of Ontario, Thursday disclosed some details of his plan to turn his 1,100-acre farm near here into a cattle ranch.

Mr. Hepburn, forsaking the growing of onions, wheat and potatoes in favor of cattle raising, said he plans to grow all his own stock feed and to maintain 400-500 head of white-faced Herefords. He intends to dispose of his annual saleable surplus of cattle every year.

Several days ago, he received a shipment of four bulls and 50 cattle from Western Canada.

Mr. Hepburn's Sunbourne Farms in South Yarmouth Township, Mr. Hepburn Thursday told an interviewer:

"With freight rates what they are today, it doesn't pay to bring cattle from the West. I don't need this business pretty thoroughly and I'm convinced cattle can be raised here just as well as in the West.

"Some of my neighbors are doing the same thing. As far as I know, it is the first major undertaking or its kind in this part of Canada."

Had he any plans concerning politics?

"No more politics for me," he asserted. "This is my life now, the farm. I haven't the least desire to get back into public life."

OPPOSED TELEPHONE RATES INCREASE

Toronto, Oct. 21—(CP)— The Toronto Dolphin Labor Council (A.F.L.) Thursday night expressed "unalterable opposition" to any increase in telephone rates. It was called upon the federal government to take over and operate the Bell Telephone Company as a publicly-owned utility.

Work Stoppage Called by Union At Oshawa Plant

3,500 Members of Local To Hold Mass Meeting

Oshawa, Oct. 21 (CP)—Local 222 of the United Automobile Workers (C.I.O.) today called a work stoppage at General Motors plant and summoned its more than 3,500 members to a mass meeting this afternoon.

The stoppage began at noon E.D.T. and the men were to remain away from work until Monday morning.

In a statement, the union said that on Oct. 18 it had submitted to two top company officials—W. A. Wecker, president and general manager, and J. B. Highfield, general manager of manufacturing—a letter asking a conference to discuss four major issues. The statement did not say what the issues were and the union declined today to make them public until after this afternoon's mass membership meeting at the Oshawa rink.

The union said that Mr. Wecker and Mr. Highfield declined to meet the union bargaining committee personally but wanted the conference to be held with junior management officials. The work stoppage was put out of production this afternoon and Saturday morning. The plant normally closes at noon Saturday and resumes operations Monday morning. It works a single day shift.

Nationalists Halt Drive of Reds Towards Kweilin

By SPENCER MOOSA

Chungking, Oct. 21.— (AP)— Government troops fighting for the life of southwest China have halted a Communist drive toward Kweilin, the defence ministry said today.

At the same time, Nationalist sources said they had detected a movement of 100,000 Reds in preparation for an invasion of Szechwan province, last of the new refugee capital.

Government and Nationalist artillery cracked at each other in the battle for Chu Shan island, government forces on the mainland side base 100 miles south of Red Canton. Nationalist troops have seized neighboring islands in the Chu Shan group.

The defence ministry said the Communist surge into Kwangsi Province has penetrated into the heart of southwest China — had been blunted on the outskirts of Liangling. The wartime United States air base is 110 miles north east of Kweilin and 323 miles northwest of Hong Kong.

Even so, the China National Aviation Corporation announced in Hong Kong that it was withdrawing from Kweilin, Kwangsi capital 300 miles northwest of Canton, and from Huchow (Changwu) on the Kwangsi border.

Kweilin is headquarters for Gen. Li Chung-Jen's 200,000 man army—the strongest left to the Nationalists on the mainland. Chihkiang, where Japan's formal surrender in China was signed would be the next Red objective for the feared Red invasion of Kweichow Province in an effort to split Nationalist armies on the mainland in two.

IMPOSED TELEPHONE RATES INCREASE

Oshawa, Oct. 21 (CP)—Local 222 of the United Automobile Workers (C.I.O.) today called a work stoppage at General Motors plant and summoned its more than 3,500 members to a mass meeting this afternoon.

The stoppage began at noon E.D.T. and the men were to remain away from work until Monday morning.

In a statement, the union said that on Oct. 18 it had submitted to two top company officials—W. A. Wecker, president and general manager, and J. B. Highfield, general manager of manufacturing—a letter asking a conference to discuss four major issues. The statement did not say what the issues were and the union declined today to make them public until after this afternoon's mass membership meeting at the Oshawa rink.

The union said that Mr. Wecker and Mr. Highfield declined to meet the union bargaining committee personally but wanted the conference to be held with junior management officials. The work stoppage was put out of production this afternoon and Saturday morning. The plant normally closes at noon Saturday and resumes operations Monday morning. It works a single day shift.

Nationalists Halt Drive of Reds Towards Kweilin

By SPENCER MOOSA

Chungking, Oct. 21.— (AP)— Government troops fighting for the life of southwest China have halted a Communist drive toward Kweilin, the defence ministry said today.

At the same time, Nationalist sources said they had detected a movement of 100,000 Reds in preparation for an invasion of Szechwan province, last of the new refugee capital.

Government and Nationalist artillery cracked at each other in the battle for Chu Shan island, government forces on the mainland side base 100 miles south of Red Canton. Nationalist troops have seized neighboring islands in the Chu Shan group.

The defence ministry said the Communist surge into Kwangsi Province has penetrated into the heart of southwest China — had been blunted on the outskirts of Liangling. The wartime United States air base is 110 miles north east of Kweilin and 323 miles northwest of Hong Kong.

Even so, the China National Aviation Corporation announced in Hong Kong that it was withdrawing from Kweilin, Kwangsi capital 300 miles northwest of Canton, and from Huchow (Changwu) on the Kwangsi border.

Kweilin is headquarters for Gen. Li Chung-Jen's 200,000 man army—the strongest left to the Nationalists on the mainland. Chihkiang, where Japan's formal surrender in China was signed would be the next Red objective for the feared Red invasion of Kweichow Province in an effort to split Nationalist armies on the mainland in two.

CANADA SEEKING SMALL MARKETS TO MAKE UP LOSS

Picking Up — Surprising Amount of Business Says Trade Director

Canada is going out after the small markets, to make up for slices of trade she is losing with Britain and bigger customers, And apparently is picking up a surprising amount of business.

G. R. Heasman, director, Trade Commodities and Services, Department of Trade and Commerce, had something to say about this on Thursday in an address in Montreal to the Canadian Exporters' Association.

Giving examples, Mr. Heasman said that two small trade commission posts opened in places she was are at Leopoldville in the Belgian Congo; and in Guatemala.

"We told the trade commissioner in the Belgian Congo established 32 new agencies or buying connections for Canadian exporters. I feel that what we have published in the sale of flour alone has justified this new office.

"Meanwhile, we had advice this week that, as a result of the change in currency values, increased interest is being shown in aluminum, groceries, borsewear, spaghetti, dairy products, and so forth."

Central America Excellent

As for Guatemala, where the new office covers the whole of Central America are:

"Previous total trade was less than $1,000,000 for Central America. Last year, it was $24,000,000.

"The opening of new offices since the war in San Paulo, Brazil, and Karachi, Pakistan, has been equally successful. Sao Paulo is also justified this new office, than Rio De Janeiro as a trading centre.

"The office in Karachi has already been instrumental in bringing to Canada some excellent inquiries for capital equipment running into millions."

Offices have also been opened in Turkey and Switzerland, which may be of particular assistance to the trade drive.

Next month posts will be opened in Manila and Madrid, which will mean there will then be a total of 45 trade commissioner offices, manned by 85 trade commissioners, in 38 countries fuel oil might mean a cent a gallon reduction if it is passed on to the consumer.

ABBOTT

But Mr. Abbott indicated that all the cut will do for many householders is to make up for an increase just put into effect by oil companies as a consequence of dollar devaluation.

Price of fuel oil used in heating, and lighting will be reduced immediately, an oil industry spokesman said Thursday night at Toronto. The spokesman said he was unable to give details of price cuts but they would probably equal the tax, which was collected on the wholesale price of the oil.)

Elimination of the sales tax is expected to cut government revenue by $10,000,000 in a full year. Something less than $1,000,000 will be the amount saved to holders of preferred stock. Mr. Abbott said the tax change on cider and wines would result in little loss of revenue.

WH Start Debate

Debate on the budget will be started in the Commons today by Hon. Earl Rowe, Progressive Conservative member for the Ontario constituency of Dufferin-Simcoe and the party's chief financial critic. In adjourning the debate after Mr. Abbott completed his statement, Mr. Rowe said he was disappointed to see the government presenting the old plans of last spring to meet changed economic conditions.

Mr. Abbott, after a review of domestic and international economic conditions, said in his 7,000-word speech that conditions have not altered sufficiently since last March 7th "to warrant any significant changes in our tax proposals."

Removal of the tax on fuel oils would eliminate some element of discrimination. There now is no tax on coal, coke, wood, gas or electricity. It could serve as well to spur the market for all producers in Western Canada.

Reduce Production Costs

"The removal of this tax on fuel oils will reduce costs of production and remove the element of discrimination in those industries, particularly certain sections of the pulp and paper, and steel industries, where fuel oil rather than coal is the principal fuel used, Mr. Abbott said.

In recent months there has been a growing demand, particularly from British Columbia suppliers, for removal of the tax. The contention was that fuel oils were being kept at a disadvantage on the market in relation to other fuels such as coal and coke for which there was no tax.

The change in the provision on preferred dividends was made as a result of representations to the finance department after the original budget was read. The change would remove many technical difficulties and anomalies which would have arisen in attempting to administer the original proposal.

Reduction of the tax on cider and wine might help the apple industry to market an additional quantity of fruit.

Small Quantities Produced

Only small quantities of cider now are produced in Canada but it is understood that growers have told the government that more apples may be diverted to cider production if taxes are lowered.

There are, however, provincial taxes on alcoholic beverages which will not be affected.

Non-alcoholic apple juices are not affected by the reduction. Neither is cider with an alcoholic content of from seven to 40 per cent proof spirits which will continue to be taxed at 50 cents a gallon, the tax paid on all wines.

Mr. Abbott reviewed the tax reductions announced in the original budget, which included higher income-tax exemptions and lower rates, retroactive to Jan. 1.

Exemptions Boosted

Basic income tax exemptions were boosted from $750 to $1,000 for single persons and to $2,000 for married. Exemptions were raised from $100 to $150 for each dependent child under 18 and $300 to $400 for other dependents.

Mr. Abbott said that as a result of the reduction many taxpayers were entitled to refunds. The cheques will be mailed as soon as the budget is approved by parliament. They will be sent to employers for distribution to employees.

Ranking next to income tax in importance, were excise and "nuisance" tax reductions on soft drinks, candy, jewelry, cosmetics, smokers' supplies, train tickets and some other service. The cuts amounted to about $100,000,000 a year.

The main change for business then was in the corporation income tax. The former flat rate of 38 per cent was reduced to 10 per cent on the first $10,000 of profits. It was increased from 30 to 33 per cent on profits in excess of $10,000.

Bringing members up-to-date on the country's economic and financial position, he revised certain statements and estimates of revenues and expenditures.

The 1948-49 final revenues turned out to be $2,771,000,00, or $3,000,000 more than was estimated in March. Expenditures were $2,776,000,000, or $17,000,000 less than was estimated. The surplus for the year—the third in succession—was $595,000,000, or $20,000,000 greater than the earlier estimate.

Surplus Figured Close

For 1949-50, he had forecast revenues, after tax changes of $3,477,500,000. Some revenue has already yielded more than was anticipated and he now estimated revenues at $2,560,000,000.

Expenditures had been estimated at $2,390,000,000, but now he would boost that figure to $2,460,000,000.

On making provision for the three additional tax changes, he estimated that the 1949-50 surplus will be "very close" to the $97,000,000 figure forecast last March.

Such a surplus would bring to $1,720,000,000 the amount the government has applied against the national debt in the last four fiscal years.

Mr. Abbott dealt with questions of trade, employment and production. They had remained high and he expected they would continue that way for at least the balance of the current fiscal year.

"Our total exports, which is one of the basic supports of our economy, were higher during the most recent 12 months' period than in any other peacetime year in our history," said Mr. Abbott.

"Nevertheless, some declines in our overseas export markets have already occurred and soon further declines can hardly be avoided.

He indicated that Canada is banking heavily on United States prosperity.

Greater Competition Expected

"Any change in economic conditions in the United States will directly affect the level of our exports to that country," he said. "Any sharp downturn in American economic activity and in American willingness to import cannot but have sharp and embarrassing repercussions all over the world."

To help the sterling countries buy more from Canada, this country had to buy more goods overseas. This may cause greater competition in Canada's domestic markets and "some adjustments may be necessary."

Mr. Abbott said Canada will seek more agreements for reciprocal tariff reductions next year. One big tariff cut will come into effect on January 1 of the year when the reductions negotiated at the Geneva tariff conference become operative.

In addition, plans are being made for another set of multilateral negotiations next year when Canada will seek tariff cuts on trade with the United States and other signatories of the Geneva tariff agreements, involving 33 countries.

P.M. ADVOCATES

devoted to Finance Minister Abbott's budget address.

It was similar with relatively-minor exceptions to the budget Mr. Abbott placed before parliament last spring.

At the opening of the sitting Prime Minister St. Laurent and Prime Minister Nehru of India will visit Canada Saturday and will address the Commons next Monday.

The Senate adopted the address in reply to the speech from the throne. Senator T. A. Crerar (Liberal—Manitoba) in the extended debate in an address in which he said Canada was strong enough to do her part in stemming Russian aggression.

In the resolution debate Mr. Drew reiterated his party's opposition to the government proposal to ask for power of amending the constitution.

He again urged the government to delay action on the resolution until after consulting the provinces on the whole field of constitutional amendment.

Mr. Drew said the fact that the government found it necessary to include clauses such as the one safeguarding the need for elections every five years was a reflection of the second task on which the government is proceeding with the whole matter.

John Defenbaker (PC — Lake Centre) said if the government continues with its "piecemeal" approach to the problem of constitutional amendment it will history only in Canada.

Walter Harris (Liberal, Grey Bruce), parliamentary assistant to Prime Minister St. Laurent, said the Progressive Conservatives are using the same argument they used on previous occasions when the government sought to do something for the people.

They opposed the principle of what was proposed, but they objected to the method being followed.

Referring to Mr. Knowles' amendment, he said he was convinced that neither this parliament nor any successive parliament would lightly attempt to interfere with the rights of the people to a session once a year and an election at least every five years.

But he could see no logical objection to having the rights expressed along with others being entrenched in the constitution by the proposal now before the Commons.

"It does seem to me, however, that there might be an occasion when a large majority of the members of parliament would feel it would be against the interests of the country to have an immediate election," he said.

In the First World War, for instance, the Canadian parliament extended its own life. Similar action was taken by the United Kingdom parliament in the last war."

Would Have Been Dangerous

He recalled as a member of the government in the Second World War "there were many, many months during that war when I think it would have been dangerous to have held an election."

His sub-amendment did not fix any time limit for an election postponement, but, he said, it would "have to be a reasonable time, otherwise the members would not give it their support."

Opposite the entrance to Mildmay's new Coronation Park, the Rotary Club's sign bids welcome. Robert Pain adds warmth to their greeting.

Mr. St. Laurent, who said he will have an opportunity later to answer opposition criticism of the constitutional procedure, indicated his government will not call a constitutional conference at an early date.

He has stated that the provinces will be invited to attend a Dominion-Provincial conference after the session to discuss ways and means of amending the constitution on provincial matters and on those partly within the jurisdiction of the provinces and the federal government.

"In my view, it will not be wise to have a constitutional conference for a long time, and to disregard 82 years of our experience since Confederation," he said.

Refers to Statement

Mr. Drew referred to the statements that the resolution asks for Canada the right to amend the constitution on purely federal matters. "That's not what the resolution says," Mr. Drew contended.

He said that the wording suggests it will give parliament the right to amend the constitution on matters of federal jurisdiction such as matters of joint provincial-federal jurisdiction.

Mr. Drew said he wonders if there isn't come hidden reason for government haste in pushing this resolution through the Commons. He wondered if the government was planning some action for later sessions of parliament which could not be passed without the power given by this resolution.

Mr. St. Laurent said he hoped Mr. Drew didn't intend that as an insinuation that the government is withholding any information from parliament.

Drew Doesn't Like Replies

Mr. Drew replied that he has had reason in the past to doubt the adequacy of replies from the prime minister.

He referred to a question he had asked the prime minister at the spring session of parliament. Mr. Drew had asked whether the government intended to proceed with the idea of giving Canada the power to amend the constitution without first consulting the provinces.

He quoted Mr. St. Laurent as replying that "no one could contemplate any action of that kind without first consulting the provinces."

Mr. St. Laurent was further quoted as saying that the government would in such a case follow procedure similar to that taken in 1935. That was the year a Dominion-provincial conference was held to discuss ways of reaching a procedure for amending the constitution.

Claire Gillis (CCF — Cape Breton South) offered what he described as the man-in-the-street view of the constitution question.

Canada, he said, is doing nothing more than finishing business that was introduced at the 1935 Dominion-provincial conference. The country was placing the right of amendment in its proper place — with the elected representatives of the people.

Writing Desk and Chair Presented To Young Couple

West Huntingdon.— On Friday evening, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Bateman, (nee Miss Marjorie Wright), were given a fine reception at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Wright. The Rev. Morley Clarke was chairman for the interesting program which consisted of community singing in charge of Mrs. Geo. Ashley and Miss Margaret Haggerty.

A trio by Joan McCurdy, Jean Haggerty, and Margaret Haggerty gave the song "Wedding Bells are Breaking up that Old Gang of Ours". Miss Mary Chambers gave a reading and Mrs. Geo. Ashley a piano solo.

Short speeches were given by Rev. W. H. V. Walker, Arthur Bishop, Geo. Pollard, and Barton Haggerty. Mrs. Harold Thompson read the address to the newlyweds, and they were presented with a writing desk and chair. Both Carl and Marjorie replied and invited all to visit them in their new home in Stirling.

Mr., Mrs. C. Green Presented With Sandwich Plate

West Huntingdon.—Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Fitchett entertained members of the Endeavor class on Tuesday evening for their October meeting. Mrs. Dan Cooke presided over the interesting and helpful Thanksgiving program. Mrs. Peter McInroy led in prayer and Mrs. Frank Hammond read the scripture lesson and gave a fine explanation of the same.

Helpful Thanksgiving readings were given by Mrs. Sandy McCurdy and Mrs. Geo. Ashley.

Mrs. John Wallace was the guest speaker and brought a fine message on "Thanksgiving".

Mrs. W. J. Fitchett and Mrs. Clifford Green gave a duet.

Mrs. Clayton Wright read an address and Mrs. W. J. Fitchett presented Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Green with a handsome sandwich plate. Mrs. Green, although taken by surprise, made a suitable reply.

Following the benediction Mrs. Fitchett and Marilyn served refreshments.

Mrs. Philip Carr voiced the appreciation of the class to Mrs. Wallace and Mr. and Mrs. Fitchett for the use of their home. A special feature of the meeting was that the men folk had to keep silent as it was the ladies who furnished the program; in fact the men felt quite at home.

Take a look around the National Hockey League after one week's play and see how little different everything looks.

Montreal Canadiens, with three victories in three starts, are the big surprise. The remainder of the order seems barely changed from what it was when the six teams left off league warfare last season to begin the Stanley Cup jousting.

Detroit Red Wings, last season's league champions, are in second place with two wins and a loss. One point behind, Boston Bruins, who finished second to Detroit, are tied for third with Toronto Maple Leafs, who went on to win the Stanley Cup after squeezing into fourth place.

And Chicago Black Hawks and New York Rangers, the two teams that finished out of last season's playoffs, again share cellar position. Each has only a tie in three starts.

Sharing surprise honors with Canadiens showing so far is air appareni fall-off in attendance. The drop is notably in the United States centres of Boston and Detroit and it may merely mean hockey is starting too soon after the World Series and too much on top of football.

Smallest in Nine Years

Whatever the reason, Detroit's Olympia had its smallest crowd in nine years, Wednesday night when the Wings whipped Rangers 6-1. Paid attendance was 9,507, some 3,000 fewer than a sell-out.

There was plenty of elbowroom, too, at Boston when Coach Chicago 7-4. Only 10,626 paid their Chicago 7-4. Only 10,626 paid their way into the Garden, which can accommodate 13,900.

Neither Rangers nor Hawks have inaugurated their season as yet, so there's no indication if the trend extends to New York and Chicago.

Despite their triumphs, Canadiens haven't been able to lure the Montreal Forum to its 12,100 capacity. A total of 10,811 watched them beat Chicago and 10,803 saw them beat Rangers.

Toronto's Maple Leaf Gardens, with an official capacity of 14,000, drew 15,677 to see the Leafs tie Chicago and 13,645 to watch them beaten by Canadiens.

Football Features 'Big Games' in Weekend Program

(By The Canadian Press)

Senior football presents an eight-game program this week-end and post-season playoff hopes ride on six of them.

In the east's Big Four League, Toronto Argonauts and Montreal Alouettes will wage their battle for the second and last playoff position on separate fronts tomorrow. Argos play in Toronto against Ottawa Rough Riders, who are assured of no worse than a tie for first place, while Alouettes meet the Wildcats in Hamilton.

Unless the winless Wildcats can upset the Als — and Coach Frank Goup says they can — a loss would be just about fatal for Argos. They would then need to beat Ottawa and Montreal in their two remaining games just to tie Alouettes for second place.

Lew Hayman's Alouettes are in no position to make mistakes either, even though their remaining schedule is easier with two games against Wildcats besides the Argo meeting. The Als beat Wildcats handily in their first two meetings but the prospect of going two games big Four seasons without a victory has the supporters guarding their teeth.

Windsor Rockets also are backed so the wall in the Ontario Union. Two points behind the second-place Sarnia Imperials, Rockets must upset the league-leading Hamilton Tigers at Windsor. If they don't—and if hinges on the expected by beating Toronto Balmy Beach at Sarnia — Windsor's playoff chances will be little better than mathematical.

Could be Left to Two Games

However, a Windsor victory or a Sarnia loss would leave the playoff post dependant on the two dates the teams have with each other — Oct. 26 at Sarnia and Nov. 5 at Windsor.

In the Ontario Rugby League, Coach Annis Stukus' Edmonton Eskimos still cling to a mathematical playoff chance. They must win all four of their remaining games — starting at home against Winnipeg Blue Bombers tomorrow — to stand a chance of tying for the second playoff spot.

Even so, Regina's Saskatchewan Roughriders could clinch the berth by upsetting the Stampeders as Calgary tomorrow. The Dominion championship Stampeders already have assured themselves of first place with 10 victories in as many starts.

Even Saturday's games don't decide playoff opponents. It might be done Monday night. Then Regina plays at Edmonton while Bombers tackle the Stampeders at Calgary.

The Ex's Intercollegiate Union, which doesn't engage in Grey Cup play with the other three senior circuits, meantime has its own house rolls.

Coach Bob Masterson's Toronto Varsity Blues are strictly on the spot in their game at London, against Johnny Metras' Mustangs. Blues conclude their season by meeting McGill in Montreal the previous Saturday. Varsity must head off the unbeaten Mustangs.

New York — Andy Depaul, 196 1-4, Cliffside, N.J., outpointed Carrine Vitale, 180 1-2, New York (8).

Brilliant Hurling Duel Features Napanee Win Over Shallow Lake In First Game Junior 'B' Finals

By GEO. H. CARVER
(Sports Editor)

Napanee, Ont.—An eighth inning lapse broke up a brilliant hurling duel here yesterday to give the Napanee Lions a belated 4-2 victory over Shallow Lake in the first game of a two-of-three series for the Ontario Baseball Association Junior "B" championship.

The teams clash in Shallow Lake, ten miles out of Owen Sound, in the second game on Saturday afternoon.

Two stout-hearted junior pitchers possibly the best in their class in Ontario, Keith Weese of Napanee and Ervine Garvie of Shallow Lake dueled flawlessly for seven innings before the "break" came.

During that period the two brilliant mound artists battled, with only one hit being registered at the expense of the latter mentioned. He walked seven, and that in part was his undoing, a wild pitch and a passed ball when the run chips were down helped in the tall right-hander's efforts but Weese's mates five bobbles behind him also assisted in the setback.

Perfect Hurling

Weese hurled perfect baseball for seven innings. Only 22 "Lakers" faced him during that time and they went down in order as was Jackson, Laker rightfielder who drew the only walk of the game. Napanee youngster, and pilfered second base. Weese also fielded brilliantly, one of the best a smash of MacDonald's line drive that was headed for left and a pair of sacks, being a picture play.

Garvie, although wild at times, was very effective in the pinches and three times before the fateful eighth innings he stood coolly under fire and hurried himself and team out of danger. His outstanding clutch pitching came in the second when after walking two and allowing a scratch bunt to fill the sacks, he set down Weese and struck out the next three batters to retire the side.

Again in the sixth and seventh with two Lions runners aboard he got out of the opposing batsmen with no damage done.

Was in the Bag

It looked like a Shallow Lake victory in the top of the eighth when what appeared to be the long-looked for "break" had arrived. Garvie went down swinging and Kreuger lashed out the first clean hit of the game along the third base line. Cutting high» fouled the ball well behind first and Kreuger went to second after the catch. J. MacDonald lined out a clean single to centre with Kreuger scoring the first run of the game and MacDonald going to third on the throw to the plate. McNeil heaved out the third hit of the game in the same frame with the Lions were credited, MacDonald scoring. His brother struck out to end the rally.

Then came the bigger break. Garvie hit a Lion batsman to advance second and went to third on the next out. Garvie uncorked a wild pitch. Came a hit and another walk, two costly errors by the Laker nine and Huffman's smash over second and four runs rolled home. That was the ball game. Huffman sent the J/akers down in order in the ninth and retired all over.

Anstett got two for Napanee with Huffman getting the other. McNeil, J. MacDonald and Kreuger got the Shallow Lake clouts.

Tragedy Strikes

Tragedy halted the game in the fifth inning when Mr. Frank Sexsmith, residing north of Napanee, succumbed to a heart attack in the stands. He was 65 years of age.

The teams:

Napanee Lions — Huffman, rf; Blakely, 3b; Marshall, ss; Munroe, 1b; Weese, p; Anstett, lf; Fish, c; Jones, 2b; Hartin, cf; Finlay, 2b.

The score:

Shallow Lake 000 000 020—2 3 2
Napanee .... 000 000 04x—4 3 0

Umpires: Don Thomas, plate; Cy Young, bases, both of Belleville.

Cleveland Barons On Top Wing In W. Division

(By The Canadian Press)

Cleveland Barons today are not only firmly established as the western division of the American Hockey League but they are also the sole remaining undefeated team in the loop.

The Barons racked up their fourth straight victory of the young season Thursday night by blasting St. Louis Flyers, last year's western division champions, by a 5-1 count. Cincinnati Mohawks captured their first victory in five starts by outscoring Indianapolis Capitals 6-5. It marked the Caps first loss of the season.

Teams Trade Goals

At New Haven the teams traded goals in the first period with the Blazes drawing first blood on Gordie Davidson's long shot. Fern Perrault knotted the count shortly before the end of the session.

Phil Gordon shot New Haven into a 2-1 lead early in the second stanza and the Ramblers held to their advantage until 8:54 of the final period when Tommy Cooper evened the count. Steve Szymiak scored the winner.

Meanwhile the Mohawks handed Indianapolis the first defeat although they played all but 21 seconds of the game with a substitute goal-tender.

The Rheinlander's regular goalie, Gerry McNeil, was badly cut in the first scoring rush of the game. Eddie Dorohoy, a regular forward, then took over and handled 34 shots during the remainder of the game.

SENATORS HELD TO DRAW

North Bay, Oct. 21 — (CP)— The stubborn checking North Bay Black Hawks treated Ottawa Senators nothing like Allan Cup champions here Thursday night, holding them to a 4-4 standstill in a penalty-studded exhibition contest.

The Bayites, who will play in the Eastern Canada Hockey League this season, spotted Senators a 3-0 lead in the first 12 minutes of play, only to come back with four of their own.

For an exhibition contest, the game was plenty rough with 16 penalties called. Ottawa drew the lion's share with 10.

They'll Do It Every Time

Toronto, Oct. 21 — (CP) Should a hockey player receive the high scoring award at the end of a season just because he officially scored more goals and assists?

Or should he be credited on a point system, whereby more points are given for effort?

The question was brought up by Ivan (Hamilton Spectator) Miller in a recent column.

"If a player figures in a direct scoring play, he's entitled to an assist," writes Miller, "but we cannot see where he's entitled to credit on a scoring effort when a goal is set up almost entirely through the efforts of someone else."

Loose Methods

In a fast-moving game like hockey, it is not always the referee's fault if he fails to see which player scores or assisted. Miller writes that he has seen referees inquire of a team, and have not only the scorer, but those assisting, pointed out to him."

The Hamilton scribe is of the opinion that assists are too cheaply earned and suggests that by putting a heavier premium on them they could be made to stand for a true indication of a player's worth.

"Official scoring should be left to competent scorers, so that the right kind of effort gets the right kind of credit and so that presently-used methods may be abolished as being much too erratic," he concludes.

FRICK OPPOSED TO MOVE

New York, Oct. 21 — (CP)— President Ford Frick of the National League said today he would be "unalterably opposed" to placing the umpiring staffs of the two major base ball leagues under the authority of commissioner A. B. (Happy) Chandler.

There have been seemingly inspired reports since the world series that the baseball commissioner means to introduce such a measure at the winter meetings here in December.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Just about as nifty a spot of junior hurling as this corner has seen in many a moon took place at Napanee yesterday afternoon. Ervine Garvie, brilliant young right-hander of the Shallow Lake squad and Keith Wesee, Napanee hailed by many as the pitching find of the season in these parts, hooking second horns in so pretty a seven inning duel as any of the faithful would want to see.

* * *

The youngsters, the one boasting sinew easily with airtight support behind him, and the other, a stouthearted kid whose wildness got him into difficulty at times, but whose calmness in difficulty plus his good stuff sent him out of trouble, had nearly 600 fans clutching their seats tightly waiting for the break they thought would never come. When it did come it struck like lightning—and in two pics the ball is struck the Lakey lads the hardest.

* * *

Wesee hurled lifeless rushes ball for seven chukkers. Garvie got himself in trouble with his wildness plus mates errors on three occasions. But the kid rose to superb heights in the second when he loaded the sacks with two walks and a scratch hunt, and went on to strike out the next three batters. The Napanee fans, always a bit rabid, gave the kid a well-deserved hand as he trotted to the bench.

* * *

The teams are well-balanced with perhaps Napanee having an edge in the infield. Their hitting power cannot be commented upon for it was plainly lacking. However, the Napanee management, in our opinion passed up the three chances to win the game in the early innings when they had men in scoring position with less than two hooked for the roster-minded of the squad thought that a bunt was a lofty fly-ball's idea of fun.

* * *

The game in Shallow Lake should be one for the archives. Those kids who ball from a village with a population of 300 population yet which finances and supports three OBA baseball teams, are far from being coached by the experts but they do have a keen interest and the psychological benefit of playing in their own backyard. Don't sell 'em short.

* * *

Tragedy struck rather swiftly just after the top of the eighth inning here last Sunday when Bill Hollingsworth, one of the district named Frank Sexsmith, said to be well-known in Belleville, was stricken with a heart seizure and succumbed just before medical help arrived. Hollingsworth, called by Umpire-in-Chief Don Thomas and play halted until the body had been removed to the undertaking parlors. A more detailed account appears elsewhere.

* * *

St. Mike's starry junior football team continued their winning ways at the expense of Albert College yesterday afternoon taking the measure of the latter's squad, 26-5 score. The Bobby Green-Garry Schreider combination proved far too much for the Albert team who found Cathedral to defeat. They tried hard all the way and were deserving of a better fate. But experience counsel and they fell with all colors aflutter.

* * *

According to statistics released by officials of the Major "A" Bowling League, the lads in that loop are knocking over the maples at a merry rate of speed. In a list of averages compiled for pins who have played nine games or more, sixteen have better than 200 averages. Leading the pack with 223 are J. Kennedy and Bill Hunt, who are in second place J. Wardhaugh and Cec. Hardwick with 219 and in third slot comes A. Rivvett and D. Tobe with 215. The rest are staggered down the line.

Explosive wrestling action of an intensity possibly never before seen in a ring horsebeats appears headed for the mat at the Memorial Arena tonight when a team made up with all four men in the ring together at all times, with two referees in charge, will strong-arm the ring supports. The high-flying team of Whipper Billy Watson and Pat Flanagan will clash with the hardy two-some of Fred Atkins and Hardboiled Hamilton in an unrestricted affair to show the fans which is the top aggregation. With six big men, including the referees, on the move every minute of the bout, the ward of the ring canvas at the Arena should leave the spectators with something to remember for a long time.

* * *

Tony Morgan, of Lindsay, who may be in the top condition of his career for a successful mat campaign in New York and the southern States, will tackle Dangerous Dan O'Connor in the semi-final event of the night, this activity in flitting high rose, with Tiger Tasker colliding with Al "Krusher" Korman.

The finals of a successful soccer season starts tomorrow with the semi-finals of the Trenton Challenge Cup. Football's Golden Boy, Tony Golab, Near Career's End

(By The Canadian Press)

Has football's Golden Boy—Tony Golab—played in his last game?

"Very probably", the 31-year-old star said at Ottawa Thursday in an interview. But the Ottawa Rough Rider plunging power-horse, with a sore arm and his left leg swathed in a bling-length cast, wants to play just one more.

On six all-eastern teams and seven Big Four all-star selections since he joined Riders in 1936, he'd like to play on what he figures will be the winning team in the 1949 Grey Cup final.

He's sure that game will be Ottawa against Calgary Stampeders, at last year, and that Ottawa will come out on top. It would be his first turn on a winning Grey Cup team, although he played for Riders in 1941 when they got the cup by default after the West failed to enter a contender. Last year Calgary won 12-7.

But Tony's injuries, collected in a game with Hamilton Tigers Oct. 8, may keep him out for the rest of the year. And he decided this summer that would be his last season in football.

Whether he'll be able to play that last game depends on what is under the cast. Neither Tony nor the doctors will know for sure until the cast comes off—probably in a week or so.

Al Simmons and Earle Brucker were dismissed as coaches by Philadelphia Athletics because they did not measure up to their job, a club official said Thursday night.

Connie Mack, Jr., treasurer of the Athletics, said that his father, owner-manager Connie Mack, knew beforehand that the board of directors was going to vote Simmons and Brucker out of jobs and "was in complete agreement."

"The confusion was caused by the fact that dad just took no part with his two old friends", Connie Jr., said in a radio interview.

"But he knew it was for the best interest of the ball club and went along", the younger Mack added.

"After all, and let there be no mistake about this, dad still is running the club. I think most people don't believe that a man of 86 is capable of leading a big league club. But Connie Mack is and does."

Tweed Unbeaten In High School Football League

By WALLS MOFFAT

Tweed, Oct. 31— Tweed High School footballers, Tweed, clinched first place in C.H.S.S.L. standings by fighting their way to a 13-6 win in Stirling in a thrill packed game. In the other games at Madoc, Madoc gained their first win and-quined the upset of the season by dumping Marmora 14-0 in a rough game. Tweed, still undefeated, are now assured of first place, while Stirling and Marmora are tied for second with each team having one game to play.

By a new league ruling, a team winning six straight games gave not have to play off with the second placers, so if Tweed wins in Marmora on Friday they will automatically get the cup in place of Quinte District finals. Stirling finishes out their schedule Friday against Madoc.

Last Friday Tweed fought to their fourth win with a 13-0 home victory over an improved Bobcats team. Quarterback Ron and Don Manion scored TD's to give Tweed a 13-0 half-time lead, and A. Holmes kicked a 3rd quarter single to make the score 13-0.

Meanwhile Stirling pulled a surprise 16-3 win right in Stirling. A first quarter touchdown gave Stirling a 5-0 lead, but Marmora came back to score 16 straight points and win the game.

On Tuesday, Tweed visited Stirling for an important game, as Stirling needed a win to keep in playoff contention. Stirling kicked to Tweed early in the game, and Tweed marched 80 yards for a touchdown. On the first play Doug Reid shot a beautiful loose 33-yard gain. Bob Mayne threw thirty-yards to Andy Holmes and then Reid charged in to the 11. On the next play quarter-back Mickey Mercy ploughed across for a touchdown which he converted. In the second quarter a Tweed placement was wide, but Ray Whalen fell on the loose ball for a touchdown. It was 11-0 at half-time.

In the third quarter Mickey Mercy kicked a single to make it 12-0 and Tweed then settled down to a defense game. Late in the game Stirling finally clicked for a score but Tweed were not could not tie it up.

Mickey Mercy was pulling the upset of the season by trouncing Marmora 14-0 in a rough game.

The Standing:

	W	L	F	A	Pts
Tweed	5	0	92	16	10
Stirling	4	1	70	31	8
Marmora	2	3	46	37	4
Madoc	1	4	23	90	2

Tuesday's Scores

Tweed 13—Stirling 8

Madoc 14—Marmora 0

Friday

Tweed at Marmora; Madoc at Stirling.

Goalies Perform In Star Roles

(By The Associated Press)

Two goalies performed in star roles Thursday night in the United States Hockey League.

Ted Graham had his first game of the season and Kansas City picked up its first victory in the Mohawks won at St. Paul 4-3.

Jim Henry, Kansas City goalie sparkled in that game, giving the Saints a goal early in the first period, then holding them scoreless until midway through the third. But that time Kansas City had a 4-1 lead, Henry had 40 stops for the night.

Gordon Fashoway led the winners, knocking in a goal in the first 15 seconds, getting an assist on another later in that period, and scoring again in the third period.

The victory pushed Minneapolis into a three-way tie for first place with St. Paul and Louisville.

The clubs played a scoreless first period, but the Millers popped in three goals in the second. Walter Hergesheimer scored the third Minneapolis goal and came back in the fourth period for the final marker.

TINY, BUT DANGEROUS

Calgary — (CP) — Bill Lang of Toronto reports humming birds are more vicious than bears in these parts. Mr. Lang, with his wife and daughter, was touched when they came on a bear eating a slaughtered goat. But farther along the train they were attacked by a dive-bombing humming bird. Mr. Lang reported no casualties.

Belleville Golf Nips Callaghan's In 'A' League

Belleville Golf, the Major "A" League's top team, further consolidated their position at the Bowl-O-Drome last night when they defeated Callaghan's Ice in a closely - fought game. The winning margin was but 30 pins.

Tobe's County Gardens moved into second place by taking all seven points from Electronics.

The other two games ended in five points to two decisions as Northern Electric won over Central Cigar and Moores' Chiselers took the measure of Lawn Bowlers.

Scores were not as good as usual with only three bettering the 700 mark — Evan Barlow 722, Jack Wardhaugh 706, and Larry Hopkins 700. Well up in the 600s were Ken Lewis 685, Jim Semark 683, Al Hilchon 676, Art Stewart 675 (300), Harry Ridler 674, Al Wonnacott 666, "Toots" Holway 658, and Joe Lagrath 654.

U. of T. Ints. Win Track Meet By Wide Margin

Toronto, Oct. 21 — (CP) — A handful of fans Thursday saw University of Toronto intermediates duplicate the feat of their seasoned senior counterparts and win a track championship. The seniors won their title Wednesday at London, Ont.

It was Toronto all the way as the Blues swept to their third straight intermediate intercollegiate track championship by defeating University of Western Ontario, McMaster University and the Ontario Agricultural College.

Bob Adare, with victories in the 220-yard low hurdles and the 120-yard high hurdles, paced the victors who racked up a total of 78 points, 26 more than second-place McMaster. O.A.C. Aggies were third with 35 points, while Western also ran with two marker-ers.

Despite sunny skies and a dry track the field contestants failed to score a record, but Paul Forrestell's 2:02 880-yard dash was just .01.2 off the existing mark.

Adare took the low-hurdles in 27.3 and the high hurdles in 18.1.

Another double winner was McMaster's Don MacFarlane, who took the 220-yard dash in 23.1 and the 100-yard dash in 10.3. MacFarlane and Adare won each event they entered.

Another McMaster entrant, distance runner Jack Warga, was at his best in the 880-yard dash which he won by a scant margin from Toronto's Bill MacMackon in 58.3. He was third in the 220.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

New York, Oct. 31 — (AP) — Madison Square Garden is asking something like $75,000 for hockey television rights this season and $100,000 for basketball . . . And the TV folks are very reluctant to shell out unless they can find sponsors to pick up the tabs . . . Lorne Chabot, Jr., 20-year-old rookie goalie with the Tulsa Oilers, has his sights set on the Vezina Trophy, which his dad won twice . . . But first he'll have to work his way up to the National Hockey League.

Cleaning the Cuff

Jack Dempsey, now in the business of producing sports movies, hopes to do the story of Jo Jo Maggio next. "It will be the biggest thing ever done by Dempsey or anyone else," says Jack . . . The University of Miami drew 76,492 customers for its first two home football games this season. That's more than any Miami team ever attracted in a full season up to 1938.

Want to get away from it all? To go this year's little farther afield? Then plan a holiday in Ontario's Northland. Up north of Georgian Bay there is a lovely country of lakes and streams, from which fishermen bring back maximum catches of trout, bass and pickerel—and hunters, of moose, bear, ducks and deer. For details as to accommodation . . . mostly of the hunting camp kind but comfortable . . . write to the Chamber of Commerce in North Bay or Sudbury. Allow a full day if you're driving from most Ontario centres; two days if you're coming from Windsor way. Plane and train service, too!

To Ontario we have a holiday paradise . . . let's do all we can to encourage visitors from across the border. Published in support of the tourist business by John Labatt Limited.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Oct. 21 — (AP)— Helen Gahagan Douglas will probably have to campaign for the United States Senate without the help of her actor-husband, Melvyn Douglas.

He is reading play scripts and plans to return to Broadway after "Carriage Entrance." He starred last season in the moderately successful "Two Blind Mice."

"However, if I'm not tied up with a play, I'll be glad to do what I can," he said. "Of course, I don't think she needs much help. She has been doing all right by herself."

Douglas plans to continue to make one or two pictures a year with plays in between. And what's the matter with staying here all the time?

"California makes you soft," he remarked. "You get lazy in all this sunshine."

Friday Fridge

Wendell Corey, on the other hand, prefers the sunshine—no maybe it's his contract. At any rate, he passed up chances to appear in the new Garson Kanin play, "The Rat Race," and in the Chicago company of "Detective Story". Having done five pictures this year, he's now in "no sad songs" for "The Furies," a western with Barbara Stanwyck and Walter Huston.

Jean Parker offers these words of experience: "I quit Hollywood five years ago to get out of the rut of "B" pictures. I went to start on the stage. It's the only way to learn acting."

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Ace Kibitzer

A strong bridge hand is more worry than one that is weak. With a weak hand you feel justified in stopping as soon as possible. With a strong hand the fear is that you may stop too soon.

South was the dealer in the spread you see here:

A hand with a count of nine tricks or more should start with an opening bid of two in a suit. The bid of one more than is conventionally necessary signals that game of some kind should be reached.

Not always will such a hand produce a game. On rare occasional it will be short a trick. But so good is it that going to a game is worth the try. Anything less is too conservative a policy.

Having thus announced a game-try hand, the opener is anxious to know if partner has help for a slam. Therefore, the first reply by partner should be either encouraging or discouraging.

In this case the opening bid by south is two spades. If partner in north makes any kind of an encouraging response, south will go to slam of some kind. But what if the response is a real discouraging?

They will not stop short of game, of course. But what about a slam? There is a loser in diamonds, a possible loser in spades, and as many as three possible losers in clubs. Too many losers for slam.

On the other hand, north could have the club king and help for spades. With such cards in north, south has a good chance to make a slam. But north may not be able to give this precise information.

These are the situations that help to make bridge a game that is never dry. Just around the corner is always a double as to what you may find. In partner. In the hand of an opponent.

If partner denied having a sure trick would you try for a slam with this hand? Would you be content with a game? Or would you consider it a fielder's choice? So would I.

Albert Juniors Lose to St. Mikes By 29-0 Score

Paced by the offensive combination of Bobby Green and Gerry Schreider, St. Michael's Academy defeated Albert College gridders by a 29-0 score in a scheduled Bay of Quinte Section COSSA fixture yesterday afternoon on the college field.

The experienced St. Michael's kids showed too much for the plucky hard-fighting college crew and after the first quarter romped home with all their points.

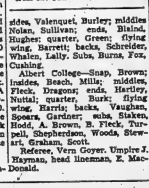
St. Mike's plays started to click in the second quarter with Schreider going over after an extension play around the end. Green converted. In the third quarter Green fired a forward pass to Schreider a few minutes later and that player galloped 40 yards for the touch. It was converted by Green took over the scoring when he raced over the line after a quarter back sneak. He converted his own touch. A safety touch ended the quarter with the score standing 19-0.



Green went over again in the fourth session on a fake buck and Schreider added another on a pass from Green to end the scoring.

The teams:

St. Michael's—Snap, Garvin; Insoles, Valenquel, Burley; middles Nolan, Sullivan; ends, Bisind, Hughes; quarter, Green; flying wing, Barrett; backs, Schreider, Whalen, Lally. Subs, Burns, Fox, Cushing.

Albert College—Snap, Brown; insides, Beach, Mills; middles, Fleck, Dragone; ends, Hartley, Nutal; quarter, Burley; flying wing, Harris; backs, Vaughan, Sparkes, Gardiner; subs, Staken, Hodd, A. Brown, B. Fleck, Turpell, Shepherdson, Woods, Stewart, Graham, Scott.

Little Benny's Note Book

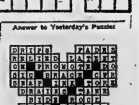
This morning pop was drinking his 2nd cup of coffee now, on account of not being suppose to have a 3rd cup saying to me, Horse blanket to blazes, I never felt less like going down to the office, and I can't remember a day when it was more important for me to go down.

It sounds likes an unpleasant combination, I admit, ma said, and pop said, The man that first invented work must of been a very low caracter, and I wish he'd never been born.

Why William, such a thawt to expose or even have in your head, ma said. If it wasn't for work, our leasure time would be just a drug on the market, because idleness would be intolerinjulishable from laziness. Vacations would loose all their meening, because there wouldn't be anything to take a vacation from. In other words, the picture wouldn't have any other side, and what kind of a picture would that be? she said.

By gollies it would be a one sided picture, like many of the greatest masterpieces, pop said, I see your point, my dear, and I withdraw my wish that the inventer of work had never been born I merely wish that he had been born on a desert island, he said, and I said, Well aw G, pop, if there wasn't any work for you to do, you couldn't make any money, so then how could I get my allowance every week? I'd have to go to work myself, but if there wasn't any to go to, how could IT I said.

My situation is becoming almost imbarrassing, pop said. I wish the fellow had been born on a desert island, but I'll make it a desert island with a nice lybarry and maybe even a movie theater with first class B pictures, he said.



He folded up his paper and left for his office whistleing like somebody feeling better instead of worse.

Washington Spotlight:

Precinct Door-Bell Ringer First U.S. Woman Ambassador

By GEORGE KITCHEN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Washington, Oct. 21 (CP)—A dainty Minnesota farm wife, who first stepped into politics in 1940 as a precinct door-bell ringer, is to become the first woman ambassador of the United States.

She is 40-year-old Mrs. Eugenia Moore Anderson, who soon will trade the 500-acre Mississippi Valley farm, where she now lives with her artist husband and two children, for a chancery in Copenhagen as United States Ambassador to Denmark.

The United States already has sent two women abroad as ministers, but Mrs. Anderson, whose appointment was announced by President Truman last week, is the first woman diplomat with rank of ambassador.

Shops for Grammar

Her call to the diplomatic service came over an old-fashioned rural wall telephone at the Anderson farm in Red Wing, Minn., south of Minneapolis, and she accepted. She promptly went shopping for a Danish grammar book.

The Minnesota region in which the Andersons live is peopled with Americans of Scandinavian descent, but Mrs. Anderson, though she speaks some German, is unfamiliar with Scandinavian languages.

"But I can learn," she told reporters later. "And I'll learn all of it."

Against Isolationism

Her first venture into politics came in 1944 when she became concerned over the isolationist stand of the congressional representative in her district. She joined the league of women voters, attended a precinct caucus and from there went up and up.

An accomplished pianist, Mrs. Anderson pushed her music into the background as she moved ahead in the political field. At one time, her goal was a career on the concert stage.

Her family will go to Copenhagen with her and her children —Johanna, 14, and Hans, 11 — will attend Danish public schools rather than an English school. She wants them to learn the Danish language.

Mrs. Anderson herself is of Scottish and English descent; her husband is of Scandinavian ancestry.

Will Attempt to Form New French Government

Rene Mayer, above, former French minister, and now a member of Radical Socialist Party, might be ticking off possibilities of his chances to succeed in forming a new French government. He has agreed to do what Socialist Leader Jules Moch failed to do, To attempt to form a government that may end French cabinet crisis. Mayer had previously stated that Henri Queville, who was premier before Moch, would be best fitted to run a middle-of-the-road coalition.—Central Press Canadian.

Start Weaving Worsted Cloth After Long Lapse

BY NORMAN CHRISTENS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Worsted, Norfolk, England, Oct. 21 — (CP) — The village from which worsted cloth got its name has started weaving again after a lapse of many centuries.

A modern, 45-inch-wide handloom has been installed in the village school. Here children descended from the medieval weavers, who brought wealth and fame to Worstead, will learn the intricacies of the craft.

When the first shuttle flies across the loom a broken thread of history will be relied.

Worsted today is an all-but-forgotten cluster of houses (population 700) round a magnificent 14th-century church. The church and two of the old weavers' colleges are all that remain of its spectacular past.

Village schoolmaster Henry Wright hit on the idea of reintroducing worsted weaving.

"Two months ago I took a course at the London school of weaving," he said. "The pedal part came easily, as I'm also a church organist, but the rest in intricate. I shall start the children on hand-looms.

"The big loom is being presented by the International wool secretariat, and the first length of cloth is earmarked for the United States . . ."

Outside the school weaving is also returning to the village as a commercial proposition. An old cottage has been bought by a Yorkshire weaver who will shortly bring his looms south to the original home of his craft.

Black Boom

By Paul David Preston

"I said", he spoke again with deadly calm, "that Texas Rangers are in charge at this town, and I asked you politely to unload your guns. I'm now telling you to unload in just 30 seconds and start moving quietly to your homes."

Plainly visible under his coat were two pistols and one gun on the holsters. Texas Ranger pistols. Guns with perhaps the greatest reputation in the world.

There on the cement lay one man who had dared defy this arm of Texas law. And those deadly guns had not yet been drawn. Every man present knew the guns could whip into action with electric speed and destruction.

An elderly man broke his shotgun, took out the two shells. Others glanced at him. Another emptied his rifle. Then another. There was some muttering, but not much. The Ranger watched, grim faced, poised. When they were done he spoke again.

"You two—move off that direction. Now some of you start yonder. You must scatter. And go straight home. If the law needs you downtown we'll summons a posse. Thank you, gentlemen."

That was the only moment of violence all evening.

The two Rangers met at Hightower's Drug Store and with calm deliberateness went to the soda fountain to eat a sandwich for their supper. They eyed the street constantly, though. Bubba Hightower probed them.

"You Rangers aim to patrol the whole town?"

"Won't be necessary", the man named Ed explained. "We have done enough. Word of our presence gets around fast. The square is about clear already, and common sense will take charge again in an hour or so."

"Doggone!" murmured Bubba, in real tribute.

"The Texas Rangers, son, are backed by the citizens themselves. We seldom use force. We represent what the citizens know is the force of intelligent opinion, and the very men we order home will thank us tomorrow. We don't even know what your riot is about yet, but they're all alike. People get excited, worried, angry without cause. You've got a nice looking town here. Business ought to be booming.

"It is", said Bubba. "It is."

It was almost midnight when Del Tower climbed the stairs to his and Dr. Watkins' offices. He knew he would find his elderly associate there waiting for him despite the late hour. He tossed his hat wearily on a couch and flopped down beside it, combing his hair with his fingers, elbows on his knees.

"Well", he began, "things have quieted down, doctor. The Rangers saved our faces. I have just left the courthouse, too. Martin is charged with criminal assault; that is, assault with intent to kill. It's pretty serious."

The elderly man took some time removing his glasses, wiping them, looking at his protege. "It is serious, son", he agreed, quietly. "Is he in jail?"

"No sir. We made him stay out. They wanted $5,000 bond. I could write a check for $2,000 —about all I had—and we got Flim Craig from the bank to okay it. Then I asked M. J. Parker for some. That Monroe came in with the rest. He wanted to furnish it all, but—"

"You were Martin's friend? You yourself, son?"

"In part, only. I didn't have enough."

"I know, but —the gesture", old Dr. Watkins was nodding. "It was you he tried to kill."

"I gave him cause. I challenged his speech. And anyway —when I came I cut in on his girl. Or tried to."

Dr. Watkins considered these facts for a long quiet moment. "Son", he spoke slowly then, "I am proud to have my precipice going to you. You are living up to my hopes." The old doctor was going sentimental again Del knew, but Del responded to the kindness of it. He listened closely. "You did like Miss Lillian, didn't you? I sort of figured you would when I sent you out that first night. Now Martin has been —well, there had been an 'understanding' about him and Lillian for years. Or at least until Thad Monroe came to town. You know how it is. But life just seemed to rock along. You disrupted their little nest, I observed"

"Dr Watkins, I couldn't help what happened any more than I could stop the sunrise!" Del was suddenly anxious to talk. "The moment I saw Lillian I—" He stopped mid-sentence to gaze off, remembering, face drawn. Dr. Watkins waited but Del never quite finished.

"And then something happened, son?"

"Yes sir."

"It often does. Do you—want to tell me?" It was an infinitely kind invitation from the old gray-headed physician.

"We were at a dance in Kilgore first thing. Some dizzy girl was damnably rude to Lillian. The girl happened to be a patient I had back in Cleveland hospital where I was interne. She—well, she fell for me, sir. I mean, she thought she could make me—make me—well you know how it is. She was pretty sick at first. I had to kid her along a week or two; but nothing unfair, dean sir! She was married to a gambler, lived with him off and on. I imagine they drifted down here to join the oil boom. I had nothing to do with her. Had forgotten her in fact. A patient, nothing else. She popped up in Kilgore to make a scene. Slapped Lillian, and pushed her down—all that. Drunk, Lillian hit the sky."

The old doctor nodded.

"I had to carry Lillian out of the dance hall and force her into my car. All the way home I explained. She clapped her hands around her ears and stamped the car floor and told me she hoped she never saw me again and—and—oh, all sorts of talk. Wouldn't hear the explanation. It took me weeks to get out my side by by degrees. I think she's gotten over most of her feelings about that, now, but

"Son, that sort of indignity would upset a Mayfield tremendously. They are an old, proud family here, understand. Fine people, fine people indeed; But —well a type. We must love them and be patient with them and know them for their goodness."

"I finally figured that out, all right. And just today she told me she wasn't angry about that dance hall business any more. Nevertheless, there's a coldness. I mean, a sort of wall between us. I suppose she resents my being a stranger, or a northerner. I had to bump her boy friend around some. And now this shooting. Judas!"

Silence held for a long minute or two between them, and then old Doc Watkins smiled a little and said, "I don't for sure, son, but I think maybe all these things are good signs."

Martin Deale reasoned that he would have to do everything possible to make up for shooting Dorothy Mayfield. He was contrite five miles moment he pulled the trigger that day. He went through a sort of hell right there, and a more tangible form of punishment loomed for him when the routine of the law got going.

Incapable of saying what he wanted to say in person, he wrote Baby Doll a letter of abject apology.

"It's the sort of thing Martin would do", Lillian had said, dismissing the incident. "He'll probably do it in poetry when he's sik."

"Do you think he will?" The idea appealed to the younger sister.

His apology, and Baby Doll's somewhat embarrassing avowal of love for Martin when she thought herself dying, and the fact that Martin had been "defending the Mayfield principles" in the first place, all served to retain his status as a friend of the family despite the fact of the shooting. He hadn't shot at Baby Doll; she had thrown herself in the way of the bullet, they remembered.

In his lingering distress over the incident Martin ordered old Dr. Watkins to call on Baby Doll every day, and personally went to him each afternoon to pay for the call.

"It won't be necessary for me to go out again, son", the old physician said, after the third week. "She can come in about 10 days Please for a final check over, but—"

"Dr. Watkins, I insist that you pb, sir. Please do. —I here, I'll pay you in advance. Double if necessary. If there is the slightest thing to be done—"

He had to humor the boy twice more, but on the third day he good-naturedly made Martin come out with him. On the drive out he "fathered" the young man a little.

"Son you are just upset about Miss Baby Doll's, uh, avowal of love for you, it would get under any man's skin, the way things went. But don't you pay any attention to that. She's just a child, still. Her talk that half hour or so was the unrest due to shock. I doubt if she even remembers it. Nobody else mentioned it, have they?"

The matter was embarrassing to Martin. "No sir."

"Uhn huhm. Don't pay any attention to it, then."

Baby Doll was playing the phonograph when Jason let the doctor and Martin in, but she ran dutifully to her invalid couch. Martin came into her presence wearing an expression he might have shown at a funeral parlor.

"I went to convince Martin that you are now all right, Miss", Dr. Watkins said. "And how are you, Mrs. Mayfield?"

"Mrs. Mayfield didn't feel well and said so. Moreover, her face showed the strain. Dr. Watkins gave her considerable attention, all good and all destined to go unheeded.

"Never, except that first year, have I missed Dan so much as here lately, Dr. Watkins", she confessed now. "Dan always had sole charge of our business, you know. It isn't easy for me to—the oil, and all."

The doctor nodded. "You have been very brave, Millie", said he, gently. "No widow ever had an easy life unless she just will it. You must continue to be strong, my dear."

"That's what I tells her, Dr. Watkins, suh." Jason Weems put that in. He had been hovering within earshot. "Miss Millie don't need to worry herself none whatsoever. I promise Mr. Dan she will."

"Yes Jason. You take care of her. Miss Millie is naturally upset about that oil derrick on her lawn, you must—"

MOTHER, THREE CHILDREN DIE IN N.B. FIRE

Night Watchman Scores 2 Awaiting Trial for Murder

Five Prisoners Attempt Break From Arizona Jail

Phoenix, Ariz., Oct. 22 (AP)—A crippled watchman's gunfire early today killed two men awaiting trial for murder here as five prisoners broke out of the county jail.

Slain were Edward Corcoran, 33, awaiting trial for the murder of his wife in July, 1948, and Edward McEwen, held for trial on a charge of murdering a Phoenix citrus grower, Charles T. Shoop, last May 12.

Stowe said he was reading in the courthouse record room when he heard the jailbreak plaza upstairs.

"I started up, then three of them jumped me. One had a gun and hit me on the head.

"I shot one. Then I looked and saw one of them on the stairs. I shot him.

Tear gas from sheriff's deputies brought the surrender of two others. They were identified as John Bridges, held on a robbery charge, and Dinzel McDonald, awaiting charges on a burglary count. One prisoner, believed to be Jack L. Tatum, held on theft charges, escaped.

Father Suffers Burns Rescuing 2 Other Children

Home Completely Destroyed In Village of Hartland

Hartland, N. B., Oct. 22 (CP)—Mrs. Oland Everett and her three small children were burned to death early today when fire destroyed their home in this northwestern New Brunswick village.

Mr. Everett, who rescued two other children from the flaming building, was taken to hospital at nearby Woodstock suffering from burns.

It was the second fire with multiple death toll in New Brunswick this week.

William Proctor, six, and Anita Proctor, 13, were burned to death Wednesday when fire destroyed their home at Cody's N.B. Mrs. William Proctor, their mother and two other children, Wilma, 15, and Eugene, 13, survived although all suffered burns and shock.

BY-ELECTIONS WILL FILL EIGHT COMMONS SEATS

First Government Test Since General Election Held June 27th

Ottawa, Oct. 22.—(CP)—By-elections will be held Monday to fill eight Common vacancies caused by six government appointments and two deaths.

Five of the by-elections, first called since the June 27 general election, will be in Quebec—Montreal Mercier, Montreal Laurier, Montreal Jacques-Cartier, Gatineau and Kamouraska.

The others will be in Toronto Greenwood, in the New Brunswick constituency of Restigouche Madawaska and in the British Columbia constituency of New Westminster.

There are 23 candidates for the eight seats. Voters go to the polls between 8 a.m. and 8 p.m. local standard time.

Because the by-elections follow so closely the general election, only limited interest has been shown. The Progressive Conservative party, official opposition in the Commons, declined to contest only three of the seats. The CCF party placed only two candidates in the running.

The Liberals have candidates in all seats and in some of the Quebec constituencies they are opposed by Liberal Independents as well as independents.

Present standing of the Commons:

Joseph Jean, former solicitor general and Liberal representative of Montreal Mercier since 1935, was appointed to the Quebec Superior Court.

One Three-Way Fight

There is a three-way fight in the by-election—Marcel Monette, Liberal; Wilfrid Laxverre, Independent Liberal, and Jean Bertrand, Independent.

Montreal Jacques Cartier became vacant with the appointment of Ernest Bertrand, former Postmaster General to the Quebec Court of King's Bench.

35 SAILORS RESCUED

Fishguard, Wales, Oct. 22 — (AP) — Thirty-five sailors trapped aboard a sinking Soviet freighter were rescued Friday night by two small merchant ships. One freighter, the 2,585-ton Cydonia, struck a drifting mine off the west coast of Britain. One sailor was killed by the blast, which tore a ragged hole in the vessel's side.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

Toronto, Oct. 22—(CP)—Synopsis: Much cooler air moved rapidly into Ontario today ending the unseasonably warm mild spell. An intense disturbance that developed over northern Ontario was expected to be speeding into the province this coast that has been over the prairies for the past few days. The storm also increased winds over most of the province to gale force. Storm warnings are displayed at all Great Lakes ports.

Another cold air mass over northwestern Canada is moving into the prairies today and will spread into northern Ontario on Sunday accompanying by some rain and unsettled weather over southern Ontario will be sunny and cool on Sunday.

These Family Stories Get More Confusing

Port Angeles, Wash., Oct. 22—(AP) — You may be a little confused, by this story about assistant father Robert Covault.

But then, so was Covault, who told it this way:

He was waiting on the fidgeters' bench at the hospital. At home his four-year-old daughter was being cared for by a baby-sitter—or so he thought.

Then the nurses came by. They were wheeling the baby-sitter into the delivery room to have a baby. He rubbed his eyes and looked again.

But, asserted Covault, he wasn't too upset. Mrs. Covault is a baby-sitter, a six-pound, two-ounce daughter who was the envy of the first baby.

You see, the baby-sitter was Mrs. Vern Ireland, the Covault's oldest daughter.

GIRL RECEIVES CHEQUE

Picton, Oct. 22 — (CP)—More than 100 Junior Farmers gathered at nearby Bloomfield to see Betty Dempsey receive an award for the greatest contribution in club leadership, a $50 cheque to be used on a trip to the International Livestock Exposition in Chicago. The cheque was presented by Prince Edward County Federation of Agriculture.

Livestock Showmanship Trophy went to Clifford Foster of East Lake as well as the trophy for highest standing in Picton Calf Club.

FOUR - POUND POTATO

Shelbourne, Ont., Oct. 22 (CP) — How many potatoes in a peck? If you use potatoes as big as the one grown by Ernest Lowe, who uses a farm near here, there won't be many. Mr. Dynes recently dug up a four-pound spud which is almost as big as his head.

Russia Moving Faster Than U.S. In Atomic Development Says Scientist

Philadelphia, Oct. 22—(AP)—A Nobel-prize-winning scientist said Friday the Russians are moving faster than the United States in atomic development and soon may be ahead of the U.S.

And Dr. Harold C. Urey, the scientist who was awarded the Nobel prize for discovering heavy hydrogen, had a ready-made reason:

The U.S. is too concerned about military secrecy.

"It is time that we take stock of this situation and recognize it for what it is," Dr. Urey declared, "and it is time that we stop hush-hushing about the 'secret' which obviously now does not exist."

He gave his views at a press conference. So did Lt.-Gen. Leslie R. Groves, wartime atomic research chief.

Dr. Urey said: "I would fire every security officer in every atomic plant and laboratory in the United States with the exception of Los Alamos." (Los Alamos was excepted, he said, because of its security.

CRIME COMICS MAY BE INCLUDED IN CRIMINAL CODE

Justice Minister Garson Approves in Principle

Ottawa, Oct. 22 (CP)—The Federal government is asking the provinces to help find ways of plugging loopholes in the Criminal Code through which some publishers now evade penalties for turning out obscene literature.

Justice Minister Garson disclosed this intention in the commons Friday night during a speech in which he said the government is willing to include crime comics in the provisions of the Criminal Code.

Mr. Garson spoke as the commons gave second reading—approval in principle—to an opposition member's bill that would make publishers, sellers and distributors of crime comics liable to prosecution.

The bill, sponsored by F. D. Fulton (CC-Kamloops), will remain before a committee of the whole house until the provinces indicate what type of amendment to the Criminal Code would be most suitable to clamp down on obscene literature and dime crime comic books.

The section, under which crime comics would be included, provides a maximum penalty of two years for anyone convicted of wilfully publishing, distributing or selling obscene literature.

Difficult To Prove

One difficulty in enforcing this law was in proving that a person distributed or sold the literature knowingly or wilfully.

Comic books occupied the commons during the hour regularly provided on Fridays for private members' legislation.

The budget debate was opened by the three opposition groups during the afternoon sitting which was marked by introduction of want-of-confidence motions by the C.C.F. and Progressive Conservative parties.

U.K. to Spend Less in Canada In 1950 Informed Sources Say

By HAROLD MORRISON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Oct. 22 (CP)—The United Kingdom has told Canada that she will reduce spending in this country next year by approximately $195,000,000, informed sources have disclosed.

The cut-back, the sources said, stems from Britain's dollar difficulties and a financial crisis. As a result, Britain is expected to slice spending in Canada to about $600,000,000—lowest since 1940.

Exports to the U.K. in 1948 totalled approximately $700,000,000. This year they likely will be slightly lower.

Receipt of the information by the government is believed to have sparked a trip overseas by Max Mackenzie, Deputy Minister of Trade, and J. T. Sargent, Deputy Minister of Agriculture.

They will leave by air today for discussions in London with various British ministries concerned with Canadian industrial and food supplies.

Talks likely will centre on how to dis' ibute the reduced amount of dollars among various Canadian industries without undue hardship to any one.

Mr. Taggart is expected to argue and give reasons why Britain should not reduce agricultural imports such as bacon, cheese, eggs, salmon and small fruits.

Mr. Mackenzie, on the other hand, is expected to plump for continued importation of such things as newsprint, pit props and pulpwood.

Dollar value of Anglo-Canadian food contracts in 1949 probably will total in excess of $370,000,000. Lumber, newsprint and other wood pulp products totalled $37,000,000, in the first six months this year.

The sources said these commodities were the leading and most important items Canada shipped to the U.K.

It is understood, however, that the U.K. has indicated she intends to cut purchases in bacon, eggs and newsprint.

Without the stabilizing influences of a large U.K. bacon contract, the Canadian price market may deteriorate, leaving the farmer with lower incomes and the federal government with new headaches, the sources said. The same may be said of eggs.

Newsprint organizations have not much worry since one of their biggest markets is in the United States. However, they have a large stake in the British market and probably would be unhappy to see Scandinavian countries replace Canada as a big supplier of newsprint needs.

Toronto Man Drowns in Lake

(By The Canadian Press)

Wind and rain lashed Ontario today, sending Great Lakes vessels scurrying for cover and bringing death to a duck-hunter on Lake Simcoe.

Weather officials in Toronto said the heavy winds were likely to continue until nightfall.

One man was believed drowned and two others were rescued when a squall overturned their boats in Cook's Bay, at the southern end of Lake Simcoe. The missing man was tentatively identified as a James Savage of Scarborough, a Toronto suburb.

Says Reds Can Starve Out Hong Kong

Tokyo, Oct. 22 — (AP) — China's Communist armies can take Hong Kong any time and without firing a shot, the chief of the Chinese (Nationalist) mission in Japan declared Friday. Lt.-Gen. Chu Shih Ming said the British Crown Colony cannot support its population without imports, and the Reds can cut off these shipments easily.

Boy's Condition Said Critical

Toronto, Oct. 22 (CP)—John De Conkey, 12, injured when he fell into the path of a slow-moving Canadian Pacific Railway train, was reported in critical condition today.

Hospital attendants said part of the boy's right foot was amputated. He also suffered fractures of both arms and legs and of the jaw.

The Canadian Press Friday reported erroneously that both legs were severed above the knees.

Will Guard Captain Farrar in England

Dudley, Worcestershire, England, Oct. 22.—(Reuters)—Capt. Roy Farrar, threatened with death by the Stern Gang in Palestine just a year ago, will be guarded by police when he arrives here next week from Southern Rhodesia. Capt. Farrar is being considered as a Conservative candidate in the 1950 general election. His younger brother, Rex, was killed in May, 1946, by a parcel bomb intended for Capt. Farrar and delivered to their home near Wolverhampton.

OPPOSITION OPENS FIRE ON GOVT. TRADE POLICIES

2 Want-of-Confidence Motions Introduced

Ottawa, Oct. 22 (CP)—Opposition financial spokesmen Friday opened fire on government trade policies as budget debate got under way in the commons.

Two want-of-confidence motions —one from the Progressive Conservative party followed by another from the C.C.F.—were introduced.

Hon. Earl Rowe, Progressive Conservative of Dufferin-Simcoe, led off debate on the budget resolutions introduced Thursday night by Finance Minister Abbott.

His non-confidence motion asked the House to express regret "that the government has failed to take effective measures to prevent the present decline in our trade with the sterling area."

It also expressed the opinion that "the government should consider advisability of inviting the nations of the commonwealth to a conference in the immediate future for the purpose of working out arrangements to preserve and enlarge those traditional markets on which jobs and opportunities for Canadians very largely depend."

Ross Thatcher, C.C.F. member for the Saskatchewan constituency of Moose Jaw — a city in which he operates a hardware store—fired the opening volley of his party's attack on the budget.

Should Stand Together

He finished his speech with an amendment to the motion of Rowe urging the government to consider immediate tariff reductions to encourage an increase in imports from the United Kingdom and other sterling countries.

Solon Low, Social Credit leader, expressed belief that the Commonwealth countries should stand together in an attempt to work out a solution to the trade problems.

The last speaker before debate on the budget was adjourned, Mr. Low was prevented by House

Twenty Years Ago Markets Began To Fall and Then Utterly Collapse

New York, Oct. 22.—(CP)—During the summer of 1929, the United States and Canada were riding the crest of a wave of prosperity.

In October the bubble broke. People looked back on those exciting and comfortable times and realized how fantastic and unreal the whole thing had been.

But no one looking through their rose-colored glasses at the bright light of prosperity could foresee the dark era of depression that was to follow. On the 24th stock market hit rock bottom on "Black Tuesday", Oct. 29.

During the summer stocks were high. Everybody read the financial pages and was talking the market.

Everyone with a little loose cash was hustling to get in on a good thing and turn a fast buck.

Driver Suffers Badly Cut Tongue

Brantford, Oct. 22—CP—Three persons were rushed to hospital by ambulance shortly after midnight when their automobile crashed into the rear of a parked car. The driver, Harold Hartlett of Ontario St., Stratford later was taken to hospital by police to receive 15 stitches in a badly cut tongue.

All were discharged from hospital after emergency treatment. The dead man's identity was established by police as Mrs. Victoria Gail of Main St., Galt, two broken ribs; Mrs. Catherine Murphy, R.R.4, Galt, bruised nose; Reginald John of Ainsley St., Galt, badly cut over left eye.

Traffic Officer James Davison and Constable Frank Hopgood said that the parked car was owned by Fred Campbell of Brantford, who said he had parked the car with the lights on while he ran into a nearby house. The officers said that the impact drove the car forward 78 feet.

Damage to the Hartlett car was estimated at $200, while the parked car's damage was estimated at approximately $300.

Attendant Exonerated Of Putting 'Curses' On Mental Patients

Sacramento, Calif., Oct. 22—(AP)—The only witchcraft case in California's history wound up Friday night when the complete exoneration of Mrs. Lorena M. Blackwell, attendant at the Sonoma State home for mentally ill. The state personnel board unanimously cleared Mrs. Blackwell of charges she put "curses" on patients. She also photographed them with remarks concerning witchcraft.

ASKS SUGGESTIONS ON UNEMPLOYMENT

St. John's, Nfld., Oct. 22 (CP) — Premier Smallwood Friday night asked Newfoundlanders to send in suggestions on how to offset the province's unemployment problem. In a radio speech, the premier told his listeners that over-emphasis on road work — other public works projects also were needed.

C.S.L. Counsel Says Company Met Its Responsibility to the Fullest

Toronto, Oct. 22 (CP)—Findings in the federal inquiry into the Noronic disaster will be handed down Nov. 7.

The commissioner, Mr. Justice R. L. Kellock, adjourned the inquiry until that date after hearing testimony from 84 witnesses concerning the burning, 17 cruise ship fire, in the fire, 105 persons were killed and 14 left missing.

The closing phase of the inquiry was argument by Frank Wilkinson, counsel for Canada Steamship Lines, who said the Noronic fire aboard the C.S.L. ship was "one of those tragic events for which no explanation can be given."

He said the company met its responsibility to the passengers when it supplied a seaworthy ship, proper equipment and an experienced master and crew. The company also supplied detailed safety regulations and called for frequent reports on whether the crew was complying with these regulations.

Mr. Wilkinson said that of the 524 passengers on board, 406 survived. He contended that this indicated there was "no inadequacy of alarm and no inadequacy of exits." He added:

Did Not Follow Instructions

"If the passengers had gone to the proper muster stock as directed in instructions in their cabins, most of them would have been saved. It is quite clear from evidence before the court that passengers in crew who reached the promenade deck on the port side, or on the starboard side aft, were saved."

From evidence given, it appeared that the ship's list resulting from deck to deck offered good, free access, he said.

Mr. Wilkinson said he was puzzled over the fact that so many passengers apparently failed through the roles of tramping feet and shouting in the corridors and on the stairways.

Possibly they left their cabins in time and went back in search of relatives, he said.

Purse of Money Presented Retiring Railway Worker

Members of the roundhouse staff of the Canadian National Railways here held signal honor to a retired colleague yesterday afternoon when they presented James B. Mitchell, Trenton, with a purse of money.

The presentation was made by Arthur Whalen, a former colleague of Mr. Brummell before the two working shifts of the roundhouse. Mr. R. Babb, locomotive foreman, gave a brief address speaking on the fine record of service of Mr. Brummell and adding his wishes to those of the recipient's former work fellows for a happy retired life. Mr. Brummell expressed his sincere appreciation of the gift in a brief reply.

Mr. Brummell, an engine watchman on his retirement, joined the railroad in 1914 at Trenton. After working there for a number of years he was transferred to Belleville, remaining hey until 1948 when he was transferred back to Trenton. He remained there until the time of retirement.

617 Students Now Enrolled In Night Classes

Belleville and district young people are taking full advantage of night school classes being offered at the Belleville Collegiate Institute, according to a summary of registrations furnished to the board of education by school principal, G. E. Currie.

Total registration at the night school classes was given as 617 students, an increase in the number of students over the considerable interest has been shown in the new classes established this year.

For instance 20 young men have enrolled in the bricklaying class where the fundamentals of this type of construction are being shown to the students. Who knows, the class may ultimately be the result of relieving the shortage of bricklayers in the Belleville district.

Also there is a considerable interest being shown in the class for general construction and the cabinet making with 24 being registered in the first named class and 37 in the second.

Another class which this year has been at all-time high in enrolments is the class in English for new Canadians. There are five students in this class and the size of the class is growing each year.

Other night classes and the number enrolled in each are as follows: art, 38; bookkeeping, 19; cooking, 5; drafting, 26; electronics, 20; machine shop 31; mathematics 13; motor mechanics 42; sewing, 57; shorthand, 19; stationary engineering 28 (two classes); typing 71; welding 41; physics, 20, and weaving, 16.

Ernest Nelson Named President CCF Association

Local C. N. R. employee, Mr. Ernest Nelson, city, was named C. C. F. president of the South Hastings Riding Association at the annual meeting held at the Hotel Quinte on Thursday evening of this week.

Other officers elected included Mrs. K. V. McAteer of Belleville as vice-president and secretary; Robert Ostendahl of Belleville, treasurer, and organizer A. C. Cote of that city. Executive councillors are Mr. McCambridge of Marysville and Douglas Bews of Belleville.

Newly - elected officers and members, attending the annual meeting went on record as being opposed to the proposed increase in rates by the Bell Telephone Co., their opinion being that this company has developed into a monopoly and in the best interests of the public it should be taken over by the government and operated in a manner such as the Ontario Hydro. It was proposed that Mr. E. B. Jolliffe in the Ontario House, move that this be done.

Deplore Govt. Action

The meeting also deplores the action of the Liberal Government in the appointment of Mr. Ilsley, removal of the means test in regard to old age pensions. Removal of the means test was stated to have been one of the Liberal party's promises in the last election. It was proposed the means test be removed without delay.

Mr. E. B. Jolliffe spoke in defense of the Liberal government and their opposition to the appointment of a commission in support of the C. P. R. employees who struck. In this he should be in strike with the view of continuity of service for pension rights.

The meeting also went on record as being opposed to the action of the Hon. Milton Gregg in disbanding the Parliamentary Veterans Affairs Committee, thus depriving the veterans rights of appeal against decisions of the pensions board.

Queen's University Padre Denounces 'Follow Crowd'

"We don't have enough moral individuality today. We let others stack their opinions for us. We don't make up our minds on our own. This absence of personal moral judgment leads to mob morality."

These opinions were expressed by Rev. A. M. Laverty, Padre at Queen's University, Kingston, Ontario, in a sermon delivered to the students in Grant Hall.

Around the text, "Thou shalt not follow a multitude to do evil," the university padre built his sermon. He said that there are times when the young people of today should not simply follow the crowd.

There is the crowd which does not like foreigners, which finds it difficult to understand non-English Saxons, which refuses to make the effort.

There is the crowd which refuses to take anything seriously, which plays at work, dodges responsibility. There is the crowd which pokes fun at purity of thought, speech and action," the padre said.

"In the world today, there is the crowd which says you must be 'tight' to be terrific, or have liquor in the wind to show any headway in the social current—unmindful of the burnt-out hulks which have gone aground.

"There is the crowd which has no regard for integrity of speech and conduct. The text: "Thou shalt not follow the multitude to do evil," is as modern as tomorrow's headline.

"No one can take your moral bearings for you, and no one can take the consequences of them for you," the padre counselled. "You are on your own. You expect and demand that your best efforts be recognized as yours. You must expect and admit that your worst efforts are labelled yours."

43.1 Per Cent of Pupils Attending BCI From County

Belleville Collegiate Institute and Trades School will soon be that just in name only!

Just this was indicated by enrolment figures furnished to the Board of Education by school principal G. E. Currie which showed that only 56.9 per cent of the students attending the collegiate are from the city, while balance of 43.1 per cent are from rural areas surrounding Belleville.

Total registration for the composite school was given as at 1,040 with 571 students attending the collegiate and 469 attending at the vocational school.

Although enrolment in the collegiate classes is down this year by first year students attending the school. There were 305 students who entered this school for the first time with 141 of these coming from the city and 164 in the vocational classes.

Prefer Academic Courses

The figures apparently prefer the academic courses as compared to the vocational courses with 62.17 per cent or 355 students in the collegiate being from the city while but 216 or 37.83 are from beyond the city.

The 571 students attending the collegiate represent 54.1 per cent of the total composite school enrolment.

The September attendance in the collegiate has been high averaging 98 per cent in all grades 9 classes and almost 97 per cent in the other collegiate classes.

Public school enrolment in the city was given as 6,418 with attendance efficiency for the month of September being 96.49 per cent.

Fairly Good Supply of Produce On Market Despite Bad Weather

Cloudy skies tended for a rather sketchy market this morning, but those who braved the weather brought with them a fair showing of flowers, fruit and vegetables as well as poultry, eggs and fish.

The vegetable market had a good supply of turnips, which were selling at 5, 10 and 15 cents each according to size, carrots were 50 cents the peck, or 2 the bag. Tomatoes, though down a little increase in quantity, were of good quality and sold at 35 cents the basket. Green beets, also plentiful were all 10 cents the bunch or three for 25 and 2 the hamper. Cauliflowers were in abundance. One vendor had his truck loaded with lovely white heads, and was selling them at from 10 to 25 cents each. Celery was 10 cents a bunch, or three bunches for 25 cents. Cabbage, ordinary, 10 cents the head; Red cabbage from 15 to 20 depending on the size.

Lots of Pumpkins

Pie pumpkins were not too plentiful selling at from 5 cents for 10 to 15 cents each. The field pumpkins were in abundance, and were of all sizes, from small to huge size, just the thing for that Jack o'lantern for Hallowe'en. Some sold at 10, 15, 20, 25 up to 50 cents each. Field pumpkins are also fine for pie, though not so fine in texture, but have a fine flavor, surpassed only by the variety that of the ordinary pie pumpkin. Canned tomatoes were 20 cents, beans 15 and corn 20, asparagus tips 25.

Winter radishes were still 5 cents the bunch. Vegetable marrow, so nice for marrow jam, a delicious spread for sandwiches, are for that early morning snack, were selling at 5 and 10 cents each. Strawberry tomatoes were 75 the basket, Hubbard squash, and there was an abundance of these, sold at 10, 35 and 40 cents each. The individual squash were 10 cents or three for 25. Chinese cabbage, so good for salads, was still 20 cents the bunch. Onions were $1 the peck, or 25 cents the small measure. Brussels sprouts were 20 cents the berry box. Dried beans were 35 cents the quart, or 10 cents the pint.

Apples Plentiful

Apples were still holding their own; Macintosh Reds were $1.25 the hamper, or 3 pounds for 25c; $1.25; Starks, handpicked, No. 1, $1.75 the hamper; Greenings, so delicious for pies, were also $1.75 the hamper; Talman Sweets, 50 cents the basket, or $2 the hamper for fine quality. The plums have about passed for the year, but a few Frost plums were selling for 20 cents the berry box. Wild grapes were also still 25 cents the basket.

Flowers too, were showing the end of the season as few were offered. The baby chrysanthemums in bronze and yellow, cut variety, were 25 and 40 cents the bunch; sinnias were 35, dahlias 25; gladioli $1.00 the dozen, or 10 cents each; pot chrysanthemums in large bunches, were 40 cents. Potted plants were about the same price as last week, with the 'mums ranging in price from $1.00 up, and the small potted plants from 35 up.

Good Supply Fowl

Eggs and fowl were plentiful and ranged in price for the eggs, grade A large, 64-65 the dozen; grade A medium, 55 cents the dozen; pullets, grade A, 40 cents.

The showing fowl of splendid quality, yearlings, were 39 cents the pound, while the roasters were still 36 cents the pound. Fish: mudcats, and pickerel were 25 and 30 cents the pound, respectively.

The home cooking was as plentiful and as delicious as ever. The ever favorite sugar coated doughnuts were 40 cents the dozen; pastries, small size, 2 dozen for 35, large size, 35 cents dozen. Tarts, berry, lemon, taffy, 45 cents. Apple squares, 2 for 15 cents; mince squares 15 cents each; individual pumpkin pies were 20 cents each, while the large size were 30 cents each. The apple pies were 45 and the large mince 50 each. Plain cakes were 25 the dozen, 3 for 25.

In the knit goods section a wide variety of articles was on display; men's hand knit socks from homespun wool were $1.75 and $2.25 the pair; ground length and small, were $1.25 to $1.50 each, and baby's requirements were of all prices, ranging from 35 cents to $4.00 the article.

Mr. Dayton has no pigs or wood were noticed.

Shriners Hold District Smoker In Club Tonight

Belleville Shrine Club will hold a stag and smoker in their Shrine headquarters tonight. The outstanding event of the meeting will be the entertainment to be provided by Mr. Frank Dayton of Sarnia and a former Pictonian.

Mr. Dayton has been very active in Masonic circles, is a member of Ramses Shrine, Toronto, Potentate's Aide in Western Ontario, an honorary member of Sarnia Shrine Club, and also Vice-President of the Sarnia Shrine Club.

Mr. Dayton is rated as one of Ontario's finest entertainers in the field of magic. There will be many of his Shriner friends from this territory who will be attending the party to renew acquaintance with the former Pictonian.

Obituary

LATE WALTER SCHLENKER

The funeral of Walter Schlenker, who died in Rochester, N.Y., on Monday last, was held Friday afternoon from the home of his brother-in-law, Mr. Blake Bedell, Consecon. The service there at Elmwood Cemetery was conducted by the Rev. F. W. Medcof, pastor of Consecon United Church.

Pall bearers were Elmer Shorey, Morley Bleekman, Bert Bleekman, George Thomas, Jack Thomas and Allan Noble.

MRS. JOHN McCLINTOCK (Eldorado)

Madoc, Oct. 22.—(Special)—Mrs. John McClintock, died at her home at Eldorado Saturday morning. She was in failing health for some time.

Born in Madoc township the late Mrs. McClintock was in her 78th year and was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Morrison. All her life was passed in the Eldorado district. Her late son, Mrs. Church.

Surviving her are her husband; two daughters, Mrs. William (Cora Belle) Keens, Remington, and Mrs. Clayton (Blanche Luella) McAlvaney, Queensboro; one son, John Harper McClintock, Kapuskasing; one sister, Mrs. James (Belle) Melvin, Calgary; also eight grandchildren.

The funeral announcement is made in this edition.

ALLAN EDGAR HOLMES (Queensboro)

Madoc—In failing health since last May, Allan Edgar Holmes, Queensboro, died at his home on Friday. He was in his 62nd year.

Born in Madoc township, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Peter Holmes, he was a farmer during all his life in the Queensboro district. He was a carpenter by trade and was a member of Queensboro United Church where he took an active part in the work of the church.

He is survived by his widow, the former Mae Moorcroft; one son Clayton Holmes of Madoc village, and one daughter, Mrs. Cecil (Eileen) Holland, of Crookston. There are two sisters, Mrs. Stella Bonter of Picton, and Mrs. Albert (Lily) Reid, of Madoc, and one brother Ira Holmes of Picton.

The funeral announcement is made elsewhere in this edition.

Walker Hardware Store Winner Of Display Prize

The Window Display Contest which was run in conjunction with the "Belleville Is Belleville" week came to a climax last night at the monthly meeting of the Sales and Advertising Club held in Hotel Quinte when Walker Hardware Co. Ltd. was announced as the winner. The Ontario Intelligencer prize of $25, which was received by Bill Powers on the company's behalf, was presented by T. E. Schwab.

S. M. Philpott, manager of Northgrave Ltd., Toronto, judge of the contest and guest speaker of the meeting, gave special mention to the Little Art Shop, Quinte Wallpaper and Wray's Home Furnishings. Mr. Philpott pointed out that despite the quality of the displays there was, however, a lack of evidence of co-operation in connection with the theme of the week. He stated that displays using such things as Deacon Brox. shirts failed to capitalize on the fact that such articles were made in Belleville. He said that he hoped that a future campaign of this sort would see more merchants take up the spirit of the thing and capitalize on such ideas.

Doing Good Work

Continuing, Mr. Philpott stated that the Sales and Ad. Clubs were doing good work, but that objectives must be frequently examined. "We must have mature objectives", he said, "therefore we must be continuously resetting our sights."

Mr. Philpott pointed out that too many executives are interested only in tangible results, such as new plants and are not willing to invest time in the building good sales staffs. He continued to say that this situation was rapidly changing, and that 74 percent of the businesses in the United States has been training their investments in well organized sales departments.

At this point, Mr. Philpott went into selling itself. He showed that selling had, through the ages, built up quite an unsavory reputation. He pointed out that the general public placed salesmen into two classes: a necessary evil on the one hand and unnecessary evil on the other. "It is the duty of the Sales and Ad. Clubs to correct these false notions," he declared.

ASKS SEPARATION OF WHITES FROM NATIVES

Capetown, Oct. 22 — (AP) — W. M. Eiselen, newly-appointed secretary for Native Affairs, Friday called for eventual complete separation of whites from natives in South Africa. This, he said, would be the only means of providing an opportunity of advancement for natives "as long as progress of racial assimilation exist, the white man will be in fear of his own position and will try to block native uplift and progress," he added.

IN MEMORIAM

COXON — In loving memory of our dear son, Able Seaman Thomas Coxon, lost at sea, October 22nd, H.M.C.S. Margaree, October 22nd, 1945.

Servant of God well done
Thy glorious warfare's past, the battle fought, the victory won,
And thou art crowned at last.
Lovingly remembered, by his mother, dad and brothers Jack and Roy.

SNELL — In loving memory of my dear husband and daddy, who died October 22nd, 1948.
Sadly missed by son Jim, Mary and grandchildren.

REMARK — In loving memory of my dear husband, Charles Remark, who passed away two years ago October 22nd, 1947.
They laid him down a broken-hearted
Tears may make the wound less sore,
But time cannot heal
The one we loved more.
For the loved one gone before.
Who shall say the grief is lessened,
Though the smiles may hide the tears,
Memory keeps the wound still open
Despite the passing of the years.
He is remembered by his daughter Rose. C122

HARVEY — In loving memory of my dear wife Jessie Thompson, beloved wife of Herbert Harvey, who passed away on October 22nd, 1948.
Time speeds on, (two) years have flown
Since death its gloom, its shadow cast
Within our home, where all seems bright,
And took from us a shining light.
We miss that light, and ever will
Its own position fill
Down here we mourn, but not in vain,
For up in heaven we will meet again.

SISTERS ALL

By Jean Love Galloway

We dropped in on a Home and School meeting the other night when our attention was attracted by two beautiful stained glass windows in the upper hall of a public school. The teacher told us that the designs for the windows were created by a Seventh Grade pupil with the Grade Seven pupils carrying out the complete project . . .

One window depicts St. Matthew XXVIII-2: "The Angel of the Lord descended from Heaven and came and rolled back the stone." The other window is an interpretation of St. Mark XVI-6: "So then after the Lord had spoken unto them, He was received up in Heaven and sat on the right hand of God."

The stained glass window effect is obtained from an original charcoal design on tissue paper, traced off on colored paper, soaked in linseed oil and outlined with black enamel. The large finished sheet is attached to the plain glass window panes. At night, the windows are lighted and can be seen for several blocks.

Many church members have longed for richly colored stained glass windows in their churches, a dream which could not be carried out because of the high cost of these windows. This young public school pupil has shown that beautiful windows can be enjoyed at the expense of a few sheets of paper, a little creative talent and a group of enthusiastic youngsters.

Here, surely is a way that our Sunday School young people can help beautify the church, by doing something with their minds, their hands and their hearts, if only the older people would lead them. Much of the lethargy on the part of young people in our churches today, springs from the fact they are not encouraged to contribute their talents in a fractional way to the church itself. If children have a stake in something concrete, they will have a stake in something spiritual.

There's a hard way and an easy way of doing most everything. To keep the silver tea service and the flatware sparkling, here's the easy recipe.

Take an aluminum kettle and to each quart of water use one tablespoon of common washing soda and one teaspoon of salt. Heat the water to near boiling point—but don't boil. Dip the silver pieces into this mixture in the aluminum kettle, rinse them in lukewarm water and polish with a dry flannel cloth.

A group of children for nothing better to do and at the suggestion of the undertaker's son, decided to play funeral. But to play funeral, the youngsters realized they must have a body. At that, the undertaker's child tore up to a neighbor's doorstep where he knew an elderly grandfather was seriously ill. "Is Mr. Moffatt dead yet?" he asked the man's daughter who came to the door. "He kids are playing funeral and we need Mr. Moffatt."

One of the neighbors has nats. No, they're not in her pantry. They're in the fireplace, of all places. People keep recommending insect powders and sprays. Yesterday, a brand new suggestion came to her attention . . . coffee grounds. Seems if you sprinkle used coffee grounds around where the rats eats, they won't be there any more. Anyway, she's experimenting, with high hopes.

Uncle Frontenac says he heard over the radio about a new kind of potatoes. They come in little boxes and only take one minute to cook. Gramma would certainly twiddle her thumbs if she lived in this day and age.

Women's Activities

HOLLOWAY ST. CHURCH W.A.

On Thursday afternoon the ladies of Holloway Street Church Woman's Association held their October meeting in the Sunday School rooms, which were officially decorated with autumn leaves and pumpkins. There was a large attendance.

The president, Mrs. A. Campbell, presided. The meeting was opened by singing "Let the Beauty of Jesus be Seen in Me". The secretaries of the various departments gave their reports, which showed there had been much activity. Mention was made of the success of Kate Aitken's lecture and the enjoyable time had by all. Mrs. Rickett reminded the ladies of the Bazaar to be held in November and hoped all were working to that end.

The program was in charge of Mrs Downey, Mrs. Regenaburg and Mrs. Taylor, the devotional was taken by Mrs. Fotter, her theme being "Harvest and Thanksgiving". Mrs. Hopkins read a poem entitled "When the Frost is on the Pumpkin".

A meditation on Thanksgiving was given by Mrs. J. Cordes and the Scripture readings by Mrs. Beer, Mrs. Taylor and Mrs Simpson. Mrs. Potter gave a scripture reading and prayer. Mrs. Bell favored with a solo "Bless This House", and Mrs. Tucker gave two amusing readings, which all enjoyed. The group in charge, in keeping with the season, served pumpkin tarts and coffee for refreshments.

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

By WINIFRED E. WILSON

WHITE-CROWNED SPARROW

Most Canadians are given their spring and again two autumn weeks in which to see White-crowned Sparrows, because they nest near the limit of trees in our far, north and never linger long at any of their stopping-off points in migration. They are said to be numerous at the Churchill Mission. October is the month to watch for them in southern Canada. After that they are on their way to the south central United States. Though it is unusual for White-crowns to choose the coastal rather than the Mississippi flyway in Spring some of them take that route for their fall trip.

There are actually more White-crowned Sparrows than we are apt to realize because they frequently escape notice by haunting fence edges and tangles. They migrate by night, because like other seed eaters they require daylight for feeding. A very large proportion of their food is weed seeds, and accordingly they ought to be very welcome visitors.

These handsome Sparrows are among the few birds that once more take to singing at this season. There is not likely to be an entire song given now; it is generally abandoned at the last few notes may sound flat. But the White-crown's voice heard at the feeding grounds is sweet and plaintive. The first note, clearly whistled, is always twice as long as the other five or six. They even pipe up at night.

In migration White-crowns are often in the company of White-throats, and it is well to know the chief differences between these similar species. Both are gray; and in summer, but the bird with the white throat has another very good, though not as conspicuous an identification mark: a yellow spot just in front of each eye. The general appearance of the White-crown's back is of an ashen rather than a reddish brown, and its head is an odd shape: not flattish, as are the heads of most birds, but dome-like. The "white crown" is the central white stripe, of which there are three, separated by black bands. This is one of the large sparrows, measuring from 6 1-2 to 7 1-2 inches, a trifle more than the White-throat, which also has a striped head but its central white is not as wide. At this season many White-crowns in a flock will be immatures, with buff and brown replacing the white and black, and pinkish bills. Do not be confused by them.

Cost Accountants Open Fall Term

The first regular meeting of the Bay of Quinte Chapter of the Society of Industrial and Cost Accountants of Ontario was held in the Belleville Shrine Club on Monday evening.

After dinner, Chairman, Les Lennox gave a brief opening address welcoming both members and guests, and commenting on the annual turnout.

"Les" then called on Ray Lennox, co-membership and attendance chairman with "Gord" Ireland, who formally welcomed three new members, Doug Boulton, Marchand Calculators; Carl A. McCoy, Building Products Ltd.; Bill Cronin, Bank of Montreal.

Ray outlined the membership campaign for the coming season, and proposed a general survey of industry in Trenton and Belleville for prospective new members.

Guests of the Chapter were: Lorne Allen McDougall, Cec McIntyre, Wilf McLaughlin and Mark Woodcock of the Lorne McDougall Insurance Agencies Ltd., Ted Clark and Bill Dack of Hastings Fire and Accident Insurance Company, Harold Parker and Doug Maybee of the Department of National Revenue, Income Tax Division.

Wilf Richardson introduced the speaker of the evening, Mr. Geo. Burn of the London and Lancashire Fire Insurance Co. Mr. Burn's subject "Business Interruption Insurance" was of much interest to those present. Management's chief concern is to make capital earn income. This income may be stopped during periods of close downs due to fire and accident. Continued payments of expenses such as salaries and wages of key personnel, rent, advertising, etc., as well as net profit accumulation is a necessary protection to modern business. Use and occupancy insurance and profits insurance meet this requirement.

Both types of coverage were explained in detail by Mr. Burn to the listeners, who questioned him at the conclusion of his talk.

Phil Trill expressed the thanks of the chapter followed by the personal thanks of Chairman, Les Lennox.

Art Lockley opened the "Current Events" series by a short commentary on devaluation of the dollar, and the modernization of the society's publication "Cost and Management." A motion was passed to forward the chapter's congratulations to Nelson Allen, secretary treasurer of the Ontario Society, and those responsible for the new "Cost and Management" publication.

Carl Casey gave a detailed outline of the program for the 1949-50 season, which promises great variety of subjects for the interest of the members. The printed program is expected to be ready for the next regular meeting.

Girl Guide Activities

Fall is the nicest time of year for Guide companies for it is ideal hiking weather, and it couldn't have been better day for our company hike on October 15th. Those who went to Glen Ross say it was loads of fun. Three of the girls went ahead and laid a trail of woodcraft signs for the rest to follow. When everyone reached the meeting place, we made our fires and prepared supper. We started home soon after supper so the children could get home before it became too dark.

At the regular meeting on Monday patrols were organized for this year's program. The leaders are as follows: Company leaders, Barbara Dix, Helen Weaver.

Patrol leaders, Rose—Frances Adams; Holly—Barbara Bennett; Robin—Gloria Clarke; Poppy —Jdna Orser; Bluebell—Joanne Atkinson; Daffodil — Shirley Terry.

THE INCOMPARABLE NARCISSUS
Easy to grow & exceedingly lovely

"I WONDERED AT THE BOUNTEOUS HOURS,
THE SLOW RESULT OF WINTER SHOWERS;
YOU SCARCE COULD SEE THE GRASS FOR FLOWERS."
—TENNYSON

NARCISSUS INCOMPARABILIS MONIQUE

These are extraordinarily lovely flowers with a well-formed, pure white perianth, and a large golden-yellow cup edged orange-red.

They are excellent for cut flowers, winter forcing, and for group plantings in the perennial border. They grow about sixteen inches high, and flower in mid-spring. This is one of the many beautiful narcissus which deserve a place in the well-planned border.

Narcissus should be planted in early fall to give the bulbs a chance to become rooted before winter. Plant four to five inches deep in well-prepared, friable soil, enriched with bone-meal. Dress annually with bone-meal, and cultivate. Do not cut off the leaves after flowering. Allow time for the bulbs to mature.

SUPPORT RED FEATHER EFFORT

The work of the Community Chest is a work well worth supporting for the possibilities it offers to so many in the community.

There is the opportunity to give towards a chest which takes in three major social agencies.

It avoids overlapping of effort—on the part of canvassers and it gives very clearly an idea of what each of these agencies will endeavor to carry out in the year ahead.

Those who give may never know what richness and all the blessings which flow from their contributions to this Red Feather effort for the Y.M.C.A., the Victorian Order of Nurses and the Children's Aid Society. But they know that good cannot fail to proceed out of this united cause which has in the local Community Chest placed before the people the minimum of total support expressed in dollars to enable these bodies to carry on efficiently and do the work they are engaged in.

It has been announced that the campaign which has been proceeding very satisfactorily will be extended to the first of November. Officials are certain that the Belleville quota which is $35,000, will be attained. There is an intense satisfaction in realizing that the work of these three bodies will be kept at the high level they have reached in other years.

FROM HEALTH STANDPOINT

Those who cut down on the time of sleep, says the National Health and Welfare, below eight hours, are losing an opportunity to right their physical shortcomings. The penalty of too little sleep is to have jumpy nerves, loss of weight and lack of stamina, all too common marks of too little rest.

Science gives additional advice, to build up health: you'll sleep better and awaken more refreshed if you open the windows wide and let plenty of cool, fresh air in. Remember, sleep combats fatigue, the enemy of the working man. Take all the sleep you need.

It is hard to believe there are a million diabetics in our country but that is the word of National Health Information Service. And of course there are many millions in other parts of the world. Yet their whole outlook on life and their hope for extended lives have been due to discovery of insulin in recent years. The diabetic outlook today is hopeful, restrictions are few and occupations are only slightly limited. Yet these people who owe their long lives today to modern discovery should keep in constant touch with their doctors and follow their advice to achieve a happy, normal life. Normal life is now the privilege of diabetics.

Modern science has achieved wonders, sometimes even in the face of disregard by those whom it has blessed.

From whatever way one looks at its amazing achievements in the quest of the laws of health, man should regard with intense gratitude the increased longevity, the medical man and science have given whole peoples. There was a day when to have diabetes was to face an early end but science allows its victims a great lease on life.

OLD IRON KETTLES

Old iron kettles are prized antiques. You can find them in "shoppes" along the highways this summer. You can buy them to hang in old fireplaces discovered behind boards and bricks put in when new-fangled stoves superseded open hearths for heating and cooking. In the days when the nation was young manufacturers made dozens of types of kettles with varying diameters and depths to use for cooking any many stews and mixtures. But the flavsome kettles are infiltrating the heartland carried a small cooking pot. mountain men searching for furs cooked their grists and meat in a soot-crusted pot over a small fire. As Conestogas and prairie schooners creaked their way across the plains pioneering housewives cooked over fires of dried buffalo dung and sagebrush in iron pots and stewed.

There were pots made to fit snugly in the holes of stoves. Many a man and woman now living in an automatically heated house, with gas or electricity for cooking heat, recalls the heavy, capacious pots that were used on the steaming iron ranges in farm kitchens. Mother always claimed that while she was glad of oil and electricity for cooking she never got quite the same flavor in her foods that she did a generation ago. — Ottawa Journal.

WHILE HUNTING

During the fall hunting season thousands of men who spend most of the year behind a desk suddenly find themselves prowling through the bush, waiting catch-as-catch-can meals, being wet all day and cold. They should remember the importance of moderation as unaccustomed exercise may do more harm than good. Everyone should be sure that the meals at camp contain the food value to help in the hunting trip. The wife's cooking won't help just now.

OFF THE RECORD

By Ed Reed

"You were right, Grandpa, about television not being here to stay."

TWENTY YEARS

On margin—sometimes only 10 percent. down—you couldn't lose.

As the summer waned the boom began to slacken. But there was no drastic break and it didn't seem to bother the investors, especially the little man working on margin.

The break started in September. At first it wasn't even alarming. It wasn't panic selling. Just some people getting rid of their stock. But they weren't the small investors—But those drivers and widows, the grocery clerks, bartenders and stenographers.

They were engulfed shortly afterward when the bottom fell out of the market.

The decline that led to the crash of October 23-29 started in Montreal Oct. 14 and appeared within the next few days on the Toronto Exchange.

On the Toronto exchange a list of 18 key companies had values at the rate of $1,000,000 a minute Oct. 28 and dipped $900,000,000 by the market close that day. When investors lined up at brokers' offices on Oct. 29 with cheques to cover margin commitments, brokers demanded more cash.

Heavy losers included International Nickel, which dropped $10 a share, and Brazilian Traction, down $11. Goodyear Tire declined $40 to a new 1929 low.

On the New York Stock Exchange the panic started Oct. 24. The market opened with that was only the beginning and there was still more that something could be salvaged.

The bankers came to the rescue putting in $20 million in the first that afternoon. People breathed easier. The market rallied.

There was no rally short lived.

Five days later came Black Thursday when selling totalling 18,410,000 shares of stock changed hands. Men and women picked up fortunes on the basis of one-sure brokers, now curt and brassy, issued "more margin, more margin."

And of course there was no more margin. Most had already drained their meagre savings.

It was the end of an era.

With the dawn of the new decade the apple stands appearing on street corners. The latest phrase began to spread: "Brother can you spare a dime."

The General said U.S. atomic secrecy since the Second World War was needed to give European countries "breathing time for recovery. We would have shortcuted the time for Russian discovery of the secret if we were making our information available."

Dr. Urey said "it has been very difficult to get the courageous stand in regard to anything connected with atomic energy by long as committees of Congress of the United States continually impune the integrity of scientists and scientific groups."

Two other scientists got into the act, writing in the bulletin of atomic scientists.

Dr. Frederick Seitz, professor at the University of Illinois, said in a report entitled "Russian Physics" learned all that U.S. scientists know of the atomic bomb.

"It is far better," he went on, "that we focus attention on the problem of how to prevent the next war than on how to win it with robustly living.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

LIBRARIES ON WHEELS

"Of the making of books," it has been said, "there is no end." Thank God! I hope it never ends. There can never be enough good books. And no matter how many are printed each year, the good ones live. It is upon them men will feast and grow mentally and spiritually.

One of my pet volumes in book form is that one, written by Christopher Morley many years ago, called "Parnassus on Wheels." It's about a man who sells about 100 volumes with a bookshop on wheels, which later he delivered to a woman to buy. I have many times since wondered why the idea didn't spread, for all over the land there are communities where the people have never stepped into a bookshop. It seems to me it would be a profitable enterprise, besides being one that would give unbounded pleasure and intellectual profit to millions.

I would have these libraries on wheels visit only the rural communities, parking near schools or on the main street of small towns and villages. Naturally what goes in the assortment should be a careful selection of modern and classic volumes on a variety of subjects so that any taste could be met. Not a great variety of "first editions" but of the long-time sellers—those which have proved themselves over the years, and are still robustly living.

Large publishing houses could profit by a caravan of them sent over the country. Each visit could well prove worth a book in thousands of small communities. Many a buyer or girl could well date his first interest in books to such a visit. They could even take orders for books they had not in stock or, by could represent many publishing houses. What a stimulus to the entire book trade! But, best of all, what a blessing to each community visited.

I wonder who will initiate the idea.

BY-ELECTIONS

Candidates in the by-election are J. F. Lafferman, Liberal, and Pierre Gelinas, Labor-Progressive.

In Montreal Jacques-Cartier, the vacancy was caused by the appointment of Ethgar Marier to the Quebec Superior Court.

Sarto Marchand, a Liberal, and Edgar Leduc, an Independent, are the only contestants for the seat.

In Kamouraska, Que., there is a two-way fight with Gerard Levesque, Liberal, opposed by Arthur Masse, Independent Liberal.

The vacancy occurred through appointment of Eugene Marquis to the Quebec Superior Court.

The Gatineau vacancy arose out of the appointment of Leon J. Raymond as Clerk of the Commons.

By-election candidates in the constituency are J. Calder Sheldon, Liberal; Anastase St. Jean, Progressive Conservative and Marcel Bernard Bonnier, Independent.

Protests Statements On Textile Industry

It is many years since we have seen such a violent attack on the textiles and the textile industry as that contained in the large advertisement published in the issue October 8th issue. We are not aware that any answer to be essential to human nutrition. No one need fear getting too much of the mineral elements by indulging their appetite for oysters. The statement that the necessary elements are found in oysters amount to only a few parts per million of the total volume of the oyster, but it this small quantity they are effective in their nutritional value.

Inasmuch as plant food from various soils throughout many of the country are often highly deficient in these elements, it is surprising that anyone has the effrontery to call attention to the deficit of these elements in the diet results, and auditory nerve disorders are essential to normal nutrition. Animal liver is a valuable source of these mineral elements, due to the fact that nature is very generous in these elements in liver. However, if the animal is fed upon foods deficient in these elements a corresponding deficit can be expected in the liver. Sea water is never deficient in trace elements.

All sea food shares with the oyster, although to a lesser extent in most instances, its richness in trace elements. The fish industry is one of the greatest assets of this country and the consumption of fish as food is just as acceptable in human nutrition as in the protein and fat of land animals. The vitamin content of sea food is no more adversely affected by canning or other methods of preservation, than is plant or animal food. The addition of sea food to the daily diet is a healthful practice. From the standpoint of palatability, it is often notable that those who have some psychological objection to it, never get over it when they make the effort.

Dope for a Child

Is two grains of (a barbiturate) a day too much for a child aged two years? The child is nervous. Some say it is all right for a week or two, but others tell me it will cause the child to lose his mind. (Mr. W. P.)

Answer—Such a dosage is a matter for the doctor between the patient and his physician. Children is a natural, normal process, not a dangerous disease. Your child needs fresh air, fresh food, a book Childbirth Without Fear from public library or book dealer and read it with your husband.

Acetanilide Habit

Is Brother takes three ——'s a day, but he has never a craving for it and can't get along without it. He is getting awfully short of breath and his color is very bad, but he thinks it is because he is getting old. (Mrs. H. C.)

Answer—The nostrum contains a large quantity of acetanilide. Chapter on the acetanilide habit in booklet C V 2 which deals with heart and artery disease. SEA FOOD

They say the first man to eat an oyster had a lot of courage. Many people today lack courage to eat them, they just have an aversion to sea food. Part of this may be ascribed to fear of not obtaining strictly fresh food in the inland srcar. Again, sea food is apparently not palatable to many.

The "trace element" such as iodine, manganese, copper, cobalt, canadium, molybdenum and bromine, to mention a few, are steadily drawn away from the soil of all parts of the country by drainage, and eventually deposited in the sea. Such of these elements as are soluble remain suspended in the sea water indefinitely. All marine life contains an appreciable amount of several of these elements.

The role of "trace elements" in human nutrition has been under investigation for many years. We have learned from experiments, and manganese are essential to the formation of hemoglobin, the coloring matter of the blood. Depletion of hemoglobin, which is carried in the red blood cells, constitutes a form of anemia. "Dosage" of an individual with a simple anemia of this type directly, employing these elements in medicine, usually results in prompt improvement of the blood picture.

Oysters are particularly good source of iron, copper, iodine and manganese. All of these elements are known to be essential to human nutrition. No one need fear getting too much of these elements by indulging their appetite for oysters. The statement that the necessary elements are found in oysters amount to only a few parts per million of the total volume of the oyster, but it this small quantity they are effective in their nutritional value.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

PEOPLE COME FIRST

Catherine Booth was the wife of General Booth, who founded the Salvation Army. She was interest in the down-and-out began when she was only a little girl.

It happened one day that she was rolling her hoop along the street in London, when she saw on the other side of the street a scene that shocked her. A man was lying on the ground in amazement and horror. A policeman was dragging a drunken man along by one arm, and a crowd of boys was following and jeering at the unfortunate. She stood for a moment at the pitiable scene, and then, throwing down her hoop, darted across the street, took the drunken man by the other arm, and helped the policeman take him to the station house.

The circumstance was indicative of the kind of life she always lived. No one hated drunkenness so much as she, but she believed that the best way to help the drunkard was not to jeer him and throw stones at him, but help him. Even as a little girl she could not stand the sight of the poor derelict being dragged along by a policeman. She put herself on the side of the poor unfortunate, put his arm around her shoulder, and helped to carry him. That principle underlying the whole of her beneficient ministry, and it is the principle underlying the Salvation Army, that a stone is a sick man who needs medical treatment, not abuse.

THE PACKSACK

OF GREGORY CLARK

The mystery of bird migration is still the subject of ceaseless enquiry. and study by scientists. All over the continent amateurs alike are banding birds by the thousands every year in an effort to trace their routes and the speed of movement of birds migrating from one part of the continent and down into the other hemisphere. It is a perfectly fascinating occupation these fifteen billion American birds turn in, every autumn, every spring.

One fairly obvious feature that is the relation to the falling of the leaves has a good deal to do with it. Some birds like to eat wild goose and shore birds make their journey up, or down the Atlantic regardless of the foliage. But vast numbers of birds do not move north until the leaves have started to make a screen for them, and move south as soon as the leaves are gone.

Lake Trout in Our Inland Waters

By Doctor F.E.G. Fry in Sylva

Much of the charm of fishing lies in the mystery of events below the water's surface. Only rarely are both the lure and the fish in view at the same time before the fish is taken, and in general neither is in sight when the stir transmitted up the line signals that it is time for the fisherman to strike.

It is this same mystery which obscures our knowledge of the population of fish from which the catch is drawn and hinders our efforts in managing it to best effect. It is only by slow and tedious gathering of facts, one by one, that we gain a clue as to the courses of events under water and can build a picture of the happenings there.

What, then, are the facts we now have at our disposal concerning lake trout fisheries in Ontario? Briefly, they are these. Lake trout populations are never dense and in general they are very vulnerable to angling. Lake trout grow slowly and are six to eight years old before they spawn for the first time. In many lakes fishing may be so intensive that few will escape to spawn even once. . . .

Most of our precise information on lake trout in small lakes in Ontario has come from studies in Algonquin Park, where a creel census has been in operation since 1936. Here, as many anglers as possible are interviewed each year, and their catches, as cards, or other anglers have filled these cards out independently of the census workers.

Each year, circumstances surrounding the capture of some thousands of lake trout as well as fish of other species are collected in this way. Some of these many of the fish themselves are examined so that their rate of growth, age and variety in feeding habits may be determined.

In some lakes on which the work has been concentrated close estimates have been made of the production of lake trout over a period of years. These estimates are uniformly low. In general they are less than one pound per year per acre of water surface. The production in Lake Opeongo, which has been followed most closely, has averaged 0.3 lbs. per acre over the past 12 years. This low production has not been due to lack of fishermen to harvest the crop, for the lake has been fished hard enough during that period for us to see notable changes in the population. The catch has probably been very close to the annual yield made possible by the growth of lake trout in that lake.

The growth of lake trout has been studied by scale reading and shows considerable variation from lake to lake. Figures for the growth in the numbers of Algonquin Park lakes are given in Table I. As will be seen, lake trout grow quite slowly and continue to grow for many years. The oldest lake trout determined by these scale readings was seventeen years old, but this fish must have been a juvenile in comparison with the giants reported from Opeongo in the past century.

Much older lake trout are still taken in those waters which have not been fished to any extent. The workers who recent investigated Great Bear Lake in the North West Territories for the Federal Fisheries Research board reported lake trout there up to 37 years old. When slow growing populations of lake trout are found such as those in Brewer Lake, it does not mean that these fish are stunted and unhealthy. It merely means that these fish are adapted in their rate of growth to the living conditions in their particular lake. Food is plentiful for them and they grow fat, their flesh often having a far more delicate flavor than that of the faster growing lake trout. Their food in these lakes consists of aquatic insects and small crustaceans. In such lakes, the trout are not likely to grow faster if their numbers are reduced, for they are not pressed for food. It is merely that each individual of food organism is small and the fish are kept busy picking them up.

It would probably be a mistake, too, to introduce a forage fish into such lakes—it is the fish-eating lake trout which grow rapidly—for when lake trout grow large the number per unit area is reduced to a low figure. In small lakes, then, the fishing is apt to be very poor especially if their lake trout grow rapidly and even a moderate amount of angling goes on.

Whether or not lake trout in a small lake will eat fish in the summer months and grow relatively rapidly, cannot be predicted from a casual inspection of the lake, or even from knowledge of the kinds of small fish there are in it that might serve as trout food. Most fish appear to be distributed in a certain range of temperatures if water of the right degree of warmth is available to them. This of course is common knowledge. Bass, pickerel and perch are warm water fish and in summer are found in the upper waters, and trout are typical cold-water fish. The lake trout shows a more decided tendency to live in colder waters than does the speckled trout, even where the two species are found in the same lake. Observations in temperature gradients in the laboratory and records from experimental netting have shown that the average preferred temperature for three species is about 50F and that the range in which the majority of fish are found in summer is from 40F to 65F. They also appear to invade the warmer waters at night. On the other hand, the perch, which is the most common forage fish taken by the lake trout in the smaller Ontario lakes, has a preferred temperature of about 65F and a range of probably 60F to 75F.

For lake trout to eat perch, the two of course must be in the same water, and often, due to the way in which the temperature of the water in a lake decreases with depth, the temperature may be changing very rapidly over the range where the two species overlap and the two kinds of fish may be virtually separated by a temperature barrier.

In the upper 30 feet or so of the lake, the water may be more or less uniformly 65F to 70F, then there will be a sudden drop in temperature in the next six or 12 feet, with the water below varying from 55F to 60F or 40F at the bottom. Under such conditions there will be little intermingling of the perch and trout, and the trout will turn to other food. This temperature barrier is, of course, only effective in the summer time, but summer is the season of growth and a fish diet in the cold months does not change the growth characteristics of the population. Most of the trout known will make such excellent bait for the lake trout are entirely absent from their normal food since they eat only fish, with few exceptions, in habit very shallow water at that time.

Lake trout mature at a certain age rather than at a particular size. In general, females first mature in numbers when they are six or seven years old. The males mature distinctly earlier. Because the age rather than the size determines maturity, you often find that in a particular lake the fish of from 15 to 17 inches long are all mature, while in a neighboring lake the eggs in fish of this size will be all tiny and will obviously not be ready for spawning for a year or two. This slower rate of growth seems in many cases to be a definite advantage in providing better fishing under more or less intensive angling.

Lake trout under fourteen inches in length are not easily taken by the tackles we habitually use in trolling for them in Ontario. Thus, if they have lived long enough to be within a year of being mature before they become vulnerable to the fishery, the spawning stock is likely to be much greater than if they had reached a catchable size at earlier age and were subject to capture for two or three years before they spawned for the first time.

In many species of fish it appears that the number of spawners is of relatively little importance in determining the number of young which will survive to enter the fishery at some future date. Fish in general produce eggs in such abundance,—literally millions in the case of the codfish and others that only a few spawners are necessary to effectively cover the spawning. Once the suitable spawning places are filled, further spawning is more or less wasted, the excess eggs are either smothered in unsuitable places or are left open to destruction by spawn eating fish. In many cases the spawn eater merely gets eggs which were doomed to destruction in any event.

The lake trout, however, is not a highly prolific fish, about one thousand eggs being the average number laid at the first spawning in our smaller lakes. It appears likely too, that with their habit of spawning close to shore in shallow water, a thorough saturation of the spawning beds is important, since the shallower eggs are very prone to destruction by the winter drop in water levels.

In any event, in the one population of lake trout which has been followed closely enough, that of Lake Opeongo, the number of fish captured which have resulted from a given spawning have been closely related to the number of spawners. It also has been seen, when one lake is compared with another, that those with the best lake trout fishing have the most mature fish.

However, even when there are plenty of spawners there will be years when, due to disease or other causes neither, there may be an utter failure of the hatch and either at the time eggs are laid or at some stage before the young are old enough to be caught. Such year-class failures seem to occur occasionally in every lake trout lake.

Examples of spawning where spawners are abundant, should not be allowed to obscure the fact that poor spawning is associated with a poor replenishment of the population in the cases which have received careful investigation. . . .

While we have now amassed a good deal of definite information about the lake trout of a kind that was almost entirely lacking fifteen years ago, we have not yet attained any notable degree of success in managing lake trout fisheries. We can predict with some certainty, that any lake trout population in a lake of twenty square miles or less which is subject to intensive fishing is likely to fall off rather quickly. This is particularly true of the lake is fished both winter and summer. It is only in the larger lakes like Lake Nipissing, where lake trout are out reach of the average angler in summer, that a winter fishery does not drain the trout resources of the lake. This does not mean that there would not be a winter fishery for lake trout, for that is the time of year when fishing for this species is most enjoyed by many people, and there is no finer sport in the latter half of the winter. However, it must be realized that until we have a far greater knowledge state of perfection in the management of our lake trout fisheries, this sport, combined with the summer fishery, will rapidly reduce the lake trout populations in many of our smaller lakes.

The most promising management practice for lake trout that has been developed in the United States is the closure of lakes to angling during the season when the spawn due to mature in the second year gets complete protection from fishermen during the time of its development.

It can be calculated on theoretical grounds that where lake fishery is intensive, such protection will result in a great increase in the spawn deposited when both the spawning in the open water and on the shoals are covered. This procedure might be a very useful one to apply to winter fishing. . . .

A large series of lakes are under a program of alternate closure in Algonquin Park to test this principle. To date it has proved very valuable in conserving speckled trout fisheries but this procedure in its value as in helping the lake trout is not yet complete. The lake trout grow more slowly, they cannot be expected to show any benefits until six to eight years after the fish closure.

Management practices may be roughly grouped under three headings; protection of spawning stock which is discussed above, supplementing natural reproduction by planting of hatchery fish elimination of unwanted species, predators, and stimulating the production of food by the addition of artificial fertilizers.

All these methods of improvement of the fishery as applied to trout and other species are being tested in Ontario, and the results of these experiments in management are being followed carefully and patiently. At the same time, the lake trout themselves are being continuously studied in one part of the Province or another, and further facts of their life history are being assembled.

Each method of management, however, like most things in life, has a catch to it, and none can be relied on to give the immediate closures referred to above may be nullified in certain years by poor class failures. The success of planting is in many cases doubtful and these experiments are bound-to result if th's method is employed to the exclusion of all other considerations. Control of coarse fish is difficult and by no means certain of results, although it shows promise, and will no doubt be very valuable in certain lake improvement projects and become cheaper and still more effective.

The use of artificial fertilizers in trout lakes which is now being experimented with in Scandinavia is a two edged sword. The increased plant growth produces a much greater mass of organic matter to winter over in the lake and to consume the oxygen stored in the water during the period of ice and snow cover, when it cannot be replenished from the air or by the action of sunlight on green plants.

Already there have been reports of winter-kill of trout in fertilized lakes in Michigan due to this depletion of oxygen stores. Our trout, from their notoriously sensitivity to low oxygen, appear to be doomed to live in relatively infertile waters in summer or that they may not suffer from oxygen lack during the relatively long period of winter stagnation that we have in our lakes. However, as an indication of the ramifications of investigation and research that are all pertinent to management, it may be mentioned that at the present time there is a graduate student at the University of Toronto who is concerning himself with the problem of finding out to what extent trout will acclimate to low oxygen, and thus to determine with some precision to what extent the oxygen may drop without eliminating them from a lake.

In many ways we must fight a holding engagement with regard to our lake trout fisheries in the next few years. We know one thing for certain, that the quality of lake trout fishing in small lakes is rather easily deteriorated by a no more than moderate degree of angling intensity. We know too, that annual yields of the order of one or two pounds or less per acre of water surface are the general rule in our lake trout lakes and that higher yields are the exception.

By way of contrast, it might be stated that the yields per acre from speckled trout ponds in southern Ontario may easily be over fifty times as great. Few fisheries show as low a yield as the lake trout. We do not know specifically why the yield from lake trout fisheries is so low, but we do not yet

I was walking to the market with ma to help her carry things, and Sticky Pugsley was sitting on his front steps, saying: Hiya, Benny.

High, Sticky, I said.

And I kept on going with ma, and she said, Benny, I mean really, I don't think that's the name to call a boy, especially a boy that's just moved into the nayborhood and is probably still sensitive to his new serroundings. Why dont you call him Robbi, that's his name, isn't it? she said.

Sure, ma, we did call him Robbi for a while, but after we really got frendly with him, and then we started to call him Sticky on account of his sticky out ears, I said, and ma said, Oh dear, how gaudy.

Why is it, ma? He dont mind, I said, and ma said, I'm sure he minds very much, but he's too polite wouldn't be manly to show it. Maybe the other boys will follow your good example.

And on our way back Sticky was still there, and I said, High Robbi.

What's a matter, are you mad at me or something? he said, and I said, G, of course not, I'll see you later, Sticky.

And we waved at each other frendly, and ma said, Oh dear, I think I'll give up ever trying to understand boys.

Maybe you have to be one yourself, ma, I said.

Which maybe you do.

SOCIAL and PERSONAL

Mr. and Mrs. Lee Latta, of Winnipeg, spent a few days with Mr. and Mrs. Roy Heath this week, also made several calls on old acquaintances in the city.

Recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. Potter of Moscow, were Miss Isobel Allen, student-in-training at Kingston General Hospital and Mr. Charles Darling, her uncle.

At the Order of Eastern Star, Chapter 31, annual banquet, duties held recently the names of the tea room convenors, Mrs. Morden and Mrs. R. Slavin, were inadvertently omitted.

WEDDINGS

WEESE — POPE

In St. John's Anglican Church West Toronto, on Saturday, October 1, 1949, amid a setting of beauty and white gladioli, Marjorie Joan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Pope, West Toronto, became the bride of Clifford Clarke Weese, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Weese of Milford. The Rev. Clinton Cross officiated.

Bruce Cowan rendered a solo very beautifully.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, looked lovely in a gown of ivory satin in princess style, and a short train. The fingertip veil was held in a coronet of orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of Johanna Hicks.

The bride's two sisters were her attendants. Mrs. June Passmore, matron of honor, was dressed in forest green, with matching hat, bouquet. Betty Pope, bridesmaid, wore velvet sheered with pink plumes and carried a bouquet of pink roses.

The groomsman was Allan Weese, the groom's brother, of Trenton. The ushers were Wilbur Passmore and John Rill of Toronto.

At a reception at the Old Mill, which was decorated with roses and gladioli, the bride's mother received in an encore green silk dress with matching hat and black accessories and carried a corsage of red roses, assisted by the groom's mother, who was dressed in queen blue tissue faille with navy accessories and carried a corsage of red roses.

Upon their return the happy couple will reside in North Toronto.

Out-of-town guests were from Windsor, Picton, Sarnia, Trenton, Smithfield, London and Belleville.

BROOKS — McFAUL

In Picton.—The Rev. J. P. Henderson, minister of the Ameliasburg United Church, officiated on Saturday afternoon, October 8, at Centre, when before an archway of evergreens and ferns, marriage vows were exchanged between Zida Marie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil McFaul, R.R. 1, Belleville, and Charles Roy Brooks, R.R. 1, Demorestville, son of Mrs. Ethel Brooks and the late Mr. Perry Brooks.

Miss Betty Dempsey played traditional wedding music.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was charmingly gowned in white satin featuring a bodice with sweetheart neckline, long tight fitting sleeves and a peplum. She wore a fingertip veil, held in place by a headband of small white flowers and carried a bouquet of red roses.

The bride's sister, Miss Florence McFaul, was her only attendant, wearing a floor length gown of pale green velvet with matching hat, and carried a Colonial bouquet of pink roses and white mums.

The groom was assisted by his brother, Mr. Howard Brooks, B.A., of Toronto.

For a reception after the ceremony the bride's mother was gowned in green silk crepe with corsage of brown mums. The groom's mother was also in the receiving line, gowned in navy crepe and wearing a corsage of pink mums.

For a motor trip around Lake Erie, Mrs. Brooks donned a suit of blue, with navy accessories, and a light fitted topcoat.

After their return, Mr. and Mrs. Brooks will take up residence on the groom's farm, R.R. 3, Demorestville.

Out-of-town guests were from Peterborough, St. Tresa and Toronto.

Rebekahs Hold Installation Night

Tuesday evening witnessed an inspiring event when Quintena Rebekah Lodge No. 139 welcomed District Deputy President of Belleville District No. 4 Sister Hilda McGowan and her installing officers of Madoc for the annual installation of officers and degree.

Amid a profusion of manyhued 'mums and dahlias personally and arranged by Sisters Large and Sinclair, the impressive ritual installing team gave an exhibition of precision, dignity, beauty and artistry that will be hard to excel.

Officers installed for the ensuing year were: Sister Elizabeth Nokes, J.P.N.G.; Sister Rhea Mitchell, N.G.; Sister Marjorie Large, V.G.; Sister Irene Aman, R.S.; Sister Ada MacMillan, F.S.; Sister Win Donaldson, Treasurer; Sister Annie Webb, Warden; Sister Vera Sidmore, Conductor; Sister Bessie Baldwin, Chaplain; Sister Flora Ironside, musician; Sister Dorothy Harwood, R.S.N.G.; Sister Vera Mitchell, L.S.N.G.; Sister Georgina Charlton, R.S.V.G.; Sister Verna Oliphant, L.S.V.G.; Sister Marion Parks, I. Guardian; Sister Ethel McDonald, O. Guardian; Sister Dorothy Webber, soloist.

Sister McGowan gave a short speech after which installing officer Christie Mitchell sang "Bless This House". Sister Kay Murvey replied to Sister McGowan and to further show the Lodge's appreciation Sister Jean McGowan, and her staff Sister Dorothy Webber sang "If I Could Have My Wish."

Sister McGowan was presented with a gift from Quintena and Sister Eva Murvey received one also in honor of her appointment as Guardian of the Rebekah Assembly of Ontario.

Sister Mitchell received a corsage bouquet of pink things but the real trouble is that we have strayed from the spiritual highway and we must get back on it. We must turn our steps back to the feet of Jesus Christ. The first call of the Church today is that of conversion, and sacrifice is the second thing we must remember. The altar in our church symbolizes sacrifice through the post-tle church. Marxian Communism does not mention Christ in all its teachings. God help this country and the western democracies if we forget and turn to these pagan teachings."

Speaking of stewardship, Bishop Wright said that one of the best ways to test man's loyalty to his church is through his pocketbook. If we are going to keep these gospel truths alive in this country we must be prepared to pay for it.

"This is the time of emergency," he stated, "the world is on fire."

"The most valuable element in fellowship is the individual," he remarked, "and we need to cement bands with those of other communions. We must be tolerant of the beliefs of those other denominations. I am not advocating church union here, but if we exert that bond of Christian fellowship toward other Communions it will eventually come itself in its own good time."

Rev. W. J. Robinson

The Reverend W. J. Robinson, rector of St. Mary Magdalene Anglican Church, Napanee, and formerly rector of St. James' Anglican Church, Trenton, was the guest preacher at the morning service at St. James. The services of the day were the last of the celebration of the 90th anniversary of the founding of St. James'.

Mr. Robinson preached from the text: "Share my servants Thy work; and their children Thy glory." The work of God had been shown in the building and the glory of His presence was being manifested to their children today", he said, telling his forefathers parishioners that St. James' could take justifiable pride in the past. The church's record was excellent. Three big sons had entered the ministry of the church.

Mr. Robinson also stated and emphasized that it was the duty of the present members to encourage and send for them today. "The work of God and His glory has been experienced by the many who have received the Church's sacraments", he said, here at St. John's Anglican Church, Wellington, on Monday we mark the 79th. anniversary of the laying of the corner stone of the present edifice.

The special guest speaker was Bishop W. L. Wright, Bishop of Algoma, a member of the Board of General Purpose of the Missionary Society of the Church, and a past Grand Chaplain of the order.

In addition to Wor. Bro. Somers those attending from here were: S. R. Dafoe, A. Meade, A. Snare and G. Hounslow.

Following the service the visiting brethren were entertained informally at the town hall.

Personals

Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Austin and baby, of Brockville, visited over the weekend with the former's father, Mr. Henry Austin, and Mrs. Austin and renewed other acquaintances also.

Mr. and Mrs. M. R. English, of Thomasburg, visited Mrs. John Kingston, on Thursday, last week.

Miss Annie Frost and Mrs. H. Leslie were visitors in Kingston for a few days this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Delaney, of Oshawa, spent the week in R. H. Schnecks's cottage on Sugar Island and visited with Mr. and Mrs. F. B. Foster and Alton, and Mr. and Mrs. M. Ostman and children.

Mr. and Mrs. Bert Freeman and children of Fort Hope, were recent visitors with Mrs. Edith Hammett.

Mr. and Mrs. Wallace I. Johnston are on a motor trip to Escanola, Mich., Chicago, Ill., and Milwaukee, Wis.

TWEED 'Open Sunday' Subject of Talk by Bishop of Algoma

Tweed — Aiming at those who would make Sunday an "Open Day" in parts of this province, the Reverend W. L. Wright, Bishop of Algoma, told a large congregation at St. James' Anglican Church, Tweed, on Sunday evening: "There is a grave danger that we are about to prostitute the Lord's Day by an 'Open' Sunday."

Speaking at the closing service of the 90th anniversary celebration of St. James', Bishop Wright, a former rector of the parish here, said that he spent four happy years in Tweed and discomfited them, and they were smitten before Israel." Bishop Wright said that the Church today is forgetting and overlooking the contents of the Old Testament and the stories told there, and said that even certain members of the clergy are prone to call their services short and forget about this important portion of the Scripture. "Many churches have been vouchsafed to young and old in this little village for the past 90 years," the Bishop said. "The congregation has had its difficulties but, by and large, you and your children and their children, we can sincerely say, have received spiritual blessing here."

Bishop Wright said: "We will not have the benign influence of God in our midst if we forget Him" and told his listeners that there are many challenges facing the church and its people today: Conversion, sacrifice and fellowship.

"Our first challenge is to get back to the Lord. There is no other way. There is a great deal of talk about 'communism', 'paganism' and other things but the real trouble is that we have strayed from the spiritual highway and we must get back on it. We must turn our steps back to the feet of Jesus Christ. The first call of the Church today is that of conversion, and sacrifice is the second thing we must remember. SHANNONVILLE H. & S. Contemplate Purchase of Movie Projector

The regular monthly meeting of the Shannonville Home and School Association was held in the senior room of the local school on last Monday evening.

The president, Mrs. Kilburn, presided. Mrs. Helen Louis, the secretary, read the minutes of the October meeting which were approved as read.

A motion was passed to proceed with the construction of small swings for the junior pupils. Mr. Walter Brant, the convener of that committee, was to proceed with same.

Mrs. Helen Louis reported on the last evening meeting held at the home of Mrs. Kenneth Juby during the past month. Members have contributed wool for afghan blocks and this project has already commenced. The next meeting to be held at the home of Mrs. William Coles.

It was decided to have a bazaar, afternoon tea, amateur show and dance on Friday, Dec. 2. This being the yearly project of the association. Mrs. Kenneth Juby, program convener, is in charge of the program. Lunch conveners, Mrs. Boyce Cook and Mrs. Gordon Johnson to convene the refreshments.

Hallowe'en Party

It was decided to hold a Hallowe'en party for the local children on Monday evening, Oct. 31 with the view of keeping them off the streets that evening. The local teachers offered their co-operation with this party. Mrs. Juby is in charge of the program, and Mesdames Cook and Johnston, the refreshments. The activities decided to meet in the near future to make further plans. Prizes will be awarded for costumes worn by the children.

The suggestion of holding a fowl supper was advanced, but it was decided by the meeting to hold the bazaar and dance as of last year.

Mrs. Phillips, senior room teacher, thanked the association for the swings already constructed on the school grounds, and mentioned that they were in constant use. She mentioned that Mrs. Wichens, the junior room teacher, was progressing favorably in the Belleville hospital following a recent operation.

Movie Projectors

The president requested Mrs. Phillips to outline a recent meeting she attended in Foxboro as regards to the purchasing of two movie projectors for the county, and for use in the schools. Each Home and School would be requested to pay $20 for purchase and use of same. Mrs. Helen Louis was instructed to write the secretary of this project, informing him of the interest of the Shannonville Home and School Association. Mrs. Phillips also mentioned that she could pick up the films. These films could be viewed by the adults in the evening of the same day of showing in the school.

In the absence of Mrs. Kenneth Juby, Mrs. Kilburn conveyed to the meeting the former's impressions of the recent Home and School convention in Cannanoque, where Mrs. Juby represented the local association as a delegate.

The Sunshine Girls sang two delightful numbers "Carry On" and "The Grandfather Clock". Those forming this chorus were Mrs. Kilburn, Helen Louis, Helen Marion, Beatrice Ueno, Lorna Ueno, Muriel Miller and Bernice Houston. The old fashioned song "Juanita" was rendered very nicely by Bernice Houston and Muriel Miller as a duet.

Community singing was enjoyed by all present, followed by several mouth organ selections by Mr. Arbuckle who has arrived in Canada from Scotland in the past year.

Delicious refreshments were served by Mrs. Boyce Cook and her assistants. The next meeting to take place in the school the third Monday in November.

Presentation Made

Mrs. Herb Houston was a recent hostess at the Monday club, it being their president, Mrs. H. Bennett's birthday. Mrs. Bennett received a lovely cup and saucer.

Ten members and three visitors were present. Miss Anne Bennett was a future bride-to-be and presented by little Helen Houston with an attractive basket decorated in pink, containing kitchen shelf linen utensils in pink and white, for future use in her new home.

Anne was taken by surprise with these lovely gifts, but thanked the members for their kind thoughts and extended an invitation for them to visit her in her new home in Belleville.

Mr. John Kent left for Parry Sound, where his uncle, Mr. Hill-Clark-Francis are engaged in construction work.

Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Little are entertaining friends from New York State.

Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Aubrey Whiteman of the R.C.A.F. station, Trenton on the arrival of a daughter, Frances Lorna, at Belleville General Hospital. Mr. and Mrs. Whiteman and two sons were formes residents of Shannonville.

Miss Eliza Bell was a weekend guest in Kingston where she was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Bert Local friends of Mrs. Floyd Lapointe of Noranda, Quebec, were shocked to hear of her "passing-on" last week. Bobby spent a summer in here for several years ago.

The many friends of Mr. Lorne Ueno, Millstown will be sorry to learn that he is obliged to return to the Kingston General Hospital this week for further treatment.

Mr. Arnold Lever of Smithfield renewed acquaintances in Shannonville during the week-end.

TWEED Pageant of Countries Held at Baby Band

Tweed—Mrs. C. C. Atton and Mrs. George Gerrald, leaders of St. John's Church Baby Band, were hostesses at the annual party of this group in the Sunday School rooms of the church. Guests included mothers, grandmothers and friends.

A pageant, depicting the different countries that were aided by the mission givings, was portrayed by six members of the Mission Band, Margaret Aiton (India), Donald Hodgins (China), Dianne Thompson (Canada); Mary Geraldi (Trinidad); Margaret Clark (Japan), and Jean Sims (Africa), Shirley Thompson offered prayer.

The promotion ceremony for youngsters to the Mission Band was supervised by Mrs. Gerald and Mrs. Brooks Clark. Miss Millicent House, missionary from India on furlough, addressed the children, telling in a simple and interesting manner, the different customs in Anglia. Mrs. Carl House was the accompanist for the evening.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Her friend imposes on her.

Dear Miss Fairfax:

My problem concerns a lady and her little grandchild who always come to my home without advance notice at such a time that I have to invite them for supper. I have four children of my own, and as my husband's work is very occasional, I have to pinch pennies hard.

I am fond of both this lady and her grandchild, and have always been glad to see them, but how can I get her to come after dinner and go home before supper without being rude and making an enemy of her?

I guess I'm just fed upon it. Perhaps another reason why I resent it, besides the inconvenience and the expense, is because this woman often tries to tell me how to run my home.

Mrs. J. G.

Dear Mrs. J. G.:

There is every reason why you should not care to have this woman practically inviting herself to meals in your house and no reason why you should stand for it.

I suggest that the next time she comes to your house without warning and stays until you are ready to serve a meal, you simply say very politely: "I'm awfully sorry I can't invite you to stay to supper, but we're having left-overs and there's just enough for my own family" or something of that sort. If she takes offense at this, you don't need to reproach yourself, because you will have done nothing rude at all but quite the proper thing. She is the one who is behaving rudely in imposing herself and her grandchild on you.

Carried a Silly Spat Too Far

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 20 years old and in love with a young man three years older. We had been going together four months when we had a silly argument and he didn't call me or come to see me for about a week. So I called him, but didn't say anything much, and all he said was "I'll call you".

Later, I met him at a dance and he asked to take me home. I refused and wanted home alone, but he followed me and said "Why be mad!" I didn't answer, and when we arrived at my home I got right out of the car and he said good-night very roughly and took off like mad.

Now I'm sorry I acted the way I did, and I would like to know whether or not I should call this young man and tell him I am sorry. My girl friend tells me he will never call me or see me again and it really gets me down.

R.

Dear R.:

You certainly didn't behave very well, did you? I can't imagine why you were so rude in the way you refused this young man's offer to take you home. I would not blame him at all if he didn't want any thing more to do with such an unreasonable girl.

I think it would be quite in order for you either to call him or write him a note of apology for behaving so childishly and to suggest that all be forgiven and forgotten. If he doesn't take you up on this, however, I am afraid you have only yourself to blame, and can only drop the whole thing and learn a lesson from it.

BEAVERBROOK TO SPEAK

Sackville, N.B., Oct. 21—(CP)—Lord Beaverbrook, Canadian-born British newspaper publisher, will deliver the Founder's Day address at Mount Allison University here Nov. 2, it was announced Thursday.

GOOD MANNERS

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Expressions that are jewels

"Thank you". "Please". . . "I beg your pardon". . . "I am sorry". . . "How very kind of you to say such a nice thing". . . "You were very good to do that" . . . these, and similar pleasant expressions that show consideration for others, are jewels in the setting of our daily life. And we should say them with such said good-night very roughly and look off like mad.

Now I'm sorry I acted the way I did, and I would like to know whether or not I should call this young man and tell him I am sorry. My girl friend tells me he will never call me or see me again and it really gets me down.

Divorcee's Name

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

A married couple with one child are divorced. The husband has re-married. Is it correct for his former wife to still use his name. . . Mrs. John Jones?

Puzzled Wife

Although in many places a divorcee has the right to retain her ex-husband's name . . . for example, Mrs. John Jones. . . . If she wishes to, she usually prefers to retain only his surname, and to substitute her maiden surname in place of his first name. For example, Mrs. Robertson Jones.

Seating-arrangement for bride's sister-in-law

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My husband's sister is being married soon in church. Their mother is living. But as their father is not living, my husband, the bride's oldest brother, is giving her in marriage. Where should I be seated in the church? And at the dinner afterward, which is to be held in a hotel?

M F.

The bride's mother would be seated in the first pew on the left of the aisle. If she has other children, naturally, they would sit in the pew with her. Otherwise I believe she will ask you to sit in the pew with her, and when your husband has performed his part in the ceremony, he would take his place in the end seat of the pew (his mother sitting next to him).

Where you sit at the wedding dinner depends on the plans for the seating-arrangement made by the bride and her mother.

Navy Blue for Winter

By PRUNELLA WOOD

THE VOGUE for navy blue, come winter, is higher style than ever this season, with comparatively few entries in what without doubt a top class in fashion.

Here we have a simple and unmistakably fashionable dress-maker model, navy blue bagheera like (which is a sort of mat surfaced, fine knit jersey) trimmed with contrasting surface in the shine of matching navy satin. The satin is scalloped and laid in two tiers on the lower skirt sides, about a yoke line of the blouse and for a collar. The belt is also satin. The hat is the popular beaver felt in soft mauve.

Wife Preservers

Fire prevention authorities warn the housekeeper never to store inflammable liquids in open containers. Such liquids should always be kept in specially designed galvanized steel gas or oil cans, with close-fitting covers.

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMIESON

Foundations for Fashion

If you want to cut a good figure—and what woman doesn't?—start with your foundation garment. What the right one will do toward molding the feminine shape into attractive lines is realized by few shoppers. Many of them are much too casual about making a selection. While there is no dozens of models from which to choose, there may be only one suitable for you and even that one may have to have alterations. An experienced corsetiere should be consulted.

Fashions may come and fashions may go, but the figures of women go on the same, year in and year out. According to the corset interests, there are four basic figure types, huslor, misses, average and full. There are numerous variations, however, of each type; large hips and full bosom; large bosom and small hips; and so on. These variations pose separate and special problems that can only be solved by an expert fitter.

If you want a good figure, start with your foundation garment.

Whether it is bandeau, brassiere, girdle or all-in-one, the most important thing for a woman to remember when purchasing a foundation garment is to select one which is precisely and exactly right for her type. A woman's health, comfort and grace depend upon a garment that is correctly cut and properly fitted.

The woman with the average figure may have little difficulty when out shopping to aid in the way of figure molding. As the term average implies, this is the figure in which breasts, waist and hips are normally mature. She is well proportioned throughout.

Though she is easy to fit, the fitting must be accurate. Since the flesh of the average figure is the flesh of the mature one, it tends to soften. Her breasts are less firm than they were in her early twenties, therefore require a garment that exercises support and control.

The full figure, be it referred to as a "stylish stout" or plain "fat", is a problem, since adipose tissue does not seem to care where it lives and climbs creates distortions—e- ridges and bumps that the foundation garment must render less noticeable. This lady is thick through the waist; her hips are full and broad. Her flesh may be firm or soft. Corsetieres say that it is important to notice whether the size of the figure is due to large bones or an oversupply of fat cells, and the important part is that the foundation should support the abdomen and fit snugly over the hips.

Then there are those who are normal above the waist, have spread below; those who have long legs and short torsos, and the other way about. Breasts are sometimes placed high, sometimes low, which means that the brassiere requires careful considerations, good lines and proper adjustment.

The sway-back proves difficult. It causes by poor posture, it throws the body out of balance. But the right kind of foundation will correct these ugly lines to a certain extent.

POWER REGULATIONS MUST BE ENFORCED

A reduction in power deliveries from one of the Commission's suppliers makes it necessary for all consumers to avoid wasting electricity. The Commission has advised the municipal systems that strict compliance with regulations respecting the use of electricity is essential.

Voluntary conservation is also needed. Homes, industries and farms can play their full part by reducing the use of electricity at all times, particularly during the hours of maximum use, from 10 to 12 in the morning and 4 to 6 in the afternoon.

School Graduates Honored by H. & S. Assoc.

The Canniton - Corbyville School association closed its activity last Wednesday of the season being the annual graduation night supper. Approximately 135 guests sat down to 8 umptious supper prepared by the mothers of the pupils of the school.

The graduates of 1948-49 were honored guests at the head table. The girls in their long white dresses, with corsages of flowers —gifts of the Home and School Association, making a lovely picture.

Mr. Darling, principal of the school acted as chairman for the evening.

The graduates were Misses Arlene Bradshaw, Gladys Clapp, Alice Lywood, and Barbara Williams, and Messrs. Lloyd Millen, Lawrence Moore, Jack Douglas and Billy Hinds.

Immediately following the supper a sing song was led by Mr. Alfred Boyd. A very good program was presented, Mr. Ed. Brown, of Belleville, accompanied by Mrs. Brown at the piano sang two beautiful solos. Miss Helen Schaus of Belleville gave two humorous readings.

Diplomas Presented

Mr. Macklem, School Inspector, was unable to be present, so Mr. Darling, on behalf of Mr. Macklem, presented the graduates with their diplomas and told the parents how very proud he was of the graduates. On behalf of the Home and School Association, Mrs. Plumpton, the president, presented each graduate with a gift.

Lawrence Moore proved himself a comedian of capable speaker. On behalf of the graduates he thanked the parents, the Home and School Association and the teaching staff for their efforts, and promised, as students, they would try to live up to all of this assistance.

Mrs. Plumpton also presented the cash awards to the proficiency winners of last year. These children are chosen by their teachers and are the girl and boy in each room standing highest in progress during the year — everything taken into consideration. The children were Joan Moore, Rose MacCaffery and Jimmie Latchford; Room 3, Peter Plane and John Plumpton; Room 2, Margaret Mc-Leod and George McDonald.

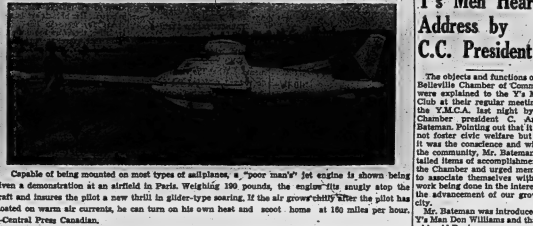
Mr. J. Alan Ingram, president of the Collegiate Home and School Association, also Guidance Director on the B.C.I. staff, was introduced by Mr. Darling as guest speaker on the evening. Joan Moore was a no stranger to this district, having been guest speaker last year, and Mr. Ingram was much enjoyed. He left many thought-provoking ideas with the parents.

Mr. Frank Windsor of Canniton gave two humorous recitations in Irish dialect, which were very much enjoyed.

Mr. Ward Hall of the H. & S. Executive gave details of the November meeting, a social and box social, and hoped all the members would turn out.

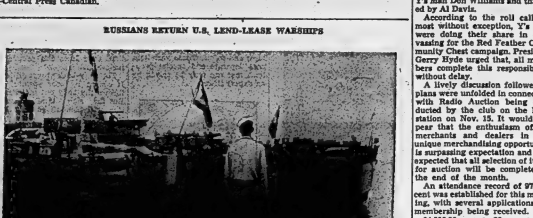
Thanks Expressed

Mrs. Plumpton, on behalf of the Association moved a vote of thanks to the guest speaker, Mr. Musgrave and to the ladies and caterers, who had so ably assisted in the supper. Also thanks to those who had assisted in making graduation night such a marked success in the past. Mr. Madden of the Canniton United Church expressed his appreciation for a most enjoyable evening.



Much credit is due to the social committee for their untiring efforts in the preparation and serving of the supper. These were Mrs. Bill Parks, convenor, Mrs. M. Curiette, Mrs. G. Lywood, Mrs. R. Bradshaw, Mrs. Jack Madden, Mrs. A. Calveri, Mrs. A. Eves, Mrs. G. Poste, Mrs. P. Smith, Mrs. A. Soble, Mrs. W. Lockhart, Mrs. Mc. Douglas Brenton and to the pupils of Grade 8.

Advise Less Sweets For Children



Toronto, Oct. 22—(CP)— If the Ontario Department of Welfare has anything to say about it, Ontario children are going to have less candy. The department campaign has been launched to improve the kiddies' diets—which now consist of food, candy, pie and cake. A bulletin issued by the committee says that dentists are concerned about the high rate of tooth decay based not only on too many sweet foods in children's diets.

STUDENTS AIM TO UNEARTH IROQUOIS LONGHOUSE

Woodstock, Oct. 22 — (CP) — University studies sometimes mean hard manual work and blisters. Some 150 University of Toronto medical and arts students are digging near here in search of an old Iroquois longhouse which anthropologists say is part of an Indian village. The students have discovered bone deer horn, arrowheads, parts of a clay pipe and the tooth of a fox.

Publisher Says Country Deluged With Crime Comics

Ottawa, Oct. 22—(CP)—George M. Murray (L—Carleton), publisher of the weekly Alaska Highway News, said Friday night in the Commons he believes more can be done to encourage Canadians to take part in the publishing of newspapers.

He spoke during a debate on a bill sponsored by E. D. Fulton—(PC—Kamloops) and aimed at bringing crime comics under provisions of the criminal code. The discussion also brought from T. L. Smith (PC—Calgary West), and justice Minister Garson comments on newspaper libel.

Mr. Murray said "this country is deluged with filth from the publishers of the United States and no effort is made to stop this material coming past the border."

"As a publisher may I say that I do not think we are competent to judge what is good or what is bad. That is a responsibility for public opinion. We get just what we ask for. You can take the whole and hold it up as a fair sample of a publication which contains about 11 articles and fillers which might be considered here tonight.

"I think if we would encourage our Canadian Press, our Canadian writers and our Canadian artists to do so we could do much more to establish Canadian literature in Canada which in turn would encourage Canadian talent to take part in the publication of our papers."

Mr. Smith raised the question of newspaper libel. He said the distributor of a newspaper libel is subject to prosecution under criminal code. Mr. Garson agreed the criminal code, Mr. Garson agreed.

Then, asked Mr. Smith, would it not be possible to make the publishers and distributors of obscene literature and crime comics subject to similar prosecution.

Publisher Has Protection

A. C. Stewart (L—Yorkton) interjected that the publisher of a newspaper libel had protection.

"He has no protection except under the different provincial statutes which provide for apologies and a lot of nonsense of that kind," said Mr. Murray. "He is liable to be prosecuted under the criminal code. No one has been hurt very much by that."

Mr. Smith said he was not advocating "one thing or another." However, Mr. Garson had stated there was some belief that prosecutions against handlers of obscene literature would be simplified if the criminal code did not require proof that the literature had been handled "knowingly and without lawful justification or excuse." Elimination of those words had been urged by British Columbia and Ontario again governments.

Mr. Smith asked:

"It is not a fact that if these words are omitted it would put these scurrilous magazines—if I may call them that—in exactly the same position as a newspaper which publishes a criminal libel?"

Mr. Garson replied:

"The analogy my honorable friend has drawn is hardly a true one. The point I was trying to make was that where you have the words, 'knowingly without lawful justification or excuse' as one of the ingredients of the offence I suggest it is likely to be easier to make out a case or to secure a conviction against a publisher . . . than against a bookseller."

This was because a publisher has to set up the type and run it through the press. A bookseller might have a particular book among thousands of others on his shelves without having any exact knowledge as to its contents.

RAWDON
Cobourg Trio Provide Music At Pie Social

Rawdon—Wellmans W.A. held a very successful pie social on Monday evening at which $100 was filled for the occasion. The Rev. R. C. Vardon was master of ceremonies, and the program was given by Messrs. Albert Hiltrock, Millen Hopkins, and Lloyd Silverson, of Cobourg. This group furnished all the English groups of singing and were heard in solos, duets and trios. The first half was sacred, and the second part consisted of Negro melodies, and closed with "The End of a Perfect Day." Mrs. Lorne Watson played the accompaniments.

All enjoyed appetizing refreshments with, pie predominating. A large number of guests were in attendance from nearby communities.

FIND ANCIENT BANK BILLS

Fort Erie, Oct. 22 — (CP) — John T. Brown of this Niagara district town found $7 Friday but he couldn't spend it. The three bills — a $2 and a $5 — were found in an old trunk in his attic and were issued by the Bank of Brantford, now defunct, in 1859. Mr. Brown hopes they may be some value as collectors' items.

NEIGHBORS FLOW FARM FOR SECOND YEAR

Harrisonville, Oct. 22. —(CP) —For the second time in this month more than a year neighbors have plowed the farm of Homer Wallis. Wallis, whose land is about 10 miles southeast of London, was in hospital last year with polio. Neighbors rolled up with tractors and plowed the land for him. This year he broke his leg while in London for a therapy treatment. Back came the tractors and—for them—and did the job again.

4,000 Workers In Oshawa Plant Return Monday

Oshawa, Oct. 22 (CP)—Some 4,000 workers who walked off their jobs at the General Motors plant here Friday will return to work Monday morning.

The men, members of Local 222, United Auto Workers (C.I.O.) ratified the recommendation, made at a mass meeting Friday night, after the temporary walkout which resulted from the alleged "refusal of top management" to meet with a union committee to discuss four issues.

W. A. Wecker, president and general manager of the company, however, issued a statement saying: "There is in our contract with the union, a procedure for processing grievances which the union is trying to by-pass. The company has never refused, and has not refused in this case, to deal with grievances through the usual personnel authorized by the company and this personnel includes senior plant executives who have full authority."

General Motors negotiating chairman Malcolm Smith, speaking to the mass meeting last night, said that the union wanted more pay for older production-line employes when the company's production rate exceeded 40 units an hour. He said that that production recently was increased to 40 cars an hour.

Other issues revealed by the union included a demand that a man be rated 120 per cent efficient after seven weeks' service, while the company now rates a 14-week period; that junior help carrying the age of 20 be advanced to the plant's adult work and that an employee, recently terminated off with $30 a month after 26 years' service, be reinstated with pay retroactive to his retirement.

SEEKS THIRD DIVORCE

Santa Ana, Calif., Oct. 22—(AP) —Actress Bette Davis, 41, Friday filed suit for divorce against her third husband, William Grant Sherry, 33. She charged Sherry, former prizefighter turned actor, with cruelty and asked custody of their two-year-old daughter. Miss Davis won the Academy Award in 1936 for her role in "Dangerous" and again in 1939 for "Jezebel."

IS GRANTED DIVORCE AND RESUME MAIDEN NAME

Chicago, Oct. 22—(AP)—Mrs. Marian Anderson, 33, testified Friday in her successful divorced suit that her husband left home a year ago to visit his mother and hasn't been back yet.

Mrs. Anderson waived alimony but asked for the right to resume her maiden name.

The judge said that would be all right.

"And what was your maiden name?" he asked.

"Anderson," she replied.

Y's Men Hear Address by C.C. President

The objects and functions of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce were explained to the Y's Men's Club at their regular meeting in the Y.M.C.A. last night by the Chamber president, C. Arthur Bateman. Pointing out that it does not foster civic welfare but that it was the conscience and will of the community, Mr. Bateman detailed items of establishment of the Chamber and urged members to take an active interest in the work being done in the interest of the advancement of our growing city.

Mr. Bateman was introduced by Y's Man Don Williams and thanked by Al Davis.

According to the roll call almost without exception, Y's Men were doing their share in canvasing for the Red Feather Community Chest campaign. Realizing that only a small part of the canvass had been completed over schedule with the absence from the city of many people and residents who could not be reached by Y's Men, the Campaign Committee extended the time of the canvass at the request of many of the workers who found it impossible to return only a very small proportion of the pledge cards.

The extension which has been made to Saturday, October 29th will make it possible for a thorough canvass to be completed. Workers are urged to not delay but make their return cells where these have been arranged so that the first part of the week will see the greatest part of the collections made.

The executive pointed out that the Red Feather is the minimum amount required to carry on the essential below-cost services of the following: Belleville and District Y.M.C.A. and the Children's Aid Society already the budget has been cut from $20,000. to $16,000 and if this objective is not reached, services of a professional nature will have to be curtailed. Citizens are therefore requested to give a generous reception to the canvassers who will call, or send in a contribution direct to the campaign headquarters in the Y.M.C.A. building.

Three Persons Seriously Hurt In Collision

Orillia, Oct. 22—(CP)—Three persons were seriously injured and 21 other are less seriously hurt as the result of a Gray Coach and Lines bus with an automobile Friday about six miles west of Orillia on highway No. 11. The bus overturned in a ditch.

The bus, travelling to Toronto during a drizzling rain, skidded while travelling down a hill, spun completely around and then struck an automobile driven by Bruce Sharpe, Toronto salesman.

Sharpe, in critical condition with broken ribs, a collapsed lung and internal injuries, is alone in the car.

Provincial police of Toronto, apprentice driver, was unable to straighten the bus out as the back began to slip and skid. Driver Meachan, his instructor, went to his assistance, they were unable to control the bus.

On the other side of the road is a steep bank.

By the time ambulances and police arrived, most of the injured were out of the wrecked bus.

Two bus passengers in serious condition are Mrs. Mary Hill, 70, of Detroit, who suffered head injuries, possible skull fracture, and Mrs. Dunbar, who has a broken leg, Toronto.

Taxis and two ambulances took the injured to the Soldiers' Memorial Hospital in Orillia and several were allowed to leave after treatment.

Sharpe was taken to Toronto General Hospital by ambulance after emergency treatment in Orillia.

HEADS ONTARIO A.T.P.A.

Ottawa, Oct. 22—(CP)—Fred Danks of Kitchener, Friday was elected president of the Ontario Anglican Young People's Association. He succeeds Mary Hill of Ottawa, Doreen Belson of Brantford was elected secretary while archbishop's appointees to the A.Y.P.A. Council include A. D. Elliott, Belleville and Rev. J. B. Creggan, Prescott.

Entry List of 300 Cheese Expected at Dairy Show

An entry of approximately 300 boxes of cheese for the annual British Empire Dairy Show being held at Belleville Dec. 6 and 7, is expected by J. L. Irwin, honorary president of the Central Ontario Cheese Makers' Association.

The cheese show is being held in conjunction with the 22nd annual meeting of the Central Ontario Cheese Makers. The show will be held in the basement of the Orange Hall at 315 Church street, while the convention sessions will be held at the Hotel Quinte.

More From Quebec

Increased interest in the cheese show is being shown by Quebec makers, according to Mr. Irwin and entries have also been received from Manitoba.

Over $1,700 in cash prizes are being offered at the British Empire Dairy Show. This is said to be the largest prize list for any cheese show in the Dominion. This year there will be a new class for cheddar cheese in the domestic class and already several entries have been received. Also this year there will be two additional trophies pp for competition. These are the G. G. Publow Memorial Trophy donated by Dr. C. A. Publow of Picton in honor of the former inspector, and the Frank Herns Trophy donated by the Western Ontario Cheese Makers' Association. Both of these trophies will be up for annual competition for Ontario makers obtaining the highest rating in quality and workmanship.

Good Program Planned.

Prominent speakers will be on hand to address the various sessions of the convention, while concluding the convention will be the annual cheese makers' banquet to be held at Tobe's County Gardens.

Guest speaker for the banquet program will be Fletcher Thomas, M.P.P. for Elgin County. Entertainment will include the celebrated Margaret Lynn Munn, Miss Canada, 1949.

"Touch and Go" Timely And Pleasing Revue

By PAT USSHER
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York, Oct. 22.—(CP)—A timely and pleasing revue is George Abbott's new revue "Touch and Go."

The sketches are pointed and topical; it has some graceful dances arranged by Helen Tamiris and some moments of uproarious farce. And its humor at no time is in bad taste.

One of the principal assets of "Touch and Go" now installed at the Plymouth theatre is the presence of George Hall, comedian who was born in Toronto.

Hall, who moved into the production after another revue, "Lend an Ear", appears as a master of ceremonies at intervals and also in some of the comedy sketches. Others who contribute to the entertainment are Nancy Andrews, Kyle MacDonnell and Pearl Lang.

Modern Evans

Maurice Evans goes modern in "The Browning Version," a double bill of Terence Rattigan plays at the Coronet Theatre, in the play which gives its name to the dual performance, he is acting editor master of an English boys' school.

Evans handles the part with sympathy and restraint and Edna Best is admirable as his abandoned and unfaithful wife.

The second play, "A-Hariquinade" is a broadly comedy-farce of a pair of acting veterans rehearsing "Romeo and Juliet" while on tour in England. Both Evans and Miss Best make the most of some excellent items in light farce with ease in this thin but amusing sketch.

Lockhart for "Salesman"

Gene Lockhart, a native of London, Ont., has been engaged to replace Lee J. Cobb in the leading role of Willy Loman, the unhappy hero of "Death of a Salesman". Cobb is retiring from the play on medical advice and will be replaced by Lockhart some time next month. Lockhart hasn't been on the New York stage since 1945 ... "people like us", the melodrama by Frank Vosper, may not reach Broadway at all. The play closed down for revisions after a week's trotit following its Toronto engagement ... Ken Murray's vaudeville-type show, failed to attract the public here as it did on the West coast, where it ran for seven years. It closed last Saturday after a span only 81 performances.

Brig. Gen. Genet Addresses Women's Club

The October meeting of the University Women's Club was held at the home of Mrs. Norma Emma Panter at Rednecraville on Oct. 20. The meeting started with the Grace before meat and was followed by the regular business meeting. Mrs. Locke presided. Mrs. Locke read a letter received from a University woman, a refugee in the Netherlands, thanking the club for two fine parcels sent her in the Spring, one containing a dress length and the other food.

Mrs. Emma Panter was appointed representative for the club in the forming of a Citizens' League for Belleville and District.

Mrs. Locke announced that Miss Anderson of the Belleville Collegiate, had been chosen winner of the $150 scholarship given by the club.

Miss Hilda McLaren introduced the speaker of the evening, Brigadier General Georges P. Vanier, Governor General of Canada. General Montgomery, that accomplished them to play their part in the waging of the war. He also paid great tribute to the part played by the late Mrs. Harewood and the wonderful part they took in working for the service. Princess Mary was throughout the war, the Colonel-in-Chief of the Royal Canadian Corps of Signals, of which Brigadier General Genet was the Colonel.

Mrs. Stammers thanked the General for his most interesting address. Mrs. Locke thanked Miss Panter for her generous hospitality.

SUMMER VISITORS

Tuna, which have a world-wide range, are common along the Nova Scotia coast and in the Gulf of St. Lawrence during the summer months.

Eleven Injured In Two Crashes

Sudbury, Oct. 22—(CP)—Eleven persons were injured and removed to hospital in two traffic accidents today on Highway No. 11 near here. Four remained in hospital and seven others, from North Bay, returned home after treatment of superficial cuts and bruises.

Four were injured in a collision between automobiles driven by Percy Coombs of Sudbury and Gerard Tourt of nearby Capreton. Coombs suffered head cuts, Mrs. Coombs and Tourt suffered head injuries and possible fractured ribs, and Amy Wulff of Copper Cliff suffered cuts and bruises.

The seven North Bay youths were thrown when the truck in which they were going home from a football game was involved in a collision with a car driven by Steve Lavery, Walter Kannegiesser, Wilfred Wilson, Bill White, Johnny Smith, Sonny Reynolds and Jack Blair.

Officers Elected At Banquet Of Bowling Club

The ladies' section of the Belleville Lawn Bowling Club held their annual closing banquet and election of officers at clubhouse on Thursday evening. Thirty-eight members partook of a delicious chicken dinner, which was followed by a short meeting convened by Mrs. J. Legault.

Following the dinner, the season's reports were read and much discussion took place on every report of a very successful year.

Prizes for season's play were distributed and cup winners were as follows: Bradley Cup was won by Mrs W. Price, Mrs. W. Gilbert. Mrs. H. Thompson, skip; runner-up, Mrs. Edgar Bell, J. Black and Mrs. C. Hyde, skip; runner-up, Mrs. A. Lloyd, Mrs. Eagar, Mrs. H. Thompson, Mrs. C. Hendrick, skip; runner-up; Mrs. A. Lloyd, Mrs. H. Thompson, Mrs. C. Hyde, skip. The president, Mrs. W. Gilbert thanked her officers for their co-operation, then vacated the chair to Mrs. A. E. Wonnacott, who presided at the meeting of the club's last year's officers were re-elected: President, Mrs. W. Gilbert; 1st Vice President, Mrs. C. McBride; Secretary, Mrs. G. Vince; Treasurer, Mrs. W. Walkin; Games chairman, Mrs. L. Gerow; Cup games, Mrs. C. Hyde; House convener, Mrs. Legault; Bridge convener, Mrs. C. Clarke.

Mrs. Gilbert thanked the members and honorary members for their help in 1950 would be realized.

Then followed the entertainment for the evening, which was capably convened by Mrs. C. Hyde, taking the form of several contests, which were much enjoyed. The evening ended with the playing of euchre. With cheery goodnights and expressions of a most enjoyable evening, another successful season was brought to a close.

Bicyclist Collides With Milk Wagon

Knocked from his bicycle when he collided with a horse drawn Noblin Dairy wagon, Warren Snell 11, Lancaster street, suffered a skinned knee at noon Friday. His bicycle was also badly damaged.

The Noblin dairy wagon, driven by Norman Hall, Murney St., was proceeding north on North Front Street and was making a right turn into the Grant Funeral Home when the bicycle attempted to cut between the wagon and the curb.

You can now reach most safe slams in bridge with precision methods. There are times, however, when you lunge into slam with nothing but a hope that partner has what you need.

Taking chances for doubtful slams is not a profitable enterprise. Practical players will easily convince you of this in their play, but warnings of this kind are like advising against slot machines. Some one steps in and hits a jackpot.

There came to the party this deal:

NORTH
♠5 4 3
♥Q 8 2
♦K 10 7 2
♣8 7 5 3

WEST	EAST
♠Q J	♠7 6
♥A 10 9 8 5	♥K J 3
♦K 8 4	♦A Q J 6 5 3
♣J 10 6	♣K 9

SOUTH
♠A K 10 9 8 2
♥A K
♦9 4
♣A Q 4 2

The bidding went like this:

South	North
2 S	2 NT
3 S	4 S
5 S	Pass

The opening of two in a suit is forcing to at least a game. In response thereto, an immediate reply of two notrump denies a sure trick. This told south that north had no ace.

Transition from scientific bidding to actual play of the hand is not always smooth. It did not promise values of any other kind.

Thus, south knew that opponents had the diamond ace. Nothing in the information he had revealed any ruffing value for his clubs. Therefore, going to a slam was truly risky business.

His lunge to a slam in this case is not recommended. For the sake of a precarious slam, he might have forfeited a cinch game. It is not considered a safe investment.

However, the opening lead from west happened to be the heart jack. It enabled declarer to make his slam. But it was with the help of a few horseshoes. Can you nail them here?

CRIME COMICS MAY

Solon Low, Social Credit leader, called for a national program of development of national resources to make Canada more self-sufficient on materials which currently drain off many badly-needed United States dollars.

Shortage Nearly Over

At House opening, Trade Minister Howe said he was aware there is a shortage of cement in Canada this year but he was confident the country would be self-sufficient in this product by next year. He was replying to a question from G. K. Fraser (PC-Peterborough West).

The Commons gave second reading to a government bill under which Canada would nationalize external communications services.

Department of Veterans Affairs estimates for 1948-49 of $248,119,289 were considered by the Commons in committee of the whole House.

In the comic book bill discussion, Mr. Fulton, sponsor of the measure, agreed to have it remain in the committee stage until the provinces make their suggestions on how to tighten the criminal code. He accepted Mr. Carson's suggestion on the understanding, however, that the bill will be reported from the committee before the current session prorogues—probably early December.

Mr. Garson said he believed the stumbling block under section 207 of the criminal code is in the words "who knowingly and without lawful justification and excuse" prints, sells or distributes literature considered to be obscene.

Particularly Worded

In a country with Canada's views on liberties and freedoms, he felt it was unfair that a book-seller handling thousands of books he could never hope to read should be convicted because he sold a book that, without his knowledge was obscene.

This section has been particularly worded to protect honest book sellers. However, it also protected the dishonest distributors as well. All a dishonest book seller had to do was to tell the court he was not aware there was anything obscene in a book he had sold.

Mr. Garson indicated that one of the chief problems in tightening the criminal code is to make it strong enough to convict these dishonest book sellers without being unfair to the honest distributors.

The attorney-general of Ontario and British Columbia had said convictions were hard to obtain because it had to be proven that the literature was handled "knowingly and without lawful justification or excuse."

Enforcement Provincial Matter

However, Mr. Garson did not believe the words should be eliminated until:

"1. The publishers as the source of this objectionable reading matter shall have been prosecuted, and it shall have been demonstrated in such prosecution that it is impossible to convict the publishers under the law as it now stands, as amended by additional crime comics to material banned by Section 207.

"2. That the law officers of the provinces give us assurance . . . that Section 207 cannot be enforced effectively without the elimination of those words. . .

Enforcement of the code was a provincial matter. If a publisher imported printing plates of obscene literature and was prosecuted in one province, there was nothing to prevent him from moving to another province where law enforcement was less severe.

While the federal government was responsible for enactment of criminal law, the provinces were responsible for enforcement. The federal government could not assume enforcement without infringing on provincial rights.

OPPOSITION OPENS

rules from introducing a further amendment to the budget. Two amendments are the limit. He did not indicate whether his party might sponsor an amendment after the commons votes on the two opposition motions already before it.

Mr. Rowe charged that government policies are losing Canada's traditional markets. He urged that a commonwealth trade conference be called to cope with the deteriorating situation.

The cabinet, he said, should give immediate attention to "our loss of traditional markets and our failure to facilitate purchases of U.K. exports in short supply in Canada." It should "inaugurate steps for the holding of an empire trade conference at the earliest possible date."

As to the internal approach, he urged establishment of a separate ministry in the cabinet to deal exclusively with the development of natural resources to help meet the "staggering" fixed costs of government.

Called Shockingly Obsolete

All parties, he said, "subscribe to the objective of making benefits under welfare legislation as adequate as possible." But the time had come for a "very careful re-examination of our whole approach towards the question of financing these social security measures we now have."

Mr. Rowe described the reintroduced budget as "shockingly obsolete" in the face of world conditions that had sharply altered since it first was presented last spring.

He contended Canada's decision to hold the dollar at an "artificial valuation"y was responsible for many of the country's current economic problems. He suggested the government remove foreign-exchange controls and allow the dollar to find its own level.

Mr. Thatcher said Canada's hope for a solution to trade problems lay in the United Kingdom and other western European markets. These countries could not buy Canadian goods, however, without Canadian dollars. For this reason Canada should make an attempt to lower tariffs against U. K. and other sterling-bloc commodities.

PHOTOS IN 1/5,000 OF SECOND

Cleveland, Oct. 22 (AP)—General Electric Company announced yesterday development of a small photographic flashtube capable of use for thousands of pictures at speeds at 1/5,000th of a second. The U-shaped tube is smaller and 20 per cent brighter than the older spinal-shaped tube. Lighter in weight, it was designed for use with portable power units.

38 Proposed Changes to Be Considered

Kitchener, Oct. 22.—(CP)—Some 38 proposed changes in the rules and constitution of the Intercounty Baseball Association will be considered when representatives of the league's clubs meet in Brantford Nov. 2.

Officials released Friday the long list prepared for the annual meeting.

A Brantford senior suggestion asks that the league rule that "no player shall qualify as a bonafide resident of the city, town or village to which his club belongs who regularly participates in any other athletic competition in a community other than the said city, town or village, unless the executive first approves such other participation."

The suggestion is believed the result of charges that certain senior teams were using communities who played in United States leagues as well as in the intercounty.

Several minor clubs are urging that the practice, a wartime innovation, of permitting junior players to jump indiscriminately between senior and minor ranks, be terminated, Kitchener minors would make it possible to play in three different senior series Brantford suggests that the number be five.

Each Club to Submit Name

Brantford asks that each senior club submit annually the name of a representative who would automatically be appointed to the league executive.

Other changes suggested in the voting and executive arrangements include one from St. Thomas that a commissioner be appointed to handle the affairs of the loop. This was rejected at a meeting of senior clubs on Wednesday.

Senior clubs also ask that all applications for change of residence and transfer of players be passed by the intercounty before submission to the Ontario Baseball Association and that the player be eligible for competition when the intercounty approves.

Kitchener minors are urging that minors be permitted to move up only one classification at a time and that such moves be permitted for only three trial games after which the status of the player would automatically be that of the higher clubs.

Senior clubs are also asking that the agreement with the intercounty umpires association, under which the umpires are named by that group, be terminated and control of the umpires revert to the league executive.

THE DUMMY MOVED

Vancouver — (CP) — When Constable Charles Blythe saw a clothing store dummy moving one night recently, he decided to investigate. The "dummy" pushed a gun in the officer's ribs and fled. Blythe caught John Hefford, who was jailed for a year for possession of a revolver.

Flying Dutchmen Hand Dukes First Loss of the Season; Barrie Flyers in First Place Tie

(By The Canadian Press)

Toronto Senior Marlboros lost their first Ontario Senior Hockey Association game of the season last night when Kitchener-Waterloo Flying Dutchmen walked out a 5-3 overtime victory over the Dukes.

After fighting the Toronto Club to a standstill, the Dutchmen took the lead for the first time of the game in the overtime period and clinched the tussle when Don Bauer scored on the open Marlboro net with goalie Don Lockhart sitting out the last few seconds in favor of six forwards.

Billy Flick, with two goals was leading scorer for the Dutchmen with Ralph Hrudka, Ted Grasser and Dan Bauer each scoring once. Scoring Stan, Don Espe and Johnny Hannigan each blinked the light once for Marlboros.

In the Junior 'A' loop Toronto Marlboros seemingly were well on their way to a walkaway when their game against St. Catharines Teepees was called after the second period because of fog on the ice surface. Teepees were leading 3-2 at the time and Barrie Flyers, who won 6-4 against Oshawa last night, now split first place spot with the Marlboro Juniors.

The first frame of the Marlboro-Teepee game ended in a 2-2 tie, but St. Catharines went ahead at the 14 second mark of the second period and by the end of the frame had outscored Marlboros 4-1.

Barrie Earns Win

Barrie Flyers, last year's O.H.A. champions, earned their win in the fast-moving game against Oshawa Generals. The Flyers controlled play in the first frame to lead 2-0 at that time but in the second period were hard pressed by the motor city boys and were outscored in that frame 3-2. Oshawa kept up the pressure in the final stanza to split a pair of goals.

Rick Hogg and Stan Long were standouts for Barrie with two goals apiece. Barker and Red McCarthy each scored once. Doug Towers, Sonny Hooper, Ted O'Connor and Reg Campbell each flashed the light once for the Generals.

Windsor Spitfires won their first game in two starts last night, defeating Guelph Biltmores 4-3. Spits threw up a strong defence in the first two periods to take 3-0 lead by the end of the second but Guelph continually broke through in the final frame however, to deadlock the Spits 3-3, but couldn't get the equalizer.

Erwin Grosse led the Spits with two goals while Bob Bailey and Glen Sharp picked up one goal apiece. Don Oberholtzer, Bob Palmer and Joe Shaw each scored once for the Biltmores.

Hawks Win First

Galt Black Hawks won their first game of the season last night, defeating Stratford Kroehlers 3-1 after dropping their first three starts. The Hawks took a 2-1 lead in the first frame, batted through a scoreless second period and added their final goal with only 10 seconds of the game remaining.

George Ford, Jack Hill and Pete Conacher were the Hawk goalgetters while Jimmy Pernsho robbed goalie Clark Sommerville of a shut out.

Today, Windsor and St. Catharines play afternoon games in Turonto. Windsor meets St. Michael's College and St. Catharines tackle Toronto Marlboros in a Junior O.H.A. doubleheader at Maple Leaf Gardens. At night, Stratford travels to Galt for a return game with the Galt Black Hawks and Oshawa plays host to Barrie.

In the senior loop, Marlboros play at Kitchener and Hamilton travels to Owen Sound.

Canadiens Get Chance to Increase Lead in N.H.L.

Boston Bruins tonight get their first crack of the infant National Hockey League season at the leaders—Montreal Canadiens.

With only three games played so far by each team in the league, the Bruins haven't yet met the driving habitant who have toppled, in turn, Chicago, New York and Toronto.

Now Boston, tied with Toronto in third place, gets a double whack at Canadiens. The teams meet tonight in Montreal, then travel to Massachusetts for another tilt Sunday night.

In the other weekend games, Rangers take on the Leafs in Toronto tonight while Chicago meets Detroit Sunday.

Boston faces Montreal with the latter holding top spot in the league — including a first year player sensation. Coach Boucher, Jack Gelineau has taken over the Bruins nets from the veteran Paul Bibeault, sold to Chicago in the off season. Other rookies with the club are Phil Maloney, Dave Creighton and Zelio Toppazzini.

Canadiens on Top

Canadiens, with three straight victories, are comfortably on top of the circuit, two points ahead of Detroit and three ahead of Toronto and Boston. Chicago and New York bring up the tail end with a single point apiece.

Despite the flashy showing of the habitant club, Coach Irvin still is tinkering with his lines. Tonight, Elmer Warwick will play on a line with Ken Mosdell and Rip Riopelle. Warwick, handwhile former New York Ranger and Boston Bruin, started other games with Billy Reay and Gerry Plamondon.

Boston could go out front in the league this weekend—but they would have to do it the hard way by beating Montreal twice. That would be the record of 67 points, eight ounces for a muscle. Chicago Black Hawks could do would be to step into a tie with Montreal.

OLD TIMES

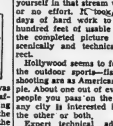
Ottawa — (CP) — John White is no stranger to Ottawa courts. In the last 10 years he has appeared 15 times on various charges. The last was for trespassing in Union station, where he said he went to escape the rain. The judge wasn't sympathetic and sentenced him to one month.

Alex Connell Asks To be Relieved Of His Duties

(By the Canadian Press)

Alex Connell, coach of the Allan Cup champion Ottawa Senators of the Quebec Senior Hockey League, Friday night announced at Ottawa he had asked Senators to relieve him of his duties because of ill health.

The surprise announcement stunned club officials and players who were counting on the Ottawa fireman and former National Hockey League goaltender to lead them to their third straight league championship.



Connell said the move had been made on the advice of his physician.

Club officials immediately scheduled a meeting for today to discuss the matter of a replacement. It was reported that Eddie Dartnell, playing his second year as right wing with Senators and former coach of Seattle Ironmen in the Pacific Coast League, was being seriously considered for the position.

First and second rounds of the combined Canadian wrestling championships and British Empire trials titles were held at Montreal Friday night with favorites Gerard Gratton and Mel Rogers on top.

Twenty-nine semi - finalists were declared in the eight classifications ranging from 114½ pounds to heavyweight.

Among the favored wrestlers who won their initial matches were A. Cleaver; P. Pistt, Manitoba; J. Billinger, D. Leonard and R. Fox, Ontario; and M. Cyr, Quebec Citystate, B. Svenden and V. Jensen, Quebec.

Arthur Leman, treasurer of the Toronto Maple Leaf Baseball Club for the last 24 years, has retired from the International League Club.

He got into baseball when he left the cashier's cage at the old Toronto Globe. During his time with the Leafs, he worked with eight club presidents and 18 managers.

At Baseball Meetings, Louis Spray, Rice Lake, Wis., tavern-keeper, claimed Friday to have set a world mudslinging record for sport fishermen. He said his fish, out of the Chippewa flowage weighed 89 pounds, 11 ounces.

If his catch is authenticated it will surpass the record of 67 pounds, eight ounces for a muskie caught in Lac Courte Oreilles on rod and reel by Cal Johnson, Wisconsin outdoor writer, in Lac Court Oreilles.

Young Lester Felton, a comparative newcomer, from Detroit, turned in an upset decision over Kid Gavilan at Detroit, Detroit Friday night in a 10-round bout before 13,187 fans. Gavilan is currently the No. 1 contender for Sugar Ray Robinson's welterweight title.

The 20-year-old Felton, who used to be one of Gavilan's sparring partners, won his scrap by simply outspeeding Gavilan and landing punches more often while doing it.

It was the first major fight for Felton, a Negro battler.

The University of Western Ontario Colts defeated the Toronto University Undergrads at London Friday, 17-4, in a game that was played for the most part in a driving rain.

London was greatly strengthened with the return of Andy Sokol, star back, to the lineup. Charley Allen, regular end, was also back in the starting lineup after missing the McMaster game.

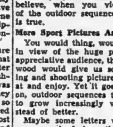
Sarnia Sailors whipped Chatham St. Clair Maroons 6-3 before more than 3,000 fans in the opening game of the International Hockey League at Chatham Friday night.

Showing more finesse around the goal, the tunnelitown crew led 3-2 at the end of the first

An Open Letter to Hollywood

By JOHN ALDEN KNIGHT
(Noted sportsman, author and creator of Sportster Tables)

For lo these many years it has been a mystery to many of us why the motion-picture industry, which is meticulous in its research in most matters, displays such appalling disregard for detail in its outdoor sequences.



No matter whether the scene is one of fishing or of shooting, the evident lack of training or instruction which many of the actors show will surely put your teeth on edge. Sport-shops clothes, inadequate equipment, unlikely and incorrect dialogue —the whole business is pretty bad.

Trout Mis-named

Some years ago, in one of the war pictures, Monte Wooley told a German officer that he had gone to Austria to fish for "blue trout." I wrote to the writer who was responsible for that one and he replied that the studio research department had assured him that it was OK.

Blue trout—fruit blue—which appears on the Paris menus, is not a species but a method of cooking the European brown trout. The only trout Austria has, I have been able to find is a sub-species of Bonfinch, which lives in a few Canadian lakes. At that, the name is purely colloquial.

Only recently a prominent actor (he won't mention the name because I don't want to embarrass the boy) was shown displaying the fighting action and qualities of his "fly rod" to an interested listener.

The "fly rod", so help me, was one of those telescope affairs—you know, the self-rusting variety that young boys in the spring and throws away in the fall. Yet here was this fellow, in an expensive paneled gun room, extolling the virtues of a two-buck "pole."

More Ignorance

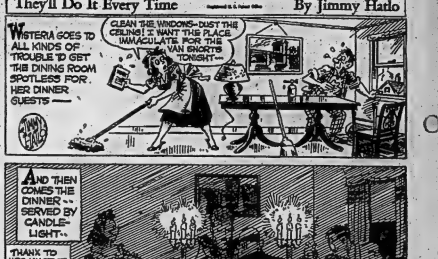
And there was another of William Powell having a fly-casting lesson in an apartment. The instructor, a "comic" character, quite evidently had been shown only recently which end of a fly rod is the stick you hold and have been so easy to do that scene honestly and it would have helped make the picture more convincing.

Later on in that same picture Powell was shown playing what purported to be the monster rainbow of the waterfall fishing club's water. The trout was obviously very dead, but they had it rigged mechanically so that it leaped and bounced about in the air from in a most untroutlike manner. I arose and went home, despite the fact that Miss Jean Harlow was the co-lead in the picture.

And did you see that "short" of Tufts and Ford catching trout

Cornwall Takes Over First Place

Ottawa, Oct. 22 (CP)—Cornwall Calumets took over first place in the Eastern Canada Hockey League standings Friday night as they came from behind to edge out RCAF Flyers 3-2 in the opening game of a twin-bill hockey fixture.



In the nightcap, Hull Volants posted their first win in three starts by scoring in the last 15 seconds of play to down Ottawa Army 4-3.

Rheal Savard was the hero of the Cornwall victory, banging home the tying and winning goals less than five minutes apart midway through the third period. Reynaud and Campbell scored for the Ottawa airmen.

Carman Marshall scored Hull's winning goal in the nightcap after Auguste Bilodeau, Marcel Garin and Blaylock had tallied the first three. Army scorers were Maynard Darch, Archie Creighton and Larry Larocque.

Toronto Argos On the Spot With Riders

(By The Canadian Press)

Toronto's desperate Argonauts, poised on the brink of elimination for the 1949 Big Four football crown, make their last stand today in the works at Ottawa Rough Riders.

Coach Teddy Morris' men are on the spot before a sellout crowd at Toronto's Varsity Stadium. They're facing a team which whipped them by 18 points the last time they met.

In the emergency, the Scullers called on Canada's triple-threat Joe Krol. Word unofficially was that he'd don a uniform for the first time since he was injured at Montreal three weeks ago, but he'll be used only as a passer. Don Crowe or Pete McKeown will handle kicking duties.

The kicking games may decide the fate of other teams among the twelve clubs eligible for the Grey Cup and the Canadian title.

Each of the four-team unions so far has knocked one of its members into the discard and one more remains to go out.

Edmonton Eskimos hover on the brink of elimination in the west, while Hamilton Wildcats, Toronto Beaches and the Winnipeg Blue Cup hunt, University of Toronto Blues tackle the University of Western Mustangs at London, Ont., and Queen's meet McGill at Montreal.

Bombers already are counted out.

Montreal Alouettes only victors this season over the Rough Riders, tackle the winless Wildcats.

In the Ontario Rugby Football Union Hamilton Tigers visit the Windsor Rockets and the second-place Sarnia Imperials are at home to Bailey Beach.

Double games feature the picture in the west, where Eskimos have a mathematical chance if they beat Winnipeg today and if the unbeaten Canadian titleholders, Calgary Stampeders, defeat Regina.

Then on Monday Eskimos are at home to Regina while Winnipeg meets Calgary.

Whip Watson-Flanagan Team Climaxes Season With Victory Over Atkins and Hannigan

By GEO. H. CARVER
(Sports Editor)

It happened last night in Memorial Arena.

It was not only the finale of a highly successful wrestling season here but coincidentally it decided after weeks of brawls that the Whipper Watson-Pat Flanagan duo was definitely masters of the team of Fred Atkins and "Hard-boiled" Hannigan.

It was a merry riot, so to speak. After all the boys, after weeks of questionable victories here, decided to fling the issue in one big brawl with all combatants plus two referees into one ring.

That they did.

And 2,100 of the faithful- a record crowd for the season saw an action-packed bout that ended the way it wanted to.

For the "Whipper" and Flanagan eventually took the measure of their roughle foemen, and also that of two referees, Bert Haswell of Toronto and Ernie Powers of Hamilton.

They threw six men in the ring at all times. That is there was supposed to be. At times, if you looked, one or two "rasslers" plus a referee was missing.

At other times they were playing "ring around Rosie" outside the roped arena.

A Good Show

It was a grand show with the Whipper and Flanagan definitely, very definitely, showing results after preparation for this bout. The Whip and Pat at times had not only the hated boys completed out of the ring, but had officials Maxwell and Powers running around in circles.

As a matter of fact, on a couple of occasions, Watson and Flanagan after heaving everything in sight out of the ring stood there alone. It, perhaps is too bad, that a wrestler cannot count out a referee while he or his co-partner is not on official duty.

But, on the other hand, Atkins and Hannigan used things their way too. But, their methods in the ring proved their undoing.

Thus, they punched, gouged and "ran into the posts" the opposition, but perhaps to their sorrow, these methods were their Nemesis.

For the Whipper and Flanagan, after closely observing their methods, craftily took advantage of the Atkins-Hannigan ring-post battering ram ideas.

Not Without Comedy

The brawl was not without its comedy. There was a time when all you saw was a flurry of legs with the faithful craning its collective neck to see what was going on.

A scream of laughter or should it be enjoyment, sainted, in fact, it was a roar, when Watson and Flanagan, after separating themselves from their foeman, stood by and grinned while the smart Atkins leg-hooked his pal Hannigan under false pretences.

Atkins put on the pressure with a leg-hold while his partner grimaced. Above stood the smiling Watson-Flanagan duo. Atkins, an actor, for once in his life, really mugged an expression of surprise. That in itself is enough.

Referees Mixed up

Whatever it was, or whatever happened, the referees got all tangled up in the second fall. Powers was on the floor telling heftless stories to Watson and Flanagan while Maxwell was prone alongside Flanagan and Atkins.

Came a concerted three "thumps" on the mat denoting victory, Maxwell and Powers shook hands. Then they discovered that something was wrong. Dammit, one had called the Whipper and the other had labbed Hannigan. That was against all rules and regulations of wrestling as laid down. Even of a team had to be declared.

No Contest

So to protect themselves they again shook hands, declared the fall no contest, and magazines ously waved the combatants back into battle.

That Was Enough

That apparently was enough for the Watson Flanagan duo. As a stand-up fandom roared, they went into action. And it happened. In a bit of wrestling precision Flanagan grabbed the "Australian" and the Whip guzzled Hannigan. They picked them up and using them as baby protection charged each other. The impact was terrific. The "Australian", emitted nothing. He had nothing to emit.

Hannigan collapsed from the terrifice impact, and it was over.

Petes Beaten By Sarnia 2-1

Toronto, Oct. 22 — (CP)—The Red Feather Football Tournament of Champions ends tonight at Maple Leaf Stadium with Windsor's Kennedy Collegiate meeting Sudbury High School and Ottawa's Technical school playing Humberside Collegiate of Toronto.

More than 10,000 cheering high school students saw the tournament open Friday night when Sarnia Collegiate edged Peterborough Collegiate, 2-1, and Hamilton's F. H. Closs Technical School and East York Collegiate of Toronto played to a scoreless tie.

The winner will be selected by a six-man board of experts — there is no playoff — and will receive the Ted Reeve Trophy. Each team's most valuable player, also to be chosen by the board, will receive gold watches tonight. Proceeds are for the Community Chest Campaign.

Sarnia and Peterborough, light squads compared to the teams in the second game of the twin-bill, played it close all the way with visitors' Marlo Pecoraro and Toronto's Bill Lavery.

Pecoraro had many valuable plays, and who will receive watches at a presentation tonight:

Bill Smith, Sarnia, quarter; Roy Armstrong, Peterborough, half; Bill Surphlis, Toronto, half; and William McFarlane, Hamilton, half.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

SETTING AN EXAMPLE

"Geo, what a swell park. Maybe some day we'll have one like this."

The speaker was a very-cheeked youngster garbed in the uniform of the Shallow Lake junior baseball team. He sat with his mates in the team dugout in Gilbbard Memorial Park at Napanee, after the pre-game warm-up on Thursday afternoon.

An older player turned to him. He threw an arm affectionately around the youngsters shoulders. "Listen, Joe", he smiled, "you know the folks back home. If the time comes when we need a park like this, we'll have it so fast, your curly head will be in a daze."

While that, perhaps is a bit of overstatement, nevertheless there is a lot of truth in it.

For Shallow Lake, a bustling village of some 300 souls doesn't feel when it comes to providing recreational facilities for its young people. Situated near the summer-dry lake from which it derives its name, the "Lake" does not depend on "outside" assistance, financial or otherwise, if it needs anything along athletic lines whether it be equipment, ground facilities or diamonds.

They're proud people, are these "Lakers". And they have every reason to be. Not only have they had three Ontario Baseball Association teams in action, two of them still in the titular hunt, but they've seen their boys win championship hockey squads squealing for provincial titles. And the ironic past is that, thus far, they have always been "bridesmaids but never brides" as far as Ontario championships are concerned.

But that is no deterrent to the Lakers athletic efforts. Perhaps, and we're surmising their teams can be dubbed amateur in the truest sense of the word. Be that as it may. If you want a fight on your hands in any tournament delegatory to the little Grey County hamlet, and brother, don't let your guard down.

If the junior "B" team that represented Shallow Lake against Napanee can be judged a criterion, then the villagers might well be proud of their "baby" nine. For a year, true they were beaten, but they're not ousted yet by a long shot, and there are of the opinion that no aggregation knows that better than their Thursday conquerors, the Napanee Lions.

The teams tangle this afternoon in the Lake in their second tilt of the junior "B" championship series, and today is a case in point as to the spirit in the Lake communities for miles around. We'll venture to guess that at least 2,000 will flock into the little park that has grandstand accommodation for 200, but a large natural bleacher site for at least 2,000.

The Lake ball park is smaller, much smaller than the Gilbbardville Memorial Park. The ground, however, gradually rises from the baseball field so that the fans can watch the game comfortably from natural bleachers.

The Lakers, all 300 of 'em, plus the surrounding farming community population are behind the athletic teams 100 per cent. One of the village's wealthier residents, is a solid fan, and pitches in more than one. That resident, from the village pump to the chief of police, all act out to rout the squads in the baseball togs. Little bits of help is needed for support other than moral, hands go deep into the individual and collective jeans.

The Lakers are thoroughly organized for community athletics. There's a finance committee, grounds committee, entertainment committee, ladies committee, and dozen other minor offshoots of the parent body, all working for the common recreational good.

The work of raising funds is a year-round effort. Dances, card parties, corn-roasts, bin. . . we almost said bingos, anything that can raise a few bucks for the boys is an item-filling agenda.

And these Shallow Lake "one-for-all and all-for-one" musketeers, although villagers, are setting an example in community recreation, and paying for it through wholehearted civic co-operation, that is worthy of emulation by many of its big brother towns and cities, and we don't have to travel too far to name one.

AND ON THE OTHER BENCH

This is being written before the results of the second Shallow Lake-Napanee game have come in. It has been often said, and truly, that any team must be good that reaches the finals in the realm of sport.

That applies particularly to these fast-travelling Napanee Lions, former champions of Prince Ontario, and who well might be the 1949 Ontario champs. We've seen them play for the first time last Thursday and they gave us the impression of being fast, well-balanced with an excellent field set and a par excellence batting staff.

On the play, Thursday, we thought they shaded the visitors not only in the "breaks" but in general play. Their coaching was not all that could be desired in the game, as, was said before, with a great many others, were of the opinion the master-minds could have turned apparent defeat into victory hour before they did.

Speaking with Ernie Gibbard, during the game he informed us that the team had played consistent steady ball all season, winning usually by one or two runs. The attendance was disappointing and many fans missed some exciting games especially during the early playdowns.

And while speaking of Gibbard and Napanee, we might add that the Lions Club committee on whose books after Gibbard Memorial Park are to be congratulated on its appearance last Thursday. The infield left nothing to be desired. The outfield was free of lumps and bumps and closely cropped. And none was louder in praise of the appearance and condition of the playing field than the venerable Percy Noble, manager of the Shallow Lake team.

There will be a novel attracting at the soccer football game being played at the Fair Grounds this afternoon between Belleville United and Northern Electric. Charlie Murphy, a Belleville player will make a delayed parachute jump at half-time. He will "take off" from 3,000 feet, opening the chute at 200 feet.

Murphy was a member of the first Airborne Division in the Second World War and was taken prisoner at Arnhem. Recently he made a jump at Stratford. The jump this afternoon will take place about 2.30 or 2.45.

Felton Scores Upset Victory Over Gavilan

Detroit, Oct. 22 — (AP)—East Side Detroit, which gave Joe Louis and Edgar Basel their starts in the boxing world, had a new fistic star tonight — a clever young Negro welterweight named Lester Felton.

Felton's star was clouded, however, by circumstances surrounding his upset victory over the highly-regarded Kid Gavilan of Cuba in a 10-round fight Friday night. Uproar followed.

The 20-year-old Detroiter was awarded a seventy-critticized split decision after his outcast Gavilan for practically the entire 10 rounds. Gavilan at 145¾ had a half-pound advantage.

Gavilan, ranked as the No. 1 contender for Robinson's welterweight crown, was a 3-to-1 favorite at ringside, but he spent practically the whole fight in a futile effort to corner Felton.

Felton used to be one of Gavilan's sparring partners in New York.

The verdict was greeted by boos and the demonstration lasted through the first round of the next bout.

Newspaper men were amazed.

Veteran sports writer Sam Green of the Detroit News called it "the worst decision I've ever seen."

Tommy Devine of the Detroit Free Press described it as "A fantastic verdict."

The cards of Greene, Devine and the Associated Press showed Felton winning only one round—the eighth in which he stopped running long enough to trade a few punches with Gavilan.

GROWTH OF A VILLAGE

Stettler, Alta. — (CP) — Oil fields in the district are helping this village, founded in 1906, to grow. Though its population is still only 2,000, about one-quarter of those arrived in the last three years.

Donald Findlay To Lead England's Track Squad

London, Oct. 22. —(CP)— A grey-haired RAF wing commander with two decades of athletic supremacy behind him, and a schoolboy's heart in a 40-year-old body, will lead England's track-and-field squad in the 1950 British Empire Games in New Zealand.

Donald Findlay, DFC, AFC, came back from a distinguished wartime career, in which he led a fighter squadron in the Battle of Britain and later served in Malaya—to win a place on his third Olympic team and later to better his own national mark for the 120-yard hurdles.

When he chalked up a blazing 14.4 in a British-France match at White City Stadium here only a few weeks ago, he announced it marked "positively my last appearance" in competitive athletics.

English selectors had heard that one before. They put the finger on Findlay to represent his country at Auckland in February, Barring accidents, Don will be seeing the sticks again then, in what he probably also will call "positively my last appearance."

The cinder-track exploits which Findlay has written into the record-book could be listed by the chapter. Here are a few of them:

He won seven consecutive AAA championships before the war and added "another this year.

He has broken 15 seconds for the 120-yard hurdles at least 76 times.

In Olympic competition he ran third in the 1932 games at Los Angeles and second to the great Forest (Spec) Towns of the United States at Berlin in 1936.

In last year's games at London Finlay had cruel luck. Leading his field by a wide margin in the opening heat, he hit the last hurdle, Stumbled, fell heavily to the track, rolled over and over—and finished flat on his face inches short of the finish line while his opponents stormed past.

Answer to Yesterday's Puzzle:

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma looked in my room to see why I hadn't heard her call me, saying, Well, will wonders never cease?

Meaning on account of me being in my closit fixing it up I just without anybody having told me to or even suggesting it would be a good idea and I said Are you surprized ma?

I cant believe my 5 senses, ma said. I hope you feel well and are acting in your rite mind, she said, and I said, Sure, ma, G. I feel swell.

Then there must be some other abnormal explination, ma said, and I said, There is, ma. Last nite I dreamed I was fixing up my closit, and there was some stuff on the floor where I threw it, like there usually generally always is, and I picked it up and what was underneeth but an old pig bank that I didn't even remember I had, and I shook it just for luck and it rattled, and I ran and got a dining room knife and fished inside and got 73 cents out, Jimminy mentem, ma, it was one of the plainest dreams I ever had, as if there I better really fix up my closit and see what happened, I said. Well, I've read many stories about people having their conscience awakened by a dream and terning over a new leaf but I never thawt I'd live to see it happen in real life and my own family ma said, and I said, Aw heck, ma, I just remembered.

I broke my last pig bank when it accidently dropped out the fruit window and acerly hit a lady. I mite as well stop rite now, I said.

Nuthing of the kind, ma said, Just finish the job and I'll see that you got a reward on general principals, she said.

Meaning 6 cents when I got through, and proving there's probably something in dreams after all.

MELROSE

Melrose — Congratulations are extended to Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Stewart (nee Marjorie McMechan) who were married at Melrose United Church on Saturday afternoon. They are enjoying a motor trip east and down through the States.

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Murray and baby Linda, have been visiting at the home of Mrs. Murray's parents, and attending the wedding of her sister Marjorie.

Anniversary services at Melrose Church were well attended with the Reverend Mr. Wagar as guest minister. The Reverend L. Scott served on Mr. Wagar's appointment.

Mrs. George Badgley, and Mrs. Silburn Badgley attended church service and had dinner with the Misses McLaren.

Mr. and Mrs. Newton, of Peterboro were weekend guests of Mr. and Mrs. Russell MacFarlane.

Friends of Mr. and Mrs. Morley Pascoe gathered in the township hall on Friday evening to present them with gifts and best wishes following their recent marriage.

The local teachers attended the teachers' convention on Friday which took the form of a trip to Ottawa.

Mr. and Mrs. Sherry Demille returned on Thursday from a pleasant trip north to Algonquin Park, returning in a circuitous route, after attending the plowing match.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Badgley, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Leslie McLaren, attended the plowing match last week and continued on a holiday trip in Western Ontario.

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Elliott were Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Badgley.

Mr. and Mrs. Stewart Milligan are spending a short time with the former's parents, before leaving for Trinidad.

Mrs. Hewitt of Lonsdale spent the weekend with her niece, Mrs. Lorne Weese.

The provincial auditor, Mr. Simpson of Perth, with an assistant, spent some time this week in the township hall auditing the 1948 road accounts.

MARMORA

Marmora — Mr. Frank Wilkes and daughter, Janet, of Toronto, spent a couple of days recently with the former's mother, Mrs. J. Wilkes.

Mr. A. F. Fraser, manager of the Dominion Bank spent Monday in Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. Don Lucas and son Donald, of Peterborough, spent a few days with relatives

STORK A THREAT TO POLIO VICTIM

here this week.

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. McCrodan spent the weekend in Hamilton and Toronto.

Messrs. C. C. Watson, and F. L. Woodhouse, are visiting a number of cities in the United States this week on business for Deloro Smelting and Refining Company, Ltd.

District Commander Wilbert Mumby, and a number of members of Marmora Branch Canadian Legion, paid an official visit to Picton branch on Friday evening.

Misses Rita McAvoy, Reg. N., and Joan Andrews Reg. N., and Mary Kennedy Reg. N. all of Kingston, accompanied Miss Joan O'Connor Reg. N. to spend the weekend at her home here and attended the Savage - Mahoney wedding.

Messrs. Alex McCoy, J. Vincent, J. Cooper and W. J. Cottrell all had birthday anniversaries on Thursday.

Mrs. Joseph Scott has been confined to her home through illness.

Mrs. A. B. Caldwell of Toronto, and Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Caldwell of Belleville, were among those attending St. Paul's chicken supper and bazaar in the Town Hall, on Tuesday evening.

Mr. Earl O'Connor picked a bouquet of blue violets in the woods this week, and Mr. A. Eggleton has green beans and bean plants in blossom in his garden. It is also reported that wild raspberries have been picked around Marmora recently.

Canvassers appointed by Marmora Branch of the Upper Canada Bible Society are making their rounds, just now hoping to complete the canvass by the end of the month.

EMPEY HILL

Empey Hill — Ideal Autumn weather prevailed for the anniversary services in the United Church here on Sunday. The Reverend Morley Clarke of Allensbaurg was the guest preacher, and delivered two very fine addresses. The choir, under the leadership of Mrs. Charles Akey, gave some fine numbers, assisted by Miss Shirley Agnesworth, and Mr. Jerry McCaul, of Deseronto. A beautiful basket of bronze mums was placed at the front of the church by the Women's Association in memory of Mrs. Fred Kimmerly, one of their fellow workers who passed away several weeks ago.

The Reverend Morley Clarke was a guest of Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Marlsette at the noon hour and of Mr. and Mrs. S. E. Winter at the tea hour.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Craig and family and Mr. and Mrs. O. E. Ashley of Belleville were dinner guests on Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hutchinson.

A number of ladies from Empey Hill attended a pre-nuptial at the home of Mrs. Jas. Haggerty, Napanee, for Miss June Herrington, a bride-to-be of this month.

There was a large attendance on Friday afternoon of the Tyendinaga East Women's Institute meeting at the home of Mrs. Fred Keyworth.

Mr. and Mrs. Mark Husband of Selby, were dinner guests on Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Akey.

Mrs. Robt. Harvey has returned after spending a week with her daughter, Mrs. Harold Grooms, and family, at Dorland.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Dopre, of Napanee, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Bell.

The Sunday School rooms were filled to capacity on Monday evening for the anniversary concert and pie social. The program consisted of two one-act plays, and musical numbers by Mr. Jerry McCaul. Over one hundred dollars was received at the door.

Mrs. Wm. Bell, Mrs. Frank Hutchinson, Mrs. S. E. Winter and Mrs. M. Dellor attended the W. M. S. Rally at Hay Bay, on Wednesday last. The Empey Hill W. M. S. conducted the Memorial Service and quiet half-hour.

Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Marlsette and Judy were tea guests on Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. S. E. Winter.

GORE

The Gore—Nearly every Gore home was represented at the special service at the Belleville United Church on Sunday to mark its 100th anniversary. Forceful messages were delivered by Rev. J. MacKay, D.D., Superintendent of Home Missions, and the choir was heard in two fine anthems. A solo by Mrs. G. Anderson at the morning service, and one by Mrs. M. Barabeck in the evening, were much appreciated.

All were sorry to know that Mrs. W. J. Robinson was taken to Belleville Hospital Monday morning. Her many friends wish for her a speedy recovery.

Seventeen members of the Victoria W.A. convened at the home of Mrs. S. Fox for their October meeting on Tuesday evening. The programme was enjoyed ending with a contest led by Miss Betty Dempsey, with Mrs. Faulkner winning the prize. Refreshments were served by Mrs. Fox and committee. The next meeting to be a quilting at the church on November 3rd. Dinner will be served, to which Mrs. Redner and the ladies of Gore are invited. Proceeds will go to te Mission Band of Victoria.

Mr. Lamont of Picton, is spending a few days at Mr. L. R. Brickman's.

Mrs. B. L. Redner was a Sunday guest of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Redner.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Fox were dinner guests of the Reverend and Mrs. L. Popp of Burns, on Sunday, and tea hour guests of their son, Earl and family, in Belleville. They attended the anniversary at Holloway St. Church Sunday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Brickman and Audra were guests on Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. Bedneyville, to dinner at the Quinte Hotel, Belleville.

Mrs. D. B. Fox spent Sunday evening with her daughter Mrs. Pymer, Belleville.

Mrs. Harry Redner was hostess to the Centre W.A. on Wednesday afternoon. There was a good attendance.

Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Polver were guests on Sunday of their son, Melvin and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Mac Hubbs and children attended a shower on Monday evening for her sister, Miss Barbara Mitchell, a bride of the month.

Mrs. A. C. Pulver and little Miss Sheila Margaret, Peterborough, are holidaying with friends here.

Mr. and Mrs. Keith Redner, Jill, Alan, Karen and Brenda, of Colbourne, were weekend guests of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. Fox and attended the centenary services at Redneyville on Sunday.

SCHOOL DAYS RECALLED

Picton, N. S. — (CP) — David S. MacKay of Vancouver, who remembered his school days at nearby Bay View more than 60 years ago, has provided something for the students of today. He donated a bronze bell for the new Shore Road school at Bay View.

SCHOOL FOR DOGS

Watson Sault Ste. Marie, (CP)—The school bell rings near here every day for 26 dogs from kennels in various parts of the United States. The dogs — hunters, pointers and setters — are being trained on a vacant farm.

STILL RUNNING RACES

The Picton-owned horse, Maude Grattan, is still winning races at Batavia Downs, N.Y. In a race last week she stepped a mile in 2.10 3-5 to win, and on the following night again won in 2.11. Roland Herrington is driver for George Cockburn who owns the mare.

WILL POOL EFFORTS OF LABOR, SAYS MURRAY

Waving at the camera, head of the C.I.O. Steelworkers' Union, Philip Murray, is shown with a group of picketing steel workers at Bethlehem, Pa., as he arrived to address a mass meeting. Murray said his union is prepared to join with the United Mine Workers and the A.F.L. to pool their resources for the "common defence" of the labor movement.—Central Press Canadian.

BIG DINNER BILL
The legendary round table of King Arthur's court could supposedly seat 1,500 knights.

Black Boom

By Paul David Preston

"Yas sah, I been noticin' she is, all right, Cain't blame her none, neither."

"You are all so kind", the lady thanked them. "You are very dear friends. But I certainly will be glad when a man can step in to handle our affairs again."

She said that carelessly, but significantly. Martin Deale looked quickly at her face, but she was staring off.

"You have two pretty daughters, Millie", the old doctor said, fondly. "Won't be surprising if either or both of them get married any time, let me tell you! No sirreef"

No more was said about it, but the little seed of conversation took quick root in Martin Deale's mind. All at once he saw Mrs. Mayfield's statement as his personal cue. A man to step in and handle her family affairs again! For a long time, too long, he had been courting Lillian!

He resolved to propose marriage to her at once.

It was that same morning, but an hour later, that the Mayfield oil well blew the top. With no warning even to the mechanics and engineers doing the drilling.

It came as an instantaneous muffled outburst. A veritable eruption.

Somewhere down in the earth's bowels the drill bit had broken through a layer of rock. Great pressures were released. Oil, crude black oil, spurted up the boring pipe and out with such force that it drove instantly against the top of the derrick, spread around the steel work on up 50 feet or more higher.

Then it settled into a steady brrr-r-r-r-r-r-ring roar at the well proper, abbetted by a constant splatter on the lawn and out on North Marshall street's narrow pavement and sidewalk. Sheerest good duck directed the force of the geyser—like eruption away from the Mayfield residence and the nearby Halton residence instead of toward them.

WHOOOOOF' It was old Jason Weems, outside at the time, who saw the gusher and first yelled the alarm. It was he who had presence of mind enough to hobble rapidly in and telephone the fire station.

There was no fire, however. This gusher was not ablaze — praises be!—as the discovery well gusher had been. It had been days of arduous, dangerous toil to get that first blazer under control, and while this new gusher would take some hard work and entail much danger too, it at least wasn't burning.

Before Lillian Mayfield could rush out from the bank building, most of the other townspeople were moving with her in a throng. The hoot-hoot-hoot-a deep-throated proclamation that something unusual was occurring. It's a tone carried, people knew, for more than six miles on a still day.

This time the crowd was not touchy, not menacing or prone to fight as had marked the other mass meeting at the Mayfield home. The people simply shared a sense of excitement and elation. An oil gusher is a magnificent spectacle under any condition.

This one had drenched nine huge oak trees and when people began arriving Mrs. Mayfield's row of cape jasmines were completely ruined. The Halton honeysuckle was gone. The privet hedge between the two estates seemed vertly to exude oil, so constantly did the gusher spatter it. And the main stream of the oil fell smash into a gigantic elm near the Mayfield front fence. From there it followed gravity over the sidewalk and into the curbing. The too small storm sewer gratings were blocked almost immediately by sticky black trash.

"Judas gosh!" exclaimed Dal Tower, when he turned his car up the lower end of North Marshall half an hour later. "I'm smack into a black river!"

He had taken the Voss baby home, one of the several charity cases with which Lillian Mayfield had busied herself lately, and then sped back.

The sticky oil was on his tires, ruining them. North Marshall was running curb to centre and when the pavement curved uphill near the McDavids the oil cut through the lower-graded Rankin yard, over the Henry Culp terrace and into the rain gully that emptied eventually into Thompson's pond. Before next morning, in fact, all the fish and all the beauty of Thompson's—a 50-year-old picnic and boating spot for this community—were doomed.

Dal was awed by the spectacle. This gusher would complete the job of soaking a town. This one was in no rural forest or cotton field, but was on the town's prettiest, haughtiest street and that street already was befouled by the grease and stench of it. Property values here would already have jumped tenfold. Old traditions, firm old family roots, all of life for a good many people were destined now to be radically changed, and the Mayfields would get either the blame or the credit depending on one's point of view.

"I've got to see Lillian!" Dal murmured.

In second gear he pushed slowly right on up the oilstream, because there was no alternative. Petroleum "had" his adopted town, literally now.

The Mayfield oil well blew in on a Wednesday morning, advertised itself by gushing for 28 hours, then settled down obediently under the emergency pipes and plugs and valves forced in by engineers. During literally all of those 28 hours people watched the blowing. Oil squirting sky high was a fascination almost like hypnotism, the crowds just stared, talking but little. There was no disorder. Principal movement, aside from the oil itself, was by amateur movie and still photographers who had a field day.

ATTLEE ANNOUNCES NEW AUSTERITY PROGRAM

Five Persons Saved From Drowning In Lake Simcoe

14-Ft. Outboard Motor Boat Rocked, Capsized by Swell

Toronto, Oct. 24—(CP)— Five persons, including two young girls, were rescued from drowning in the icy waters of Lake Simcoe when their 14-foot outboard motor boat capsized between Snake Island and Island Grove Sunday night.

The five were brought to shore in a motor launch almost stiff from cold.

Rescued were Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Sanderson, their 16-year-old daughter, Patricia; Robert Walsh, 14, a niece of the Sanderson's all of Toronto, and Albert Hinchcliffe, of Lansing, Ont. Hinchcliffe is a brother-in-law of Mr. Sanderson.

The five set out for shore from Snake Island shortly after dark Sunday night. The water was comparatively calm, Mr. Sanderson said, until suddenly the boat was rocked by a swell and capsized.

"I don't know what happened or what caused the swell," Mr. Sanderson said. "The motor was fine and we were making good headway toward shore. The next thing we knew we were all in the water."

Although they were more than a quarter of a mile from shore, the five were able to stand up, the water being only a few feet deep. Charles Lee, Island Grove resident, operate a launch ferry between the Island and Island Grove, heard the cries for help. Together with James Day they went out and found the group standing in water up to their necks.

Cut Flat-Rate Water Heaters Four Hours Daily

Toronto, Oct. 24 — (CP) — Hydro-electric power serving Southern Ontario flat-rate water heaters will be cut four hours a day effective immediately, Chairman Robert H. Saunders of the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission announced today.

All of Southern Ontario — everything south, roughly, of an east-west line between Penetang and Peace River — is affected. The cuts will be from 10 a.m. to 12 noon and from 6 p.m. to 8 p.m., local time.

It was announced Saturday that power would be cut off for four hours daily in winter, but the city was told today the restriction had been increased another two hours.

Mr. Saunders said the reduction was intended to shift the peak load of power in those hours. It would result in a saving of about 40,000 horsepower daily.

"Our hope is that with this cut, our present restrictions and voluntary efforts by consumers that we are asking for the next two weeks," he said.

Mass Migration Forced on Jews Says Official

Toronto, Oct. 24—(CP)—Israel's consul general in Canada says growing anti-semitism in Europe is forcing a mass migration of Jews from European countries to Israel.

Avraham Herman, 'the consul-general, Sunday told the Canadian Jewish Congress:

"There are coutries in Europe where Jews are living in an atmosphere of fear and uncertainty. Tens of thousands of Jews are being forced to seek a new home and a new refuge. The consequences of this migration are that the coffers of the Jewish agency are empty."

Dr. Hanan Goldmann, chairman of the World Jewish Congress, said in another address that the avalanche of immigration is only one of the problems Israel faces. He said the Jewish state in Israel is not yet consolidated, the Arabs are rearming and Israel is "in the danger zone."

The position of Canadian Jewry in relation to Israel was discussed by Samuel Bronfman of Montreal, national president of the Canadian Jewish Congress. He said the establishment of the Jewish state of Israel enables Canadian Jews to turn their attention and energies more fully than in the past to developing Canadian Jewish tradition in Canada.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

Toronto, Oct. 24 (CP)—Synopsis—Colder air has moved into Ontari from the Hudson Bay area. Temperatures in northern sections dropped between 15 and 25 degrees above zero this morning. Scattered showers or snowflurries are occurring over Northern Ontario. As skies clear tonight freezing temperatures are expected throughout the province.

A disturbance over the Rockies is moving rapidly eastward and will cause occasional rain or snow in northern sections late Tuesday. A ridge of southerly winds over the province on Tuesday will result in somewhat warmer weather.

PANDIT NEHRU WILL ADDRESS HOUSE, SENATE

India's Prime Minister Welcomed in Canada

Ottawa, Oct. 24 — (CP) — A small, slim man who is one of the world's key figures, today will address a joint session of the Houses of Parliament of his country's dominion.

Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru, Prime Minister of India, flew into Ottawa Sunday night to be greeted with the most majestic and formal welcome the capital has accorded a distinguished visitor in two years ago.

Highlight of a heavy program mapped out for Pandit Nehru on his three-day visit here will be his historic appearance in the House of Commons at 2:45 P. M. EDT. It will mark his first appearance before the government body of any dominion since India gained Dominion status herself two years ago.

There has been little speculation about the address of any personality visiting Canada in the coming here. However, it was believed the world scene and not government officials during his stay over means of obtaining for India a portion of the big Canadian wheat crop.

He is reported to already have broached to United States officials as India's need for grain to feed her ever-increasing population.

Met by St. Laurent

Prime Minister St. Laurent, who met the Indian statesman on his arrival, said the visit "will be helpful in bringing about a realization of the true relations of existing between east and west.

Nehru Ready To Visit Russia If Invited

Ottawa, Oct. 24—(CP)—India's Prime Minister Nehru, visiting the United States and Canada, said today he would go to Russia, too, if Stalin invited him.

He was told at a press conference that the Russian press was saying he has committed India more firmly "to the U.S. block."

He said "our policy is not to align ourselves with any bloc but to be friendly with all." There were certain contacts with the Commonwealth but this did not preclude complete independence.

Bell Telephone Rate Application Heard Next Spring

Ottawa, Oct. 24 — (CP)—The Board of Transport Commissioners is expected to head an application by the Bell Telephone Company for higher rates in Ontario and Quebec sometime next spring.

The board announced today it will open hearings in Vancouver Jan. 11 on a similar application from the British Columbia Telephone Company.

The Commissioners said only they will sit here. Public hearings in Ottawa "at a date following the

Steam-Turbine Engines Likely To Replace Diesels Hauling Trains

Pittsburgh, Oct. 24 (AP) — Electricity is driving the old iron horse to pasture.

But the old-fashioned, steam engine of Casey Jones' fame is almost a has-been. Soon it may be a has-been.

A variety of factors have contributed to its decline. Recurrent coal strikes that have cut off the supply of fuel to drive the puffing engines are only part of the story.

At the moment the United States government has ordered a 10 per cent reduction in trains operated. But reduction doesn't mean too much because most roads in the United States are using diesel-electrics — big powerful units which generate electricity from diesel engines.

But in four years the diesels may be old-fashioned, too, and king coal may reign supreme again. It will be through batteries which will generate electricity. The steam-turbine engines will look much the same as the present steam locomotives — but they'll be far more efficient.

The railroads' agreement on the comparative efficiency of the present steam locomotive is eloquently expressed in their buying habits.

Strong Gales, Pelting Rain Lash Britain's Coast Lines; Balmy Ontario Weather Ends

London, Oct. 24. —(CP)—Britain's long and warm summer broke up during the weekend in a fury of 60-mile-an-hour gales, tropic rains and—boiling seas.

During the night the storm lost its force after flooding homes, breaching sea defences, overturning boats and cutting off coastal roads.

At Sandgate, Kent, the devastating gales undermined the walls protecting some of the largest houses in the town. Some of the walls have fallen and the sea has eaten out great chunks of gardens.

Early Sunday gangs of workmen tried to fill the breach torn in the gardens of the Riverstorey Sangate hotel.

"The gap is large enough to hold two double-decker buses", the manager said. "We are moving all furniture out of the hotel."

At Deal, Kent, 10-foot waves overturned boats and fishermen returning from a fishing festival were pitched into the sea. Mass rescue operations were carried out along a four-mile stretch of shore.

Extensive damage was caused to Hastings, Sussex, piers by the incessant pounding of heavy seas and tons of shingle were washed right into roads beyond the promenade.

Telephone operators, nurses, hotel and railway station staffs, still on holiday, are marooned by candlelight at Dartmouth, Devon, after torrential rains caused a fault in the electric cable and blacked out the town until after midnight.

The 1,140-ton Swedish ship Ketty, limping into Ijmuiden, the Netherlands, with her after hold flooded, was beached Sunday to prevent her sinking in deep water.

Foul Play Feared In Disappearance Of Woman

Philadelphia, Oct. 24 — (AP)— The words "foul play feared" in a police teletype message today spurred an intensive search for a 40-year-old woman believed abducted from her home clad in pajamas.

The missing woman, Mrs. Dorothy Forstein, disappeared last Tuesday. Her husband — City Magistrate Abraham Forstein — sought police help Thursday.

The attractive blonde woman's nine-year-old daughter, Marcy, told police she had seen a square carry her mother from the Forstein home. At first police doubted the child's story. Then they took her to a psychiatrist who reported Marcy was "completely telling the truth."

Forstein said he could give no reason for his wife's disappearance.

Fire Destroys Bronk Cheese Factory, Home

Believed caused as the result of faulty wiring, the Bronk Cheese Factory and adjoining cheesemaker's residence was completely destroyed by fire early Sunday morning. Loss on the factory was in Thurlow township.

Cheesemaker Arthur McCreary stated the fire was first noticed in the attic of the factory when he was awakened by dense smoke through a hole burned in the ceiling.

All stock and equipment in the cheese factory was a complete loss, including 150 cheeses in the factory storage room, which were awaiting shipment.

A high wind blowing at the time of the fire quickly spread the flames and nothing could be done to save the factory building or the cheesemaker's residence.

Most of the household furniture owned by Mr. and Mrs. McCreary was saved from the residence.

The frame cheese factory and residence, which the present owner had been completely redecorated, and the latter before the fire the factory officials met and re-hired the maker for another season. Factory president is Leslie McLaren of Corbyville.

The Belleville and Belleville Fire Department answered the alarm but both buildings were beyond saving when they arrived at the scene.

Garbled Note Found Where Three Slain

Berkeley, Cal., Oct. 24 (CP)— A bloody, hair-matted sledge hammer, a revolver with one shell fired and one, misfired, and on unintelligible note are police clues in the deaths of three persons here.

Mrs. Inez Sikters and their brother, all elderly, were found slain Saturday. They had been dead several days. Preliminary investigation indicated double murder and suicide. The possibility of triple murder was not ruled out, however.

The women's skulls had been split with blows from the heavy hammer. The man died with a bullet through his brain.

Victims were Mrs. Mamie McKenzie, 72; Miss Irene O'Neil, 65, and Eugene O'Neil, 62.

The killings apparently occurred at night, as the women were found in their bedroom dressed in night clothes.

O'Neil's body was found in the study room. The sledge hammer and a flashlight were near the body. Police reasoned a fourth person may have been involved because the revolver was taken from the body far away from where O'Neil lay.

INSUFFICIENT HOSPITAL BEDS

Timmins, Oct. 24 (CP)—There are insufficient hospital beds in the two hospitals in the Porcupine area, Ontario Health Minister Kelley said in an interview here during the weekend. Mr. Kelley, here to present two chairs to the hospitals in memory of his wife to St. Matthew's Anglican church, added that the area is "at least 200 hospital beds short of what is generally regarded as adequate."

Attlee Sees Big Export Outlet in Canada

London, Oct. 24 (CP)—Prime Minister Attlee today told the House of Commons Canada has "great opportunities" for increased exports of capital goods and engineering products as well as foods.

Attlee said the new austerity program, designed to cut government expenditure by £200,000,000 ($800,000,000), is only one side of the action needed to deal with the dollar crisis, he declared.

"The other side is increased production. . . if we are to seize the great opportunities for export which devaluation has opened to us and to keep up the standard of supply in the home market we must increase production. . . .

"In Canada there are great opportunities for our capital goods and light engineering products. Expert salesmanship will be needed and we must be able to give early delivery."

Strain of Raising Family too Great, Swan Toby Dies

Owen Sound, Oct. 24—Toby, crossed up by Fate and Ornithology for 29 dreary years is dead. The excellence of this last wretchedful year—her 30th—was just too much for Toby.

Long a familiar figure in the Sydenham River in Harrison Park, Toby the swan has been thought a male.

Then, unexpectedly, a real honest-to-goodness male hero from Kitchener last year. Then things changed for Toby. Her life became fairly spinsterhood was ended. She appeared one day last June with eight baby swans skimming along behind her.

Workmen went after the cygnets to clip their wings. And they found Toby's body. The sudden strain of raising a family, said officials, probably cut short her life. Other swans have lived to be 100.

But everybody figures Toby died happy.

LAKE VETERAN DIES

Cleveland, Oct. 24 — (AP) — John A. Penton, 77, retired engineer on United States merchant and lake boats, died today at Lakewood of more than 30 years' sailing the Great Lakes, died Sunday in hospital. He was also the Gartland Steamship Company of Chicago until 1942 when he entered the merchant marine. He was chief engineer for the Alcoa Steamship Company during the war.

BANK OFFICIAL DIES

Collingwood, Oct. 24—(CP)— Francis Hedley Marsh, 72, chairman of the Board and a past president of the Bank of Toronto, died Sunday in hospital here. His death followed a lingering illness. He had been in poor health since his retirement from active business two years ago.

U.S. DIPLOMATS BEGIN TALKS ON COLD WAR

Six Main Subjects Basis of Conference

London, Oct. 24—(AP)—United States diplomats from behind the iron curtain began secret strategy talks today on the east-west cold war.

In their two-day conferences, the United States envoys to Russia and her satellite states may discuss:

1. The worsening feud between the Kremlin and Marshal Tito of Yugoslavia.

2. Tendencies—if any—of Titoism or nationalism. Moscow, to spread to other Russian satellites in eastern Europe.

3. Trouble spots and disputes in Hungary, Poland, Bulgaria and Czechoslovakia.

4. The recent purge of thousands of Czechs by the Prague government.

5. The effect of the recent announcement of a Russian atomic explosion on general over-all policy in eastern Europe.

6. How to combat the anti-American propaganda drive of the Soviet group.

Election Day In Eight Ridings

In the first by-elections since the general election June 27, the voters will fill Commons' vacancies caused by 4 government appointments and one death.

The voters, at polls that will be open from 9 a.m. to 8 p.m. Local Standard Time, will select new representatives for Montreal Laurier, Montreal Mercier, Montreal Jacques Cartier, Kamouraska (Quebec), Gaspe-Matapedia (New Brunswick), Toronto Riverdale and Toronto Westminster (British Columbia).

Seven of the eight constituencies but Toronto Greenwood —elected Liberals in the general election.

CLOSE BEFORE CHRISTMAS

Ottawa, Oct. 24 — (CP) — Parliament will not sit after December 16 as well before Christmas with the Senate and the House of Commons adjourning, judging from the amount of business remaining on the order paper.

Several major items in the government's program remain to be disposed of, which looks as though the legislation already before the two chambers will be believed to include most of the important legislation scheduled for the session — can be handled by early December.

STUDY MARRIAGES

State College, Pa., Oct. 24—(AP) —One married couple in every six in the United States is headed for divorce court, but only one couple in every 20 is "quite unhappy", a study conducted over a 10-year study of marriages were reported Saturday to the Pennsylvania Conference of Family Relations by Dr. Clifford R. Adams, associate professor at the Pennsylvania State College.

More Than 1,000 Canadian Children Need Foster Homes at Once

Ottawa, Oct. 24 (CP)—Foster homes are needed immediately for more than 1,000 Canadian children, the Canadian Welfare Council said today.

The figure is contained in a survey by the council. "The urgency of foster homes at 'Go-Home' is reported in the council's "acute" that social workers there were forced to use their own homes as temporary shelters for children.

"It is easy to forget that for every child available for adoption, there are several others—equally in need of a home—who cannot be accepted," said Phyllis Brown, executive secretary of Child Welfare Division.

"Children's agencies all across the country have long waiting lists of parents who want to adopt a child," said Miss Burns. "This certainly is not the case for children who need foster homes."

Children in need of foster homes are often members of families who have broken homes where sickness or other causes make it impossible for them to receive proper care. Some are orphans or have been abandoned. They may be babies, six-year-olds, or teen-agers.

The main thing is that they are not adoptable, perhaps because their parents hope eventually to give them a home or because they are for some reason difficult to place.

Foster homes are paid by the agency which places the child in them. The average monthly payment runs around $25 for each child.

Dollar Spending And Defence Costs Cut Materially

Free Medical Services Will be Reduced by Govt.

By H. L. JONES
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Oct. 24 — (CP) — Prime Minister Attlee today slashed dollar spending and defence costs and cut down on free medical services to ease Britain's economic crisis.

The prime minister announced to a crowded House of Common a new austerity program which puts a charge on national health prescriptions, increases some food prices, cuts defence outlay, capital expenditure and housing.

Attlee said the new program was designed to reduce government spending by £200,000,000 ($968,000,000) a year. Britain's budget now is around £3,300,000,000.

Attlee said £30,000,000 of the savings will be in armed-forces expenses of this country which holds a key position in the West's Atlantic Pact defence plans. Attlee said the government's forecast of future defence expenditure would be announced later.

The government will save another £10,000,000 on the National Health Scheme. Instead of being free, each prescription under the scheme, introduced in July 1948, will cost less than a shipping, except for old-age pensioners.

Britons now pay a small weekly security fee, on which slight pence goes to the medical program. Other taxes pay for the remainder of the scheme.

The prime minister also lopped millions from government administration expenses and capital expenses for new buildings, hospitals, schools and public works.

The prices of dried and frozen eggs and fish will be increased due to a reduction in food subsidies on which the government spends £45,000,000 a year. The government will no longer help farmers buy fodder for their animals after February.

Attlee made no direct references to Canadian food purchases but said the government had "settled a new dollar-import program at a reduced figure of $1,200,000,000 a year and this should reduce imports in the first half of 1950 to $600,000,000."

Hornets 'Act up' During Service

East Mono, Ont., Oct. 24— (CP)—A startled cry of stabbing pain ripped the peaceful stillness of St. Luke's Anglican Church Sunday night.

The worshipper jumped to his feet, glapped at his neck, looked desperately around the tiny church.

He'd been stung by a hornet.

After the first shock, the stricken was a buzzing colony of insects, angered by the cold, methodical attack on the humans whose hive had disturbed their winter hibernation as soon after it started.

Rev. A. A. Read, conducting the first regular service in the church in 30 years, didn't get stung—but he had trouble of another sort.

It seemed to be each time I wanted to put a particular point across another hornet—or the hornets started to act up."

TEN LOSE LIVES BY VIOLENT MEANS IN PROVINCE

Highest Death Toll of Five Eastern Provinces Which Totals 18

(By The Canadian Press)

The Canadian Press weekend compilation of fatalities in Eastern Canada showed today that Ontario reported the highest death toll of the five eastern provinces.

At least ten persons lost their lives by violent means in the province. Of these seven were killed in traffic accidents. Another three were killed in fatalities with a fire which burned a mother and her three children to death in their Hartland, N.B., home Saturday taking the highest toll of any single accident.

American Officials Declare Charges Entirely Unfounded

Prague, Oct. 24—(AP)—Samuel Merrym, an American Embassy employee who was arrested last week, will soon be tried as a spy in the Czechoslovakian court, James K. Penfield, United States Charge d'Affairs, disclosed today.

Merrym was arrested Friday as one of the leaders of an alleged espionage ring involving American Embassy employees.

Isaac Patch, political attache at the United States Embassy initially accused, was expelled by the Communist-led Czech government.

American officials have labelled the charges as "entirely unfounded."

WARDEN'S DINNER WILL BE HELD AT TWEED WEDNESDAY

Warden of Hastings County and mayors of the villages of Tweed, E. McCrary, has issued invitations to the annual warden's dinner which is being held in St. Carthagh's School, Tweed ~~next Wednesday, Oct. 26th~~. Members of the county council, county officials and political and civic dignitaries of the city and county will be in attendance.

FINDS PARTRIDGE SITTING ON BED

A neighbor of Mrs. W. J. Dalgleish, Campbellford resident, called her attention to a broken window in the second storey of her home.

Going upstairs to ascertain the cause, she found a plump partridge sitting nonchalantly on a bed.

TWO IN ONE AREA TO RECEIVE WARDEN'S MEDAL

Each year the candidate who obtains the highest marks at the Entrance Examinations in each inspectorate of Hastings County, receives a medal donated by the Warden. In the inspectorate of Centre Hastings two candidates from Madoc Public School, Madeline Forestell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Forestell and Norman Derry, son of Mr. and Mrs. Percy Derry, had equal marks. They obtained the highest standing in Centre Hastings, and each will receive a medal. It is expected that the Warden will present the medals at some school function before the close of this term.

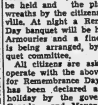
National Poppy Day Will be Held On November 5th



The local committee for the Belleville Poppy and Wreath sale are working hard, getting ready for the National Poppy Day, Saturday, Nov. 5th in the Remembrance Day service Friday, Nov. 11th. Mr. Goodfellow's committee hops to sell 15,000 poppies this year and 300 wreaths, the objective is a little higher than last year. Belleville business concerns and citizens have responded wonderfully, but there are many who have not been contacted. This week will be the closing deadline for wreath orders and any who have not placed their order please do so at once by telephoning 1187W, regarding Remembrance Day program is being arranged, by the banquet committee.

All citizens are asked to cooperate with the Dove program for Remembrance Day. The day has been declared a statutory holiday by the government of Canada and Mayor Sicsey is issuing a proclamation asking all citizens to observe the 11th as Remembrance Day.

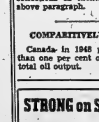
The local committee have made arrangements with the Board of Education and the Separate School Board for the distribution of 4,000 poppies among the school children on Thursday, Nov. 10th. The committee gave this same amount last year.

All purchasers of wreaths will receive an official receipt for their donation and may be used as a deduction in determining the taxable income of the donor.

Letter Carrier Service Extended To New Districts

Extension of the postal letter carrier service to include the Parkwood Heights and Churchill Heights districts, has been authorized by the Post Office Department, it has been announced by J. C. Waddell, local postmaster.

The new letter carrier service will be inaugurated on November 1st, it was stated.



Delivery will extend as far as Herchimer Ave. Bridge St. east, and Bull and Cemetery St. in the northern section. Residents included in the new area are advised by the postmaster that in order to receive the letter carrier delivery it will be the responsibility of each householder to see that street numbers are in position and a suitable letter slot provided in the front door.

Street letter boxes will be erected at Wellington street at Bertram Boulevard; on Goldsale Rd. at Victoria Ave., and at Pine Ridge on Goldsale Road. Two collections will be made daily, and one on Sunday.

A letter box will also be erected on Wellington Street at Wellington Crescent with the same collections as mentioned in the above paragraph.

Edward Porter Enters Law Practice in City

EDWARD A. H. PORTER

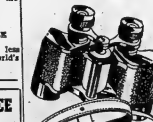
Carrying on the family tradition in the law profession, Edward A. H. Porter, son of Mrs. Roger Porter and the late Lieut.-Roger Porter, who was killed in the First World War, has commenced the practice of law in the city.

Mr. Porter will be associated with R. D. Arnott, K.C.

Grandson of the late E. Gus Porter, former well-known Belleville lawyer and member of parliament, Mr. Porter was born in England and came to Canada in 1919. He was educated in city schools and attended Queen's University in 1938 and 1939.

With the commencement of the war he enlisted in the air force and rose to the rank of flight lieutenant, serving overseas and in Canada as a pilot until 1945 when he received his discharge.

He then returned to university this time Varsity, from where he graduated in 1946 with an Arts degree. He entered Osgoode Hall in the fall of 1946 and graduated last spring. Called at Osgoode Hall he was articled with the firm of Porter, Payne and Arnott the office with which he is now associated.



Must Change Location of 18-Inch Main

Co-operation of local residents in conserving water for the next three days is asked by officials of the Belleville Utilities Commission.

Contractors at present building an extension to the water purification plant on the Trent Road and it is necessary to change the location of an 18-inch water main and while this is in progress the water will be out of operation.

Utilities officials state it will take three days to change the main and therefore all water from the plant on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday will have to be carried by a 16-inch main to the city.

The co-operation of the public in conserving use of water for the above period will be helpful in maintaining service.

Four Shoppers Lucky Winners Of Prizes

The "Enjoy Shopping in Belleville" week passed into history Saturday night and at the same time four lucky shoppers were the winners of prizes ranging from a combination table model radio-phonograph, down to a $10 spot voucher.

Winner of the radio combination offered as a prize is now held in conjunction with the opening of the new VanDusen Brothers, Ltd. store on Front street, was Mr. D. Baxter of Foxboro. Each visitor to the store was given a ticket on the draw. And Mr. Baxter been in the VanDusen store on Wednesday he would have received a matching table to go with his new radio.

Mrs. A. D. Boyd, 288 Albert street, city, was the winner of the first prize of $25 sales voucher drawn for on Saturday night at the Belle Theatre. Mrs. Boyd made her lucky purchase at the CDS.

Second prize winner of a $15 sales voucher was Mrs. Warden Deline of Marmora who made her purchase at Mcfadden's. Third prize winner of a $10 voucher was Mr. J. W. Platt, 262 Bridge Street, east, who made his purchase at the Quick and Robertson store.

The winner of the pair of Kenwood blankets offered by Walker Stores, Ltd., still has not been decided. The blankets are to be awarded to the person making the nearest guess to the exact time which a large cake of ice in the store takes to melt completely. The cake of ice was placed in the store on Friday and this morning there was still ice left, although a store representative stated it was getting "pretty small."

PARALYZED THROAT CONDITION IMPROVES

Toronto, Oct. 24—(CP)—Seven-year-old Gary Sugg of Peterborough, who was brought to Toronto with his throat muscles paralyzed from an attack of bulbar poliomyelitis last Wednesday, was reported today to be "recovering quickly."

Hospital authorities said Gary would be ready to go home "quite soon, possibly at the end of the week."

Obituary

CHARLES GRANT KNIGHT
(Sidney Township)

Charles Grant Knight, died at the home of his son, Mr. Horace Knight, in the 4th concession of Sidney township, on Sunday morning after an illness of one week's duration.

The late Mr. Knight, who was in his 90th year, was born in Sidney township, and was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Knight. Mr. Knight left here to reside in Saskatchewan and was engaged in farming there until 1944 when he retired and returned to Sidney township to reside. He was a member of the Stone Unlited Church in Sidney township.

Surviving him are his wife, the former Mary Jane Kerr; four daughters, Mrs. Earl (Lillian) Phelps, Marshfield, Vermont; Mrs. (Dr.) Laura Newman, Bellingham, Washington; Mrs. Jack (Essie) Muskiow, Meadow Lake, Sask; Mrs. Harry (Irene) Kuntz, Brockville; six sons, George of Erickson, Manitoba; Grant, Clarence and Frank, all of Dunblaine, Sask.; Walter of Regina, Sask.; and Horace of Sidney township; one sister, Mrs. Manley Farley, formerly of Belleville, now of Grand Coulee, Sask.

Resting at the Pinkston Funeral Home, Victoria Avenue at Church Street, until late Tuesday afternoon, then at his late residence; the funeral announcement is made in this edition.

LATE JOHN WESLEY LINDSAY

The funeral of John Wesley Lindsay, late residence, 73 South John Street, was held Saturday afternoon from the Belleville Burial Company funeral Home, Campbell Street. The service in the chapel was conducted by Archdeacon the Ven Arthur Smith and the committal prayers at Pleasantville Cemetery were said by the Rev. Canon W. E. Kidd.

The bearers were six members of the Canadian Legion and were Clare Kennedy, Harry McLaskie, Richard Connell, James McKenzie, Ray Denike, and George Culbertson.

The last rites of the Legion were conducted at the graveside by James McVicker of Deseronto Post No. 280.

LATE MRS. ELLEN RUSHLOW

The funeral of Mrs. Ellen Rushlow, wife of Mr. John Rushlow, was held from her late residence, 83 South George Street, on Saturday afternoon to Pleasantville and at Belleville Cemetery was conducted by Archdeacon the Ven. Arthur Smith.

The bearers were Allan Adams, Frank Rushlow, Charles Rushlow, Carman Cooke, Jerry Pringle and James Brown.

ROBERT STOUT
(Trenton)

Trenton, Oct. 24 (Special) — The funeral of Robert Stout, who died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. D. H. Sager in Trenton on Wednesday last, was held from the home on Friday afternoon. The service there and at White's cemetery, Trent Road, was conducted by the Rev. George Minisly, pastor of King Street United Church.

The bearers were Robert Seabrook, C. F. Duquette, Louis Wilson, Ralph Winter, M. Pacey and Samuel Griffiths.

The late Mr. Stout, who was in his 90th year, was born in Bellerville and was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Stout. For the past 60 years he resided in Trenton and vicinity. He was a member of King Street United Church.

Surviving him are two daughters, Mrs. R. (Clara) Sager, and Miss Maud Stout, both of Trenton; one granddaughter, Miss Frances Sager, and one grandson, Robert Sager, both of Trenton. His wife, the former Annie McGorman, died in 1914.

MISS MARGARET McCRODAN
(Formerly of Belleville)

Miss Margaret McCrodan died at the Peter's Nursing Home in Campbellford on Thursday last. She was in failing health for some time.

The late Miss McCrodan spent the greater part of her life in this city. She was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. John McCrodan, her father being for many years a sergeant on the Belleville police force. For a considerable time she conducted a millinery shop here.

During her residence in this city Miss McCrodan was a faithful member of St.-Thomas' Church and took an active part in the work of the women's organizations in connection with the parish. Old friends here will regret to learn of her death. She was the last of her family.

Interment took place in the family plot in Belleville Cemetery on Saturday and the committal prayers were said by Archdeacon the Ven. Arthur Smith, rector of St. Thomas' Church.

Shriners Enjoy Social Evening At Clubhouse

Upwards of 100 members of the Belleville Shrine Club and their friends enjoyed a smoker held in the Shrine Club on Saturday night.

Chief attraction was Mr. Frank Drayton, Toronto formerly of Picton, who is a well-known skipit of-fand artist and magician whose uncanny tricks and legerdemain held the rapt attention of the Shriners for well over an hour.

Mr. Drayton performed his tricks in the well-appointed lounge of the club rooms and was given a fine ovation at the conclusion of the performance. His skill with cards is truly proportional necessary for his wide assortment of tricks was greatly enjoyed by the Shriners and their friends.

Games, cards and contests with prizes were added to the enjoyment of the evening.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Oct. 24 (CP)—Mines and western oils crept into demand for some strong gains as the session progressed on the Toronto stock exchange today.

Industrials were comparatively quiet and narrow with a few key issues among the losers. Golds climbed strongly in mid-session and base metals continued Saturday's advance.

Volume for the first four hours was 728,000 shares, about 112,000 shares more than Friday's similar period.

Senior golds hold a large share of the attention. Dome, Hollinger, Kerr Addison and Lake Shore showed fractional advances. Selected junior producers were also strong. Gains ranged up to 15 cents. A few smaller issues traded briskly for minor changes.

Base metals continued Saturday's strong advance in moderately active dealings. East Sullivan, a feature of recent markets, sold downwards following previous gains. Silver Miller and Quemont sold at new highs. Smelters, United Keno Hill and Labrador were strong.

Pacific Petroleum highlighted western oils, climbing briskly to a new high at $3.50. Calgary and Edmonton and Central - Leduc were also in strong demand.

PRODUCE MARKET

Toronto, Oct. 24 (CP)—Produce prices quoted on the spot market here this morning follow: Churning cream, No. 1, 50c FOB, 24 delivered.

Butter prints were unquoted.

Supplies were ample for demand on the egg market this morning. Prices showed little change. Country shippers quoted graded eggs, cases free: Grade A large, 60; A medium, 47-48; A pullet 38-40; grade B 46-48; grade C 35, Wholesale to retail: Grade A large 63; A medium 53; A pullet 43-44; grade B 52; grade C 39-40.

The butter sold market was quiet and offerings were light. First grades were steady and unchanged at 58 3-4. Second grades were quoted at 56-57.

Sale of Accumulated Butter Not too Difficult

Ottawa, Oct. 24 (CP)—The government is about ready to go out of business as Canada's biggest butter customer.

With the surplus production season nearing its end, government purchases at price support action also are declining.

The big job now will be to sell what it has accumulated and this Job Agriculture Minister Gardiner said recently, likely will not be difficult.

For one thing the market does not know for certain how much butter the government has accumulated. They know there is about 70,000,000 pounds in store. They don't know how much belongs to the government.

Mr. Gardiner likely will act cautiously in his butter disposals, watching how the market acts, how much goes out of storage and what the public consumes.

Normally Canadians use about 23,000,000 pounds a month. During the winter season—when butter is scarce—production is too small to match the monthly demand.

Those will be the months the minister likely will move fast, selling butter out as quickly as the public buys it.

He has said the Agricultural Department will sell without discrimination to any one who can afford to buy in carload lots.

Prices will approximate the average 58 cents a pound the government has paid as price support during the summer months, plus the cost of storage.

In other words, Mr. Gardiner doesn't expect to lose any money over the butter deal. Neither does he hope to make any. All he wants is to break even.

If he can't sell all of the surplus in domestic markets, he likely will look outside Canada for customers, and if he does, it will be the first time in many years that Canada has gone beyond her shores to sell that dairy product.

George Duffin Elected President Of Kiwanis

Madoc.— George Duffin was elected president of Madoc Kiwanis Club for the year 1950, succeeding Calvin Kincaid, who has held the office since the club was organized.

The directors elected were: Dr. S. R. Beaty, John Bristol, Ken Holmes, Chas. Johnson, Jack Kincaid, Felix O'Riordan and Jim Watson.

On November 1, the club will hold its anniversary night in the Madoc Armouries when it is expected over 200 Kiwanians and their wives from all parts of the district will attend a banquet which will be followed by a dance. Recently six members and their wives attended the Belleville International Ladies' Night and on Friday night several members of Belleville Club paid a visit to Madoc Club.

THIEVES USE TOO MUCH 'SOUP'

Owen Sound, Oct. 24.—(CP)—An attempt to rob a dairy safe here early today failed because the thieves used too much "soup." The explosion shattered the safe, broke windows and demolished a partition in the dairy office and shook nearby homes. The robbers escaped empty handed.

C. C. Beltch, proprietor of the Owen Sound dairy, said the blasted safe contained "a considerable sum" of money, but his only loss was a $10 bill which was blown to shreds.

Fire-Retardant Paint Planned For Institutions

Toronto, Oct. 25 — (CP)—The use of plasteric, a fire-retardant paint, is planned for all mental institutions throughout Ontario in the near future, Health Minister Kelley said today.

The minister said that the hospital division of the department was the subject under study and that tests are underway as to the use of plasteric on the walls, ceilings and woodwork in the 14 mental hospitals in Ontario.

The paint not only is fire-resistant but also releases gases that help to extinguish the fire.

Police Blotter

Mrs. A. A. Carmichael, 139 James Street, reported her 16-year-old son James had failed to return home, while provincial police reported four teen agers, Robert Watson, Max Fargey, James Woodend and Robt. Alexander, all of the Station Street and Canniton Road district, had also failed to return home on Friday evening. They were still missing Sunday.

A woman resident of the Albert and Pine Street district reported two transients had knocked at her door seeking a handout of food. When the request was declined the transients became quite hostile and the woman reported the matter to police. When officers investigated, however, the two men had moved out of the district.

A four-year-old boy who somehow got strayed from his home was taken to the police station to await developments, while Sunday morning a three-year-old girl whose home apparently got misplaced in some manner, was also taken to the station. Parents in each case later picked up their offspring.

Batawa, Electrics Qualify for Soccer Finals

Batawa and Northern Electric soccer teams will meet next Saturday in the finals for the Trenton Challenge Cup by virtue of weekend victories over Belleville United and Trenton Merchants respectively.

In the first game the Electrics team edged Belleville United in a close game by a score of 1-0 while the powerful Shoemen from Batawa ran roughshod over the hapless Trentonians by a 7-1 count.

Batawa scored five goals in the first half of their game against Trenton, with each member of the forward line visiting the ball. Scorers were Plaszowski, Clapperton, Tlamas, Carted and Hawrylin. In the second half Hawrylin and Clapperton each scored for the winners, Campbell netted Trenton's only counter in this half.

The strong wind affected both matches making play difficult at times. Don Furbell, officiated at the Fair Grounds while Les Digby was referee at Batawa.

U. S. WOMAN AS AMBASSADOR

The United States has had two women as ministers in the diplomatic service and now President Truman has named a Minnesota farmwife as the first ambassador of her country. She goes to Copenhagen, Denmark. The new ambassador, Mrs. Eugenia Moore Anderson, is the mother of two children and her husband is an artist. Only five years ago she took her first step into public life. In that brief space of time she has made her way forward into the political service of her country and has advanced to the stage where she is a figure of note in the life of the nation.

There are women in a number of countries who are playing no small part in the counsels of the nations, in England, in Canada and in other lands besides the United States.

The rise of such women as Mrs. Eugenia Moore Anderson to the rank of ambassador reveals clearly enough that she possesses the gift of being able to serve the country on a world scale.

Woman today occupies many positions in the professions and in public life. Her fitness for service in the most important posts is clearly enough shown.

REVIVE DUNMOW FLITCH

The Dunmow Flitch of bacon is almost as old as Magna Charta. It was instituted at Little Dunmow, two miles from Great Dunmow, a small market town in Essex, England, in 1244 by Robert de Fitzwayte as a prize to the married couple who "will go to the priory and kneeling on two sharp-pointed stones will swear that they have not quarrelled nor repented within a year and a day after its celebration." The next year the prize was claimed and a few awards have been made from time to time. One was in 1912.

Little Dunmow had some years ago a population of 320 persons and yet it has been famous for centuries because of the institution of the flitch of bacon to the faithful who could swear they had not quarrelled within a year after their marriage.

The Dunmow flitch is again in the picture as it is being revived this autumn after having lapsed owing to the exigencies of war and the rationing of food. Now Australia by a kindly gesture has been gracious enough to set aside part of a prize pig for the coming revival.

Such a custom shows that life in the middle ages had its appeals and its problems. Such ancient ceremonies helped to make up the richness of medieval life and held moral lessons for the people. Today there are certain old customs which the people will not let go and not all of these have the picturesqueness of the Dunmow flitch ceremonies.

In the reign of King Henry Third, it was no doubt an adage that couples would quarrel and what was more interesting to the people of that time in the days when the country than it is now for couple ready to take their oath that they had quarrelled or repented?

And what better reward could there be than the revelation that there has been no quarrel and no necessary repentance? It had its lesson to the people of that day and this public function which threw a halo around the wedded state, even if there was in it the suggestion that all unions were not without quarrels and repenting.

The Middle Ages have lessons for us in this twentieth century which has travelled far from the manner of life and the quaint ways of 700 years ago.

And to judge by the humanizing note given the subject the Little Dunmow has its lessons for this twentieth century.

THE SEASON

While October remains kindly and benign in these parts with bright sunny days and only the light touch of chill that tells that the year is well advanced and that only two months from now will be the week of Christmas, that festival of all festivals which is set in. Through the middle of this continent there raged a few days ago a storm of snow in the Atlantic there were the signs that autumnum is while on the Atlantic there were the signs that autumnum is making its way and has already left more than a third of its time behind as history.

INSTRUCTIONS FOR A NEW DRIVER

I know how very proud you are,
To think you've learned to drive a car,
But wonder if you are aware
That death stalks every thoroughfare.

Though you have learned to start and go,
Remember, there is more to know.

Always expect on flying feet
A child to dart into the street.

While you are driving, keep in mind
Those are pedestrians, deaf and blind,
Those are children, half grown men,
Who cannot see around a bend.

Those are people who are prone
To think you've learned to own the road,
Who, when you honk, will not unload
Their minds of thoughts that they've been thinking
Of other things than motor driving.

There were better days to be
Than sound a horn they cannot heed,
There'll be lights and highway signs
To beware.
There's nothing lost by taking care.
Disaster follows driving fools
Who rashly disregard the rules.

Turn corners slowly, lest there be
Some hazard there you cannot see,
Be courteous, patient, night and day,
And never trust the right of way.

Mrs. Brickley, who has been spending the summer and early fall with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Corrigan, of Foxboro, will return south with her husband about December 1st.

Albert (Toots) Holway, a popular Belleville boy and prominent in professional hockey, has been purchased by Roy Worters, of London, Ontario, from the Pittsburgh Pirates, and will perform in the Canadian League this winter. "Toots" learned the game in Belleville, playing with the intermediate and junior squads. After playing with Kingston last season he signed a pro. contract with the Montreal Maroons and was farmed out to teams in Western Ontario. Last year a deal was completed between the Maroons and Pirates, which sent "Toots" to Pittsburgh. He played regular all season and was classed as a good defence man. He should have a successful season in London and his many friends in Belleville wish him the best of luck.

PITCHING HORSESHOES

By Billy Rose

By BILLY ROSE
Famous Broadway Columnist

A few weeks back, Mary Hayes MacArthur, the talented daughter of a great actor and fine playwright, was stricken by polio. The doctors did all they could, but . . .

Seeing as how I had known Mary Hayes and was impressed, she "bug" bothered me plenty, and so the other day I dropped into the office of one of New York's better diagnosticians.

"Millions have been spent to track down the polio bug," I said. "How come it's still at large?"

"That's a difficult question," said the diagnostician, "and if doctors could give you a dozen different answers to it, they'd—like—all applies to cancer and heart as well — is that the men in charge of research put the funds are spending too much for buildings and too little for research. Let me explain . . .

Virtually every city in this country has at least one impressive structure given over to medical research. Here, in there are a dozen such buildings, including the recently completed multi-million dollar Rockefeller Sloan-Kettering Institute. Yet, with few exceptions, the doctors and scientists in these palatial rock-piles are working for coal and peanuts. Which is why the best brains in the country are not always seen in this year of grace and inflation, the research man who can't spring for two-wipe out polio, cancer and other man killers are getting less than window cleaners, street sweepers or apprentice carpenters.

What gives, you ask? Well, the ridiculous system - works - something like this:

Hundreds of millions have been spent in recent years to build and equip hospitals and universities. When you consider how few of these institutions have the necessary funds to hire the best medical minds, brains and know-how. And so the M.D. or Ph.D., who wants to use these above all among the children, by the breakup of homes," said the Princess, "we can have no doubt that divorce and separation are responsible for some of the darkest evils in our society today. I do not think you can better help any fiber service than to help maintain the Christian standard that the relationship of the husband and wife is a permanent one, not to be lightly broken because of difficulties or quarrels."

The Battle Is On

This speech was the sharpest delivered by royalty for several years. It had the surprising effect of bringing rebuke from the Married Life Association, an agency which broke the traditional attitude to-ward royal statement that divorce is a matter of Britain's social welfare.

One of the highly-interesting aspects of the case is the fact that in the fact that Mrs. Geoffrey Fisher, wife of the Archbishop of Canterbury, presided over the meeting at which the Princess made her speech. It is thought that Elizabeth must have had not only the approval of her mother, the Queen Mother's office but that of the head of the Church of England.

If that is so, what is the significance? Well, there are those in informed circles who believe that Britain is ready for a moral and religious revival. They point to the country won't overcome its economic troubles or regain its former status until there has been a tightening up of morality.

In order to understand the new policy one must know that the country is possessed of a strong conservative streak.

This column isn't predicting a moral revival in Britain, but merely is reporting a situation which exists.

Princess' Speech And Its Reaction On British People

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press News Analyst)

Public pronouncements by the King and other immediate members of the royal family usually originate are non-controversial and are sanctioned in advance by the Prime Minister's office, since the monarchy is constitutional.

For this reason Britain sat up and took notice when 22-year-old Princess Elizabeth made a public address in which she criticized the country for lax morals.

"When we see around us the havoc which has been wrought, families must wrangle a fellowship from the United-States Public Health Service, the Rockefeller Foundation, the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis or one of the other do-good organizations.

To eliminate competition, these outfits have seldom bother and agreed to offer identical stipends — $3,000 a year, plus an allowance of $600 for dependents. And that's not a starting salary — as far as the germ detective is concerned, sixty bucks is both his top and bottom.

Naturally a lot of our talented doctors thumb their noses at these foundations and ask $50 per $6,000 a year or better in the industrial laboratories, concocting hair, mouth and hog-wash. Others hunt bugs for a year or so, but after a while, feel up with borrowing and mooching, they go into general practice where they can earn at least as much as a bricklayer. And the end result is that the world is deprived of the discoveries these questionnaire-nuts might make if they stuck to their test tubes and Bunsen burners.

In medicine, as in many other things, we have fallen into the habit of trying to find the big-gotten that bronze dooes never developed a vaccine, and that only uses are the result of trial and error, not cement mixers.

Medical management with too many windows to look out of, and too many hallways to get lost in. Surgery is the art of the genuinely talented man. Pasteur, Salmon and Banting didn't work in a room with a 20-foot ceiling, and Fleming discovered penicillin but without the aid of Muzak in the men's room.

Medicine is a way of knowing for sure, but maybe Mary MacArthur would be alive if the money had spent less on bricks and more on brains.

Letter to the Editor

Wants Snowplows To Clear Walks

Belleville, Ont., Oct. 24, 1949

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer:
Attention: Mayor Storey and Councillors:

The other night I saw an article in your paper advising that the city is going to discontinue plowing the sidewalks in the future. I was glad to see it, and six were against it. It would seem reasonable to me that the city would be so close, 8 to 6, there should be further consideration. I am glad the city council before final decision be reached to have a cross-section of public opinion should be secured in order to get the true opinion of the people. After all there are 20,000 citizens and not a few officials.

Some say the jeeps don't do a good job. If this is true it may not be the fault of the jeeps. The fault may be in the operator, not the machine. Then others said there were not enough jeeps. If this is the case, there is a place where more jeeps are needed. If the jeeps do not suit, they do the township, county and provinces use them?

There is also another matter. When there is a freeze or sleet for the motorists, they push the snow to the sidewalks and the result is that they can't get their cars out. This should be followed up and let the party who is responsible pay.

If you don't plow the sidewalks it will be a terrible mess all over the city. A great many people are able to shovel snow and it would be difficult to get them to do it, as on occasion times as much as it would with the plow. There are a number of vacant lots that are never looked after and some of the owners live out of town and these

Personal Health Service
By WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

(Signed letters pertaining to personal health and hygiene, not to disease diagnosis or treatment will be answered by Dr. Brady if a stamped self-addressed envelope is enclosed. Letter should be brief and written in ink. Owing to large number of letters received only a few can be answered here. No reply can be made to queries not conforming to instructions. Address Dr. William Brady, care of this newspaper.)

DON'T BEGIN INTER-FERING, MOTHER

From the letters I gather that there are still a good many people who obtained their health education from the almanacs, the patent medicine testimonials and the sponsors of radio programs. These people belong to category vulgarly called dumb clucks — to tell the truth that's what I call 'em. Then there is another category of misguided people called, by a worldly if inelegant newspaper quack — wisecres. The wisecres get their health education from charlatans, "specialists," institutions and "clinics" that catch the suckers with lurid descriptions of the dreadful consequences of constipation.

The main difference between the old time charlatans and the kind in business today is that the old timers sold the suckers some medicine, whereas the charlatans now sign 'em up for a course of treatment. Both theories were pipe dreams. The modern charlatans are big business men. They own their own customers like ft. Wisecres are not interested in "pills and potions."

If there is one error of hygiene more definitely established in the popular mind it is this peculiar notion that nature can control, maintain or regulate the function of the heart without any participation on the part of the individual, the belief that nature can maintain or regulate the function of the bowel without constant meddling (introspection) and constant or occasional interference on the part of the individual. And the dumber the individual the more he or she believes in this nature.

I confess I contributed my small share of the bunkum. As a matter, country practitioner, city practitioner, hospital staff physician. But I don't remember that was the way I had been taught in medical school, and what the text and other physics I prescribed seemed fairly satisfactory, from the point of view of practice of them. I studied the whole question from every angle and arrived at the conclusion that the laxatives and cathartics I prescribed did more harm than good.

I didn't discard physics altogether, but I did restrict the use of them to the minimum.

In the booklet "The Constipation Habit and How to Cure Hygiene" (for copy send twenty-five cents and stamped self-addressed envelope) I tell the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth about this matter of interference with nature, regardless of whether or any particular person, group o interest approves or disapproves.

Unfortunately for the general health the notion that "a good housecleaning," by means of laxatives or cathartic or, worse, by one or another kind of unnatural irritation (suppository, enema "internal bath") is advisable from time to time is instilled in to the mind of the child by misguided but well meaning parent and there being no contrary teaching, the ideas becomes as fixed in the adult consciousness as is any real rule of health.

Now and then I receive one or more letters from readers expressing their thanks for liberation from the pitiful habit and feeling of benefits they have experienced from what I've written about "aids" of any kind. These letters do much for my morale which sometimes sinks to the lowest ebb when I am trying to keep hammering away at the physic and enema evils.

QUESTIONS and ANSWERS

Ben Told

I have been taking the Iodin Ration for over a year and with splendid results. Now I have been told it is fattening. (C. R. E.)

Answer—That's news to me. Most men, women and children can take a full dose of iodine from food that the body requires. Effects of iodine deficiency and instructions for preventing it are given in the pamphlet The Iodin Ration which I have written about if you provide stamped self addressed envelope.

Fatty Tumor

Please tell me if a fatty tumor can be absorbed itself, and what the remedy is. (Mrs. S. L.)

Answer — No. Surgical removal is the only remedy. This is not dangerous and so simple that no person is seriously justified in hesitating to have treatment, if the tumor is unsightly or inconvenient.

Yeast

Does eating yeast cake make you fatter? (W. J.)

Answer—No.

THE PACKSACK

OF GREGORY CLARK

A comedian of the stature of George Formby is a sort of physician to the public spirit. Like a physician, he is empowered to prescribe healing laughter and other remedies for the public mind and heart. But, like a physician, he can also take the public's pulse. He can feel with his fingers, listen as with a stethoscope and look down the throat within the public spirit.

With sundry thousands of people all packed in every night of the week, the comedian can detect all the changes and shifts of the public mood. Governments might employ comedians to function, like barometers, to test the popular spirit of the moment. Then, when the public spirit was low, when the people generally should be able to get, from comedians, a pretty accurate idea of when to prescribe the public with a new bond issue; or when to launch an industrial or military campaign.

To a comedian, no two nights are alike, as far as audience response is concerned. Being artists, comedians feel the quality of the laughter of their audience the way a violinist feels the strings of his instrument with the hairs of his bow.

I asked George Formby, who is now touring Canada, about the famous English music hall audiences.

Ten years, now, ten years of war and austerity have loosened and changed and scoured their weary length across the British consciousness. The audience in the music halls lift up and respond as of old? Do they laugh with the old zest at the footlights? Are they as happy and carefree as ever?

"Just within the last year and a half to two years," replied George Formby, "we have begun to detect a little heaviness in the British audiences. All through the war, they were fabulous. At the very height of the blitz, with the bombs, they fairly lifted us out, not we them. But lately, just a little, I've felt that I had a little harder to take hold of them and lift."

Like most comedians, and God save Britain!

ONE MINUTE NEWS ABOUT JOHNS-MANVILLE

35 YEAR OLD WINS TOUGH BATTLE!

In sports, when the going got tough it's the young fellows who have the staying power that counts!

In a roofing shingle, endurance counts, too! For instance, Johns-Manville Asbestos-Asphalt Durabestos Shingle Roofs were applied over 35 years ago. And at that time, they're battled fire and the elements and only recently burned — not one has worn out.

STICK TO FACTS

There is a mirror in a scientific institute which enables people to see themselves as they really are. Do we not see ourselves as we really are every time we look into a mirror? No; except in the case of extremists, and there are other distortions also. But there is a mirror which enables us to see ourselves as others see us.

And perhaps it would not be uncharitable to say that it is too bad there are not more mirrors made to reflect heart and mind and be produced cheaply enough to be in the homes of many families. In the amusement parks are found mirrors also which distort people and make them appear as they are not. In one mirror they are tall and slender, in the next short and fat. Hysterical laughter is heard at the place of these mirrors. People are amused at seeing themselves and their friends.

One of the tragedies of life is that we are so prone to deceive and hate, our ignorance and our malice. We distort in our minds the figures of others. And there is a figure of distortion known as self-pity. This is one of the most ruinous of all varieties of daydreaming.

What we really are may not be known to us. We deal with anything else but facts heads us in the direction of unhappiness and catastrophe.

Paralysing Dread of Future Due to Inability of Govts. To Give Security Says Speaker

"Fear is widespread; a paralysing dread of the future and a fear of a Third World War is due to the inability of governments to guarantee security for their people", stated Herbert Mowat, guest speaker at the annual Layment service at Christ's Church on Sunday. Mr. Mowat, a member of the church of the Messiah in Toronto, is a noted public speaker, writer, commentator and an observer at the United Nations Assembly at Lake Success, N.Y.

"People of the larger nations share a greater fear perhaps than do those of the smaller countries", he said. He pointed out that this was true because the larger nations considered themselves a major target in the event of another war.

To further explain this point, Mr. Mowat quoted excerpts from a conversation he had last year with the "Red" Dean of Canterbury. These words of Dean Johnson showed that Russian policy was shot full of fear; and that Russia was over-anxious for security for her people.

"The impact of world affairs is significant to the individual", he declared. He pointed out that such things as strikes in the United States, pound devaluation in England and crop failures in other countries affect Canadians as well as many thousands of others.

Tells Interesting Story

To prove this point Mr. Mowat told an interesting story: "Two Tibetans started out after breakfast to do a day's work on their farms when they were picked up by a Russian patrol. When the Germans were having down on Moscow the Russians placed these two men in the ranks to help defend the city. They were captured by the Germans, placed in a concentration camp and eventually they were used to encumbrally they were used to re-engage. They were captured by on the shores of Newfoundland in the Canadiana, sent to a prison camp in Canada and at the end of hostilities they were taken back to their home. These illiterate Tibetans who started out to do a day's work but made a trip around the world probably didn't know that there was a world war in progress."

Peace Must Be Global

He continued by stating that peace on less than a world basis is impossible. "If war is global, peace must be no less than global", he said.

He pointed out that although the United Nations was in disunion, it had done great things for an infant organization. He further pointed out that with the discovery of the atom bomb, our moral obligations to mankind have increased and that such moral sanctions are the only help for the world today. He stated that the U.N. was a law-making body and not a law-enforcement body and was therefore founded on morals.

"If we will take what God offers, it will be sufficient to meet our moral obligations", he stated.

In conclusion he declared that the church should team up with international organizations and aid in raising the declining morals of the day.

STRONG GALES

At Le Croisac, France, four bodies were washed ashore. They accounted for four of the crew of five aboard a fishing vessel missing since Thursday and believed to have piled up on a reef.

Storm Warnings Up

Weekend gales, rain and a nip in the air were all a month of balmy weather in Ontario and claimed at least one life.

Strong winds and sporadic downpours swept throughout the province Saturday and Sunday. Storm warnings continue up on the Great Lakes today and the weather will remain cool and cloudy in southern sections until Tuesday.

First victim of the change in weather was James Loveridge, of the Toronto suburb of Scarboro. Loveridge was drowned Saturday in Lake Simcoe, 50 miles north of Toronto, when a duck-hunting boat overturned.

Four Goderich men escaped drowning Saturday morning when a launch, the Anna Mae, capsized in Huron. They were thrown into the water, but managed to reach shore.

Off Manitoulin Island, a Lands Department patrol vessel ran aground in stormy weather Friday and its two occupants were stranded on a tiny island until help reached them Sunday.

At Fort William 18 grain-laden freighters sailed early Sunday after waiting in Thunder Bay for the storm to blow itself out.

Meanwhile, hapless householders mend broken fences and clear scattered leaves from their properties, Gardeners know the days of their remaining fall flowers are numbered and that they can expect no more of the ripe strawberries reported last week from various sections of the province.

Northern cities, say meteorologists, can expect cold with snowflurries and nippy northwest winds.

Giuseppe Cucinella, top lieutenant of Italy's fabulous "bandit king" Salvatore Giuliano, will have time to regret the romantic impulse that prompted him to leave the mountain refuge where Giuliano's band is operating for a visit to his girl friend, Angela Burrrance, left. Police were on the alert and Cucinella's attempt to escape resulted in a gunfire battle that lasted about an hour. Here he is being questioned by director of the Palermo hospital where he is being watched day and night by an armed guard. The bandit's left leg had to be amputated 24 hours after his capture because of gangrenous infection. Angela was arrested for taking part in the pitched battle.—Central Press Canadian.

There were no downbound vessel passages through the Welland ship canal Saturday. A number of vessels were forced to seek shelter in Lake Erie at Point Point. Among these was the Ralph Budd which had in tow the barge 157, carrying the first grain this season. The Budd and her tow were delayed some 16 hours at Long Point before arriving at Port Colborne.

The Chemong and Red River were delayed in the canal a few hours Sunday before the winds subsided and allowed them to proceed to Port Colborne to load grain. At Port Colborne elevators, the Donnacona and Shelter Bay were held up.

RAWDON
Wide-Awake Class Honors Bride, Groom With Party and Gifts

Rawdon.—On Friday evening the spacious home of Mr. and Mrs. John Rainds and James and Miss Emma Rainds, was gayly decorated with pink and white streamers and bells in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Hedger, the bride was formerly Miss June Heagle, and was a former class member.

The president Mr. Gerald Clancy, presided and opened with "O Canada". Miss Ruth Clancy sang "A Room Full of Roses".

Readings were given by Mr. Jack Dunham, Miss Doris Dunham, and Mr. Edgar Graham.

Mrs. Frederick Beckett contributed a piano solo.

Mr. Jack Dunham read the address and Mr. Edgar Graham presented June with a green wool blanket and, a pair of pillow cases.

June and Ray both voiced their thanks to all for the delightful evening in their honor.

Miss Delia Johnston was in charge of a contest.

Refreshments were served and a social half hour enjoyed.

DOLLAR SPENDING

Housing Program Reduced

Britain spent about $1,600,000,000 on imports last year and $820,000,000 in the first half of this year. Sir Stafford Cripps, chancellor of the exchequer, announced July 14 that a temporary 23-per-cent cut would be made in imports. Attlee made the cut permanent until the end of the government's fiscal year next March 31.

The housing program is to be reduced by some £35,000,000 a year. The rate of capital expenditure, now running at close to £2,100,000,000 a year, will be reduced by around £140,000,000 a year. A £5,000,000 reduction will be made in the cost of education.

This economy program is government's first announcement of policy since it devalued the pound from $4.03 to $2.80, in United States funds, Sept. 18. The Commons will debate the program Wednesday and Thursday.

"To counter the risk in inflation, we must reduce expenditure and increase production," Attlee told the House as crowds in the galleries hung on his words. Princess Elizabeth, and Princess Margaret heard the address.

"The measures, many of them distasteful, which we are taking are necessary and consequential of the decision to devalue," the prime minister said.

"They do not effect the main structure of the welfare state. They are, rather, a retardation of progress in certain directions."

The prime minister announced a new dollar-imports program at a reduced figure of $1,200,000,000 a year which should cut imports in the first half of 1950 to $600,000,000 he said.

Attlee said the government's forecast of future defence expenditure would be announced later.

The cuts announced were interim measures, Attlee said, and they would be reviewed before the next budget.

The prime minister said there will be savings in the Labor government's socialized health program, in education, in public and private building, government administrative costs and in government public relations offices.

Price Of Food Will Rise

Prices of some foods will rise, Attlee told the house.

The prime minister's program is tied in with Britain's recent devaluation of the pound from $4.03 to $2.80 in United States funds.

Attlee outlined these cuts:

Capital expenditures: A reduction of about 140,000,000 pounds. This covers such projects as school construction, hospital construction, highways and the like.

Education: About 8,000,000 pounds in school spending for England, Wales and Scotland. This will result in an increase of a penny for prices charged for students' meals, and will mean less transportation for students to school.

Health Service: A charge of a shilling will be made for each prescription under the National Health Service. Hitherto the prescriptions were issued and filled free of charge. This saving will amount to about 10,000,000 pounds.

General cost of building would save another 35,000,000 pounds.

Attlee said that the government had decided on reduction of expenditures but, together with the increase of profit tax announced recently by Sir Stafford Cripps, Chancellor of the Exchequer, should produce more than 100,000,000 for the year ending March 31.

The preliminary estimate of state expenditure on agriculture next year would be reduced by about £,000,000.

Festival to be Cut

Ministry of Supply estimates would also be cut by about £7,000,000, and £1,000,000 would be lopped from the estimated cost of the Festival of Britain to be held in 1951.

Certain parts of the free legal-aid scheme planned by the government would be deferred.

Administrative expenses in running the Ministry of Food would be reduced by about £1,700,000. This would be done mainly by reorganization, concentration of divisional and local offices, and dropping some refinements of control.

Another domestic saving of £200,000 a year would be made by revising the register of electors only once instead of twice a year.

Economies of more than £1,000,000 would be made in the British Information Services and in the government-financed British Council, which promotes cultural relations abroad.

Subsidies on fish and animal feeding stuffs would be eliminated, Attlee announced. The saving on the fish subsidy would be £7,000,000 a year.

Attlee was scheduled to make an appeal to the country by radio following his address to parliament.

WEDDINGS

UENS—BENNETT

An autumn afternoon wedding was solemnized in St. Michael's rectory by the Right Rev. Monsignor J. F. Nicholson, on Saturday, October 15, when Margaret Jean, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Bennett, of Shannonville, became the bride of Harry Edward, son of Mr. Edward Uens.

The bride was becomingly attired in a heavenly blue sheer, street length dress and wore a corsage of roses.

She was attended by Miss Theresa Dorsey, of Point Anne, attired in navy taffeta and with a corsage of roses, while Russell Bennett, brother of the bride, attended the groom.

After the ceremony, the bridal party returned to the bride's home, where they were received by the groom's sister, Mrs. W. Houston, received the sixty guests.

Miss Bernice Houston sang very sweetly "Because" and "Forever and Ever" accompanied by Mrs. Margaret Duncan, of Napanee. After which the guests were all seated at the tables set in T shape, and daintily decorated with pink and white silverware, and centred with the wedding cake made by the bride's grandmother, Mrs. J. Bennett, of Point Anne.

An enjoyable evening was spent in community singing and dancing. The couple received many valuable gifts.

Mr. and Mrs. Uens will reside at 49 Goldsale Road, Belleville.

CHRYSLER—YOUNGHUSBAND

A lovely wedding was solemnized in Christ Church, Belleville, on Saturday, October 22, at 2.30 p.m., when Yvonne Ellen, daughter of Dr. David Younghusband and Mrs. Younghusband, Belleville, became the bride of Flying Officer Cameron Kent Chrysler, of the R.C.A.F., Rockcliffe, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Chrysler, of Kerrobert, Saskatchewan. The Rev. J. Grant Sparling, rector of the church, officiated before an altar banked with yellow and white chrysanthemums.

Mr. Dana Cook, organist of the church, provided the wedding music, and played before the ceremony, "Panis Angelicus", and during the signing of the register, Schuman's "Trumerei".

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was radiant in her bridal gown of blush satin, featuring a sweetheart neckline, long, tight-fitting sleeves ending in lily points over the wrists, and tight bodice buttoned down the back with self-covered buttons. The skirt was full, ending in a train. Her floor-length veil of embroidered silk tulle illusion was held in place by a coronet of matching braided satin. She wore a single strand of pearls, and carried a cascade bouquet of cream roses.

Mrs. Omar Younghusband, of Kingston, Ont., was matron of honor, and wore a floor length gown of turquoise and rose shot taffeta, fashioned on lines similar to that of the bride's. She wore a matching headdress and gloves, and a choker of pearls, and carried a basket of Sweetheart roses and yellow baby 'mums.

Flying Officer Kenneth Carter, of Ottawa, was groomsman, and the ushers were Corporal Howard K. Broad, and Corporal William Kinnon, both of Trenton.

At the reception, which was held at the Golden Acres Inn, Bellleville, the many guests were received by the bride's mother, who wore a gown in floor length style, of turquoise crepe with black lace trim, black accessories, and corsage of pink roses.

For the wedding trip to Montreal and from there by plane to Edmonton, thence by train to Kerrobert, Sask., the home of the bridegroom's parents, the bride chose a becoming suit of maroon, with black accessories, and corsage of cream roses. Upon their return, Mr. and Mrs. Chrysler will reside in Ottawa, Ont.

Among those present from out-of-town were Dr. and Mrs. O. Younghusband, Kingston; Mr. and Mrs. David Younghusband, Ottawa; Mrs. John G. Daley, Napanee; Miss Hazel Younghusband, of South March; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Younghusband, Ottawa.

McNISH—MORTON

Before an altar banked with white gladioli, with tall standards of lilacinia and ferns at the chancel steps, a lovely wedding was performed by the Venerable Archdeacon Arthur Smith, in St. Thomas' Church, Belleville, on Saturday, October, 22, at 2 p.m., when Marion Dorothy, daughter of Mrs. S. E. Morton, and the late Reverend S. E. Morton, became the bride of Barnett Brownlee Ing McNish, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas McNish, Lyn, Ont.

The wedding music was provided by Mr. Ernest A. Wheatley, organist of the church, and the soloist, Miss Barbara Joan Houston, sang before the ceremony, "The Lord's Prayer", and during the signing of the register, "I'll Walk Beside You".

The bride, who was given in marriage by her brother, Mr. Ralph Morton, was charming in her bridal gown of ivory satin fashioned with scalloped neckline, embedded in Chantilly lace, with tightly fitted bodice. The long fitted sleeves were edged with lace, and the very full skirt of deep unpressed pleats fell from the waistline to a circular train. Her fingertip veil of tulle illusion was held by a braided headdress of matching satin and she carried a cascade bouquet of Johanna Hill roses and lily-of-the-valley.

Mrs. MacDonald Smith, sister of the bride, was matron of honor, and Mrs. Earl Flood was bridesmaid. Both were similar gowns of nile green and exotic gold. The deep bertha collars, over tight fitting bodices, were draped in front to a square neckline. The floor length skirts were full and circular. They wore small bonnets with matching plumes and carried nosegay bouquets of baby 'mums in autumn shades.

Mr. George McNish, of Lyn, Ontario, brother of the bridegroom, was groomsman, and Mr. Max Smith, of Belleville, and Mr. Robert Beatty, of Brockville, were ushers.

The wedding reception was held at St. Thomas' Parish House, where the bride's mother, gowned in green crepe with matching accessories and corsage of yellow roses, assisted by the bridegroom's mother, who wore a gown of grey crepe with black accessories and corsage of pink roses, received the many guests.

For the motor trip to New York City, the bride chose a becoming navy blue ensemble with navy accessories and corsage of Talisman roses and shattered carnations.

Out-of-town guests were from Brockville, Lyn, Kingston, Maple Leaf, and Napanee.

Upon their return, Mr. and Mrs. McNish will reside at the 'Cedars', Lyn, Ont.

Prior to her marriage the bride was entertained by Mrs. Earl Flood and Mrs. Wally Bird, of Brockville, and by Mrs. John McIntosh and Mrs. Mason Clarke of the city.

Centre Girls Club Honors Bride-to-be With Kitchen Shower

A delightful shower was given at the home of Mrs. Ralph Redner and daughters by the Centre Girls' Club for Miss Elda McFaul, bride-to-be.

Little Miss Beverly and Master Howard Pulver, dressed as a bride and groom, presented the bride-to-be with a hand bouquet from which were streamers telling where to look for the hidden gifts, which included kitchen gadgets, interesting and useful.

The making of a bride's book formed a pleasant afternoon after which the hostesses served dainty refreshments

Women's L.C. Holds Lovely Tea and Sale of Home Cooking

Blue skies and gorgeous sunshine brought many members and friends to the delightful afternoon tea and sale of home cooking held at the home of Mrs. J. McAuley, 233 Foster Avenue, under the auspices of the Catholic Women's League, on Thursday afternoon.

Little Miss Lenore Morrell opened the door, and the guests were received by the president, Mrs. K. Doyle, assisted by Mrs. J. McAuley, who welcomed them into the inviting atmosphere of flower bedecked rooms with their vases of Autumn colored 'mums, and golden marigolds.

The charming tea table with its lovely lace cloth, centred with a silver bowl of bronze and yellow 'mums, flanked by silver candelabras with tall, deep ivory candles, and at either end, the gleaming silver services, was a thing of beauty. Over this presided from 3.30 to 4.30 Mrs. Bulger and Mrs. M. J. O'Callaghan; from 4.30 to 5.30 Mrs. Fred Lee and Mrs. L. Dandreteau, and from 5.30 to 6.30 Mrs. Fred Temple and Mrs. M. Stork.

Those who served were: Mrs. G. A. Masound; Mrs. E. Haines; Mrs. F. Cushing; Mrs. G. Kennedy; Mrs. O. Butler; Mrs. Tatham; Mrs. M. Robertson; Mrs. B. J. Fleming; and Mrs. Frank Deacon replenished the tea table. Mrs. J. N. Anton invited the guests to the tea room.

The home cooking table with its delectable confections was looked after in an exceedingly capable manner by Mrs. A. Wilkinson and Mrs. H. Car-Brainl. Among those kept busy wrapping up the fast disappearing cakes, tarts, cookies, and delicious tid-bits.

The lovely chocolate cake, made and donated by the hostess was in charge of Mrs. Kelly, and was won by Miss K. Dolan, while the exquisite glass cake plate, centred with natural colored fruits, and banded by a quartet inch of 21 carat gold, which was in charge of Mrs. G. Donoghue, was won by Mrs. J. B. Boyce.

A brilliant necklace for evening wear also had lucky tickets sold for it, with the result that Mrs. E. Walker was the winner. Mrs. S. Lipper was its custodian.

The conveners of this very lovely and successful tea were Mrs. J. Boyle, Mrs. R. Flynn, and Mrs. E. Logan, of the Hospitality Committee, with Mrs. B. Burley the capable treasurer.

Injured Model Returns Home For Ten Days

Toronto, Oct. 24. (CP)—Pretty Helen Billson, Toronto model injured last January in a traffic accident in which her fiance was killed, returned home Sunday from hospital for a 10-day visit.

Twenty year old Miss Billson was struck by an automobile in Eastern Toronto while walking with her fiance William Miller. Miller was instantly killed and Miss Billson was dragged along for 150 feet, suffered numerous fractures.

She has undergone innumerable skin and bone grafting operations since the accident and must return to the hospital in ten days for more operations.

"Yes, it's grand to be home", she said. "I am looking forward to being home for good some day soon. It will be fun learning how to walk all over again."

Sports for Girls? No, Says Teacher

Hendon, Middlesex, Eng. (CP) —Athletics are harmful for girls, says Miss M. B. Hartwell, acting headmistress of a girls' school in Basingstoke, Edgware.

She didn't not allow her pupils to compete "in the annual municipal sports meet.

To anyone who knows anything about girls it is obvious they are not made for athletics." Miss Hartwell said in a letter to Hendon education committee.

"This view now is being taken up by many of the leading physical culture colleges throughout the country."

Dr. A. B. Adamson, Hendon's chief medical officer, commented: "There is no medical evidence at all to substantiate this point of view . . . girls are no more likely to strain themselves than boys."

20-MINUTE FIRE LOSS $15,000

Streetsville, Oct. 24 — (CP) A fire that lasted only about 20 minutes Sunday night destroyed a garage in this village 18 miles northwest of Toronto. Damage to the garage, owned by Frank Dowling and James Rutledge, was estimated at between $15,000 and $20,000.

Women's Institute

QUINTE WI.

The October meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Douglas Atkins. The president opened the meeting in the usual manner, and welcomed all the members and visitors; afterwards reading a splendid "Thanksgiving" prayer, which was followed by community singing.

The secretary read the minutes, several letters and "thank-you" cards. It was decided to send a small donation to the Institute for the Blind. Roll call was well responded to. Mrs. N. Montgomery spoke on the motto for October. The delegates were chosen for the convention.

The president then made a presentation to Mrs. Geddes Bradshaw in appreciation for her services as president for two years. Mrs. Jeffery, of the 2nd Thurlow, consented to speak on the motto for November.

The meeting was then handed over to the convener, Mrs. Elmer Sandercock. The program opened with community singing of "Home on the Range". Mrs. Frederickson then favored with a reading entitled "The Cow and the Bishop" followed with a solo by Mrs. Bruce Pettit. Mrs. Frank Dunstaer gave a splendid paper, followed by a solo by Mrs. Fred Perrott with members joining in the chorus.

Mrs. Frederickson also favored with another reading entitled "Home" bringing out the point that it takes a heap of living to make a home. Mrs. Insley, of Point Anne, favored with a solo., Mrs. Sandercock thanked all who had helped to make the program a success. The president then closed the meeting in the usual way. Next meeting is to be held at the home of Mrs. Archie Greatrix.

Refreshments were served by the hostess and her assistants.

Good Companions Club Hears Talk On Long Tour

On Friday evening the Good Companions Club of Tabernacle Church had their regular meeting with Mr. Albert Mulvey, the president, presiding.

Future plans of the club were discussed after the reading of the minutes of the previous meeting.

Using the study book "Growing With the Years," the worship service was conducted by Miss Ethel Horton.

The speaker of the evening was Miss Hazel Thompson, who gave a talk on her trip to the west coast during the summer. The tour was conducted by Mr. and Mrs. Toogood of Unionville. Three large aluminum buses were used to take one hundred and twenty ladies for two months. She told how they rode, ate and slept on the buses. They took in the Calgary Stampede, Banff, Vancouver, Victoria and south to San Francisco, Los Angeles. The return trip was by way of the Canyons, Zion, Grand and Bryce, Salt Lake City, Yellowstone National Park, through the ranching country of Wyoming to Chicago and by way of Detroit.

Snow Balls in July

Beautiful Crater Lake in Oregon, 8,000 feet above sea level was one of the spots visited. The waters of this huge crater are very blue with snow fields or glaciers around its rim. On bright July day, they threw snow balls at each other.

While in the Redwood forest in California, the naturalist took them to the Church House, large enough to hold their complete party. Yet on the outside of the stump about twelve large sized saplings were growing.

The party had the opportunity of going to hear the famous Horowitz, Russian violinist at the Hollywood Bowl, to the Greek theatre Under the Stars to see "Annie Get Your Gun," to the famous Forest Lawn cemetery, and to view the city of Los Angeles from the observatory as well as a look at the moon through the telescope.

Saw Local Boy Pitch

One night they camped in a tourist camp in Iowa, where a baseball game was played under the flood lights. The pitcher of the winning team was none other than Ralph McCabe of Belleville.

Miss Rachel Fox thanked the speaker for her interesting trip. Dainty refreshments were served by the committee, which closed the interesting evening.

Help for Spinsters British Woman's Aim

Leeds, England (CP) — Penalties for spinsters at 35 is the aim of Florence White, Britain's champion of unmarried women.

"Why is it," she asks, "that spinsters receive such poor treatment in comparison with widows? All too frequently spinsters do not keep going long enough to claim a pension at 60 — the present pensionable age.

"Very often, after years of toil, they have to stop work, and because they are unable to continue paying insurance they lose their pension rights.

"Many are single because of two world wars, not through any fault of their own."

Miss White started work at 12 years of age. She and her sister Annie were apprentice dressmakers in an industrial area where they studied, at first hand, the problems of single women like themselves.

Soon afterwards Florence founded the National Spinsters' Association, which held its 14th annual meeting recently.

"I have addressed thousands of public meetings," she said, "and have many times fed spinsters' deputations to the House of Commons. Members of parliament call me Flo."

Sometimes there are more men and married women than spinsters on her public platforms.

"Pensions at 55 are coming," she said, "but we aim to make them come faster."

Double Duty Blue Suit

Flattering velveteen outfit

BY VERA WINSTON

THERE'S a double purpose to the pleasant plot of this velveteen suit done in a lovely shade of muted blue that is flattering no matter the time of day. The jacket is waist length and snugly buttoned and has a rippled jabot effect on either side of the high buttoned closing. The skirt is moderately flared. A separate strapless bodice transforms the suit into an evening costume when desired.

Eyes a Precious Beauty Asset

When eyes feel tired says Singer Vivian della Chiesa, apply eye drops and then lie down and rest for at least fifteen minutes in a dark room

By HELEN FOLLETT

EVERY girl with an eye for romance wants lovely eyes. Yet few girls, or women either, give their eyes very much attention unless some form of discomfort descends upon them. Many of them abuse them shamefully, reading and sewing in a dim light, rubbing them with their fists, paying no heed whatsoever when they cry out for the aid of specs.

Every morning and every night, bathe your eyes first with warm water, then with cold. This will bring a reaction of the blood stream that is not only revitalizing to the eyes, but to the surrounding flesh and the lashes. When the eyes are tired use a lotion, putting it on with an eye cup or dropper. Your druggist will recommend a reliable product.

Your eyes will protest against abuse by tiring easily, by watering, by developing red lids or marked aversion to light. If there is any discharge, the slightest sign of pus, make haste to consult a medical man.

Hygiene lighting is important for the eyes of the family. We have always heard that the light should come over the left shoulder, but nobody ever asked why. Instead, one should concentrate on the quality and quantity of light. One way to tell if the light is properly diffused is to hold your finger a few inches away from the printed matter you are reading. There should be no sharply outlined shadow.

A little cold cream patted around the eyes at bedtime will help to keep the flesh in condition, ward off turkey tracks. Place the first finger on the upper lid, at the inner terminal, sweep outward gently, come back under the eye to starting point.

The Experts Say . . .

By KAY REX
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa (CP) — Canada's food rules have been changed to meet the requirements of a new dietary standard developed by the Canadian Council on Nutrition.

The standard is the result of two years' study by the Council, which serves in an advisory capacity to the health and welfare department. It replaces previous standards, the last one of which was adopted by the Council in 1945.

Canadian Nutrition Notes — a monthly publication by the health and welfare department's nutrition division — contains the new food rules.

No extreme changes have been made in the rules which were first adopted in 1944. However, milk figures have been clarified by introducing a category for younger children.

Children up to 12 years should get at least one pint of milk daily; adolescents, at least 1½ pints; adults at least one-half pint.

The department bulletin notes that while the old minimum intake of 1½ pints daily for older children is retained in the new rules, no maximum is given, as previous, because instances have been reported of adolescents being limited in their milk intake as a result of the earlier statement.

For the same reason the old minimum of one-half pint daily for adults has been used without the limiting effects of a top figure of one pint. The bulletin says surveys have shown that 30 per cent of Canadians in the adolescent and adult groups did not get the required minimum amounts.

To abide by Canada's food rules, it is necessary to eat daily, one serving of whole grain cereal and at least four slices of bread (with butter or fortified margarine.)

To keep in tip-top health one must also include in the daily diet:

Fruit — one serving citrus fruit or tomatoes or their juices; one serving of other fruit.

Vegetables — at least one serving of potatoes; at least two servings of other vegetables, preferably leafy, green or yellow and frequently raw.

Meat and Fish — one serving of meat, fish, poultry or meat alternately such as dried beans, eggs or cheese. Liver should be used frequently and both eggs and cheese at least three times a week.

Vitamin D — at least 400 international units daily for all growing persons and expectant and nursing mothers. Iodized salt is also recommended.

The nutritional division of the health and welfare department says that cooking vegetables in the pressure cooker has a "slight advantage over other methods of cooking as far as the retention of nutrients is concerned.

However, pressure cooking has been found less desirable for cabbage, broccoli, and cauliflower. It also has been found impractical for cooking some frozen vegetables such as frozen peas, which can be cooked in the usual way in less time than it takes to bring pressure up in the pressure cooker.

IVANHOE W.M.S.

The Ivanhoe W.M.S. held their October meeting on Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. Arthur and George Wood.

The president opened the meeting. Minutes of the last meeting were read and a short business period followed.

The November meeting is to be held in the evening at the home of Mrs. Elmsey and Mrs. J. Rollins. Mrs. B. Ewart read a letter which had been received from the Bidem W.S. of the Ivanhoe Charge, inviting all ladies of the congregation to attend their bazaar and afternoon tea on November 9th.

Mrs. S. Twiddy gave out the Thank Offering envelopes which are to be handed in at the next meeting. The treasurer gave a report, and the total proceeds of the supper and bazaar which was held in the Town Hall was $55.14. The roll was called and showed an attendance of 18 present.

In the absence of the group leader, Mrs. Earl Benson took charge of the meeting. Mrs. Geo. Wood and Mrs. Earl McMaster favored with a duet, "Ivory Palaces." Miss Doris Twiddy read a letter from Mrs. Ralph Hayworth which had recently been received by a Stirling friend. Mrs. Hayworth, who with her husband and children, is serving in China as a missionary there.

The offering was received by Master Jack Wood after which questions and answers on the Study Book were given by Mrs. A. Wood, Mrs. D. Fleming, Miss Cora Perry, Mrs. E. McMaster, Mrs. G. Wood, Mrs. A. Reid and Mrs. M. MacMullen.

The second-chapter of "Growing With the Years" was taken by Mrs. Keith Bray.

After the closing hymn refreshments were served and a social time spent. A hearty vote of thanks was extended by Mrs. Clifford Mills for the very kind hospitality afforded.

YOUNG WOMEN'S MISSION CIRCLE

On Tuesday evening, October 18th, at the home of Mrs. Wilfred Hales, 40 Pine Gardens, the Young Women's Mission Circle met for their October meeting with approximately twenty-five in attendance. Miss Edna Jobson presided. The "Watch Tower" was given by Mrs. Dorland Houston and Mrs. Carson read the Scripture. Miss Margaret Hagerman read a very interesting poem.

The topic of the evening was given by Mrs. H. O. Eastman which was very inspiring.

The remaining part of the evening was spent honoring one of the members who was married during the summer, Mrs. Bernard Kent (Jean Cook) in the form of a cup and saucer shower. Although totally surprised Jean was seated before a table laden with beautifully wrapped gifts. After opening the gifts Jean in her pleasing manner thanked each giver and hoped that someday each would be able to visit her in her home in Pasadena, Calif. Refreshments were served.

A SUMMER CAMP for underprivileged children — complete with buildings and 18-acre camp grounds — is owned and operated by the Kiwanis Club of Belleville. Here, every summer, several hundred needy boys and girls enjoy the benefits of a happy, healthful vacation.

HOBBYCRAFT CLASSES are another Kiwanis Project. In the Club's own building, Kiwanis Centre, over 200 youngsters from 8 to 15 years of age study wood-working, photography, sewing, radio, etc., under expert instruction.

THE VICTORIAN ORDER OF NURSES was originally brought to Belleville by the Kiwanis Club, and the Club still provides the V.O.N. with rent-free quarters for offices and clinics.

BOY SCOUTS, WOLF CUBS, GIRL GUIDES, BROWNIES and other worthy organizations also enjoy the rent-free use of Kiwanis Centre for meetings, classes, and get-togethers.

TWO CHILDREN'S PLAYGROUNDS have been completely outfitted by the Kiwanis Club. In addition the Club sponsors KI-Y Baseball and Hockey Teams in conjunction with the Y.M.C.A.

THE OGILVIE FLOUR MILLS, in recognition of outstanding community achievement, is donating $100 to the Kiwanis Club of Belleville.

The Town of the Week is selected by The Ogilvie Flour Mills Co., Limited on the basis of outstanding community achievement. As a more tangible tribute, Ogilvie also donates $100 for the benefit of each town selected. Presentation of this award is made on the Kate Aitken Radio Program over a coast-to-coast network.

St. Paul's United Church Celebrates 96th Anniversary

Stirling — Sunday, October 16, marked the 96th anniversary of St. Paul's United Church and special services were held both morning and evening, with appropriate music by the choir under the direction of Miss Grace Pitman, A.T.C.L., organist and choir leader.

Large congregations were in attendance at both services with friends of sister churches joining with St. Paul's in the services of thanksgiving and reconsecration.

The Rev. H. M. Servage of Kingston was the guest speaker at the morning service and delivered an inspiring sermon which held the rapt attention of a capacity congregation. In the evening the Rev. D. C. Amos of Bridge Street United Church, Belleville, brought a thought-provoking message to another capacity congregation.

Special music arranged by Miss Grace Pitman, organist, was rendered by a full choir at both services in the morning the choir rendered the anthem "The King of Love My Shepherd Is" with Mrs. F. Thain, Mrs. C. E. Macklin and Mrs. Harold West taking solo parts and a number of girls also rendered a chorus, "No Love Like Thine."

At the evening service a double duet, "He Quiets the Storm," was sung by Misses Alma Stapley and Eva Ann Barisdo as altos, and Messrs. Jack Rush and Grant Richardson as tenors. The choir rendered the anthem "A Dream of Paradise," with Mrs. Harold West taking the solo parts and Mrs. C. E. Macklin and Mrs. R. Stapley sang a duet, "Love Divine."

STEAM-TURBINE

From 1929 through 1948, American railroads of all classes purchased 11,191 diesel electric locomotives compared with 4,196 steam engines.

More important — as an indication of the trend — the 1929 figures showed 1,053 steam engines brought against only 80 diesels.

Last year the figures had more than reversed. Diesel purchases numbered 2,678 against only 69 new steam locomotives.

While the carriers have made this decisive turn from steam to other sources of motive power, it doesn't mean old 97's century-old puff-puff will be softened to a purr.

The railroads still own thousands of steam locomotives—most of them more than 15 years old—smoking contentedly in their roundhouses and yards.

While they'll have to make room on choice runs for their streamlined cousins, they're not destined for the scrap heap for many years.

NORTHWEST REBELLION VETERAN DIES

Toronto, Oct. 24—(CP)—John Campbell, 89, one of the few surviving veterans of the Northwest Rebellion, died Saturday at Sunnybrook Military Hospital. Born at London, Ont., Mr. Campbell was a member of the Queen's Own Rifles and saw action at Batouche in 1885.

West Coast Harbor Has Woman as Boss

Prince Rupert, B.C. (CP) — The harbor master at Prince Rupert is a "mistress."

Mrs. Dorothy Elfert has been appointed to the department of transport to take over the post which her husband, Capt J. R. Elfert, held at his death early this year. He had been Prince Rupert's harbor chief since 1927.

During the years, Mrs. Elfert assisted her husband in port duties and "just continued on" when he died. She spent six years at sea with her captain-husband prior to his Prince Rupert appointment.

"I love the sea, and maybe some day I'll be able to go back," she said in an interview.

It is her job to meet and go aboard the deep-sea ships coming into port. She will assign them to their docks, and see that safety regulations are observed.

Mrs. Elfert doesn't believe the stories about "tough" sea captains.

"There are no so-called tough captains," she says. "They are all gentlemen and a fine lot."

Immigrant Students Stumble Over Slang

Winnipeg (CP) — Blonde Elsa Martin, who came to Winnipeg from Europe only last August, doesn't find English a difficult language to learn. It's Canadian slang she can't master.

Common colloquialisms like "what's cooking?" "O.K.", and "Good egg" have the pretty 21-year-old Yugoslav immigrant puzzled.

"It will take two or three years before I know what they mean," she said recently, at her desk in Kelvin High School classroom.

Else is one of more than 1,000 former displaced persons now studying basic English in special night classes being held at four Winnipeg schools.

We try to teach new Canadians good conversational English at quickly as possible," explained A. H. Lawrence, principal of Kelvin classes for some 200 at Kelvin.

"Most learn the language quickly but become confused by slang and idiomatic expressions."

English classes started in a Winnipeg high school last year but soon overflowed into three other schools. Registrations are still coming in for this year's courses but about 1,700 took lessons last year.

Most of the students came from displaced persons camps in western Germany, a few came from Italy and several from a Polish camp in Kenya, Africa. Africa. Russian, Czech, Yugoslav, Ukrainian, Greek and Italian nationalities are all represented in the group.

SIGNS MEAN NOTHING

Vermilion, Alta. (CP) — Motorists can scoff at local signs limiting highway speeds to 20 miles per hour. In a recent judgment, Magistrate A. E. Meister said the provincial speed limit of 25 miles per hour still holds —the Vermilion traffic bylaw is ultra vires.

STIRLING

STIRLING W.I.

Stirling — The October meeting of Stirling Women's Institute was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Rodgers on Thursday evening and following the opening exercises community singing was enjoyed with Mrs. H. Rodgers leading and Mrs. F. Heath at the piano.

It was decided to hold a Hallowe'en dance in the community hall. The roll call was answered with "Something for the guest room."

Mrs. H. Rodgers took charge of the program and welcomed Mrs. Roy Bush, district president, and Mrs. Bert Finkle district recording secretary, and other visitors. Mrs. Foster, Mrs. Singleton and Mrs. McMurray gave three interesting readings. Mrs. R. Bush gave a talk on "People Like You and I. How Wonderful it is for Members of Women to Get Together." The key words are 'home,' 'health,' and to live with other people as well as ourselves. Mrs. Bush gave some good ideas on health diets, which were much enjoyed by all present.

Mrs. Bert Finkle spoke on the girls' work. She said "I have worked with junior girls for a number of years and have enjoyed the club work such as 'Well Dressed and Well Groomed,' Girl Stands on Guard,' 'It's Garden Club Work,' 'Cereal Shelf,' 'Cotton May be Smart,' 'Canada's Food Rules,' 'The Club Great to be a Canadian.'" She also outlined last year's work of 'Club Girl Entertains." Nothing is more pleasant than true hospitality, nor is there anything that bespeaks the well-bred person more than the ability to be a charming host or hostess or a gracious guest.

Mrs. Finkle gave a great outline on girls' work, as her club girls have won honors at Belleville and Peterough fairs.

A vote of thanks was tendered by Mrs. L. Rodgers to Mrs. Bush and Mrs. Finkle for coming and helping make the meeting a success.

Mrs. H. Cooke was chosen delegate for Belleville Area Convention, Nov. 1st and 2nd, and Mrs. Louis Rodgers as delegate for the District Convention.

After the meeting closed the committee served dainty refreshments.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Hamilton attended the anniversary at Carmel Sunday morning and were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Elijah and Miss Ruth Horton.

Mr. Kenneth Kleinsteuber and Mrs. E. Elliott attended the anniversary Sunday morning and evening at Zion's Hill.

Mr. and Mrs. Garnet Denyes and Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Wilder attended anniversary at Zion's Hill on Sunday evening.

Mrs. E. Denyes, Mrs. Garnet Denyes, Mrs. Ralph Wilder, Mrs. W. Elliott, Mrs. Stanley Hazard, Mrs. Sherman Parks, Mrs. Arthur Hall, Mrs. Fred Hall, Mrs. Clarence Marshall, Miss Annie Hamilton, Mrs. Mabel Hubel and Mrs. Edmund Carleton attended the open meeting of the W.M.S. at Gilead on Tuesday afternoon.

The W.M.S. met at the home of Mrs. C. Prior on Wednesday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hall spent the dinner hour and afternoon as guests of Mrs. Albert McCullough and daughter, Kathleen, at Bellville.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hall spent Friday with Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Morton and family at Thomasburg.

Deepest sympathy is extended to Mr. N. Wilder who received the sad news on Thursday from Rochester, U.S.A., that his sister, Mrs. Orville Gould, age 80 years, had passed away.

Choir practice was held Thursday evening at Mrs. Harry Harrison's for church service Sunday evening next. Communion service on Sunday morning, October 30th.

Deepest sympathy is extended to Mr. John Ketcheson and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Ketcheson and all bereaved by the death of the late Mrs. John Ketcheson, of Bethel, who will be greatly missed by all who knew her.

ROYAL CANADIAN AIR FORCE

PANDIT NEHRU

Besides Mr. St. Laurent, those on hand to greet him included Rgt. Hon. William Lyon Mackenzie King, former Prime Minister of Canada, most members of Mr. St. Laurent's cabinet, political leaders, and the majority of Ottawa's diplomatic corps.

As Pandit Nehru, dressed in a western overcoat and western clothes, stepped from an RCAF aircraft, the 30th Field Regiment of the Royal Canadian Artillery fired a 19-gun salute, a 100-man RCAF Guard of Honor snapped to attention and the band of the Royal Canadian Regiment played the Indian and Canadian National Anthems.

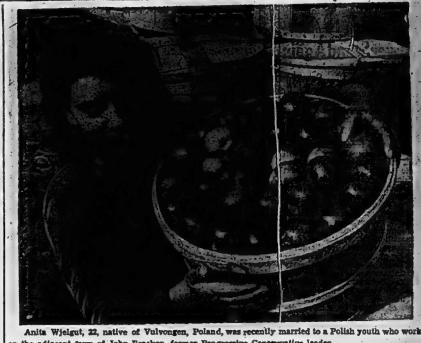
Dines with Alexander



Once the formal reception at the airport was over, Pandit Nehru's party, including his sister, Her Excellency Vijaya Lakshmi Pandit, Indian Ambassador in the U. S., and his daughter, Mrs. Indira Gandhi, were whisked away for dinner with the Governor-General.

At Rideau Hall, where all three will be guests of the Governor-General and Lady Alexander during their stay, an informal dinner was held. Guests included Prime Minister and Mrs. St. Laurent and Mr. and Mrs. Pearson.

The India Prime Minister entered Canada at Fort Erie Saturday and stayed overnight at Niagara Falls. He went to the foot of the falls in a sightseeing craft. He drove to Toronto to take the plane for Ottawa.

Norma Downie of Bothwell and Ivan Simpson of Ridgetown took part in the beef cattle division and are shown carefully examining a shorthorn heifer which is being held by a fourth year, animal husbandry student, Bill Kilmer. On the right, in the field husbandry classes, 17-year-old Thomas May of Picton passes judgment on a cob of Dent corn.

Anita Wjelgut, 22, native of Vulvongen, Poland, was recently married to a Polish youth who works on the adjacent farm of John Bracken, former Progressive Conservative leader.

TEN LOSE LIVES

In the Maritimes there was also one other fatality—a traffic accident near Pondville, N.S.—while three deaths were reported from Quebec.

Mrs. Oland Everett, her son, Bryan, seven, and two daughters, Anne, four, and Brenda, three, lost their lives in the Hartland fire.

Tom Casselman, 18, of Toronto, and Marvin Loxdon, 20, whose home town is listed by police as Robbinsville, N.B., were killed near Orangeville, Ont., when their automobile went out of control and hit a telephone pole.

Two other youths in the car were injured.

Hamilton Williams, 37, of Strathroy, was killed near the town when his automobile rammed into the back of a truck. The occupants of the truck were uninjured.

Mrs. Roy Smith, of Bond Head, died when the car in which she was riding swerved to avoid an oncoming automobile and crashed into a telephone pole. Her husband and daughter were injured in the accident.

Mother of Four Killed

Mrs. Irene Wale, 26-year-old mother of four children, was killed in a two-car collision eight miles west of Brantford. Police say the car was hit at an icy section and turned over. Her husband and four children, riding with her, escaped injury.

Three weeks after he fell from the back of an automobile, Archibald Darrach, 72, of Pulsley, died in hospital during the weekend.

Alex McPherson, 52, Tiverton district farmer, was killed when the car in which he was riding toppled on top of him. David Stanley, also a farmer in the district drove the car near a ditch when it began to lean. McPherson jumped out and was trying to hold the car upright when it fell on him.

James Loveridge, of Toronto's suburban Scarboro, drowned in Lake Simcoe while hunting when a squall overturned his boat. Three other hunters were saved.

Asphyxiated by Gas

Percy Smith, 65, of Toronto, was asphixiated by coal gas and died in hospital when firemen were unable to revive him.

Hubert Grosbeck, 20-year-old Muncey Reserve Indian drowned in the Thames river near London, while swimming fully clothed. No reason was given for the swim.

A double highway death resulted at Levis, Que., when Ray Lavere, 22, and his wife were killed when their automobile crashed into a train at a level crossing.

Guy Leguyer, seven, was killed at Hull when he was struck by an automobile. He was running home after viewing another automobile accident involving two cars.

Armadee Boudreau, 29, was killed near Pondville, N.S., when another hunter mistook him for a deer in the bush and shot him.

Four-pound potato being held aloft by Errol Dynes was grown on Old Ontario's highest farm lands — 1,750 feet above sea level — near Shelburne. Just as big a crop is being harvested this year as last, although the overall crop is down 20 per cent.

Pert and pretty, Marjorie Carroll, representing her Iona Station Club in Elgin County, took part in the poultry judging division. Here she is showing the proper way to hold a prize White Leghorn.

Liberals Would Be Glad to See Oliver Stand Again

St. Catharines, Ont., Oct. 24—(CP)—The Ontario Liberal Association would be glad to see Farquhar Oliver stand again for Ontario leadership of the Liberal Party, Norman Mathews of Toronto, association president, said Saturday.

Mr. Oliver recently resigned as provincial party leader but will lead the Liberal group in the Ontario legislature through the next session. It is expected that a convention will be called next spring, perhaps in May, to pick his successor.

Addressing delegates from 10 Ontario ridings at a meeting of the Southern Ontario Liberal Association, Mr. Mathews said:

"The nomination of Farquhar Oliver to stand once again for leadership of the Liberal party in Ontario would be welcomed by the Ontario Liberal Association. His presence was brought to bear on Mr. Oliver to resign, as implied by some newspapers. If Mr. Oliver would allow his name to stand again, the association would welcome his action."

Alvin Cadeau, Burlington, was re-elected president of the southern Ontario Liberal Association, with H. E. Sawdon, Colborne, and Elmo Riddle, Simcoe, vice-presidents; Gordon Miller, Hamilton, secretary; and James Osbaldeston, Hamilton, treasurer.

By an amendment to the constitution, the convention approved the addition of a third vice-president, who will be the president of southern Ontario Women's Liberal Association. Thus Mrs. J. E. Large, Niagara Falls, Ont., becomes an ex-officio vice-president of the SOLA.

Members of the management committee elected at the meeting were Col. Brank McCordick, St. Catharines; Miss Dorothy Porter, Welland; Harold Minken, Hamilton; Harold Thompson, Lynden; and D. F. Cliff, Dundas.

Campaign Rolling In 41 Communities

Toronto, Oct. 24.—(CP)—A Toronto publicity man claims the credit for having the Red Feather designated as the symbol of community chest campaigns in Canada and the United States.

With the drive for welfare funds totalling $6,196,292 rolling along in 41 Canadian communities, Tom Meyers, publicity director of the Toronto campaign, said in an interview Sunday night that on his suggestion the Red Feather became identified with the annual fund-raising efforts.

"The community chest idea calls for a single drive for a group of organizations, rather than a number of individual campaigns. It was introduced to Canada in 1917. Chest organizations here and there started giving colored feathers, green or blue or something like that, for donors to wear in their hatbands as a distinguishing mark. I believe that idea started in New Orleans.

"In Boston, where more than 300 welfare organizations benefit from the community chest, it was decided in 1943 that a single recognizable symbol was needed for the chest campaign. As publicity director for the Boston community chest that year, I put forward the suggestion of the red feather. It was adopted. The following year, the red feather was used in community chest campaigns throughout the United States and Canada."

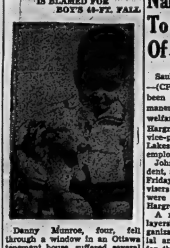
Victoria Times To be Sold Says Report

Victoria, B.C., Oct. 24.—(CP)—The Daily Colonist said Sunday in a newspaper story the 85-year-old Victoria Daily Times is in the process of being sold at a price "said to be about $650,000."

The Colonist named Max Bell, owner of the Calgary Albertan and a member of his syndicate controlling the Edmonton Bulletin, as the man most closely associated with the reported deal.

"Behind Mr. Bell, according to reports", says the Colonist, "is wealthy Vancouver sportsman F. Ronald Graham."



Reported value of the Times, in control of the Spencer family since 1920, has been $1,250,000 in recent months. It was transferred only last week as the sole property of Mrs. J. W. Spencer, widow of the long-time managing editor, J. Will Spencer.

Questioned, Mrs. Spencer denied that any deal had been finally consummated and declined comment. She did not, however, deny reports of the pending sale.

Mrs. Spencer arrived in Victoria from a New York visit Friday and negotiations were believed to have opened with Mr. Bell and his associates.

Transfer of the Times to Mrs. Spencer's sole ownership was announced in a terse front page story in the paper and came as a surprise to Victoria business circles.

C.N.R. Advocates Central Control All Transportation

Fixed Charges of 47 Millions Called 'Grossly Excessive'

By JOHN LEELAND
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Oct. 24 (CP)—Control of all forms of transportation under a central regulatory body was urged today by the Canadian National Railways in its brief submission to the Royal Commission on transportation.

The government-owned line also called for revision of its unwieldly financial structure to provide a clearer picture of its operating results, and for the transfer from railway to public accounts of losses from uneconomic operations carried on as a matter of broad national policy.

The financial rehabilitation of the railway said, would not cost the government any money. It would clarify the system's position to provide an understandable background on which the public can measure its operating efficiency."

In advocating a national transportation policy with central control of all transport the railway suggested this be brought about either through agreement with the provinces or by amendment of the British North America Act.

Preserve Each Mode, of Transport

At present the provinces have control over highway transport within their borders. The Dominion has jurisdiction over interprovincial and international highway traffic but it does not exercise control under that power.

Objective of its proposed policy the C.N.R. said, would be the preservation of "the inherent advantage of each mode of transport in the end that there should perform the function for which it was best adapted from the viewpoint of national cost, convenience, efficiency and necessity".

"This would be impossible of full attainment," the brief says, "without control under a central regulatory body and uniform regulations designed to protect against unfair competitive practices, excessive charges, unsafe operations, unfair working conditions, discriminations, preferences and unfair working conditions."

Trucking

Failing enlarged parliamentary jurisdiction or agreement with the provinces, the C.N.R. said, the Dominion at least could undertake to bring about provincial and international trucking operations.

Dealing with its financial position, the company declared it suffers from "tremendous financial handicaps."

Its fixed charges—some $47,000,000 a year—are "grossly excessive" in relation to earning power. This earning power was restricted by "unfair competition, operating pioneer lines, lines where traffic is light, lines of strategic" lines, all as matters of government policy.

"The management is harassed by the necessity of reporting annual deficits and the pressure which permeates the entire organization." The company said "because of these deficits, the operating efficiency of the system becomes a ready target for criticism in uniformed circles."

Solution Suggested

To remedy this, the Canadian National suggested that it be relieved the government's $760,000,000 in loans from the company's bonded indebtedness and make it part of the C.N.R.'s equity capital. That would have the effect of freeing the C.N.R. from annual debt charges of about $21,000,000.

The company explained this would not cost the government anything, since, if the loans were treasury receives any C.N.R. charges and has to absorb its deficits.

By comparison with United States railroads and the Canadian Pacific Railway, the National line submitted, too large a proportion of its costs had been capitalized, and a "disproportionate part of the total capital was in the form of obligations carrying a fixed interest charge.

In relation to its investment, the fixed interest debt of the C.N.R. was twice that of comparable railways. Measured against gross revenues, the fixed charges were twice as high as those of other roads also.

Recommendations

While the total capitalization of the system need not necessarily be reduced, the C.N.R. said, an adjustment was needed between debt and equity capital represented by interest-charge debt and the equity represented by equity capital.

Other C.N.R. recommendations included:

1. A uniform system of accounts for railroads, local cargo, and uniformity between Canadian and U.S. railways.

2. Relief for the railways from part of the heavy financial responsibility for protecting grade crossings.

3. Rates for railway carriage of mail and members of the armed services, now set by the cabinet, should be placed under the Board of Transport Commissioners.

OUTLOOK DARK FOR VOLUNTARY END TO STRIKES

Unemployment Mounts With More and More Industries Hobbled

Washington, Oct. 24. (AP)—Thickening gloom appeared to have smothered today any hope for early peace in the industry-crippling coal and steel strikes in the United States.

Nowhere was there any apparent progress toward a break in either of the two major disputes as unemployment mounted and more and more industries became hobbled.

There was no indication that President Truman had decreed to intervene in either strike but pressing indications in the country's economy made such action seem likely. Government policy, however, was described Sunday as still one of hope that some strike-breaking concession might be forthcoming soon and that White House action would not be necessary.

But out of the dismal weekend developments came settlement of two other strikes—the 45-day tie-up of the Missouri Pacific railroad by train and engine men and the 176-day walkout of steevdore- es at five of six Hawaiian ports.

But these settlements involving a total of 27,000 men scarcely denied the country's total of nearly 4,000,000 idle workers.

The Secretary of Commerce Sawyer says might climb to 5,000,000 by Dec. 1 unless the steel and coal strikes are settled meanwhile.

Million Now Idle

More than 1,000,000 are idle as a direct result of the steel and coal shutdowns alone. Pennsylvania, with 330,000 idle from the steel and coal strikes, is the hardest hit state.

State Labor Department and unemployment compensation claims indicate there are 500,000 workers idle in the United States. Of these 500,000 are striking steelworkers, 380,000 striking miners, 16,000 striking aluminum workers and 2,000,000 others, including those laid off or involved in widespread steel strikes.

Townsend Company at Illinois, closed down its steel fabricating concern to accede to the United Steel Workers (C.I.O.) demands for better pensions.

The steel strike is in demand of the pensions which the union insists must be entirely paid for by the employers at the rate of 10 cents an hour for each worker.

The companies have agreed to the payment but contend that the employees must contribute an additional amount as a matter of principle.

The terms which John L. Lewis has demanded as the price for settlement of the strike of his 380,000 bituminous coal miners include a contract improvement of from 40 cents to 60 cents a ton.

THIEVES DRILL THROUGH FOOT-THICK WALL

Toronto, Oct. 24 — (CP) — Thieves hammered a hole in a foot-thick brick wall to enter an 8 sea company's office Saturday night. Then they knocked the combination off the vault and tried to drill it open. Finally, they burned it open with acetylene equipment taken from the company's garage and made off with more than $2,000.

ALBERTA NURSE FOUND DEAD AND RAPED IN HOME

Taxi-Owner's Wife Also Stabbed in Chest

Penticton, B.C., Oct. 24 — (CP) —An attractive Alberta nurse was found Sunday shot to death, stabbed in the chest and raped in the bedroom of her cottage home in the mining town 120 miles east of Vancouver.

Taxi-owner George Mathewson returned home from work Sunday morning to find his estranged wife, body of his 24-year-old bride of four months sprawled across their bed. She was the former Mona Ganderton of Wainright, Alta.

Provincial Police Inspector J. H. McGilligan said the Penticton Hospital nurse had been shot through the head by a .32-calibre bullet, gashed under the left breast by what he thought would be a knife, and "sadistically" raped. A second bullet was lodged in the bedroom door.

Neither the gun nor the weapon used in the stabbing could be found.

Police said the head wound was fatal but they had no word on telling immediately whether she had been stabbed and raped before or after death.

Bush Pilots Kill Goose That Lays Golden Eggs

St. Jovite, Que., Oct. 24 —(CP) —Canada's famous bush pilots may be putting themselves out of business by the aggressiveness or their own operations.

That was the word today from H. C. Cotterell of Winnipeg who told the convention of the Air Industries and Transportation of Canada that the highways move into the North we will be forced into the progressive atrophy of air operations, direct subsidy through airways and suitable equipment."

The airplane is overpowered and opened up the north country. We are in danger of the day where certain operators which were developed by aircraft have now become the large operators satisfy highways that are supplied by the pilots of the air operations that created the highways.

"It must recognize that air civilization moves into the territory as the airplane has been exploiting, the country gradually loses certain natural advantages which have made the airplane as a vital instrument in the community.

"We know that the small aircraft of the north cannot compete with highway transport operations on government-built highways. We also know that highway transport operators operating from airports and over airways day and night can compete for and live cost-wise on certain traffic."

Spidery Handwriting Gives Vivid Insight into P.M.'s Life; Thompson's Letters in Archives

Ottawa, Oct. 24 — (CP)—How does it feel to be Prime Minister of Canada?

For Sir John Sparrow David Thompson, Conservative Prime Minister from 1892 to 1894, it meant days of tension during a crucial parliamentary debate, long separations from his family and going to campaign meetings, dirty and tired from travel.

It meant, too, participating in international conferences with the world's leading statesmen and describing intimate details of the conference in his letters to his children.

These and other aspects of his life are vividly described in from 10,000 to 15,000 of his letters, now in the public archives.

Thompson was a Nova Scotia lawyer who became Prime Minister after serving as Federal Justice Minister and as Attorney-General, Premier and Chief Justice of his native province.

In spidery handwriting and colorful language, some letters tell of the strain of public life.

Others are full of homely little incidents and observations.

One tells his wife of the first day he arrived in Ottawa as Justice Minister to find separate suites, offices empty — his staff had read an erroneous newspaper report and hadn't expected him for another week.

Calls President 'Pompous'

Another tells his children about the important world figures at an international conference — and describes a president of the United States as "pompous."

Norah Story, a historian and head of the archives manuscript division, thinks the letters form one of the most valuable collections in the country.

Her staff has only begun to nibble at the wealth of historical material in them and it will be some time before the letters are sorted and bound and take their place on archives shelves beside those of two other prime ministers, Sir Wilfrid Laurier and Sir Wilfrid Laurier.

The letters — Thompson — are the property personal ones — will be returned to Lt.-Col. John Thompson, of Ottawa, a son of Sir John who collected the letters and turned them over to the archives this year.

Two Toured Ontario

Macdonald called his appointment of Thompson as Justice Minister the "greatest discovery of my life" and many of the most colorful letters were written when the two toured Ontario in the election campaign of 1888.

They left on September 7 and campaign rallies that lasted until 1 a. m., of drunken hecklers in the front rows at meetings and how "we have to go . . . to meetings dirty and often in ragged clothes and in spite of fatigue . . . we are supposed to be quite up to the boiling point of excitement which prevails among the audience."

Thompson came to Canada in 1885 and almost immediately was called on to defend the government's refusal to hang the executioner of Louis Riel leader of the Northwest Rebellion.

In his maiden speech in the Commons, Thompson quelled a Conservative revolt and won the House's approval of the government's stand.

Thousands Attend Open House Of Bata Plant at Frankford

A modern five-storey shoe manufacturing plant and its sweltering convention situated in the valley of the Trent River, five miles north of Trenton was the centre of attraction for many Quinte residents Sunday afternoon.

The occasion was "open house" at the Bata Shoe Company at Bata Heights which this year is celebrating its tenth anniversary of operations in Canada. And thousands of people throughout the afternoon took advantage of the day to inspect the large shoe-making plant and to see the actual manufacturing process of several lines of footwear.

Little more than ten years ago the site was a bare hillside, and but a pasture land. Today it is a bustling community composed of well over 200 residences, a large shoe manufacturing plant and engineering division and is providing employment for 1,220 persons.

Directed by Bata employees wearing distinctive arm bands, visitors were directed through the five-storey shoe manufacturing building where they saw shoes and rubber footwear mass produced within a matter of minutes on the production lines.

Visit Vulcanizing Plant

They visited the vulcanizing plant and rubber footwear division and saw Bata made machines and presses in action. They saw the actual assembly process of children's rubber footwear wherein the uppers materials were stamped, cut and assembled into the finished boot within a matter of minutes, ready for packing and shipment.

They also saw the complete assembly of leather footwear, the shoe taking form before their eyes as they watched workers operate intricate machines that formed uppers, lasted toes and heels, applied insoles, sewed on soles and nailed on heels in almost less time than it takes to think.

In the workings in the main building including the first, third fourth and fifth floors, were included in the tour, while the intricate machines in the engineering division were also open for inspection.

Style Display

Then there was the style display in the lounge room of the recreation hall where the various styles of footwear were displayed by the firm were on display. Also during the afternoon in the main recreation hall there were technical and educational movie films shown.

Members of the Trenton Lion's Club had charge of traffic assistance and were heard at various times, while the Frankford boy Scouts lent a hand in directing the parking of cars.

The Bata Shoe Company claims to be the largest industrial firm in Hastings with an annual payroll of over two million dollars and has branch factories in Belleville, Picton, Colborne and Port Hope. Bata produces a wide range of footwear, manufacturing a total of 260 different designs.

HILARITY AS SENATE CLOSES

Ending of the 81st Congressional sitting in Washington is cause for celebration on the part of Senate page boys. Their message-running days over they climb to the rostrum and gleefully toss copies of passed bills into the air. — Central Press Canadian.

GEORGES BIDAULT WILL ATTEMPT TO FORM GOVT.

Majority of Members Favor New Election

Paris, Oct. 24 (AP)—Georges Bidault, leader of the popular Republican party, sought today to lead France out of a 19-day political crisis. His chances for success in forming a cabinet were dimmed considerably by mounting sentiment for a new national election.

The veteran negotiator and former foreign minister was the third man to try to form a government since disputes over wages and price policies toppled Premier Queuille's cabinet.

Jules Moch, a Socialist, and Rene Mayer, a Radical Socialist, have tried and failed in the job. The three-party coalition which has ruled France under premiers since early in 1947. That coalition of Socialists, Radical Socialist (Moderate) and Popular Republicans has steered France through another year of crisis.

The United States has offered to surrender its South Korean to the Russian-opposed, but general assembly-approved "Baruch plan" providing for U.N. inspection and controls to assure against illegal bomb making.

The president did not mention Russia by name, but indirectly made clear his "indispensable" plan for a world government to offer a "better and more effective plan."

He said the United States now is "and will remain, ready to do its full part" to meet the atomic weapon's threat to peace.

In similar vein did it the Soviet orbit Truman sharply criticized disregard of human rights which he said were "indispensable to political, economic and social progress." He said U. N. members know that "disregard of human rights is the beginning of tyranny, and the first step toward war."

He spoke just two days after the General Assembly voted agreement with western charges that Russian satellites Bulgaria, Romania and Hungary are suppressing human rights and freedoms.

Respect for Human Dignity

"Respect for human rights, promotion of economic development, and a program of sensible foreign aid requires the kind of world we seek," Truman said.

No single nation can always have its own way, for these are human problems, and the solution of human problems is to be found in negotiating and mutual adjustment."

Says Clemantis To Face Query On 'Deviationism'

New York, Oct. 24 (CP)—Foreign Minister Vladimir Clementis of Czechoslovakia faces questioning on charges of "deviationism" when he returns to Prague, the New York Times says today in a dispatch from its Paris correspondent. Dr. Clementis now is in New York as chief of the country's United Nations delegation.

The Times writer, C. L. Sulzberger, says Clementis' difficulties advices received in Paris,report from authorities of the Communist information Bureau, which has been tightening up party discipline in several countries.Clementis states in an effort to eliminate all traces of deviationism, but has not yet decided what to do about Dr. Clementis.

The Times writer adds:

"It is reported that one body of communist opinion is ready to 'purge' Dr. Clementis from all positions and bar any government of power, and possibly, in the future, bring him to court'for public trial . . . .

Proprietor, Clerk Killed by Robbers

Oakland, Calif., Oct. 24—(AP)—Two hold-up victims, apparently executed in Oriental style as they knelt before a shelf, were found in an Oakland drug store.

The victims were the proprietor, Robert Savage, 40, and his clerk, Mrs. Mary Frances Wilson.

Police said the victims apparently knelt before their slayers were admitted after closing time. check of cash-registers tape indicated $18.27 was taken.

Officers reconstructed the crime as follows: there were two hold-up men and that the victims were shot simultaneously, since if one had risen to shoot first the other would have jumped or lunged.

FATHER KEEPS ON DRIVING WHILE CHILD IS BORN

Toronto, Oct. 24. —(CP)—Mrs. Lou Errington gave birth to a daughter Sunday in the back seat of an automobile driven by her husband. A neighbor, Mrs. Lou Errington, assisted the mother.

Tracey made the eight-mile trip from suburban Mount Dennis to Western Hospital here in 18 minutes.

The baby was born 19 minutes after he started "but I just kept on going", he said.

Truman Challenges All Countries To Outlaw A-Bomb

Asks Russia to Offer Way Better Than 'Baruch Plan'

New York, Oct. 24 (AP) — President Truman today challenged all countries to agree on a workable way to outlaw the atomic bomb, as the alternative to man's destruction.

Speaking against the background of Russia's refusal to come into an agreement that the United States and other nations have endorsed, Truman said:

"To assure that atomic energy will be devoted to man's welfare and not to his destruction is a continuing challenge to all nations and all peoples."

Lays Cornerstone

Truman spoke at the laying of the cornerstone of the great Italian building of permanent United Nations headquarters on the U.N.'s fourth anniversary.

The United States has offered to surrender its South Korean to the Russian-opposed, but general assembly-approved "Baruch plan" providing for U.N. inspection and controls to assure against illegal bomb making.

The president did not mention Russia by name, but indirectly made clear his "indispensable" plan for a world government to offer a "better and more effective plan."

He said the United States now is "and will remain, ready to do its full part" to meet the atomic weapon's threat to peace.

Official Party Bows to Superstition

London, Ont., Oct., 24—(CP)—Officialdom bowed to superstition and Flt. Lieut. A. A. Sherlock, Government Controller of defence's side-de-camp, ate lunch alone Saturday.

He was the unlucky 13th in the party which had luncheon at the home of Dr. C. B. Hall, vice-chancellor of University of Western Ontario, where the conference received the degree of doctor of laws and officially opened the Thames Valley Conference.

Rather than have 13 people at the table and perhaps upset some of the guests, the official party decided the aide-de-camp was dispensable and got along without his company.

The honorary aide-de-camp-in-waiting, Brig. G. W. Robinson of London, however, attended the luncheon.

Nehru Charges Pakistan Guilty Of Aggression

Ottawa, Oct. 24 (CP) — Prime Minister Nehru of India,'at a long, wide-ranging press conference, today accused Pakistan of "brutal aggression" in Kashmir.

He also told reporters:

1. India is interested in buying wheat and machinery from North America 'and desires technical assistance to help build up her economy.

2. On the whole, such bitterness as there was among the Indian people as a result of long years of British rule in India has disappeared.

3. There was no reason why there should be any change in India's connection with the commonwealth when India becomes a republic in three months.

Pandit Nehru lashed out vehemently and at length on Kashmir, the northern state that has been the crux of India-Pakistan controversy since partition.

He accused Pakistan of "making a continual appeal to the grossest kinds of religious passion" in Kashmir's Moslems and maintained that "Pakistan's armies have no business there".

Indian troops are in Kashmir "legally, constitutionally and by invitation of the people" to protect them, Nehru said accepted the principle of allowing the people of Kashmir to decide for themselves which country they wish to join — but under certain conditions.

These included withdrawal of Pakistan troops. Pakistan was withdrawing regular troops but was substituting irregulars under her direct command. No plebiscite was possible until this situation was cleared up.

Mediation Only Solution

Mediation was the only solution, India thinks, and it seems to agree that under no conditions would the issue be settled by resort to arms. The only answer was steady incitements to holy war in the meantime.

"We're not going to tolerate this," Pandit Nehru said, "it will upset all India . . . we don't know where it will lead."

The prime minister said the decision to retain contact with the commonwealth was "finally welcomed in India". There were several reasons why India felt it wise to do so.

First, the late Mahatma Gandhi had always stressed that the search for independence should not exclude a desire for co-operation, when possible in this work of tension. Third, India's economy had always worked with that of the U.K. to their mutual benefit.

Quads' Names Start With 'J', Second Names Follow Alphabet

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Oct. 24-(CP)—The Hargreaves quadruplets have been named. They are Joyce Carol, Jean Elizabeth, Joyce Carol and Joan Dianne.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack and Mrs. Oswald C. Hargreaves, had plenty of help from persons who thought they had the answer to the problem of names for the 12-day-old quads.

Suggestions poured into Sault Ste. Marie by the thousands.

Representatives of many of the provinces, others names of four of the 48 (United) States," said Mrs. Hargreaves, adding volunteered their own pet names.

The selection was made by my wife. Each first name starts with the letter J—and to be quite honest, I don't know why. The second names are'all in alphabetical order, to decide which baby came first. We could even call them A, B, C and D if we wanted to."

Mr. Hargreaves still waiting on air, reported the girls are doing fir-

'Mixed Blessing' Parents' Verdict On TV for Young

By ADELAIDE KERR

New York (CP) — Bobby Martin, five-going-on-six, sat spellbound before the television screen, a forgotten cookie in his hand, as he watched the sheriff chase the "bad guys" down the road.

But eight-year-old Sue turned her back to the set and began making her doll a new dress. Killer-diller Westerns were too rough fare for her, though she watched other television programs with stars in her eyes.

Like thousands of other children in this new video era, the Martin youngsters are crazy about television. A magic carpet for the whole family, it took them places and showed them things they had never known before. It was a life-saver for Mrs. Martin too. With the children occupied, she had more time to do her work. Mr. Martin found he got considerably less on movies and other family entertainment.

But the story does not end there. Television has brought problems, as well as blessings, to the Martins and many other parents.

To find out what these problems are, how parents are solving them and what they think should be done by televisers, I talked to parents in 30 families in the New York metropolitan area. Most are far from rich. Many of the mothers work. Instalment buying made it possible for many to buy the new wonder.

Their story of how Video's children have been affected by the new medium varied. About half said television had upset their family schedule at first to the tune of spats, spankings and tears. Some children are glued to the television set. For "Pa" wonders they will skip meals, homework, outdoor play and sleep.

Some Shows Exciting

Many parents think they see far too many Western and other exciting pictures on the screen, with the result that too many youngsters get nervous and jumpy. Some children grow frightened and cry at exaggerated puppet characters.

Some schoolboys want to watch wrestling matches and fights all evening.

Several parents with both daughters and sons thought television gives more attention to boys' likes than to girls. Others said commercials were far too long and numerous. Some said their youngsters had become such video fans that the television set was moved close to the dining table and family conversation had become a lost art.

"Finally we had a family meeting," said Jacob Bulkin, New York city employee, who has 3 children. "The five of us discussed the whole thing and then we took a vote. Now we have rules: No more than an hour and a half of television for the children. No television till homework is done and none after 7.30 Papa and mama choose what they shall see."

Programs for youngsters from six to seven o'clock — the dinner hour for many — pose one of the big television problems to parents. Some solve it by letting the youngsters watch the screen while he eat. Others postpone dinner.

More than half the parents had criticisms about children's programs. Many urged fewer Westerns and puppets and more educational programs.

Parents urged more playlets depicting favorite children's stories, programs showing famous episodes of history, pictures showing how certain products are made. Several advocated programs showing how musical instruments are played.

STILL ROOM

Not counting the less habitable parts of Canada there are more than seven persons to the square mile; in Holland and Belgium there are 700 persons to the square mile.

Roslin — Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Fargey and Miss Mary Fargey, Reg. N., of Toronto, were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. M. Fargey and Mr. and Mrs. J. Fargey.

The local schools were closed on Friday for the teachers' convention.

This year the public school teachers in South Hastings chartered three busses and motored to Ottawa for their convension.

Mr. Wm. Preston is a patient in Belleville General Hospital, where he underwent an operation on his eye. While repairing fences recently Mr. Preston had the misfortune to get struck in the eye by a long blackberry bush, which caused infection.

Mrs. Wm. Weir, of Consecon, spent the past week with relatives and friends at Roslin.

The Rev. Clarence Wright, of Bancroft, has been appointed rector of the Anglican parish of Roslin, and will be in charge around the first of November.

The Rev. H. Fletcher, who has been in charge of the Roslin parish during the summer months has been appointed rector of the Bancroft parish.

On Sunday morning last, children's day and youth Sunday was observed in St. Paul's Anglican church. The Rev. H. Fletcher gave a special talk to the children on Labrador, using a map and pictures for illustrations. The Sunday school assisted with the musical part of the service.

Several from here attended the 90th. Anniversary Services in St. James Church, Tweed, on Sunday evening, when the Rev. W. L. Wright, Bishop of Algoma, was the guest speaker.

The Rev. Mr. Connell was attending the jubilee of the Arts class of 1899 at Queen's University, Kingston, on Saturday and had intended to visit relatives in this district, when he received word of the sudden passing of his wife in Winnipeg. Mrs. D. Leslie is a sister of Rev. Mr. McConnell.

Friends in the Roslin district will be sorry to hear of the death of Mrs. J. McConnell, wife of the Rev. R. McConnell, in Winnipeg, on Sunday last.

At the Sunday evening service in St. John's Church, Moneymore, the newly installed electric lights were dedicated. The Rev. F. C. Beazer of Carrying Place was the special preacher for this service.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Vivian, and Mr. and Mrs. Long, of Toronto, were recent guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Keirl and Mr. and Mrs. K. R. Vivian.

Mr. Wm. MacFarlane has returned home after a trip to Syracuse and other parts of the United States. He accompanied Mr. Latchford, of Belleville, with a number of cattle.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Barlow recently visited Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Clare, of Gilead; Mr. and Mrs. Harry Robin, of Sidney; Mr. and Mrs. Roy Thrasher, Sidney, and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Doxtator.

Miss Mary Vivian, who is attending Queen's University, was a weekend guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Vivian, en route to Kingston after attending the Varsity-Queen's rugby game in Toronto. She was accompanied home by Miss Nancy Karon, of Philadelphia, and Miss Dora Wallingford, of Arvida, Quebec.

Mrs. William Houston, Milltown, was a recent guest of Mrs. Alvin McKenzie.

Ladies' Guild

The Ladies' Guild of Holy Trinity Anglican Church held their regular meeting on Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Gordon Johnson. Eleven members and one visitor were present, and the president, Mrs. Sid Fitzgerald, presided. Rev. E. M. Caldwell opened the meeting with prayer.

Plans were made to hold the annual bazaar and dance in the local Orange Hall on Wednesday next. Committees were appointed to look after the various departments. Mrs. Gordon Johnson assisted by Mrs. Cecil McCarthy, served refreshments.

The next meeting to be held in two weeks at the home of Mrs. Cecil McCarthy.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas Keirl accompanied Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Winter on a recent visit to Peterboro and Lakefield and renewed old acquaintances.

4TH SIDNEY

STONE CHURCH M.B.

4th Sidney — The Stone Church Mission Band met at the school on Thursday afternoon. The theme for the meeting was "Thanksgiving" and the call to worship "It is a good thing to sing praises unto our God," was read by the president.

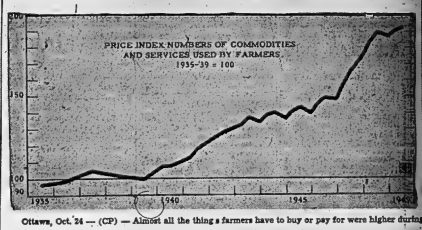
Garnet Reid read a poem.

Mrs. R. B. Phillips explained the thankoffering envelopes and what the money is for.

Carole and Pearl Tucker sang a duet, "Praise Him! Praise Him!"

Scripture reading was read by Anna C. Gray, followed by prayer.

The offering was received and dedicated, followed by all reciting the Mission Band Prayer.



During the business period, the minutes were read and approved.

It was decided to hold the next meeting on November 4th. A doll is to be dressed for the supply work.

Marilyn Wright read a poem.

Mrs. F. Tucker, the Mission Band superintendent, gave the second chapter of the Study Book;

Farmers' Costs Increase

Ottawa, Oct. 24 — (CP) — Almost all the thing s farmers have to buy or pay for were higher during recent months, sending farm-costs index to a new p eak.

The Bureau of Statistics reported Saturday th at the composite price index of commodities and services used by the farmer — including living co sts — rose from 191.1 in April to 192.3 in August The August figure compares with 190.1 for the sa me month a year ago.

Based on the index of 100 for the 1935-39 perio d, over-all farm-costs are almost double what they were 10 years ago.

The index for farm costs, exclusive of living co sts, advanced from 202.9 for April to 204.2 in August —slightly above the previous peak of 203.7 record ed a year earlier.

The bureau said the increase since April is lar gely seasonal and was due to higher farm wage rates and increased farm living costs. Trends showed little variation between Eastern and Western Canada.

Defeat of Calgary Stampeders Is Biggest Surprise of Canadian Football Weekend

(By The Canadian Press)

Apart from a boost in the price of wheat, Saskatchewan couldn't have heard much better news than what happened on a football field in Calgary on Saturday.

Saskatchewan Roughriders, a team of unknowns for more seasons than their supporters care to remember, handed the Dominion champion Calgary Stampeders their first defeat in two seasons of scheduled play in the Western Interprovincial Football Union.

Spearheaded by Del Wardien, a backfielder who wasn't considered good enough to make the Calgary team last year, the Regina-operated Roughriders ended Stampeders' 10-game - winning streak with a 9-6 victory. The win assured Riders of the second WIFU playoff berth and roused brisk speculation as to their chances of winning the Western title.

Playoff hopes of the last two outsiders in Eastern Canada nearest the vanishing point as Toronto Argonauts absorbed a 26-13 beating at the hands of the league-leading Ottawa Rough Riders in the Interprovincial Union while Windsor Rockets blew a 5-3 decision to the front-running Hamilton Tigers in the ORFU.

That eased the worries of the second-placer clubs in both leagues as Montreal Alouettes collided to a 22-6 triumph overHamilton Wildcats in the Big Four and the ORFU's Sarnia Imperials fattened their scoring averages with a 34-5 decision over Toronto Balmy Beach.

Eskimos Win

Edmonton Eskimos, fighting hopelessly to keep their Western Canada playoff chances alive, scrapped the 7-formation in favor of a single-wing backfield and were rewarded with a 15-6 victory over the last-dwelling Winnipeg Blue Bombers.

In the evenly-balanced Intercollegiate Union, the undefeated University of Western Ontario Mustangs squeezed out an 11-8 victory over University of Toronto Blues while McGill's Redmen downed the Golden Gaels of Queen's University 17-1 at Montreal.

The results gave McGill a two-point edge over Toronto for the second playoff berth at the halfway mark. The collegians do not participate in Grey Cup competition.

Argos struggled gamely to hold Ottawa on even terms until the Riders struck for two quick touchdowns just before halftime to take an 18-6 lead. Even the return of Joe Krol to the Toronto backfield after three weeks' absence due to an ankle injury wasn't enough to match the power of the Eastern Canada champions.

Path Pretty Steep

The Argos' path to a playoff berth looks pretty steep. They need to knock over Ottawa next week-something they haven't done in two Years—and take the Alouettes in Montreal the following Saturday.

That could create a tie with Montreal for a playoff spot even on the assumption that the Als win again over Hamilton next Saturday. A loss to Ottawa next Saturday and Montreal victory over Hamilton will eliminate Argos but the combination of Argo victories over Ottawa and Montreal with a Montreal loss over Hamilton next Saturday will give the Toronto club a playoff spot.

Off last Saturday's performance, that isn't likely. The willing Hamilton youngsters scored the first touchdown, but faded fast as the Alouettes unleashed a powerful ground offensive featured by Virgil Wagner's three touchdowns.

Lose in Last Minute

For Windsor fans, the Rockets' last-minute loss to Hamilton Tigers was a heart-breaker. The Rockets who haven't won a playoff berth since they entered the ORFU nurse a 3-0 lead until the dying minutes of the final quarter. Then Tiger backfielder Boris Tpoit smacked around the end for a game-winning touchdown.

The Rockets can still manage a tie for second place, but only a mathematician can explain how they'll make it. They trail Sarnia by four points with three games left, and the way the Imperials waxed into the Balmy Beach club offers little hope that they'll collapse in the stretch drive.

Luke Sewell To Manage Reds For Two Years

Cincinnati, Oct. 24. (AP)—Luke Sewell, who led St. Louis Browns out of baseball's wilderness, today had shouldered the task of trying to do the same thing for Cincinnati Reds.

Sewell, a veteran major league catcher, Sunday was named manager of the Reds for 1950 and 1951, succeeding Bucky Walters, who was relieved of his duties in the last week of the 1949 season. Sewell was a coach under Walters last season when the Reds finished seventh.

Sewell directed the Browns to their one and only American League pennant in 1944.

And in taking over the job of hoisting Cincinnati out of the lower reaches of the National League, Sewell did it with the positive word from Powel Crosley Jr., principal owner, that it must be done by developing young players and not through wholesale purchases of established stars.

"The Club must stand on its own feet," said Crosley as the announcement of Sewell's appointment was made. "I don't care how much an individual has. I am frank to say I can't subsidize the club to the extent of a million dollars a year."

East York C.I. Team Winner of Football Tourney

Toronto, Oct. 24 — (CP) — Toronto's East York Collegiate football team didn't score a point in tournament play, but impressed the judges sufficiently to win the Ted Reeve Trophy and mythical Ontario high school football championship of 1949.

Playing in the two-day Red Feather tournament of Championships at Maple Leaf Stadium, East York won the award on the strength of a sizzling scoreless tie with F. R. Close High School of Hamilton Friday night. The six-man board of judges gave them a split decision over Hamilton and Ottawa Technical School.

Ottawa defeated Toronto's Humberside Collegiate 9-3 Saturday while Windsor Kennedy nosed out Sudbury High School 11-10 in the other game of the swim-hill. Sarnia Collegiate Institute edged Peterborough Collegiate 2-1 in the second Friday game.

Proceeds from the tournament, sponsored by the Federation of Ontario School Athletic Associations, went to the Community Chest Red Feather Campaign.

Nine thousand fans saw Saturday's games, a total of 20,000 for the tournament.

Strong Ground Attack

Ottawa showed a strong ground attack Saturday as it ripped a fighting Humberside team. Particularly brilliant was the rushing of Marv Filey, star in the first quarter.

A surprisingly strong band of Sudbury gridders jumped on Windsor Kennedy in the first minute and, with Albert Poulain on and Syl O'Hara running being a blocking front wall, marched 47 yards for a touchdown in the opening minutes. Len Thompson carried the ball on the score.

Windsor bounced back, with touchdowns by Ted Lucas and Alex Sulyok in the second quarter. Dick Arthur hit Sudbury for the Northerners in the third session before Windsor's Bob Maynard broke a 10-10 tie with a kick to deadline Sudbury pressed hard for the equalizer in the final session and were defending on the Windsor two-yard line when the final gun sounded.

The team's most valuable players, chosen by the experts, included centre Bill Moiseyhn of Windsor; Sudbury's Douglas Woodliffe, an outside; Mike Nowosdiuk, Humberside middler and speedster Chuck Paul of Ottawa Tech. All received gold wrist watches.

BIGGEST PAPER ROUTE

Wolfville, N.S. (CP) — Veteran carrier "boy" Fred Halloway has the biggest newspaper route in Nova Scotia. Dean of the province's newspaper carriers, with 20 years of service, Mr. Halloway carries the two Halifax daily papers, the Chronicle-Herald and Mail-Star.

OwenSoundMercs In Second Place Of Senior Loop

(By The Canadian Press)

Toronto Senior Marlboros just managed to hang on to their lofty place slot in the Ontario Senior Hockey Association series Saturday night, by tying the Kitchener — Waterloo Flying Dutchmen 3-3 in the second consecutive overtime game between the two clubs with Dutchmen taking Friday's game 6-5.

Hugh (Scoity) Mair sank the tying counter with three seconds remaining in the game.

Mair scored two goals for the senior Dukes and Al Buchanan got the other. For the Dutchmen, Billy Flick racked up two goals and Art Hurst scored the other.

Owen Sound Mercuries, with four points, one point behind Marlies, are in second spot in the league. The Mercs rabbed in three goals in the first three minutes of the game with Hamilton Tigers Saturday night to defeat the Bengala 4-3.

Tigers tightened their defence in the first frame to try to overcome the three-goal lead and Eddie Bush scored the first Hamilton goal 15 minutes later. Mercs made it 4-1 with two goals remaining in the second period and Hamilton got the lead with Carl Smelle's goal in the dying seconds of the frame. Tigers pressed to tie it up, but Jack Taylor's goal halfway through the final frame was the only tally of the period.

Marlies, saved from defeat at St. Catharines when fog closed in after the second period Friday night, came back Saturday to whip the Teepees 4-0.

Outbreak of Fighting

An outbreak of fighting in the final period resulted in 10 penalties. Jack Andrews and George Sullivan of Teepees and Lorne Pirie and Dan Windley of the Dukes drew majors with misconducts being added to the sentences of Andrews and Pirie.

Larry Regan scored twice for Marlies with Ron Hurst and McKenzie each scoring once.

Bill Barber's goal for Barrie Flyers with less than three minutes of the game remaining against Oshawa Generals, Saturday put the Flyers in a first-place tie with the junior Dukes. Each club scored twice in the opening frame and tied it up 3-3 again by the end of the second period.

Barber scored twice for Barrie with John Bobenic and Real Chevrefils each counting once. Marcel Clements, with two goals and Sonny Hooper, with one goal, were the Oshawa marksmen.

Majors Edge Spitfires

St. Michael's College Majors Saturday edged Windsor Spitfires 4-3 to take a third-place tie with Gait Black Hawks. The Irish led play from the face-off, but split the first period with Spits 1-1. The second frame ended 2-1 for the Irish and they outscored the Windsor team 2-1 in the final frame.

Sabourin potted two goals for the Irish and Con Bonhomme and Jack Ingoldsby each scored once. Bailey, Grosse and Rawlyk were Windsor scorers.

Gait Black Hawks won their second game in as many nights from Stratford Kroehlers Saturday, defeating the Stratford club 4-2 to leave their cellar position for the first time this season. Jack Oliver and Pete Conacher gave Gait a 2-0 lead in the first frame and Jack Green with one goal in the second and one in the third rounded out the Hawk scoring. His third - period goal was on an open net when Boat Burley was yanked from the Stratford nets in favor of six forwards. Dinny Flanagan and Denny Draper each scored once for Kroehlers.

Mohawks Hand Cleveland First Loss of Season

(By The Canadian Press)

The newly - formed Cincinnati Mohawks handed Cleveland Barons their first defeat of the 1949-50 American Hockey League season Sunday night as they edged the western division leaders 2-1.

It was the fifth game in six nights for the Mohawks and provided the 4,353 Cincinnati fans with plenty of thrills as their squad held a one-goal lead for the last 19 minutes of the game.

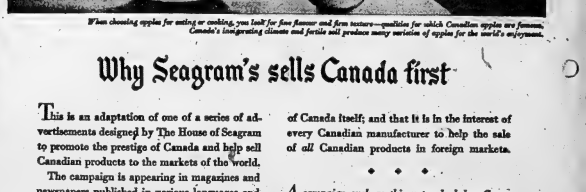
The defeat left the front-running Barons only one point ahead of Indianapolis Capitals who captured two games over the week-end. Saturday they defeated St. Louis Flyers and Sunday night they blanked Pittsburgh Hornets 7-0.

Meanwhile in the league's eastern section, New Haven Ramblers took over sole possession of first place with a pair of victories. Ramblers inflicted a 3-2 defeat on Springfield Indians Saturday and trounced Hershey Bears 7-1 Sunday.

Two last-period goals by Doug Baldwin gave Kansas City a 5-3 tie with Minneapolis last night. His final marker came with only 19 seconds left in the game.

Minneapolis squeezed past Omaha 4-3, and Tulsa thumped Kansas City 6-4 in Saturday games.

TWO TEAMS TIED



(By The Associated Press)

St. Paul and Minneapolis are tied atop the United States Hockey League standing.

The Saints edged Omaha 4-3 last night in a bumpy tilt which sent three players to the sidelines for stitches to close cuts in their heads. They were Harry McCloud of Omaha, Lloyd Aldey and Gus Schwartz of St. Paul.

Why Seagram's sells Canada first

This is an adaptation of one of a series of advertisements designed by The House of Seagram to promote the prestige of Canada and help sell Canadian products to the markets of the world.

The campaign is appearing in magazines and newspapers published in various languages and circulated throughout the world. The peoples of many lands are told about the quality of Canadian products and see Canadian scenes illustrating these products.

The advertisements are in keeping with the belief of The House of Seagram that the future of each business enterprise in Canada is inextricably bound up in the future of Canada itself; and that it is in the interest of every Canadian manufacturer to help the sale of all Canadian products in foreign markets.

◆ ◆ ◆ ◆

A campaign such as this not only helps Canadian industries but also puts money in the pocket of every Canadian citizen. One dollar of every three we earn comes to us as a result of foreign trade. The more we can sell abroad the more prosperous we will be at home. It is with this objective that these advertisements are being produced and published throughout the world.

Life has Changed for the Family Man

Most men live longer than their grandfathers. Women have a better life expectancy, too. So have children — not only that, but children nowadays spend more of their years getting an education.

These facts have brought significant changes in the family man's financial obligations. They mean that he must be prepared to support everyone in his family longer — including himself!

Fortunately, there is an effective way of meeting financial obligations of this nature—a well-planned insurance programme. Life insurance is a sure means by which a man can provide protection for his family in the event of his death or an income for himself should he live to retirement age.

The family man is wise to review his insurance requirements in view of changing conditions. If you would like expert advice, a representative of the Manufacturers Life will be glad to give it to you.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

HOW ABOUT IT GENTLEMEN?

Since the resurrection of the Central Ontario Baseball League, due mainly to the efforts of Peterborough, Kingston, Oshawa and Belleville interests, many inquiries have come to the sports box and a lot of bitter complaints to the effect, "Why Is Belleville not represented?"

* * *

This city, in years past, sent senior baseball teams to the Ontario championships and they brought home the titular honors more than one occasion. We are not going to be in this retrospect with all respect to the Mills brothers, the Williams, the Geyers and the Weirs. Dad is under shade the bridge, but it is to be perhaps a bit brutal, a downright shame that this city, the home of former Central Ontario Baseball League champions, has not been represented in the new edition of the Central Ontario Baseball League.

* * *

It may be a trifle out of season, what with hockey coming up and all that, but you must dig the garden before the rhubarb start sprouting. When the current Central Ontario Baseball League was resurrected two years ago, Kingston, Peterborough and Oshawa members raised perhaps polite eyebrows when they were informed that Belleville, one of the grandest troupers of the league, of two and three decades ago, would not be in the outfit. Town hall, Legion and Selawa team filled the breach, but with all respect and honor due the Selawan, this city was still not represented.

* * *

Why Belleville, that is, as the city goes, could not get or did not have players at senior calibre. We did not have a sponsor. The Belleville District Baseball League, an organization that did practically all the work in every baseball in this village, not forgetting the Kiwanis Club, functioned finely. Harold Wright, at least one, Napanee, had a new in the Ontario Baseball Association Intermediate "B" finals. Another member was that grand team from Picton which went to the finals and were clobbered by Strathroy.

* * *

But that is beside the point. The news now, is that Belleville will be represented in the Central Ontario Baseball League in 1950. . .IF. . .

* * *

It will have a team that should be on a par with the best in not only Central Ontario, but the eastern part of the province as well. And the machinery has already started to click. Players are brought here, from as far away as Texas, six outstanding baseball players, which includes a battery, an infield and an outfielder. Surely, to heaven, that should be a fair starter. IF. . .

* * *

All this is not a dream on one part. We know definitely that a meeting has been held in this city recently regarding the importation of these players. And the meeting consisted of the coach-manager and they are willing to back the idea not only with their moral sponsorship but other ways as well. IF. . .

* * *

That big "IF" remains simply that the onus is on the City Council and its Parks Board. If Belleville is to be represented in senior baseball next year, then some action must be taken by the City Council generally, and the Parks Board particularly. The baseball field at the Exhibition Grounds, in the first place, should be enclosed. True, there has been some talk of a fence being placed around it, in fact we understand that blueprints, etc., have been made, but this Mayor Tweddle would have to see, and what is more, be convinced of the necessity and that affects not only baseball, but other general outlays as well. Members should be constructed on a parallel with the rifle and third baseball boxes. Make them comfortable, if ye like, gentlemen. And the infield and the outfield, should be for baseball only.

* * *

Financially, the City Council and its Parks Board need not worry. Sportsminded men of this city will give the city a top-flight senior club, if they are not half-way with respect to a field. And, if we are not grossly misinformed, and from what we have observed, the fandom of Belleville, is one of not best better than the rest of many city with regards to support. Give 'em a fighting senior team, a proper playing environment, and they will get behind it. In other words, give them a better baseball "mouse-trap" and they will beat a path to the box office door.

How about it, gentlemen?

OVER THE WEEKEND

Virgil Wagner's spectacular one-man show to which he scored three touchdowns and passed the way for the Montreal Alouettes crushing 22-5 defeat of Hamilton Wildcats on Saturday. . . Infuriated Hamilton fans, some 500 of 'em are mobbed the Montreal players after the game. Only injury was that to Bob Cunningham who now has a couple of cracked ribs. . . Yes, Argos, the sexy kids invented, the flag is at half-staff, things are mighty glum in Argyrille for the mighty gridders are limping about before the fine batting of the powerful Ottawa Rough Riders. . . And the tears are falling down Kingston way, for their Golden Gaels of Queen's University were crushed by the potent McGill Redmen. . . George Vaiels, Red backfielder thundered through the Queens team for points, his 81-yard run helping 14,000 fans to their feet. . . Rough Riders clinched first place in the Big Four by virtue of their Saturday victory and at the moment it looks like a repeat for the Dominion football title between the Calgary Stampeders and the Eskmen gang. Missing, however, will be that grand guy and top-flight footballer, Tony Golab. . . Sorry, fellas, no tickets, as yet. . . Sarnia swamped Toronto 36-5 in the Senior OHFU. . . And what has happened the Napanee Lions up around Shallow Lake way on Saturday?. . . The Gibbardville gang of pinny juniors was swamped, ducked, buried, avalanched under a terrific 55-6 score by those hombres from the 396-population village. . .

Don Newcombe, Sievers are Best Rookies of Loop

(By The Canadian Press)

Don Newcombe, brilliant Brooklyn Dodger pitcher, and Roy Sievers, St. Louis Browns' hard slugging rookie outfielder, Sunday were named Rookies of the year" for their respective leagues by the St. Louis Sporting News.

The dual selection by the weekly sports publication was a departure from its past custom of selecting only one outstanding freshman.

By his system Sievers became the first American-leaguer to be so honored since Sporting News began its annual selections in 1946. Previous winners were Dei Ennis, Philadelphia Phillies outfielder; Jackie Robinson, Dodger infielder; and outfielder Richie Ashburn of the Phillies.

The publication named the pair on the basis of votes by sports writers who follow the major-league clubs. Newcombe, formerly with Jersey City Giants, was an almost-unanimous choice for the National League award, the paper said. He hurled 19 victories against eight losers.

Sievers batted the season with a .306 batting average. He hit 16 home runs.

Shallow Lake Evens Count With Napanee

Shallow Lake, Oct. 24. (CP)

The Shallow Lake Ranchers crushed the Napanee Lions 25-0 Saturday to square the Ontario Baseball Association Junior 'B' final series at one game each and forced a third and deciding contest on neutral grounds.

Saturday's game, played in bitterly cold weather was called after five innings.

The Ranchers started their scoring binge in the first inning with three unearned tallies of southpaw Hugh Finlay. Before the game was completed the ranchers had treated four other hurlers with equal disrespect.

The winners garnered only 144 hits but nine walks, nine errors and some bad baseball on the part of the Lions allowed them to run up the total of 25 tallies.

John Macdonald led the Ranchers with three hits in four times at bat.

WEEKEND STARS

(By The Canadian Press)

El Harrison, Boston, who scored the winning goal as the Bruins edged the league-leading Montreal Canadiens 2-1.

Ted Kennedy, Toronto, who scored 17.33 of the third period to hold New York Rangers to a 2-2 deadlock.

Bill Durnan, Montreal and rookie Jack Gelineau, Boston, who shared outstanding honors while holding Bruins to a 0-0 deadlock first in the current NHL season.

Al Rosenberg, Montreal, who saved the Red Wings from defeat with a third-period goal to knot the count with Chicago Black Hawks at 3-3.

CLUB RELEASES FOUR

Syney, N.S., Oct. 24.—(CP)—Sydney Millionaires of the Cape Breton Senior Hockey League announced Saturday the release of four players, forwards Brian Robertson and Lou Medonski and Lou Medonski of Stonewall, Man., and defencemen Doug Fritz of Listowel and Lou Mathieu of North Bay.

Reason for the releases was not given.

Intercollegiate fixture ended that he was retiring for medical reasons.

Four Montreal wrestlers have been recommended to the British Empire games committee chairman for membership on the Canadian team at the games in Auckland, New Zealand, in February.

Recommendation of the four, Ferdinand Payette, Maurice Vachon, Wilfrid Pitsch and Roland Milord, was made by the trials selection committee at the close of the Canadian championships at Montreal Saturday night.

Ezinicki told Toronto sports writers after Saturday night's hockey game that his bride is 23-year-old Janie McPherson, whom he had known since both were toddlers. The bride, a hospital laboratory technician, came to Toronto recently.

The couple was wed last Sunday in a quiet ceremony.

Sparked by big Slim Williamson, a football star from Ottawa University Saturday gave a 56-1 drubbing to a team from Bishop's College, Lennoxville, Que. This latest intermediate Intercollegiate football fixture at Carleton Stadium.

At St. Catharines, Ridley College made a decisive showing Saturday in their little Big Four football league game, winning their only home start of the season, when they humbled St. Andrew's College 23-1.

At Port Hope, Trinity College School first made their initial start of the season a winning one on Saturday by whipping Toronto's Upper Canada College 18-11 in a little Big Four football contest.

Canadiens Still on Top Of N.H.L. Although Failing To Produce Win Over Weekend

Montreal Canadiens are still on top of the National Hockey League ladder although they failed to produce a victory in two games during the weekend with Boston Bruins.

Once again big Bill Durnan proved that he was tops among the netminding fraternity by coming up with a shutout performance against the second place Bruins Sunday night in Boston. Saturday night at Montreal, the big, fallow eased up enough to allow the Bruins to edge his team 2-1 in a close, but dull fixture.

Sunday night's game provided 13,528 Boston fans with the rare treat of watching a scoreless game, Durnan at one end of the rink was matched, and at the other end, equally brilliant was rookie Jack Gelineau, the former McGill Redmen net-custodian.

In other weekend games New York Rangers and Toronto Maple Leafs battled to a 2-2 stalemate at Toronto Saturday and Detroit Red Wings were forced to come from behind a two-goal deficit to earn a 3-3 split with the Chicago Black Hawks Sunday.

Saturday night Boston Bruins, playing a sly game, waited for the breaks and capitalized on both of them for their goals. The five-foot-seven of Vezina Trophy had little chance on either Dave Creighton's first period goal, which came on a ganging attack or on Ed Harrison's winning marker in the third session. Maurice Richard's lone Canadien goal in the opening period was Durnan's only condolence.

Gelineau Brilliant

Equally brilliant in the weekend battle was Gelineau, who allowed only one puck to pass him in two games. The former Montrealer, who reported Frankie Brimsek in the Boston goal this season, proved that he will be a hot contender for Brimsek's this year in the Vezina Trophy race.

Toronto Maple Leafs, the Stanley Cup champions, were unable to shake off the New York Rangers, who were only one point back and 27 seconds away from victory when Ted Kennedy evened the count 2-2. Pentti Lund moved the Rangers in front after 20 seconds of play. Leafs evened the count midway through the stanza with Max Bentley scoring on a play with Lund in the box.

The New Yorkers moved ahead for the second time when Eddie Slowinski scored. But Kennedy broke through in the crucial stretch drive to knot the count.

The third-place Detroit Red Wings were hard-pressed to shut out a stalemate with Chicago. Al Dewsbury who came up from the Indianapolis farm club early last week, saved Wings from defeat with a third-period goal with less than two minutes remaining. Ted Lindsay and Jim McFadden notched the other Detroit markers, both in the middle session, while Metro Prystai led the Chicago marksmen with first and second period goals. Bert Olmstead scored the other Chicago counter.

League Leaders

(By The Canadian Press)

Standing—Montreal, won three lost one, tied one, seven points.

Points—Lindsay, Detroit and Ronty, Boston, six.

Goals—Richard, Montreal, four.

Assists—Pierson, Boston, four.

Penalties—Kennedy, Toronto, and Reardon, Montreal, 12 minutes.

Shutouts—Durnan, Montreal, two.

Amber Grattan Wins Free-for-All At Rodney Meet

Rodney, Ont., Oct. 24. (CP)—The Western Ontario Harness racing drew to a close here Saturday with the completion of the Aldbrough Downs Meet sponsored by the Rodney Driving Club.

Amber Grattan, Thomas Yeary's speedster from Crediton, was a three-time winner in the featured Free-for-all. Well-handled by his owner, the Lord Grattan pacer won all heats in a fashion that left little doubt as to his superiority over the rest of the field.

Amber Grattan's toughest test came in the initial heat when he broke poorly. Trailing at the first turn, yearly moved the horse up with a rush into second place before they hit the backstretch and from then until they hit the final turn before heading for home, Amber-was a length behind the pace-setting mare, Jo owned by N. Neely, of Sarnia.

However, when Amber Grattan came in sight of the wire, yearly flicked his whip and Amber forged to the front to win by himself.

The only other three-heat winner was Tony Mac, owned by Roy Kirby of Walton. Tony Mac captured the 2:17 trot or pace although he received plenty of competition from George Hayman's Corporal Bill and Ken McKinnon's Jean Campbell.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

New York, Oct. 24 (AP)—Next Saturday will be Bob Zuppke day at Champaign, Ill., when the University of Illinois honors one of the greatest guys ever who coached a football team... Incidentally it will be the 25th anniversary of the day when Red Grange took the ball six times on the first quarter against Michigan and scored four touchdowns.

Coach's Philosophy

In view of Zuppke day, what could be more appropriate than to quote a few of "Zup's" sayings that are too good ever to be forgotten:

"Neutrality is being afraid of one side and ashamed of the other."

"A team of 11 good tacklers is hard to beat."

"A football coach is responsible for an irresponsible public."

"All quitters are good losers."

"Too many backs run too fast and too long on one spot."

"We don't care how big or how strong opponents are, as long as they're human..."

There are many others, but don't forget Zup's definition of an All-American star—"A player who has weak opposition and a spot in the Sunday papers."

Amphibious Landing

Bob Wyman, Wayne University guard, was somewhat puzzled when he came out of a scrimmage in the game against the Quantico Marines with a lacerated left hand... Bob couldn't figure it out until after the game, when a husky Marine guard came up and apologized. "You had your hand in my face," said the Marine, "and I thought I ought to do something about it —so I bit you."

TONGUE TENDON GUARD

Toronto Maple Leafs can point with pride to their unequalled record of three consecutive years as holders of the Stanley Cup ... emblematic of the world's professional hockey championship.

A record like that isn't obtained through luck, but rather through the combination of good players, well trained and well equipped. And the choice of their equipment isn't luck either, but the result of years of experience. The record stands for all to see — every player every year chose C.C.M. Matched Skating Sets and C.C.M. Laminated Hockey Sticks.

Therefore, it stands to reason that the best make of hockey equipment for you is that chosen by champions — C.C.M. Hockey Equipment.

Friendly C.C.M. dealers are located throughout Canada to help you select and fit the C.C.M. Matched Set that suits you best.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Let nobody tell you that luck plays an unimportant part in modern bridge. An inaccurate player stands no chance without it. Amazing results are most often due to lucky breaks.

Scientific bidding has a tremendous advantage over guesswork. The difference is overwhelming in a number of deals. This much has been proven time and time again in duplicate matches.

Anybody who attempts to deny this is ignorant of his subject. Nor is it any proof he is a frequent winner in his own group. He must be in a bunch where the competition is weak.

Notwithstanding all this, come again to this deal:

NORTH
♠5 4 3
♥Q 6 2
♦10 7 5
♣8 7 5 3

WEST
♠Q J
♥10 9 8 5
♦K 8 4
♣J 10 6

EAST
♠7 6
♥7 4 3
♦♣Q J 6 5 2
♠K 9

SOUTH
♠A K 10 9 8 2
♥A K
♦A 9
♣A Q 4 2

South is declarer at a small slam of six spades. It is curious for him if west leads a diamond. This and a club trick wreck his contract.

But west hated to lead away from his diamond king and started off with the lead of heart jack. Even this is not much help to declarer unless he makes use of the breaks he finds.

The first trick is taken with one of his top hearts and his two top trumps are cashed. A clover-leaf falls in his lap when the queen and jack of spades drop on these tricks.

He suddenly discerns the only possible entry to the dummy. It is with a spade lead of his deuce to the dummy's small trump. Before doing this, however, he cashes his other top heart.

Now he enters dummy with the small trump and leads the queen of hearts from there. On this is slinted the lone diamond. Then he leads a dummy club and successfully finesses his south queen.

Ace of clubs is cashed and a club is led to west. This is the only trick opponents get. The rest of the black cards are good. Your luck is good when you make the most of it.

NEITHER MAN HURT

Pittsburgh, Oct. 24 — (AP)— Earl Moore, 57-year-old rooter, toppled three stories from an overhanging eave Sunday. He landed on the broad shoulders of his employer, 67-year-old Morris Hart, who reacted to the emergency when he heard the rotting wood of the eave give way. Neither was hurt.

FRACTURES SKULL

Springfield, Mass., Oct. 24 — (AP) — An assailant broke into a home and attacked a 13-year-old baby sitter early today, fractured her skull with a hammer and threw shovelfuls of live coals in her face. The sitter, Patricia Ann Black, fought off the intruder despite her injuries.

Canadian and U.S. Air Forces Stage Mock Bomb Raid

New York, Oct. 24—(CP)—Reserve members of the Canadian and United States air forces cooperated in a mock bombing raid on New York City Saturday when high air officials of both countries described as "very successful."

A tactical bombing force, attempting a sneak raid on the metropolis, was "shot down" by defending fighter aircraft, the United States National Air Guard announced after the manoeuvres.

The interceptor planes, including eight R.C.A.F. vampire jets, spoiled two flights of light bombers within the metropolitan area's inner defences. The defenders "destroyed" a majority of the attacking bombers, the announcement said.

It marked the first time reserve men—"weekend fliers"—of the two countries had co-operated in air manoeuvres.

The vampire jets were from reserve fighter squadrons 401 and 438 from Montreal.

Radar equipment was flown to New York by the R.C.A.F. to join the National Guard units in erecting the defence screen.

Watching the manoeuvres were Air Marshal W. A. Curtis, Chief of Staff of the R.C.A.F., and Lt.-Gen. Emile Whitehead, commanding general of the United States Continental Air Command.

Other exercises employing reserve units of both countries are being planned, it was learned.

CHILD WITNESSES FATALITY

Kansas City, Oct. 24 — (AP)— Five-year-old Judy Mae Nicols Saturday witnessed the fatal shooting of her mother, Mrs. C. E. Nichols, a 34-year-old divorcee, and seventh Fleet Conklin, 45, an unemployed bartender, were found shot to death Saturday in Mrs. Nichols' apartment. Judy Mae told police Conklin shot her mother and killed himself after an argument.

Baton Rouge, La.—A hefty cop and a circus elephant had a tug-of-war Sunday. The cop won.

A housewife called police and reported: "There's an elephant in our bed. Could you do something?"

Next day, while his quarry gamboling down the middle of a residential street, the cop latched onto a dangling neck chain, threw his 255 pounds into reverse and hung on. The big pachyderm won.

New York—Henry Pferr, 34, a Brooklyn glassblower, walked into an east river pier Sunday with an assortment of neckties and women's stockings. Police, to whom he had announced his intention, were waiting for him.

His plan: to tie his hands and feet tightly, jump off the pier, and swim 1 miles to Coney Island using "a fishtail kick".

"You can't do it," police told him. "You need a permit and a boat."

Pferr, annoyed, stalked away. He said he'd get both and try again.

Charleston, W. Va.—Charleston police reported shame-faced thief someone stole a police cruiser Sunday from a parking place in front of the police station.

And, Patrolman Tommy Wilson added, the thief even responded to his friendly wave. Wilson, off duty at the time, said he waved assuming that fellow officers were in the car.

The cruiser later was found abandoned.

43 CLUBS REPRESENTED

St. Thomas, Oct. 24 — (CP)— Forty-three of the 44 Kinsmen Clubs in western Ontario were represented by 225 delegates and their families during the weekend at the annual fall council meeting of Kinsmen district No. 1.

Immediate past director governor Andrew Johnson of Windsor was presented with a past governor's pin by Phil Scalid, vice-president of the Woodstock Club, at a Saturday banquet.

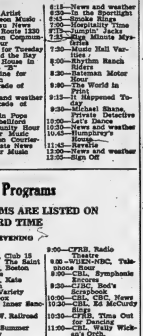
2 Women Suffer Serious Burns, Child Brings Aid

Timmins, Oct. 24 (CP)—Two women were burned, one seriously, in an early morning fire here when coal oil one of them was pouring on a fire in a stove exploded.

Mrs. Emory Delaire, 34, was in hospital in serious condition with "widespread burns" to her body, face and arms. Her sister, Mrs. Moise Fouy, was treated for burns to the hands.



Mrs. Delaire's clothing and hair caught fire. Her mother was burned trying to beat out the flames from Mrs. Delaire's dress.

Mrs. Delaire's 11-year-old daughter, Margaret, was in the bedroom when the explosion laid a wall of flame across the bedroom floor.

The child wrapped a blanket round herself to get through it and ran barefoot across the street for help.

APPLE CROP RECORD AT THORNBURY

Thornbury, Oct. 24 — (CP)— Fruit growers in this southern Georgian Bay area say this year's apple crop is a record one. Picking, they say, is likely to finish this week, at least 10 days ahead of last year. In the Collingwood district, east of here, growers still are harvesting tomato crops, generally estimated at about 60 per cent of last year's crop.

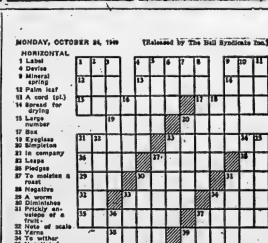
MARK TRAIL

SCOTT'S SCRAP BOOK

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop was looking at the news in his paper and ma was looking at the advertisements in here, saying, Now here's what I call a bargain, William.

Do you actually need it? pop said, and ma said, You mite at least wait till you hear what it is. It's a sale of genuine old fashion music boxes, and before you begin long involved lecture on why I shouldn't buy one, I'm going to give you a unanswerable reason why I should. The first point is, they're only 25 dollers, and the original price was 57 dollers, she said.



I'm afraid that has an anser, and the anser is, 32 dollers also used it be 57 dollers, pop said, Now let's not get lost in a financial maze. The 2nd point is, an old fashion music box is an ornament to the eye and a treet to the ear.

Quite true, my dear, but before it's been in the house a month, some visiter's child will try to make it louder and funnier by bending back the lid, and then it wont be a treet to the ear because it will never play again, and it will no longer even be an ornament to the eye, because it will be put out of site in the back of some dark closit after the 20th person has asked "What's a matter with the music box, won't it work?" Whats your 3rd point, my dear? he said, and ma said, Dont ask me. You've completely driven it from my mind with your legal tactics and far fetched comparisons, she said.

Then I win by default, pop said. I'll stop in at Hookbinders, or wherever it is, and have one of the noisy contraptions sent up, and if we can stand it for a week, maybe we'll be immune to it, he said.

The result being ma gave him a kiss.

Andy Gordon Best Tosser In Competition

Toronto, Oct. 24 — (CP) —The teams in the Interprovincial Rugby Football Union appear to be as good as their forward-passers.

The pitching experts of the four clubs competed between halves of the Red Feather Football Tournament of Champions at Maple Leaf Stadium Saturday night. The results showed them in the same positions their teams hold in the current I. R. F. U. standings.

Tossing the ball at the circle of a big number six set up at midfield as a target, Andy Gordon of Ottawa Rough Riders took top honors by hitting the mark on his first try at 10 yards and scoring again on his second try at the 15-yard distance.

Frankie Filchock of the second-place Montreal Alouettes found the range on his second try at the 10-yard distance. Joe Krol of Toronto Argonauts did it in his third try, while Al Dekdebrun of Hamilton Wildcats couldn't make it in three tries.

NOT GOOD ENOUGH

Weyburn, Sask. (CP) — A local taxpayer had a good reason for not paying $1 for dental services. He showed the tax collector that he had no teeth. But the pain in the tax anyway — to help finance free dental services for school children.

24 Hold Sweep Ticket on Horse In Cambridgeshire

Preston, Oct. 24.—(CP)—If Hyperbole wins the running of the Cambridgeshire Stakes Wednesday, there will be 24 Irish sweepstake winners in the Preston district—all on one ticket.

Last Summer Albert Abbott of Preston bought two books of tickets on the sweeps when he was in Ireland and sold a ticket to 23 of his friends and one to himself on the condition that if there was a winner among the 24 all would share the prize.

One of the tickets, held by Eva McCarthy of Kilchener, was drawn and the horse was Hyperbole. If it wins, the 24 will get about $3,000 each, but if it loses they will get only $18 each. The ticket holders are pretty confident Hyperbole will come in somewhere. They said they recently turned down an offer from a syndicate to buy a half share for $8,000.

BUSY BALLOTING

Brandon, Man. (CP) — Brandon voters may mark five separate ballots in the October 26 civic elections. They will vote for a mayor, five councillors, five school trustees, a bylaw and possibly a referendum on city support of summer recreation.

EXTRA POINT

Eric Chipper has become an institution around Ottawa for his almost automatic precision in booting converts from placements after the plentiful touchdowns that have put Ottawa Rough Riders far out in front of the Interprovincial Rugby Football Union. The big lineman has kicked for the extra point 23 times in his first nine games this season. That's Benny Steck, another Ottawa lineman, holding the ball.—(CP Photo.)

FOUNDER OF CHURCH OF ENGLAND IN CANADA

South Mountain, Oct. 24—(CP)—A moving ceremony was held here Sunday to commemorate the birth of 200 years ago in England of Jacob Mountain, founder of the Church of England in Canada. This farming community 50 miles south of Ottawa is named after him. High officials of the Anglican Church, including Rt. Rev. Phillip Carrington, Anglican Bishop of Quebec, took part in the ceremonies.

Simply great to relieve 'PERIODIC' FEMALE PAINS with uncomfortable fullness

Are you troubled by distress of female functional monthly disturbances? Does this make you suffer from pain, feel so nervous, restless, cranky, weak—at such times? Then do try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to relieve such symptoms!

Pinkham's Compound has proved remarkably helpful to many women in this way. You owe it to yourself to try it. Pinkham's Compound is very effective stimulative tonic. It has a great soothing effect on one of woman's most important organs!

Takes regularly — Pinkham's Compound helps build up resistance against such distress. Also a great stomachic tonic!

NOTE: Or you may prefer Lydia E. Pinkham's TABLETS with added iron.

Black Boom

By Paul David Preston

Mrs. Mayfield went to bed. Her condition, diagnosed by Dr. Watkins as "nervousness," was not critical, but it gave her a chance to gather her wits a little and it kept her from having to face the hundreds of gaping faces who gathered on her porch, her side lawn, even in her living room. The house was quite overrun at first by well-meaning friends. Even old Jason was on the verge of nervous exhaustion and the cook, Nora, quit her job and threatened to depart until Jason went personally and stopped her. He added some well chosen words to his chastisement of her. Jason Weems was a force in the Negro community here.

When the gusher, stopped, the Marshall street "river" of course ceased to flow. By Friday even the trees and shubbery had ceased to drip all although they were doomed to die from their drenching. Grass on the lower half of the lawn was gone forever. Grease and smell and generally repulsive "goopy nastiness" as Baby Doll Mayfield phrased it, dominated the once lovely estate. The goopy nastiness was tracked into the house, even upstairs into the cluttered bedrooms. The odor, slightly nauseating to refined sensibilities, was literally everywhere. Nora complained that her lard and her fried chicken and even her chocolate layer cakes tasted and smelled of "petroluum". It was all a thing to be borne.

Downtown, business had to be reorganized again.

The first oil field had been to the southwest of the town some miles from the Mayfield estate. Three or four derricks had crept into town on that side but the north and eastern sections had been inviolate until Mrs. Mayfield dared lease her ground. Now here was a new surge of activity, and within an hour after her gusher began "hot play" was rampant again. Leasing, buying, lending, making of money on paper deals, losing of money that might have been made, arguments, legal actions by the dozens, a few fist fights, all the hullabaloo of quick booming was repeated. Every inch of ground was now a potential gusher, people felt; to hell with sentiment, money madness gripped every one.

Shrewdly speculating again, Thad Monroe emerged in a few days as a virtual millionaire and helped his friend M. J. Parker make a small fortune too. Marin Deals still refused to touch any boom business. He held aloof, sullen, dazed by it all. Only the excitement his sane old court seemed forgotten by everyone except Martin himself, but in dim time it would show incorrably and he knew it.

It was on Saturday after the gushing was stopped that Jason found Mrs. Mayfield crying about the whole messy front lawn and the ugliness of her derrick. It wasn't the first time she had lamented all this, either. Jason was deeply interested. He too had been educated to despise dirt and untidiness. He knew what an offence it was to his beloved employer here.

At about 8 o'clock this Saturday night Jason left his home on the Mayfield estate and went down to Negro town, around the railroad depot. He hobbled and rocked past Gus Holleman's store and came on several colored gentlemen in front of a barber shop. He recognized all of them.

"Stop all of this mouth tawkin'," he ordered, pre-emptorily, "and git me some money outen yo' pockets."

"What for you wants money, Mistuh Weems?" one darky asked.

"Nemmind. You gimme a dollah, and right now."

"Uuh, uuh! You sho in a hurry!"

"I is. Gimme it."

"You aim to pay it back?"

"Maybe I does, maybe I doesn't. But you gimme it, else I tells what I knows."

"Aw, Mistuh Weems, you know I always got money fo' my frien's."

"All right. Say I is yo' frien' den. But gimme it."

Jason used out-and-out blackmail on half a dozen dark gents, and a more subtle and genuine friendliness on a few more. To those former he merely threatened to reveal certain of their past shady practices with which he was familiar. To the second group he pleaded brotherhood and directorial powers in certain lodges to which they all belonged. As a result he easily collected a pot of $1500 cash.

Next move was to order — not request — six husky colored men to meet him at a specific place next morning at sun up. Then he hobbled back to the store and commandeered Gus Holleman's automobile.

"Shucks, you knows you cain't drive no cah, Mr. Weems!" Gus tried smiling protest.

"I cain't, but you can. You drives me right now, Gus. I is in a righteous hurry."

"Uuh huhn! Is you! Well—" it is."

"My sto' needs me to stay—"

"You ain't got has no sto' til you gits in the pen. You dries me, now."

"Comin'."

They drove up town and Jason got out at the hardware store which also stocked assorted paints. He made Gus stay in the car but he himself rocked in. He had barely 10 minutes before 9 o'clock closing time.

"What you doing in here this time of night, Jason?" the store owner greeted him. "How's Mrs. Mayfield?"

"She right porely, suh? I needs some things."

"All right. Glad to sell you, Jason."

The purchases were soon completed. He made Gus carry them to the car. And while Jason stood on the sidewalk waiting for Gus, a white man slid his car into a space there and parked.

"Evening, Mr. Dallas, suh," Jason greeted, lifting his hat in courtesy.

"Good evening, Jason. How's things at home?"

"Well suh, they ain't good."

"No? How's Lillian? You need is she—?"

"Miss Lillian, she all right. Mostly. She ain't happy in the face, but she ain't down with no sickness."

"She really isn't happy, is she Jason?"

"No, suh, for a fack she ain't. Daggone me, I been tryin' figger out what all her, but this all mess, Mr. Dallas — whoosh!"

"I know, I know. It's sad, Jason, in a way."

Dal was turning his car keys idly and staring at the curb in thought. He looked tired, and indeed he had been extremely busy all day. Oil burners had made his practice a rushing one.

"Jason," he began anew, "I'm than 4s a wonderful girl."

"She sho' is, suh. Any young man be proud to marry up with her."

Dal grinned. "Are you suggesting it?"

"Suh?"

"You think maybe I might have a chance? Me?"

"Aw shucks, Mistuh Dallas! You knows Miss Lillian tuk to you right off. You gimme some money to keep you informed. I ain't forgot it. I tells you again now, you relax!"

"Hmmm. But I get blocked every time I try this town's too confounded busy, Jason. A man needs time to make love."

"He also do."

Dal changed the tack. He wanted to talk more about Lillian. The chance conversation here had stirred the yearning that stayed in him night and day. But it wasn't seemly just to talk about her with a colored man on a downtown street. He looked at the parcels Gus took out.

"That's Gus Holleman, isn't it? You and he buying things?"

"I is. Gus ain't."

"What you buying, Jason? If it's any of my business."

"My business always my friends' business, suh. That's mostly paint and mops."

"Paint?"

"Yes, suh."

"Hmmm." Dal thought to poke a little fun, maybe, in the invariable manner of a white man with negroes down south. "What color, Jason? Pink?"

"Naw suh, it's baby blue, suh." Jason was serious.

"Baby blue!" Dal's curiosity was up. "How much?"

"Fo gallons, suh."

"Judas gosh, Jason!" What are you going to do with four gallons of baby blue paint?"

"Nemmind, suh! Nemmind! I doesn't want no excitement!"

The old negro tipped his hat and hastened away with Gus them. Dal, half smiling still, watched their car depart. Jason was up to something.

But Dal's mind cut back immediately to Lillian. Lillian, Lillian. He walked up the street envisioning her. He saw her often when she brought charity cases up to his office — she had a heart, Dal knew, Lillian, you know that. Would it be asking too much — I mean, would you go horseback riding with me tomorrow morning? If I called early, at all 7 o'clock. It will be Sunday.

"I'm so sorry, Dal." There was that old restraint again. But then —— "I — oh, Dal, yes! Yes I will."

She suddenly changed her mind, with — I mean, would you go horseback riding with me tomorrow morning? If I called early, at all 7 o'clock. It will be Sunday.

Lillian had set her alarm clock for 6 a.m., but she was up by 5.30. She tip-toed down to the kitchen. She would feel better, stronger, if she ate something before leaving. Nora wasn't here yet but she found fruit in the refrigerator, and when she ate that she was still hungry.

Being hungry was an odd sensation. She was a trifle tingly this morning anyway; tingly and restful. She turned on the oven, toasted two pieces of bread, put slices of yellow cheese on them and put them back for a minute or two. Presently the cheese was melted so as to be runny and hot. She ate both pieces almost ravenously.

"Imagine!" she murmured. "I haven't wanted to eat for days and days!"

Jason Weems saw or heard her in the kitchen so he came in to investigate. Assured that she was well provided for, he eyed her closely a moment.

"You sholy does look bright this mawnin', Miss Lillian. You feel mo' better, ma'am!"

"Most tooth loss comes from gum troubles," say dentists.

FIGHT TOOTH DECAY AND GUM TROUBLES } BOTH!

New dentul research proves you can help prevent tooth decay as you guard your gums—this doubly-effective Ipana way!

DENTISTS SAY THE IPANA WAY PROMOTES HEALTHIER GUMS!

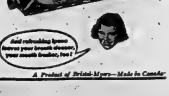
In thousands of recent reports from all over the country, dentists say the Ipana way promotes healthier gums. That's just as important as fighting decay, for dentists tell you can't have healthy teeth without healthy gums! Try this dentist-approved Ipana case—for healthier teeth and healthier gums both.

DENTAL RESEARCH SHOWS HOW IPANA FIGHTS TOOTH DECAY!

Scientific research based on daily dental examinations now proves that every time, any time you brush your teeth with Ipana, it helps fight tooth decay by effectively reducing and keeping down the acid-forming bacteria. No other paste or powder is more effective for this purpose. And Ipana helps remove bacteria-trapping deposits that invite decay.

Dentists warn that if you want to save your teeth, you must protect your teeth and gums both.

For not only does tooth decay cause untold misery and expense, Gum troubles cause even more tooth losses than decay, according to leading dental authorities. And gum troubles can strike anyone—even healthy youngsters and teen-agers—with little warning!



Now you and your family can help prevent tooth decay and gum troubles BOTH—with doubly-effective Ipana dental care.

For new dental research now proves that Ipana's own special formula effectively reduces and keeps down acid-forming bacteria—considered a major cause of tooth decay. Ipana fully meets these standards for an anti-decay dentifrice.

And more—Ipana is the only leading tooth paste specially designed to stimulate gum circulation—promote healthier gums.

IPANA for Both!

HEALTHIER TEETH, HEALTHIER GUMS

Add refreshing Ipana flavor to your brush shower, your mouth bucket, too!

A Product of Bristol-Myers—Made in Canada

HERE'S THE DENTIST-APPROVED IPANA WAY—EASY AS 1, 2:

The Ipana way is doubly-effective! 1. Between regular visits to your dentist, brush all tooth surfaces with Ipana after every meal. (Ipana's special decay-fighting formula helps prevent tooth decay—leaves teeth cleaner.) 2. Then massage gums the way your dentist advises. (Ipana's unique formula stimulates for circulation—promotes healthier gums.)

Liberals Retain Four Seats, Lose 3 in By-Elections

Progressive Conservatives Win in Greenwood Riding

Ottawa Oct. 25 (CP) — The Liberal government, a big winner in the June 27 general election, Monday gained four and lost three seats in eight federal by-elections.

The lights seat — Toronto Greenwood — retained by the Progressive Conservatives.

Of the Liberal losses were to Independent Liberals and the third to an independent. All three said during the by-election campaign that they would support the present government. However, they will not be recognized as supporters until they are invited to attend party caucuses.

The seats retained by the Liberals were Montreal Laurier, Montreal Mercier, Sherbrooke (Quebec), and New Westminster (British Columbia). The Independent Liberals carried Kamouraska (Quebec) and Restigouche-Madawaska (New Brunswick). The Independent took Montreal Papineau Cartier.

Eight of the 23 candidates lost their deposits of $200 required to enter federal contests.

Standing of the Commons: Liberals 193; Progressive Conservatives 41; C.C.F. 13; Social Credit 10; Independent five; Independent Liberal three; total 262.

After the general election, the standing was:

Liberals 193; Progressive Conservatives 41; C.C.F. 13; Social Credit 10; Independent four; Independent Liberal three; total 262.

Ask Newcomers But One

All of the winning candidates are newcomers to the Commons except J. M. Macdonnell, member for defeated Toronto Greenwood for the Progressive Conservatives.

He was the only defeated cattle in the last Commons, but lost in the general election to Bucko McDonald, former National Hockey League star and Liberal member-elect for Royal-Muskoka.

Mr. Macdonnell had a plurality of more than 2,100 over Percy Ryan, the Liberal candidate. Mr. Macdonnell polled 9,691 votes; Mr. Ryan, 7,285; Harvey Hotrum, C.C.F., 6,568; and Mrs. Louise Rowntree, Social Progressive, 1,384.

The seat became vacant by the death of J. H. McGregor, Progressive Conservative, who had a plurality of fewer than 200 votes over Mr. Ryan in the general election.

Mrs. Restigouche-Madawaska, P. L. Dube, 37-year-old locomotive engineer and an Independent Liberal, defeated Progressive Conservative Pichette, Liberal. a 40-year-old

DAHLIAS GROW HIGH

Peterborough, Oct. 25—(CP)—Ten-foot dahlias are 76-year-old Peterborough's pride, but he has to prune some to keep them from growing over the edge of the veranda railing. Mrs. Margaret Mc-Slavin has lived in his present home 40 years and spends his spare time growing flowers.

15-Below Fails to Daunt Hunters Of Gold Along Fabled Yukon River

By JACK DAUM

Fishwheel, Alaska, Oct. 25. — (AP)— Even sub-zero temperatures failed to stem the feverish activity along the fabled Yukon gold-rush camp.

Rumour that more nuggets had been found along the banks of the fabled Yukon River swept periodically through the settlement. But attempts to trace the finds proved fruitless.

Although the temperature is 15 below and still falling, many hardy prospectors have begun panning for the precious yellow stuff from their results it may be learned soon whether this gold rush is destined to be remembered along with the other famous ones of Alaska history. That is the opinion held by veteran gold seekers.

Activity up and down the river from last week's discovery for gold.

GRAZED FARMER WOUNDS TEN, THEN KILLS SELF

Goes on Mad Spree With Shotgun and Shoots Up Two Taverns

Waterford, Mich., Oct. 25—(AP)— A crazed, middle-aged farmer shot up two taverns Monday night, then killed himself after wounding 10 persons.

On a mad spree with a shotgun Joe Runyon, 57, terrorized the sleepy little resort village in a bragging account told to the world.

Two of his victims, both women, were critically wounded.

Tramping back and forth across a street, Runyon fired seven or eight shots from a 12-gauge shotgun through windows of the two taverns, witnesses said.

At the end of a violent 10 minutes, he walked a short distance up the street and fired a final charge through his own chest.

This was the last in a series of rapid reloadings. Runyon's gun was a single-shot weapon.

Reported in critical condition today were Mrs. Irene Zurawski, 27, and her mother-in-law, Mrs. Helen Pecilk, 50.

It was at the Zurawski family's small bar where Runyon made one attack.

Six persons were wounded there and another four at the bar of the Waterford Hotel across the street.

The shooting recalled the recent Camden, N. J., mass killing of 13 persons by Howard Unruh, a former service man who later was found insane.

Became Despondent

Police said evidently things had gone wrong recently with Runyon and he had become despondent.

At his farm house was found a note to his son, Joe, Jr., saying: "Take over, Joe. Dad's quit working (obscenity) 'em all."

Runyon was known as a quiet person. He had his daily farm chores in town and peddled his farm crops here.

"He told me he had had plenty of trouble," Mrs. Pecilk said. "He also told me 'if a man feels like he's going to die in his old age, he might just as well take a few people along with him.'"

Mrs. Rita Fowler, 30, grey-haired day bartender who escaped injury, said that during the night the shootings Runyon had complained that "three of my horses died and I lost $3,000."

SAILS FOR CANADA WITH GOATS

Montreal, Oct. 25 (CP) — Agents for the Admiralty, which learned today that Mrs. May Stansby of Adderbury, England, will sail for new home in Canada on Oct. 28 with 30 goats. Her ultimate destination is Vancouver Island.

Mrs. Stansby, 63, hopes to establish a goat-milk business on the west coast. She has been breeding highland goats since her husband died in 1946.

USED FIRST TIME

Port Dalhousie, Oct. 25—(CP) Volunteer firemen here raised $2,000 in a three-month period and bought a new ambulance for the town. The first time it was used came Sunday when the firemen brought home Mrs. Hare, public utilities manager, from St. Catharines General Hospital.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

Toronto Oct. 25 (CP)—Synopsis—Another cool day has moved across the prairies and is spreading into northwestern Ontario and by afternoon will be a band of light to moderate snow. Temperatures will be unseasonably far south as the lower lake regions but considerable cloudiness will be maintained with the arrival of the cooler air. Although temperatures were near freezing there will be a little milder tonight the current cool spell is due to continue for several more days.

GOVT. CONSIDERS WAYS OF HELPING SHIPPING TRADE

Devaluation Bars Immediate Aid

Ottawa, Oct. 25. — (CP) — The government is considering ways of helping Canada's sagging shipping industry, but the policy is not expected to take shape for at least several months.

Transport Minister Chevrier told the Commons Sunday night that a number of plans are being considered on how to bolster the vital shipping industry.

"I wish I could say what those plans are but I do not think it is in the public interest to do so," he said.

He was replying to questions asked by Conservative Leonard Jones (L-Halifax) during lengthy discussion of the transport department and Transport estimates.

Mr. Jones expressed concern about the east-coast shipping situation. Fewer and fewer ships were using Atlantic Coast ports and the effects were being felt all through the maritime economy.

Mr. Chevrier said he fully recognizes the seriousness of the shipping situation. But it wasn't a problem faced only by Canada. The same was true of every country in the world.

Increased cost of operation was one of the main difficulties, he said, and lack of freight and deterioration in freight rates. A third was devaluation.

Operating Costs High

Operating cost of a Canadian flagship was second only to the United States. The cost of constructing a ship in Canada was considerably higher than the United Kingdom.

Boy is Afraid To Come Home Or Go Anywhere

Sault St. Marie, Oct. 24—(CP)—Garry Rogers, nine-year-old schoolboy who ran away from his home here Friday, said today that he was "afraid to come home or go anywhere" after some other children had told him that he had cut off a little girl's finger.

Garry spent the night hiding under a verandah in bitter cold weather after he wandered home Monday night and was treated for exposure and lack of food.

The tale of the little girl's finger was not explained. The girl's foster father, Harold Hotson, said "he certainly had nothing to do with it" because he was not in any trouble."

"It was all in his mind. Those kids kidded him about the cutting off a girl's finger caused him a lot of trouble."

Garry said: "I crawled under a house several doors away. During the storm the other night I prayed to God that Mom would be all right and I knew that I was afraid of thunder and lightning."

With two glasses of water to sustain him, Garry decided to come home, ill from cold and lack of food. He was pulled up in the open arms. "I love Garry as if he were my own child," said Mrs. Nicholson.

National Service Comes Under Fire in Britain

By WILLIAM BOOS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Oct. 25. (CP)—The "call-up" which channels Britain's 18-year-old youths into the armed services for an 18-months' hitch, is under fire from many quarters.

Newspapers are devoting special articles, soldiers and politicians are writing letters to the editor and politicians are saying that it would be considered weak manpower without ensuring that the services are properly manned.

There is no indication, however, that the Labor party — traditionally anti-conscription in times of peace—is heeding the criticism and revising its manpower policies.

Britain, with less foreign commitments than pre-war despite her North Atlantic Pact and Western Union obligations, has more men under arms now than before in peacetime—770,000.

Her army and Air Force is disposed throughout the world of 400,000 soldiers, against 197,000 in 1938 when she had responsibility for India, Egypt and the colonial and Empire regulars and local garrisons in Palestine. The regular army numbers 184,000, the National Service men 213,000.

Each conscript is calculated to cost the country £500 ($1,550) and of his 18 months' service the first quarter is spent in basic and fully-trained soldier.

It is called a "wasteful" National Service period because every cut from 442,000 to more selective numbers—113,000, or 147,500,— 000 ($332,250,000) saved would enable the regular forces to make themselves more attractive to suitable recruits.

Finding of Relics May Solve Man's Disappearance

Kirkland Lake, Oct. 25. —(CP) —Police said today that parts of a packsack, a rubber boot and a human skull may be clues in the disappearance five years ago from Jamie Johnson, an elderly trapper.

They were found in the bush about 15 miles from here.

Johnson lived in an isolated cabin in that area for many years. He has not been seen since Oct. 20, 1944, when he left camp in the bush to tend his traps. He was carrying a new packsack.

Detective Sergeant Lancaster-mon, found the remains of a packsack, rotted by the years, a missing man's son, Carl aided by Provincial Police, started a search. They found the rest of the sack, including a buckle and strap, a rubber boot which a woodsmen said had been chewed by a porcupine.

Then the skull was led them to a piece of human skull.

Carl Johnson is continuing the grim search for clues to his father's fate.

Communist Gains In China May Be Discussed

Ottawa, Oct. 25—(CP)— The problems raised by Communist successes in China are expected to come under discussion today as Prime Minister Nehru of India moves through a program that will bring him in contact with cabinet leaders several times.

Informed sources said any talks with Pandit Nehru will be general. But the Red's request for recognition as a China ruler is an issue confronting both governments. As such, an official said, it probably will be discussed.

Both Ottawa and New Delhi have recalled their Ambassadors to Nationalist China in the face of the Red's request for recognition. Pandit Nehru told a press conference Monday the chairman of the Communist victories as an extension of Russian power, and could not be indorsed.

Mr. St. Laurent and Mr. Pearson will have the advantage of advice from Canada's Ambassador to Nationalist Tien, C. C. Davis who arrived here Monday.

Blow-Out Causes Car to Overturn, Injures Three Men

North Bay, Oct. 25—(CP)—Cpl. Harry Morel of the Provincial Police at Timagami near here said today that examination indicated a tire blow-out caused a car to turn over to overturn on No. 11 Highway Monday night, when three Montreal men were injured.

The driver, Rene Landerville, 25, is in hospital here with a broken leg, bruises and shock. His two companions, Gerald Richard, suffered bruises and shock. The car was wrecked as it careened seventy-five feet down the highway, struck a rock wall and overturned.

C.N.R. Operating Revenue Higher

Montreal, Oct. 25. Operating revenues for the Canadian National Railways, all lines, for the month of September 1949, amounted to $44,745,000. Operating expenses were $40,749,000. The net operating revenue was $3,993,000. In September 1948 revenues were $43,843,000. Expenses $39,-070,000 and the net operating revenue $4,773,000.

These figures are the operating revenues and expenses only and they do not include taxes, equipment rentals and fixed charges.

C. of C. Predicts Dangers Ahead For Canadians

Prosperous Country Pictured in Report

Montreal, Oct. 25 — (CP) — A picture of a prosperous Canada, but one which must face the dangers of changing conditions was given today in the report of the Chamber of Commerce to its annual meeting.

It was given to some 800 delegates from 10 provinces, the largest gathering in the Chamber's 24-year history, as the three-day sessions got underway.

Signed by A. C. Everidge, of Toronto, chairman of the executive, and D. L. Morrell, of Montreal, executive secretary, it had links to any of the national business scene since last October's meeting in Vancouver:

"Business statistics have presented what would normally be a reassuring picture of stable conditions in this country. In the United States, industrial production dropped about 15 per cent from October and November, to July of this year. During the same period, Canadian industrial production moved only a fraction of one per cent.

Retail Sales Gain

"Retail trade sales have continued to gain. The value of our export shipments has been at record levels, and capital expenditures for the year promise to far exceed those of 1948. Wholesale prices have declined only slightly, with the last figure showing no change in the price of Canadian farm products since last October.

"Canadians have been fortunate indeed.

"It must be realized, however, that the hope which has been supporting the boom are not altogether permanent, ones. They must be replaced. How quickly it is unlikely that consumer purchasing will be much longer by the pent-up demands which accumulated during the war and the period of post - war shortages.

No Reduction Likely

"It is improbable that income taxes can continue to be reduced, nor will refundable taxes and special payments to farmers for previous good crops have a recurring, stimulating effect on business generally. The consequence of these influences may be that the rate of future development of this country will take up much of the slack. Yet a reduction can scarcely be looked for.

The report said "devaluation of sterling and other currencies more aggravates our export problems. This has been offset in small measure only by the 10 per cent devaluation of our own currency. Therefore, business must be prepared to adopt the most flexible policies to meet this and the other adverse effects of readjustment of our longer-term destiny".

INQUEST FINDS 'DEGREE OF CARELESSNESS'

Saint John, N.B., Oct. 25. (CP)—At an inquest Monday night into the death of Raymond J. Hebert, 19, the jury found "a degree of carelessness" by Sheldon Elliott, 18, and recommended that his driving licence be cancelled for five years. The hunting fatality occurred Saturday at Lepreau when Elliott shot Hebert.

Ticket Winners Can Dream Can't They?

Hamilton, Oct. 25. (CP)— If Ted King's Irish Sweepstakes ticket pays off he will soon be living in a castle in the Highlands in Clydebank, Scotland.

Ted, 33-year-old plasterer, who came to Canada in August, 1948, holds a ticket on Lusignuel Irish Sweepstakes entry.

He says if it wins he will go home and buy himself his own castle and a sister, then build or buy a house for them.

Torquay, (CP)—James Wixson, 22, stenographer, has a ticket in the Irish Sweepstakes on Laverstroke, 100 to 1 shot in the Grand National Steeplechase, but he's not daunted by the odds.

"If the good Lord saw fit to pick my ticket out of 30,000,000 others then that horse can't be a dog," Wixson said today. "At least he's a runner."

If Wixson holds any of the top prizes, he'll still collect close to $500 and the money will go on Laverstroke.

TWO PASSENGER TRAINS CANCELLED

St. Thomas, Oct. 25.—(CP)—As a result of the United States coal strikes, two through passenger trains have been cancelled on the Canadian National Railways' Canadian division between Detroit and Niagara, it was announced here today. The order is effective tonight.

Priests Allowed To Take Salaries From Czech Govt.

Oath Taken Must Not Violate Conscience or Church Laws

By NATE PLOWETZKY

Prague, Oct. 25.—(CP)—Czechoslovakian Roman Catholic Bishops told their priests today they may accept salaries from the Communist Government and swear loyalty to it—to stay out of jail.

But the Bishops told the priests to make these reservations:

In swearing allegiance to the "People's Democratic Regime" and taking the oath to support the creative effort aiming at the welfare of the Czech and Slovak people", priests are to add the words: "Unless it is in contradiction to the laws of God and the sacred the rights of man.

In taking salaries from the government, priests are to declare they do so without assuming "any obligation which would violate my conscience as a priest nor the church laws."

Avoid Arrest and Persecution

The Catholic bishops stated they recognized the recent enactment of the Government's Church Control Law as a violation of church rights.

But the bishops added they were allowing the priests to swear to it "in order, I think, in many cases to say that a correspondent should not be arrested in individual cases she wife 'makes the running' just as much as the correspondent."

Hunt Poachers Who Fired Blast At Trapper

Kirkland Lake, Oct. 25 — (CP) — Police are hunting two poachers who fired a shotgun blast at Mike Petro, a trapper, when he stumbled on their camp here. They had used dynamite to smash a beaver dam on his trapping ground 30 miles north of here.

The pond above the dam was drained by the blast, leaving four beaver houses high and dry. A number of beaver traps were found on the shore about a mile from the dam.

Petro said he thinks he heard the dynamite explosion. He was about a mile away when he saw two men. One raised a shotgun, fired at him and fled with his companion.

Ill-Treated Wife Easy Victim Says British Judge

London, Oct. 25 — (Reuters) — A British Justice warned today that a wife ill-treated by her husband "will fall the deadliest prey to a seducer."

Concluding a divorce hearing in which he adjudged a former games-mistress guilty of adultery, granted a divorce decree to her husband and gave him custody of their two children, Mr. Justice Pilcher asked:

"What is the value of this wife."

Then he said that impact of a "would-be adulterer upon any marriage must vary by infinite gradations."

"Wives who are completely happy and in love with their husbands will always repulse a colorable suitor, I think, in many cases to say that a correspondent should not be arrested in individual cases she wife 'makes the running' just as much as the correspondent."

C. of C. Greatest Potentials For Good Ever Devised States Birks

Montreal, Oct. 25 — (CP) — Henry O. Birks of Montreal has travelled 50,000 miles in the last year in the course of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce.

As president he has been from Atlantic to Pacific, visiting scores of the more than 600 boards of trade and local chambers which are members.

Today he told them what he thinks of them and what he thinks is their task. In an address to their delegates at the chamber's annual meeting he said:

"We have one of the greatest potentials for good this has ever been evolved.

"We have thousands of leading citizens of all sizes of communities working together unselfishly and unsparingly to promote the civic, commercial, industrial and agricultural progress of the areas which these organizations serve.

"We hear much talk of subversive cells, but they are as nothing compared with the strong, vigorous, and active cells which constitute the Chamber of Commerce movement — "

Mr. Birks added:

"It is my firm and sincere belief that the great threat of the age to all peoples, Canadians included, is not the threat of war or the threat of revolution, but the slow, insidious undermining of the vitality, initiative and enterprise which the free economic process has been happening even here in this country in many ways . . .

WOMAN SAYS THREE MEN BEAT AND ROBBED HER

Saint John, N.B., Oct. 25.— (CP)— Mrs. May Elliott, 52 a widow, told police Monday night three unidentified men beat and robbed her after she accepted an offer of a ride in their car. She said she was thrown into a ditch after the assaults took her wrist watch, two gold bracelets, a billfold containing $8 and some personal papers.

Wide Uses for Plastics, History of Development Outlined to Kinsmen Club

The wide range of uses for plastics and the history of their development was told to members of the Kinsmen Club during an at their regular dinner meeting Monday evening. Guest speaker was John Buchan, General works manager for Bakelite.

The story essentially was that of the Bakelite Company of Canada Ltd which is now getting into production at their new plant just east of Belleville.

According to the speaker the history of synthetic resins and plastics dated back to 1837 but the discovery of the basic materials, discarded his find as merely a scientific curiosity with no practical use. It remained as a curiosity until early in the present century when a Belgian chemist learned how to stop the chemical reaction thus permitting the resins to be moulded into useful products.

Canadian Branch in 1919

The Canadian branch of the industry dated back to 1919 but lack of volume and of markets retarded the business in this country.

But today all this had changed. Today the main ingredients for chemistry and from synthetic resins a wide range of articles were manufactured from them. Among these were electrical insulating equipment, household and industrial products and a long list of articles.

Phenol, or carbolic acid and formaldehyde are stated to be the basis of synthetic resins manufactured by Bakelite, the company made only the basic product which was sold to customers, who manufactured their own finished articles.

Sold in Liquid Form

Some of the resins were sold in liquid form, also being used as a binder for glass wool insulation, in the manufacture of plywood and as a cement in the construction of electric light bulbs. It was also sold as an ingredient for the manufacture of varnishes.

Greatest use for the synthetic resins was in the form of moulding compounds. The compound was poured into the mould, pressure was applied, the compound liquifies and then hardens completing the chemical reaction.

One of the first uses for the product was in the manufacture of distributor heads for internal combustion engines. No other product had the insulation qualities, strength and long standard durability. This early use of plastics as an insulator was the forerunner of many other uses as an electrical insulator.

The Bakelite Company Ltd, of Canada did not choose Belleville as the location of their new plant merely by accident.

Had All Requirements

A high percentage of their Canadian market is within a 100 mile radius of Toronto and Montreal and therefore Belleville is ep'-dient; they needed pleasant surrounding for their employees, they need huge quantities of water and railway and highway transportation. The Belleville location had all these requirements.

Their new plant was the most modern in North America. It has boilers capable of developing 50,000 pounds of steam per hour and its water pumping capacity was three-and-a-half-million gallons per day. "We don't use that capacity at present but we are looking into the future," said Mr. Buchan.

In the foreseeable future the company would employ from 150 to 175 persons with about 35 per cent of the key personnel being brought in from outside. The balance of the personnel would be hired locally.

Has Own Sewage Disposal

Constructed outside the city limits in Thurlow township, the plant had its own sewage disposal and the speaker assured there would be nothing objectionable in the operation of the plant. If some of the carbolic acid used in the manufacturing process got into the bay it would act only as a disinfectant. "From what I understand there is not enough disinfectant used in the bay," he laughed.

Club president Ernie Colebourne presided over the meeting with the guest speaker being introduced by Kin Norm Garbutt.

Rotarians Hear Talk on Wills By Trust Officer

"Procrastination seems to be a disease when considered with regards to a will", stated K. C. Morris, Estates Officer for the Ontario General Trust Corp., speaking at the weekly luncheon of the Rotary Club of Belleville held in the Hotel Quinte on Monday.

He said that most people thought that they should have a large estate before a will was necessary. Mr. Morris pointed out this was not true. He declared that most people accumulate a will to ensure proper and less costly distribution of the estate.

He emphasized that a solicitor should be consulted on all matters pertaining to wills.

In conclusion he asked two questions: "Have you reviewed your will in the past three years Does it suit present circumstances?"

Early indications are that the club's Christmas Children's Fund is going to get quite a boost when the returns are in from the sale of tickets for the Ballet Intime ballet Volkoff Ballet which is to be shown on Thursday, November 3. Tickets have been distributed to the club members and may be purchased from any Rotarian.

Accused Given Eighteen Months For Car Theft

Pleading guilty last Friday to a charge of auto theft and appearing today for sentence John W. Butts, 27, of Centreville, was sentenced by Magistrate T. Y. Wills to 18 months in jail.

Police Inspector Claire Hayes in giving summary evidence stated Butts had ridden to Belleville from Ottawa on Oct. 15th, with a man from Niagara Peninsula and later the same night borrowed the car to visit friends of the city. He had not brought the car back.

When car was reported stolen Butts was arrested Sunday evening at a farm at Centreville, north of Napanee and was brought back to Belleville to stand trial.

The accused has a lengthy record and was asked by he wanted in two other centres, one of the charges being car theft.

George Acker, Montreal, was remanded for sentence after pleading guilty to having burglars tools in his possession. He pleaded guilty to trespassing on C.N.R. property when apprehended the accused had several rings of keys in his possession.

Rev. D.C. Amos Opens Speaking Course at 'Y'

Before a keenly interested mixed group, representing a wide strata from the city's population, Rev. Don Amos opened the Y.M.C.A. Effective Speaking Workshop Monday evening. His topic was "Confidence in Life" and in "Speech," and his presentation was gracious, witty, and very practical.

Mr. Amos told his enthusiastic audience that "The real issue of freedom today is being worked out by the communication of living speech". He warned against underestimating the spoken word, emphasizing that speech is one of the greatest gifts bestowed to us, that it is a necessity to the satisfaction of truth and is related to the consciousness of personal power.

Chairman of the Workshop was Bill Brown, program secretary of the Y.M.C.A. He extended a warm welcome to the group and expressed the hope that the course would be richly rewarding, not only in public speaking but in the wider spheres of human relations and personality development.

All Take Part

The members of the Workshop were all given an opportunity to speak briefly. Interesting and many excellent impromptu speeches were heard. While many showed a little nervousness, the speeches were all "honest and sincere". Rev. Don Amos said in his final summing up of the evening.

Mr. Amos remarked in his fine address that "effective speech is more than having all the physical attributes of the right system. An effective speech comes from the development of the inner confidence behind the vocal cords." The speaker emphasized the fact that "effective speech can not be made when a person tries to be someone else. It doesn't hold. Speaking dare not be artificial," Mr. Amos said.

Three Steps Explained

Three steps in the development were considered, effective speech were put forward by Don Amos. First, keep in step with the inevitable and don't try the impossible. Second, a composed humility is the mood out of which real confidence grows. Third, confidence is gained when the subject chosen gives the speaker a mission, something vital to say, some burning idea to present.

Next Monday evening in the west Side room of the Y.M.C.A. the Effective Speaking Workshop will again meet, with Edward Rowbotham as the social speaker. This Y.M. C.A. educational course is still open for new members. Anyone interested may obtain further information from Bill Pope at the Y.M.C.A.

Miss E. Bawden Wins Blankets

Miss Ethel Bawden, 58 South John Street, proved herself to be the best guesser in the Walker Stores Ltd, contest held in connection with the "Enjoy Shopping in Belleville" week, held last week. Contestants were required to guess the time it would take to melt a large cake of ice placed in the store, in the centre of which was frozen a Kenwood blanket.

Actual time for the cake of ice to melt was 84 hours, 38 minutes and 47 seconds and the closest guess was that of Miss Bawden who estimated the required time as 84 hours, 37 minutes and 20 seconds. Miss Bawden will receive a pair of Kenwood blankets as her prize.

In view of the closeness of the guessing two other prizes of a towel set were awarded. The towel sets will go to Kenneth Cannon, 80 South Front Street, who guessed 84 hours, 15 minutes and 15 seconds; and to Mrs. L. Young, 393½ Front Street, who guessed 84 hours, 19 minutes and 40 seconds.

The selection of the prize winning guesses was made by Fred Barton of the Ontario Intelligencer advertising staff and Mr. R. Best, manager of Walker Stores.

Autumn Tanginess in Air When Temperature Slips to 24, Garden Truck Bows to Frost

It couldn't last forever.

The mild pre-Indian Summer weather, that has been prevailing for the past two weeks, looks as though it has had its fling.

Yesterday a reluctant weather man predicted that the mercury would fall to 25 degrees, or seven degrees below freezing. He was just one degree off perfect. According to the official thermometer at the purification plant here, the temperature slumped to 24 degrees sometime during the night, rising to 27.5 at eight o'clock this morning.

But don't go away yet. There is more sad news, if the weatherman is correct in today's predictions. He says that tonight occasional rain or snow will be in order, but the temperature will rise to between 40 and 50, Wednesday, he goes on, will be cloudy and cool.

Last night in the city, oil furnace thermostats clicked and shovels clanged in coal-heated households. It was the coolest night experienced thus far and a late Autumn tanginess under overcast skies greeted the early-morning working populace.

Late garden truck bowed before the first onslaught of the Jack Frost legions and in many vegetable gardens black-withered vines are all that remain of the season's tomato vines.

While frost covered roofs and grass with their first wintry mantle and in many parts of the district as well as the city the first natural ice of the season was apparent.

In the Bayside district, residents broke ice in tubs and pails that was well over one-quarter inch thick.

Obituary

CALVIN F. INSLEY

Ficton—A pioneer resident of Prince Edward County, Calvin P. Insley, passed away at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Carrie Johnson, The Goulet, on Wednesday, Oct. 19. He was in his 93rd year. He had been confined to bed for the past six weeks, but until recent years had been active for one of his years. He was born at West Lake, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Insley. The family moved to Cherry Valley, and for the past 35 years he had resided at the Outlet. He was a farmer and a fisherman. He was a member of the United Church and formerly a member of the Foresters. He had many interesting recollections of Alton Township for many years.

Survivors are a son, Philip Insley, a daughter, Mrs. Carrie Johnson, and a sister, Mrs. Sam Tuttle. His wife passed away twelve years ago, October 22.

The funeral was held from Salmon Point Church on Friday with Rev. W. C. Lewis delivering a message of hope and comfort. Mr. Clifford Partington sang a lovely solo. There were many beautiful floral tributes. Interment was in Cherry Valley cemetery. Pall bearers being Clinton Green, Percy McConnell, Stanley Rankin, Kenneth Johnson, Arthur Johnson, Jetson Brooks.

JAMES CROSBIE

White's District—The funeral of Mr. James Crosbie was held at the chapel of the Thompson Air Station on Saturday afternoon. A large number of relatives and friends attended the service there and at White's Cemetery which was conducted by the Rev. C. P. Bayside circuit, the Rev. A. C. McCallum assisted by Flight Lieutenant W. Rogers of the RCAF, Trenton.

The large floral tribute testified to the esteem in which the deceased was held in the district where he resided and at the air station where he worked as a civilian.

BIRTHS

MURRAY — Mr. and Mrs. Harvey B. Murray, 92 Hamilton Road, are happy to announce the arrival of their daughter at Belleville General Hospital, Saturday, October 22, 1949.

DEATHS

KNIGHT — At the home of his son, Mr. Reuben Knight, 4th. concession of Sidney township, on Sunday, October 23rd, 1949, Gideon Knight in his 90th. year. Resting at the Thompson Funeral Home, 44 Victoria Avenue, Church Street, until late Tuesday afternoon, then at his late residence at the above address, whence the funeral will be held on Wednesday afternoon, Oct. 26th, to the Stone United Church for service and interment. Stone Church Cemetery.

Three Injured In Accident West of City

Three people were admitted to Belleville General Hospital shortly after 11 o'clock today suffering from injuries sustained in a car-truck accident near the Riley Farm Hill on the Trent Road west of the city.

The injured are, Mrs. Henry Chatterton, head injuries and fracture of the left wrist; Miss Audrey McGuire, shock, bruises and lacerations, and Spencer Farquhar, head injuries with a possible wrist fracture. All reside in Carleton.

The injured people were taken to hospital by Bush's ambulance.

According to reports from the scene of the accident, the car in which the injured people were riding, driven by Farara had been waved down by road-construction employees, who were working at the spot.

Without to go ahead again, it was struck by an approaching truck which is alleged to have had faulty brakes. The identity of the truck and driver was not immediately available.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Oct. 25—CP—Market leaders led a scattered list of industrials into higher ground as the session progressed on the Toronto Stock Exchange today.

Golds continued Monday's advance, but at a much slower pace and Base Metals weakened following recent strong advances. Western Oils brightened for the second successive session.

Volume for the first four hours was 637,000 shares, about 91,000 shares less than Monday's similar period.

Refining oils were brisk and higher in industrials. Imperial Oil and McColl added fractions to touch new highs. Utilities also advanced and food and banks firmed. Steels made little headway in a mixed list and textiles slipped. Canada Cement sold at a new high at 31 1-2 in a higher constructing group.

Junior gold producers continued the advance started Monday in golds. Seniors were mixed. Gains ranged up to five cents in juniors.

Base Metals gave way to profit-taking on recent gains. Steep Rock Iron Mines went against the trend for a strong gain at a new high at 32 09.

Calgary and Edmonton added 20 cents at a new top at $7.50 in Western Oils Much of Monday's steam in Pacific Petroleum had disappeared and the price tended lower.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

Toronto, Oct. 25 — (CP) Prices were steady on top grade weighty steers, fed yearlings, bulls and stockers in trading on the Toronto livestock market this morning. Receipts reported by the Dominion Marketing Service were: cattle, 77; calves, 350; hogs, 425; sheep and lambs, 300. Left from yesterday's close were 3,500 cattle.

Common to medium butcher cattle were slow to move at weak prices. Common to medium weighty steers were $16-$21.50 with a few choice at $23. Good light steers $18-$20.50 with common to medium selling downward to $16. Good heifers sold from $18-$19.50. Common heifers were as low as $15.50. Good butcher cows were $14-$14.50 with extreme tops of $15. Good weighty bulls ranged $16-$16.75. Common to medium bulls sold downward to $13. Fed yearlings were $20-$23 according to quality. Good stockers brought $18.50-$19 with common selling downward to $14.

Calves were steady at $25-$30 for choice veals and lambs. Plain to medium sold downward $18. A few choice quality sold as high as $28.50. Good light steer selling $10-$11.50 with culls as low as $8.

Extra Good Bond Sales Surprise Bank Officials

Ottawa, Oct. 25 (CP)—Bank of Canada officials, frankly surprised, reported today that Canada Savings Bonds are selling more than twice as quickly as they did last year.

In the first five days the fourth series of the bonds were on sale, the bank announced, sales have totalled $50,883,500. Last year, sales of the third series were $27,199,950 during approximately the same period. There were 207,136 sales, averaging $289.50 each.

Officials said it doesn't necessarily mean sales will continue at that rate. The bonds went on sale Oct. 17 and for a three-week period.

Ontario Pension Officials Study Old Age Pension Problems In Belleville and Hastings

Chairman of the Ontario Old Age Pensions Commission, Bishop N. Asbury, and James Band, executive assistant to Minister of Welfare William Goodfellow, arrived in the city last night with Mr. Elmer Sandercock, M. A. Hastings West.

The government officials are in the city to investigate certain Old Age Pension problems of the city and county.

One of the busiest men in his department, and who is in charge of all Old Age Pensions in the province Mr. Asbury said that Ontario at the present time has 80,000 pensioners with 3,000 on the waiting list.

Although still a young man, Mr. Asbury has been with the Department of Welfare for the past 16 years. Five years ago he took over the chairmanship of the Old Age Pension Commission. Previous to that he served on various departmental phases of welfare in the province. He received his "apprenticeship", he said, during the dark days of the early '30's, travelling throughout Northern Ontario in connection with relief projects.

Mr. Asbury and Mr. Band expect to conclude their business in the city today and return to Toronto late tonight.

Jail Sentences Handed Out for Thefts, Receiving From York Trading Co.

Appearing today for sentence after pleading guilty last Friday to theft of groceries from the York Trading Company, grocery wholesalers, seven former employees of the firm were remanded by Magistrate T. Y. Wills from one to three months in jail.

Two other persons charged with receiving stolen goods were sentenced to one and two months in jail.

One month sentences were given to Kenneth Robinson, Elmer Dafoe, Garth Andrews, Reginald Adams and Reginald Bullpitt, while Melvin Robinson was given two months and Wilbur Sherry three months in jail. Mrs. Nina Sharpe, charged with receiving, was sentenced to two months. Frank Brough, of Thomasburg grocer, to one month. The two last named also pleaded guilty on Friday and were remanded for sentence.

Crown Attorney

Harry Sharpe, charged with receiving, had his case enlarged to November 14th., while Arthur Kleinsteuber of Sulphide, also charged with receiving, pleaded not guilty and had his case enlarged to early in November.

In passing sentence on the nine persons Magistrate Wills noted that there had been nothing in the evidence to indicate that the thefts had extended beyond those covered in the charges. Value of stolen goods covered in the charges was comparatively small but it was regretted prior to the hearing that several thousand dollars worth of goods were involved.

Should Act as Deterrent

To the magistrate referred to the young ages of those charged with theft and noted that those charged with receiving were older and thus should have had more sense and judgment. However, he said, the punishment should act as a deterrent to others.

The magistrate referred to the previous unblemished reputation of all persons appearing for sentence and noted that any term of imprisonment would bear heavily upon them.

White's United Church Observes 108th Anniversary

Whites District — The 108th anniversary of the founding of Whites' Church was fittingly observed in special services last Sunday. The church was beautifully decorated with autumn flowers and fruits, potted chrysanthemums and potted ivy, centred by a large basket of mixed chrysanthemums placed in tribute to the memory of the late Joseph Meggison by his sisters, Mrs. A. McGee of Stirling and Mrs. Cunningham of California. The church was well filled for both services, with many visitors from surrounding districts being present.

The Rev. W. G. Fletcher of Wooler United Church was the guest speaker. The messages at both services were inspiring and challenging. At the morning service the choir under leadership of Mrs. Floyd Dudley with Mrs. W. A. Jeffrey at the piano rendered anthems and Mrs. Clare Miller of Belleville was guest soloist. At the evening service Mrs. Stewart of Trenton was soloist. The music was a distinct contribution to the success of the anniversary. The Rev. A. C. McCallum took the services on the Wooler circuit but was able to be present at the evening service. There was a thank-offering which was gratifying to all and who had worked to make the anniversary a success.

History of the Church

White's Church holds an important place in the life of the community. It takes its name from the original landowner, Mr. Reuben White, who sold the property to the following trustees, John Gilbert, Philip Carman, Caleb Gilbert, John Bradshaw, Henry Goldsmith and James Chisholm, trustees of the Methodist Episcopal Church in Canada, "for the sum of two hundred pounds of lawful currency of this province" this is part of the original deed, which was written by hand). The present church was built on this land. The lot is about one-half acre.

Mention should be made of such pioneers as Captain William Meyers, William Ketcheson, George Smith, Miss Ann White, and Douglas White all of whom were active supporters of the church.

The present church organization is made up of several departments including Sunday School, Young People's Union, Women's Association and Young Men's Missionary Society. The official board is composed of the following members—Messrs. Clifton Rush, W. A. Jeffery, G. H. Sayles, Walter Jones, Frank Sandercock, H. G. DeMille, F. G. Meyers, Cecil Jeffery, Ritchie Ketcheson, F. Dudley (treasurer), and Lorne Hunt (secretary). The Rev. A. C. McCallum is pastor.

SAVE OLD TOWN

Windsor, England (CP)—Windsor town council has set up a special committee to consider ways and means of preserving the old part of the town built around the castle.

READY-MADE FARMS

Molde, Norway (—(CP)— An experiment to provide 1,000 Norwegian homesteaders with ready-made, modern farms is in progress near here. The project includes the clearing and developing of 40-acre farms with houses erected and soil tilled, ready for new owners to start planting.

OUTPOST HEARD FROM

New Delhi (CP)— Telegraph links with India's northernmost telegraph outpost at Leh in snowbound Ladakh, have been restored. Communications between India and Ladakh were paralyzed when tribal raiders overran Ladakh about two years ago.

HISTORIC BELL

Quebec (CP)— A bell made in France in 1666 and believed to be the oldest in Canada has been placed in Quebec's Provincial Museum. It was originally used in the first chapel at nearby Beauport and was last used in a village school at Montmagny.

YUGOSLAVIA ASSEMBLY CHOICE

United Nations organization has shown a spirit which has never doubted. It has by its General Assembly shown Russia what the organization means. It has rejected the proposal of the Soviet to elect Czechoslovakia as a member of the Security Council. Instead it has chosen for the seat Yugoslavia, which though Communist under the guidance of Marshall Tito has refused to bend itself to Soviet domination. The result of the action of the Assembly is seen as furnishing incentive to posing greater independence among the states which are under Moscow's dictates.

A writer in the New York Times says that the decision of the General Assembly adds additional stimulus to the creeping disaffection that now rends the Soviet bloc and threatens the new Russian empire. He feels that Russia shows no sign of bolting the United Nations and remarks that she may try to hamstring the Security Council by invoking the veto, but that any major action by the Council requires the affirmative votes of all the members and then boycotting the meeting or abstaining from a vote.

The United Nations is now four years old and has had in that brief space of time many very heavy problems, such as no body in history has been called upon to face. There has been a world of experience learned through these four years and world consciousness of the need of security was never so much felt nor were men ever so pronounced in their stand that nations must live together in peace and harmony.

WEEKEND STORY OF ACCIDENTS

Traffic accidents, that now very familiar form of injury and fatality, led all the other forms of fatalities over the weekend. In at least ten fatalities according to early reports seven persons lost their lives in traffic on the highways.

Tragically enough week after week the story is told of lives crushed out on the roads and streets. The greatness of this loss is easily realized for motor accidents cause not only deaths, but very serious injuries and also heavy financial losses.

Highway accidents of a fatal character make hard reading for those who travel the highways for it has often been pointed out the chief cause is the human element. If that could be controlled sufficiently, the losses of life on the roads would be greatly cut and Mondays need not tell a story of tragic accidents in any part of the country.

While much publicity given motor driving by the highways departments of the various provinces, the pattern of accidents is clearly enough shown. That is the reason the departments gather and give out the detailed summary of the causes so that those who drive may perhaps come to see in the accidents some of the factors at work causing any and every motorist.

Placing responsibility upon each driver to carry out the law of the use of the road for the sake of preventing the causes of accidents, with their toll of death and injury, is the step taken by the highway department to save lives.

HARD SEATS IN CHURCH

Rev. C. Fraser Kierstad of Fitchburg, Mass., has drawn attention to himself by drawing attention to the "numbing and tiring" pews in churches. This native of Nova Scotia did something which gave him a new experience, he says in an organization, heard a sermon preached and decided that as far as his experience showed, pews were hard, and sermons should not last longer than twenty minutes.

Noting his utterances, the Windsor Star records its wonder who was responsible for the rigidity of the seats in the church and says: "It must have been someone who had an idea that discomfort and Christianity are inseparable and that a Christian must do penance even when absorbing more Christianity." It says that the large pews with high enclosures came in after the Reformation, that they were called variously known as "horse-boxes" and now have almost completely disappeared. The modern pew is just a bench with a back, neither the seat nor the back conforming to the contour of the human body, says the Star, and adds:

"It may be the designers of church pews were determined that none who use them ever should go to sleep in the midst of a sermon. If so, this objective has been attained except in the case of one fortunate enough to be able to sleep anywhere and in any position."

Sincerity is the indispensable ground of all conscientiousness, and by consequence of all heartfelt religion.—Bushnell.

JUST FOLKS

ANNOYANCE

It is annoying, day by day,
To have a child run from play
And spoil the rugs with muddy feet.
It is annoying, I repeat,
To have to clean the place once more,
Yet, that seems what a mother's for.

It's maddening, beyond a doubt,
To find your best tools worn out
To build somewhere a wooden shack,
And where they should be, not put back.
Yet, where go boys the tools to know,
As every father ought to

It would be better when you
"Upstairs! It's time to go to bed,"
If willingly the children went
Without a word or argument.
Yet, papa and I should surely
To bed no youngster wants to go.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

TOGETHER

No one of us can give too much time to the considerations of ourself in connection with others as a unit, for the world is going to be a happier and more co-operative world. I came across a sentence the other day that read little book. "Peace of Mind", by the late Joshua Liebman. Liebman is a doctor of souls. A lone human being is a destroyer of values; a related human being is the soulful center of individual and social peace."

We are of the substance of others. There is no getting around this fact. We have the blood of generations of human beings within us, and their characteristics as well. I wonder if this last is the reason why we are attracted to some people more than others. Perhaps it is the call of the blood, the secret yearning for the hearing of a familiar voice though we may not suspect that it may be a touch of ourselves, a bit of our own personality.

We want peace in the world. The people want it. All over the world is this cry for peace by the ones who have to fight wars—and pay for them. Then why can't we get together and demand peace, rather than to depose or happy progress without it. There are laws that disarm the world. Then why can't there be laws to disarm those nations bent upon war solely for the profits gained thereby? Not until we have a world government by which we can learn to hope for permanent peace. Together is the key—for all those who oppose war.

I have read where it stated that Henry D. Thoreau was asked just before his death, to make his peace with God. Thoreau's reply was that they had never quarreled! You don't quarrel with people with whom you have pleasant relations.

That is a happy home where all within it live together to make it thus. It's the same with a business organization or a baseball team. You will note that after one team in a—baseball game has won, its members immediately congratulate one another! Working happily together in any organization, or on any task, is always an inspiring experience. You feel like repeating the phrase: "Let's pull together."

ONLY THREE ITEMS TO SELL

Toronto, Oct. 25.—(CP)—Restaurant owners have only three items to sell—good food, absolute cleanliness and courtesy, George F. Heckman of Montreal, Canadian Restaurant Association president, told the Toronto branch Monday night. Hospitality, he added, was the theme of the Association's fifth annual convention "and it seems to me . . . it was promptly forgotten in eastern Canada."

MODERN CENTENARIAN

Oxcart and horse-and-buggy days are over and now 101-year-old Mrs. Jemima Bowie of Stratford is eagerly looking forward to flying. One of the oldest women in Canada and probably the oldest Negro in the Dominion, Mrs. Bowie marked her 101th birthday recently. Born in Sullivan Township, she lived most of her life in Owen Sound, moving to Stratford three months ago.—(CP Photo.)

Car-Ferry Service Not Paying Way Says Transport Minister

Ottawa, Oct. 25 (CP)—People are travelling more by highway and less by ship and that's a pity for it may mean the end of the car-ferry service between Cobourg, Ont., and Rochester, N.Y.

The car - ferry service is no longer paying its way, Transport Minister Chevrier said Monday night in the Commons during consideration of supplementary estimates. He was replying to F. G. Robertson (L—Northumberland).

"People want to move fast," he said, "they don't use ships as much as they used to. They travel by highway."

The car-ferry service therefore was losing money. Owned jointly by the C. N. R. and the Baltimore and Ohio Railway Company, it was so costly to the Canadian partner that the C. N. R. had to cash $80,000 worth of Canada Savings Bonds last year to pay for the deficit.

The ferry was providing an excellent service for the people in that district, he said, but it had not been paying its way for years.

Mr. Chevrier said he did not know the final disposition. Any action the C. N. R. decided would have to be by negotiation with the Baltimore and Ohio Company.

He said he could probably let Mr. Robertson know within a short time the final disposition.

Charges Inefficient Handling

Mr. Robertson had charged that the ferry was losing money because its management was lacking in efficiency and imagination.

The traffic manager lived in Montreal and visited Cobourg only once a month. Between $75 and $100 a month was spent on telephone calls between the two cities.

No effort had been made to extend the business of the car-ferry service.

A large quantity of pulpwood used to be carried on the ferry, however, because of a strike in a New York state plant. It was, Mr. Robertson contended, one of the reasons for the deficit.

The service did not advertise properly and was inefficient in the handling of automobile traffic.

The greater part of C. N. R. coal now was being brought up from the U. S. by railway instead of aboard the ferry. Mr. Robertson said the C. N. R. was discriminating against the service on this line.

Not Doing All

He expressed belief that the two parent companies are not doing all they could to make it pay.

He had, he said, been told by an official of the C. N. R. that the service could be made to pay.

Mr. Robertson suggested a young and energetic traffic manager be appointed and stationed prepared to offer the local manufacturers.

He also suggested a committee of interested Cobourg and Rochester citizens be formed to drum up business for the ferry.

The C. N. R. should undertake to ship the full quota of coal by this route and a conference should be called to discuss ways.

At present the Baltimore and Ohio was charging 53 cents more for coal shipping by the car ferry than coal shipped by regular loading vessels.

Facilities on the Rochester side for passenger-handling should be improved. Passengers were forced to climb 100 steps after disembarking, he said. Service for automobiles should be improved.

Mr. Robertson said there had been a discrepancy in the figures of what the company deficit is.

He said Board of Transport Commissioners should investigate operation of the business in the ferry and that it be considered on whether to terminate the service.

Fierce Quarrel Between Moscow And Tito Mounting

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press Foreign Affairs Analyst)

The fierce quarrel between Moscow and the politically-rebellious Marshal Tito of Yugoslavia seems to be mounting to a crisis.

Precisely how the Kremlin intends to apply the screws is still a matter of conjecture. However, the Yugoslav government and Yugoslav Politburo, appears to have definitely sailed the ship of state 000 and it is comprised of some of the world's finest fighting men.

With Tito's army likely strong enough to take care of Greece's guerrillas, he obviously might not be able to repel a wholesale invasion by the Soviet bloc. However, such an invasion might set the drums of war rolling the world over with terrific heaval—and there are few who believe Russia would challenge fate that far. Nobody wants another global conflict.

It strikes me that what is happening is that studied risks are being taken by the Soviet bloc in an effort to bring the rebel into line. While the Kremlin doesn't want war, it will dare much in order to break him.

Russia had been "forging its irons" against Yugoslavia.

He added:

"We are prepared to defend this country until the last breath, regardless of whence the attack comes."

The middle of this month the Yugoslav government accused neighboring Romania of frequent violations of the Yugoslav border, and of attempts to "provoke armed incidents on the frontiers." Similar notes were sent about the same time to Russia, Bulgaria and Hungary.

Record Front

In the face of these developments, Tito thus far has maintained a rugged front. He is credited by informed American officials with having efficiently militarized strength. He handles "any border" fighting that might develop. His army is said to total 350,000 and Similar stuffed rocking chair. It will belong, in the amused eyes of 1950, to the Intellectual Forties, the era in which we all went a little nuts with the worry of our world politics.

There is no peace—not even the peace of getting into bed — to the sense of the sensation of sublime comfort that invades your every soul when, you enter an old-fashioned, quiet cube of space, homely, kindly furniture, faded rugs, a substantial book case, a table with a plain glass bowl on it. There is no anxiety, no fear, no nervousness in the soul like entering a modern living room with its fussy, fancy furniture of weak colors, its stark lines, its plumbing furniture, its jagged and frenzied design. Such a room, you await in horror the entry of a man with tiny blonde curls and high cheekbones, who wants to be intellectual with you.

There are only half a dozen basic motifs in art or architecture and they have nothing to do with spirit of man. Are we to suppose that the present spirit is coming out in the spirit of this age? If so, boys, let's head for the boat deck and swing out the davits.

THE PACKSACK

OF GREGORY CLARK

In the name of modern design, some atrocious junk is being foisted on the public. If modern design does no more than relieve attention, it is probably good. The men who have just had a house designed it largely to seize the attention of both gods and devils. But there seem to be some stumble-bums in the art and architectural world. It is their effect to be intellectual, have a university degree and know only god damn Chinese or how their products get past the people who buy architecture and art is a mystery.

You will see samples of their efforts in many of the new houses going up, such as banks and public offices. The purpose of it appears to be: "Make it look like nothing else anybody ever saw. Then it will be modern."

Alas, in ten years time, it will be as dated as Grandma's old plush

DON'T CALL IT ACID

Mrs. A. M. writes, "I have an acid condition that is apparently making my arm and left side ache. I have a lot of gas, and keeps me awful upset."

These are not the symptoms of an "acid condition." Where people get the archaic notion that their complaints are due to too much acid is beyond me.

Too much acid in the blood and tissues is called acidosis. It is a disturbance in the normal body physiology. Acidosis is not a disease. It is the result of a disease or physiological imbalance. By the latter I mean some chemical change in the blood and tissues which leads to an excess of acid chemicals.

What disease can cause acidosis? Diabetes can. Acidosis is a complication of diabetes and results when the latter gets out of control. Diarrhea can, in part because of the great loss of water and alkaline substances. Kidney disease can. In this instance, the acidosis results from excessive excretion of alkaline substances and the retention of acid substances. Any disease or disorder that causes vomiting, starvation, or water depletion, can cause acidosis. Salt and vomiting can cause acidosis. That is why it is so important to keep the body in the great heat to take salt tablets in addition to water. The salt is lost through the perspiration itself.

The body has many complicated ways to maintain an acid-base balance. Base is another word for alkali. The blood, the kidneys and lungs are most important in this balance mechanism. The blood is so efficient in doing this that a constant acid or alkali reaction is maintained. But the blood cannot work alone. The kidneys are able to throw off acid wastes. So are the lungs.

Unless one has a disease which upsets the above balancing mechanisms, acidosis will not occur. Look upon the body as the most wonderful and complex or all machines. Under normal conditions it can compensate for almost any change. If there is excess acid, it loses alkali to get rid of it. If there is excess alkali, it compensates for that, but too low, it raises it.

The symptoms of acidosis are usually those of dehydration: rise in body temperature, thirst, dryness of the mouth, deep and rapid breathing, dryness and looseness of the skin, and sunken eyeballs. Coma and death may follow if severe acidosis and dehydration are not treated with salt and water.

The notion that the body suffers from "acid conditions" (no the real acidosis) started way back when. In this modern age research has shown us that no such thing occurs, except in the circumstances discussed above. Frequently the term "acid-condition" is used by the laity to explain symptoms which are really neurotic or psychogenic in origin.

Another faulty notion is that too many acid-containing foods will cause an "acid condition." Most of the foods with acid are the proteins, and these proteins contain amino acids. Now, these amino acids are not necessarily acids at all—it is just that the scientifical chemical name given to these compounds is amino acid The amino acid is one of the most important foods in our diet Take my word for it, we can't get along without them, and they do not cause an excess of acid in the body. If food is natural it's balanced, as far as acid and alkali and every thing else is concerned.

Remember that acidosis is not a disease and that the "acid condition" does not occur in as otherwise normal person.

Heartbreak My Eye

Recently I learned that my grandmother, was colored. It is that a breaking shock. I've been happily married for five years. We have a three year old son. My husband is kind and understanding about it, but I don't know how to tell me that I have more children they could be white or colored. (Mrs. S W. J.)

Answer—If you have more children they will be as white or as colored as your first child You must expect the unexpected. Don't worry about. This applies to your son's future children too, not to mention all other near-experts say about Megalithon.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

HE SURE MADE A HIT

Many years ago in Chicago, as the venerable Dr. Gunsaulus was walking to church one winter morning, a snowball whirled through the air and knocked his hat into a snowbank. Turning about, the churchman saw an urchin running for shelter. He called to the boy to stop and come back, and much to his surprise the boy did so. The goodnatured bishop then proposed that inasmuch as he had furnished the boy a target for practice, the boy return the favor and accompany him to Sunday school.

The youngster with two other boys sold papers on the edge of a tough district, and he found the Sunday school far different from what he had been used to. However, little by little he caught the cordial spirit of the place, and within a few years was one of the outstanding young men of the church. But he could never persuade his two pals to go with him to Sunday school, and both in later years came to tragic ends

But the lad who took such good aim at the bishop's hat is now a physician whose fame has really gone through the whole medical profession. And he often owes it that it was the bishop's understanding many years ago of a mischievous boy that saved him from prison bars to profes sional fame.

2ND THURLOW C. Templer and Assistants Provide Musical Program

2nd Thurlow—About 75 members and visitors of the 2nd line Neighbors Aid, with their families attended a pot-luck supper in the front road church hall, on Wednesday night. Tables were tastefully decorated for the occasion, and were well laden with many good things provided by the members.

After supper, Mrs. Craig, president of the Aid, called the gathering to order, and after extending a welcome to all, introduced Mr. C. Templer, organist of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Belleville, and his capable assistants, who were providing the evening's program.

Mr. Templer acted as chairman as well as accompanying on the piano for the various numbers, which consisted of several solos, and cornet with piano accompaniment.

On conclusion of the program, Mrs. Douglas Atkins, on behalf of the Neighbors Aid, moved a hearty vote of thanks to Mr. Templer and his capable assistants, for the very fine program which was thoroughly enjoyed by all. Mrs. Craig also added her own appreciation to which Mr. Templer extended his thanks for the kind words spoken.

ALBURY

Albury.—A number attended the 100th anniversary services at Redneerville Church on Sunday morning and evening.

Mrs. Robert Stephenson and daughter of British Columbia, are visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Peck and family.

Several from this community attended the funeral of the late Mrs. Frank Bellyou at Trenton, on Tuesday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Percy Peck and family of West Guilford, and Mr. Frank Peck of Maple Lake, spent the tea hour on Tuesday evening with Mr. and Mrs. S. C. Peck.

Mr. and Mrs. Allan Weese spent a few days with her sister, Mrs. Howard Holmes, and Mr. Holmes, Chatham.

A large number attended the Albury Church anniversary service on Sunday evening with the Rev. Mr. Puttenham, B.A., of Trenton, delivering the fine sermon.

Mr. and Mrs. Bruce-Martin, Corbyville, were guest soloist. The choir also rendered pleasing selections. The Rev. J. P. Henderson helped with the service and gave out the announcements. The church was tastefully decorated with many baskets of beautiful flowers.

Mr. and Mrs. Lutz and son of Saskatchewan, have been visiting Mrs. Lutz's sister, Mrs. Fitzgerald and Mr. Fitzgerald.

WALLBRIDGE

Wallbridge—Mr. and Mrs. Leo Wannemaker of Stirling, and Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Laurence of Toronto, were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Wannemaker.

Mr. and Mrs. Grant Miller and children are staying at the home of the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Sine for a couple of weeks. Grant is taking a course at the Trenton Air Station.

Congratulations to Mr. Bob Latta, and Miss Ira Fisher who were married on Saturday in Belleville.

Mr. and Mrs. Hiram Dafoe, and Miss Helen Sharpe, were tea-hour guests of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Harris on Saturday.

A number of farmers on the 9th line are having hydro installed.

A few from this appointment attended anniversary services at Aitken's on Sunday.

Apple picking is almost over and a good crop is reported.

Glad to report Mrs. Trow, who convalescing at the Rowe Rest Home, is somewhat improved. All of Mrs. Trow's friends and neighbors hope she will soon be able to return home.

WEDDINGS

MACDONALD — CARTER

A pretty wedding was solemnized in the United Church, Point Anne, on Friday October the 14th, at 7 p.m. when Miss Ina Lenore Carter, of Mr. and Mrs. George Carter, of Point Anne, became the bride of Allan Desmond MacDonald, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy MacDonald, Point Anne, at a candle light service, officiated by the Rev. C. W. Neelands, before the altar of white gladioli, and evergreens.

Miss Gertie Simmons, pianist, rendered the wedding music, and Miss Gladys Simmons, soloist, sang before the ceremony, "Sweet Mystery of Life," and during the signing of the register, "Because."

The bride was given in marriage by her father, and was lovely in a white taffeta gown with off-the-shoulder neckline and yoke, low pointed sleeves, and elbow length gloves. The skirt was full with shadow panels, and the bouffant quarter veil of silk tulle illusion was held in place with a halo of white flowers. She carried a crescent bouquet of red Better-time roses.

Miss Marion Wannamaker, of Belleville, was maid of honor, and gowned in mauve taffeta, with matching beanie headdress of the same shade as the rose orchid at the side. She carried a nosegay of matching roses and mums.

Miss Marlene MacDonald, sister of the bridegroom, was bridesmaid, and was gowned in turquoise taffeta with matching beanie, and carried a matching nosegay of roses and mums.

Little Diadon Duffy, of Belleville, and cousin of the bride, was flower girl, demure in her floor-length pink taffeta frock trimmed satin, with matching bandeau, flower basket. All the attendants' gowns featured full skirts and puff sleeves.

Mr. Wexford Gilmour, Belleville, R.R. No. 6, was groomsman, and Leonard Hoard, Corbyville, Vollick, and Pete Moslo, all of Point Anne, were ushers.

At the reception, which was held at the Orange Hall, Point Anne, the bride's mother wearing a brown suit with matching accessories, and corsage of pink carnations, received the guests. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother, who wore a navy dress with matching accessories, and corsage of pink roses.

The bride chose a black suit with plain accessories and corsage of red roses for the wedding trip to Montreal. Upon their return the happy couple will reside in Point Anne, Ontario.

* Out-of-town guests were from Toronto.

WALKER—DONALDSON

Snapdragons, pink and white asters, chrysanthemums, ferns, and other lovely autumn flowers made a fitting background for the pretty wedding on Saturday, Oct. 15, at 2 p.m., in Wallbridge United Church. Wallbridge, when the Rev. C. W. Neelands united in marriage, Evelyn Anne Donaldson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Barton Hinchliffe, and Percy Denike, of Thurlow, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Walker, of Thurlow.

Miss Gwen Ketcheson, church organist, rendered the wedding music, and the soloist, Mrs. G. C. Ackerman, sang "I'll Walk Beside You", before the ceremony, and "Because" during the signing of the register.

Given in marriage by her uncle, Mr. Harold Kingston, of Napanee, the bride was charming in a street length powder blue crepe dress with lace insertions on bodice and lace-trimmed peplum, and black accessories. She carried a nosegay of white baby mums and pink Sweetheart roses.

Her only attendant was her sister, Miss June Hinchliffe, who was maid of honor, who wore a dusty pink dress similar to that of the bride, with black accessories, and carried a nosegay of pink baby mums.

Mr. Cecil Walker, of Thurlow, brother of the bridegroom, was groomsman, and the ushers were Mr. Alvin Donaldson, of Wallbridge, brother of the bride, and Mr. George Clare, of Thurlow, cousin of the bridegroom.

The wedding reception tendered the bride by the Wallbridge L.O.B.A., of which she is a member, was held in the Wallbridge Orange Hall, where the bride's table was laid with white crepe with matching accessories and corsage of pink Briarcliffe roses, was assisted by the bridegroom's mother in receiving the guests. Mrs. Walker wore grey printed crepe with green accessories, and corsage of yellow Talisman rosebuds.

For the wedding trip to London, Detroit, Windsor, Niagara Falls, Watertown, Rochester and Ivy Lea Bridge, the bride chose a tangerine colored suit with matching topcoat and black accessories. She wore a pale pink corsage of roses. Upon their return, the bride and bridegroom will reside at his farm in Thurlow.

Out-of-town guests were present from Glen Miller, Trenton, Plainfield and surrounding districts.

AMES—BUSH

White's District.—The Bayside parsonage was the scene of a .ovely wedding at noon on Saturday, October 22, when, in the presence of a few intimate friends, Olive Mona, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Bush, of Sidney Township, was united in holy matrimony to Arthur Richardson, son of Mr. and Mrs. William. Ames, of Codrington, Ont.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. A. C. McCallum of White's United Church, Bayside.

The bride wore a navy-blue suit with hat to match and carried a corsage of red roses.

The bride and groom were attended by Mrs. Pearl Ames and Mr. Arthur Ames.

Following a short honeymoon, the newly wedded couple will reside at Codrington.

It's Older Women Who Study Cooking

Birmingham, England (CP) — Women over 40 who want to learn to make new dishes for husbands "tired of the eternal stew, steamed puddings and scones," flock in hids of any cookery demonstration attendance. That's what the domestic science organizer of a large local firm reported.

"Young married women either think they know everything or just don't care about cooking as an art," she said.

Expert Offers Some Advice On Proper Use of Perfumes

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

New York (AP)—There are two correct ways to pick a perfume.

If you are a woman, smell it and see if you like the odor. If you are a man, with an anniversary on approach, ask about it.

This advice comes from George Fuller, chief chemist for one leading manufacturer of the creams and essences for embalment of American womanhood.

We will discuss IMF from the man's point of view. Every spring sarily because it may inspire more gentlemen to take over the chore of perfume buying.

"You better find out what she likes", Fuller says earnestly, "because if she doesn't like what you buy, she is not going to wear it, whether you like it or not. Women are very firm about this."

"Of course, if you want to be subtle you can plot it ways in advance. Have a general discussion about perfume sometime. Women like to smell of it, anyway, so do this is to have several women present. Then write down the name of her favorite perfume for reference when an occasion arises."

Fuller is very positive when he says the very worst thing a gift-minding man can do is buy perfume without knowing his lady's taste.

The chemist is equally definite when advising women about the best way to determine which scent is their choice. His first dont: Never go around pulling stoppers out of bottles and sniffing.

"When you sniff at a bottle", he said, "all you can smell are the top notes, not the whole perfume."

Test On Hand

Fuller advises a woman in search of scent to squirt a free sampling on the palm of her hand. Then, he says, she should wait a while, preferably about an hour, so that the perfume will be absorbed by the skin. Then, he says, she should smell it again.

"Good perfume, well blended perfume, should maintain a consistent odor on an even scale," Fuller says, "but don't judge a perfume entirely on how long it lasts. When you are using a fine perfume it is necessary to replenish the odor every three or four hours. If it lasts longer it is apt to be harsh."

Now then, where to apply perfume? Fuller says it has been pretty well established that perfume is best applied where "body heat is most noticeable." His own personal selections are in the crease at the elbow, just below the decolletage and on the palms of the hands, the latter places being ones most people overlook.

"People persist in daubing around the ears", he said, "and there's not much point in that. They also like to perfume the backs of their hands and their wrists, but there isn't much of a heat concentration at either of those points."

Fuller adds that the human body seems able automatically to blend a pleasant perfume. Frequently in handling the various expensive and highly odored oils and fixitives he spills some on his hands.

"But at the end of the day I've noticed my hands smell very nicely" he commented, "as though the skin is able to retain the right amount of each. When I get home at night my wife says immediately: 'Darling you smell wonderful!'" opened the meeting. Two letters were read, one concerning Christmas gifts to Ompah, Ontario, for Children, a special offering was taken for this, it was announced that there are four more officers for Presbytery to be filled. Presbyterial will be held in Frankford United Church in January.

Worship Service was conducted by Mrs. J. Finnigan. The theme was "Now Thank We All Our God". A Psalm was read in unison, followed by a prayer hymn. Several members took part in reading portions from the Missionary Monthly. Mrs. Preston Clark read the Scripture reading, and the second portion was read by Mrs. Harry Slingerland. The Study Book, "Growing With the Years" was taken by Mrs. Roy Osterhout and Mrs. Jack Finnigan. Mrs. Osterhout told a story of missionary work on Vancouver Island, and Mrs. Finnigan told a story of mission in China and Korea. Mrs. Osterhout also told of radio ministry work on the Prairies.

A questionnaire on the Study Book was given. The program consisted of readings, "Guiding Star" by Mrs. Mervin Dafoe, "Flowers and Friends" by Mrs. Charles Dennis. Two contests were enjoyed Mrs. Floyd Ketcheson, and Mrs. Cecil Reid being the winners. The U.B. Welcome Group for Tuesday evening, Oct. 25, at the home of Mrs. Wilmott Reid was announced. Delicious refreshments were served by Mrs. Smith Osterhout, Mrs. Roy Osterhout and Mrs. Jack Finnigan.

History Teacher Waits Long Time To Hear Nehru

Ottawa, Oct. 25—(CP)—While Prime Minister Nehru of India was putting Parliament Hill into a flurry Monday with an official address to both Houses of Parliament, an amiable but determined visitor was cutting a swath of her own.

She was Mrs. Lottie M. Clark, a Jacksonville, Fla., schoolteacher. She teaches world history, among other things, and is specially interested in Pandit Nehru and Asia. She was determined to hear him Monday. She did.

Mrs. Clark—58-year-old native of Roxborough, Que.—was on hand at the main entrance to the parliament buildings at 9 a.m. Parliament didn't open until 3 p.m. In the intervening period she took over the Commons's protective staff.

Genial Eddie Sabourin, a member of this staff, got a chair and Mrs. Clark settled down in the main rotunda seating. Patsy Pelletier, of former Prime Minister Mackenzie King. She lacked one of the Mrs. Clark's record even by ambassadors to obtain a seat. Sabourin arranged to find one.

"She's going to send me a case of oranges," Eddie confided.

Brought up on a farm at Roxborough, an eastern Quebec settlement, Mrs. Clark decided the visit was worth a long, tiring height fashionable in the '20s.

New British Hats Have High Points in Brims, Crowns

By MURIAL NARRAWAY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London (CP)— Britain's fall hat fashions follow the latest Paris trends. They are built for the high, ear-hugging collars of this year's winter coats.

There is height in crown, brim or feather mount. And there are cloches, bonnets, skull caps, eggshell caps and many new versions of the beanie.

The new peaked shovel brim sweeps upward like a visor from a bonnet of slate-grey fur felt. Midnight-blue velvet, forming a soft side-drape emphasizes the deep-cut hairline.

Height is again achieved in a high-crowned helmet in lime wool felt, with soaring feather mount sweeping up from the back to a plume with pom-pom top. The hat is finished by a chenille-dotted veil.

A new conical crown in cardinal red felt has rust velour felt with striking feather mount. A "chimney stack" crown is featured in cherry-red wool felt with grey and red side-drape of Pekingese fur.

An "arrow-line" beret in soft crystal-town beaver with pheasant quill sweeping diagonally from a cluster of ostrich feathers gives the squashy, unbrimmed height fashionable in the '20s.

Women Teachers Meet at Melville

The October meeting of the Wellington Unit of the Women Teachers' Association, was held at Melville School, where the members were the guests of Mrs. H. Johnston.

During the business meeting the members decided to contribute to the goodwill project, a fund to enable the association to give Christmas gifts to the exchange teachers here in Canada from England.

Mrs. Johnston presented a good program which included duets by two Melville girls and two piano numbers by Miss Mikel, and Miss C. Tait. Miss B. Mikel took the first and second chapters of the arts and crafts book. Several members displayed samples of junior art Mrs. Johnston and her committee served refreshments. Following this social time a vote of thanks was extended to Melville and, Mrs. Johnston by Mrs. B. Giles.

The November meeting will be a combined meeting with Picton Unit and the trustees and their wives and will be held at St. Andrew's Church in Picton. Dr. Gaitskell of Toronto, will be the guest speaker.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Her problem is self-consciousness

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am a 19-year-old college student and have gone steady three years with a young man I love very much.

Before meeting this boy I had always found it quite difficult to talk with people or recite in class without becoming embarrassed. This situation has become worse than ever for unconsciously I have come to depend on my boy friend and other friends to curb my embarrassment when meeting and talking to strangers.

I realize that in the very near future I will have to face people in the business world as well as in my social life as the wife of a business man. So this year while I am still in college I plan to date a few other boys, join a sorority and force myself to do some of the things I have never had courage or confidence to do in the past. My boy friend has unselfishly agreed that this is a wise decision.

Do you think I am on the right track in trying to overcome this situation and do you have any suggestions or additional advice to offer?

Dear C.:

I think you and your boy friend have made a very sensible decision and I am certainly in favor of the campaign you have mapped out for yourself to win the battle, against self-consciousness. It is quite true that the best way to acquire any quality or habit is to act as though you had it until it becomes second nature. In other words, pretend to others and to yourself that you enjoy meeting people and are interested in them and I feel sure that you will gradually find that you actually do enjoy it. The trick, of course, is not to have no doubt heard a great many times, is to be so genuinely interested in other people that you forget about yourself.

Don't Meddle in ther people's business

Dear Miss Fairfax:

My nephew went with a girl in our apartment house for four years. Before and after she went with my nephew, this girl went with all other boys. Every boy she goes with she tells how much she loves him and that she wants to get married. Then they buy her a ring and later she drops them.

Yesterday she called up my nephew and told him she found out she loved him best. We don't want him to start with her again. What should we do?

My nephew is 26 and she is 22.

Mrs. M. B.

Dear Mrs. M. B.:

What you should do is to keep out of your nephew's affairs entirely. Relatives can make no greater mistakes than to try and manage a young man's or young woman's romances for them. They certainly get no thanks for doing so, and they almost invariably succeed in making a mess of things. Your nephew is old enough to look out for himself.

Jersey Dress For Daytime

Bright vertical stripes on gray

By VERA WINSTON

IT'S WOOL jersey all the way this year, not only for college girls and secretaries, but for all woman kind. Fine for useful and for active general daytime wear is this dress of worsted jersey in gray striped in purple, red, green and blue. It is cut quite simply with a casual collar above the medium-low neckline. The single breasted closing has three bone buttons. Three seams mold the hipline, the flared, inverted pleats extending from them.

If he is going to make mistakes, you can't stop him. I should hope however, that at his age, he would have acquired some sort of judgment that would enable him to see through a girl like this. At any rate, it isn't your business and you should keep your hands off.

Fashion Flashes

HEAD-HUGGING hats tilted at a real angle, top off Fall fashions this season. Fuchsia purple velours, with softly rolled double brim and rounded crown, is worn almost to conceal the right side of the face, which is held by a tightly drawn, flesh pink veil.

VERY MUCH evident in the newest crop of luxury fur coats is the tweed lining. Lustrous black Russian broadtail is used for a full-length coat cut with deep dolman sleeves that merge into a bloused back below a softly curved, upstanding collar. The skirt has deep pleats in back that are partially stitched down to control fullness.

REAL VALUES are offered in smart little afternoon and theatre suits of silk or velvet. A smartly alone suit of silk-black, Lyons-type velvet—with covered buttons and handmade buttonholes—is typical of the values offered. This one has loose pocket flaps defining the waistline and comes in deep-glowing colors as well as black.

IT LOOKS NEW, does the fitted coat for general or casual wear. Oatmeal tweed with bright color flecks—or pin-point black and white check tweed—is used for a good coat in the medium-price bracket. It has deep armholes that touch almost to the waist; a belted back; slim, fitted front; and curved, flapped patch pockets.

A DELIGHT for the young careerist or college girl is an outfit consisting of skirt and vest. The tweed skirt has buttoned-down suede pocket flaps, and the pointed vest is of suede that picks up one of the tones of the tweed mixture, with the tweed used for the back.

LITTLE SISTER won't mind going to school, even in the rain, if she is outfitted in one of the new little-girl raincoats, so full of color and charm. Checked cotton twill—red or green, with black—is detailed with velvet club collar and velvet buttons. Big patch pockets, and a tie belt.

GOOD MANNERS

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Christmas Cards are Calling to You!

The "early birder" are already ordering their Christmas cards. We see them in increasing numbers happily turning the pages of the thrilling, festive-looking albums of cards beckoning from the counters of department stores, jewelry stores, local stationery stores. And it's none too early, ladies, if you want to be sure of getting the cards nearest to your heart's desire. That number is no longer available" is grimly disappointing to hear when you've postponed buying your Christmas cards until too late to capture the ones you thought most beautiful and original.

And it's none too early either to be considering whether or not you want your name imprinted on your Christmas cards. If you decide you do, place your order so that the imprinting (or engraving, if that's your choice) can be done properly, carefully, and in good time.

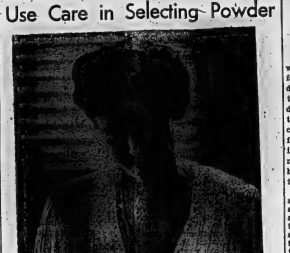
P. S.—You may delay . . . but Christmas-time won't.

There's good news for Christmas, 1949 . . . stores of all types, "experts" in shining sea', are reporting that the majority of their customers will order their Christmas cards have, praise be, forsaken the choice of formal name. . . the chilly and tipsity and perfunctory "Mr. and Mrs. John Smith" . . . and instead are ordering for their cards the personal and friendly and therefore more appropriate first names.

. . . Mary and John Smith. Even in the displays of Christmas cards in the most conservative metropolitan jewelry stores, we note that, happily and sensibly, the use of informal names on Christmas cards is now practically taken for granted. So please, please, please before you thoughtlessly and mindlessly order your cards to say to your friends, "Christmas greetings from Mr. and Mrs. John Smith" . . . Think! Wouldn't your friends who call you "Mary" and your husband "John" feel a bit of a chill at that ridiculously formal "Mr. and Mrs. John Smith!" and wouldn't you feel pretty silly trying to answer your friends' question, "Why the Christmas formality, Mrs. Smith?"

Also, the chances are that you will order your name imprinted at the end of a message. . . for example, "Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year", or "Best wishes for a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year." Now bear this firmly in mind: Your name at the end of a message. . . whether your name is imprinted or handwritten . . . is your signature to that message. And your signature is your informal name.

When you order the informal names on your Christmas cards . . . and please do! . . . order the sequence "Mary and John Smith". That's the correct form when the names are imprinted, the gracious form, more polite to "Mary". . . Naturally it's entirely correct —and most personal and charming it is, too—for you to take your pen in hand and sign your name on your Christmas cards . . . and for good measure add a high-hearted message or newsgreeting to the printed message on the card. There's something so endearingly welcome about the handwriting of a friend that our hearts leap up when we behold it. . . . it seems to enfold the message in a warm, friendly handclasp!



BODY RECOVERED

Midland, Oct. 24 — (CP)—The body of Harry Watmough, 35, of Toronto, was recovered Sunday from Georgian Bay.

Watmough was drowned last Sept. 19 when he fell from a cruiser which he and other employees of a Toronto iron company had chartered for duck - hunting.

The body, lodged between rocks along the shore some three miles east of here, was found Saturday by Phileas Leduc of nearby Port Severn.

Use Care in Selecting Powder

If you prefer cake make-up to powder, select a shade slightly darker than your natural coloring. Apply with fingers and blend.

By HELEN FOLLETT

COSMETICIANS offer a variety of tints in complexion powders, yet it seems that feminine faces carry even more shades and tones! hence, the present practice of blending colors for the special customer. So interested have women become in receiving this specialized service in the selection of powders that the blending business has received a great impetus. A few years ago only a few beauty shops, and those the largest establishments, were prepared to give these attentions; now the cosmetic bar flourishes.

It appears from professional report that the average brunette is no great problem when it comes to supplying her with make-up needs, but the blonde and the red head, blessed with complexions of exquisite delicacy, usually require extra attention.

For the true blonde with flaxen hair and blue eyes, it may happen that a bit of violet powder is added to the usual formula. The explanation is that the true blonde has a luminous semi-transparent skin which the touch of violet glorifies. With this powder the very lightest rouge is used and the lipstick is the natural tint. Too much attention built and stick but, even so, she must use restraint to the limit.

On any woman a powder of a shade lighter than her skin will produce a heavy effect, will not prove flattering. A shade slightly darker than the natural coloring gives softness to the flesh, helps to hide defect.

Make your applications light. The rule of addition is better than that of substraction though, if you have too much, remove the surplus with a powder brush. And don't forget to blend rouge and powder and to blot your lipstick application.

If you prefer cake make-up to powder, choose a type with long-lasting qualities that doesn't need constant freshing up. Apply

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMIESON

Eat fruit and look peachy

If a girl's eating habits are not what they should be, it is folly for her to put too much confidence in cosmetics. Some skin troubles are caused by a diet deficiency, as old family Doc will tell you. One way to keep the complexion in prime condition, fine of texture and of good coloring, is to consume the food elements that are necessary for well-being. The finicky eater is bound to be in for beauty grief.

Keeping fit is a duty to oneself and one's family. It would seem as if many women are too active and busy to give much attention to the subject and, as for the sweet young things—well, they think they are made of wire and fiddle strings and health tales bore them to tears. Above everything else they want to look well; they don't realize that to look well one must be in perfect form physically.

The career girl who fancies that cup of coffee makes a breakfast and who hurries through the briefest luncheon cannot expect to feel topnotch or to look snappy. She should have a maintenance breakfast that should include fruit, Vitamin C, found in orange juice, will keep fatigue bugs away, will build resistance against illness. A full eight-ounce glass of orange juice with a little lemon juice added is a grand start for the day. Grape juice is recommended. Tomato juice serves in place of orange juice.

Citrus fruits contain not only vitamin C but a certain amount of A and B as well. The body needs our friend C all the time; since the body cannot store it away, there is need of the daily intake. It stimulates appetite, aids digestion, promotes the health of the teeth and gums.

All raw and cooked fruits are helpful, if one is in normal health; the collits patient may have to avoid some. Beneficial to the digestive organs are figs, prunes, plums, peaches, cherries, strawberries, raspberries, grapes, apples and pears. They act favorably upon the intestinal tract.

Almost all fruits are non-fattening, so Mrs. Plumpie can partake of them to her heart's content. Besides increasing the iron content of the blood, fruits increase alkalinity in the process of digestion. Many individuals allow themselves little fruit in the belief that fruit causes an acid condition of the system. Medical authorities say "taint so.

The girl was breakfasts on coffee and has brief lunch cannot expect to feel top notch

Whatever keeps the digestive motors running smoothly will have a favorable effect upon the complexion. The skin has a sympathetic nature, goes dry or grey or blotchy if something is wrong elsewhere in the human machine.

The diet has much to do with the loveliness of the skin is a fact well known to beauty specialists, who are inclined to inquire about nutrition when giving facial treatments.

Whatever anyone else thinks of Britain's blitz ruins, they're a haven and a Heaven for the country's cats.

Countless felines have settled happily in the yawning cellars and dilapidated rooms which still abound five years after the war. There they raise families hunt rats mice and birds and—when they feel like it—new appealingly at passersby who give them titbits from their lunches.

In London alone there are thousands of cats living like this" said a veterinary official who often is asked to eliminate a feline community. "And believe me they're rough tough and zesty.

"People who see pussy sunning herself on the parapet of a bombed building may think she's sweet. But try to trap her and it's a different story.

"There same kind-hearted people do us and the cat a disservice by putting out food for them. They're so well-fed they ignore the bait we set in cages and our work is made more difficulty."

If you wonder why anyone should want to round up stray cats just live for a little while near bomb ruins. As soon as darkness falls the yowling begins. All night long the cat clorus shrills and quavers.

Some people who have tried to catch cats themselves have come off second best. Once corner. I the animals turn viciously on their urnuer.

Experts go after them with strong cages stout gloves and leather thongs on the end of long poles.

"I'd as soon handle a panther" said a former soldier.

"They're so smart it's quite a triumph to get one" said another experienced cat-catcher. "They seem to know when you're after them even before you do yourself.

"They know man is their enemy. They are not like the nice lazy domestic pussy cat who expects no one to strike him—until some passing stranger chucks him in a bag.

"What for? Bless you, where do you think all those nice fur gloves and cheap fur coats come from?"

MARMORA

Chamber Holds Special Meeting To Study Plans

Marmora — Marmora Chamber of Commerce in lieu of the monthly dinner meeting held a special meeting in the dining room of the Royal Hotel on Friday evening with the president A. F. Fraser occupying the chair. Correspondence was read. A letter was received from the Waterloo Chamber of Commerce regarding Compulsory Defence Education. This receiving the endorsation of the local body. Other letters called attention to the annual sessions of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce which are being held in Montreal from October 22 to 27

Also a communication was read from the Ontario office regarding the Speaker's Panel. The Chamber decided to avail itself of facilities provided thereby. It was reported that net receipts from Marmora Day amounted to $823 and this amount had been turned over to the local Athletic Commission.

A motion was passed asking for the continuance of the ferry service between Cobourg and Rochester. The special committee reported that the matters of Fire Protection, winter cleaning of sidewalks, and the placing of stop signs had been given attention. In the former case, the reeve, Vincent Lynch, who was present, touched upon the progress made and the handling of the debentures.

Take Over Party

Under new business, the Chamber decided to take over the Halowe'en Shellout for the children which has been relinquished by the Kinsmen. C. T. Nicholson was appointed chairman and Rev. C. D. Young and D. P. Marett added to that committee, which was given power to add to its members. The Chamber favored the continuance of the Santa Claus parade. Mayor Percy Gray was appointed chairman with power to pick his committee. The next meeting was arranged for November 24 to be known as Veterans' Night, for which a suitable speaker will be secured. The matter of holding a Regatta at Crowe Lake next summer was introduced as the closing item of business. Vern Caverly of Oshawa and Glen Allan Park was chosen as chairman for a Committee to handle the same. Upon adjournment, host and hostess, Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Neals served refreshments.

INSTITUTE SESSION CLOSED

Cobourg, Oct. 24 (CP)— Three-day sessions of the 10th annual Casework Institute closed here Saturday after round-table discussions of the two main themes, "the role of the family agency today," and "up-to-date philosophies in relief giving."

Forty-eight representatives from 16 family agencies in Ontario and Quebec attended.

'Growlers' Driving Old 'Iron Horse' To Pasture

Montreal, Oct. 24—(CP)—The "growlers" are coming to Canada too.

That, today, is the word from the major Canadian railroads commenting on a Pittsburgh report that the diesel engine is gradually driving the old steam-driven "iron horse" to pasture in the United States.

Currently the Canadian National Railways is operating 2,506 steam engines over its lines, including Newfoundland, and has 171 diesels working.

The Canadian Pacific Railway is dieselized 6.9 per cent with 129 diesels and 1,727 steam locomotives.

But, explained C.P.R. men, the percentage doesn't mean much because in the main, a diesel engine can do about twice the work of a steam locomotive.

People's Show 'Radio Forum' Crosses Canada

BY ALLEN DONNELLY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Six years ago Arthur Helps of Vancouver discovered that it isn't only the "experts" who can express intelligent opinions about problems of national and international interest.

At that time, Helps became moderator of a program conceived by himself. He called it "Radio Forum" and under its principle of "free speech and the free interchange of personal opinions" hundreds of British Columbians have voiced their opinions over the air. Many more have attended the broadcasts or listened in to the clash of ideas —personal, spontaneous and often provocative.

The program has now grown to national stature, with the grown-up name of "Town Meeting in Canada." It has begun a cross-country tour of cities and towns that will give citizens across Canada the opportunity to debate current issues.

Helps will still be moderator and the broadcasts are being recorded and shipped to various private stations, from CJAV in Port Alberni, B.C. to VOCM in St. John's Newfoundland.

The first "Town Meeting in Canada" was held at Port Alberni last month with a prominent farmer, Dr. Miladan Gluzio-Zorkin, starting the ball rolling with the observation that a radio forum with free speech is an impossibility in Europe.

With this start, ordinary citizens sank their teeth into the topic "How can world-wide freedom be made a reality."

Helps's "Town Meeting" has developed a high degree of broadcasting competence. At the Columbus, Ohio, radio award presentations last year, and also by the Institute for Education by radio, it was given a citation in recognition of a broadcast made from Powell River, B.C., in 1946.

Another privately owned radio station —this one in British Columbia also—has found that its own forum broadcasts can be successful.

But, says Charles Pitt of CJIB Vernon, there are qualifications.

He found citizens were reluctant at first to speak frankly over the air about controversial topics. But after several forum broadcasts the people in the area became acquainted with the program and the discussions became more lively.

On one broadcast, 18 minutes of discussion ended in the conclusion that there really is a monster Ogopogo by name, in Okanagan Lake. Even more startling was the disclosure by one of the forum speakers that Ogopogo has a brother and monster in nearby Kalamalka Lake.

Not many persons in Canada have spent two-fifths of their life in the broadcasting business, but one of them, Sandra Miller of Montreal, is only five years old.

She launched her career two years ago in a morning program over CBM Montreal and now has a mid-day program of her own—Saturday mornings over CBC's trans-Canada network.

With an assist from her father, Ted Miller, who writes the stories for pre-school youngsters, Sandra takes her listeners on imaginary trips to far-away places. Other characters on the show—all of them musical—are Oliver the organ, Chimie the celeste and Pepper the piano.

Pilot is Still Flying After 12 Busy Years

Winnipeg. —(CP)—One god/s half million air miles represents a lot of flying time, but an ex-Winnipegger has travelled that—and more.

He is Trans-Canada Air Lines' Capt. Kenneth G. Main, 33, who has logged more than 1,500,000 miles since he joined the company nine years ago. Before that he made an impressive record as a bush pilot in the north.

Captain Main now is TCA's resident captain in Bermuda, where he has been living with his wife and small daughter since 1947.

At present he makes one 14-hour return flight between Bermuda and Trinidad every week —a far cry from the flights he made in 1937 carrying frozen fish the 175 miles from Rainbow Lake to Flin Flon, Man. in 60-below zero weather.

That was his first job after graduating from McGill University with an engineering degree. He worked for North West Aero Marines, later moving to General Airways to fly miners and trappers into northern Ontario.

In 1939 he joined Canadian Airways, flying from Edmonton to the unmapped Mackenzie River, territory and ferrying trappers in and out of the Yukon. He was transferred to Vancouver and flew the Vancouver-to-Victoria run until joining TCA in 1940.

With TCA he flew trans-Canada routes until May 1946, when he moved to the company's trans-Atlantic service. He remained there until his recent transfer to Bermuda.

But even in his new semi-tropical setting Capt. Main can still recall a harrowing fourday ordeal in northern Manitoba when he and his employer crashed while attempting to land on a small lake. They lived in a hole in the snow until a rescue party found them.

500 - Years - Old Inn in England Again Re-opened

BY NORMAN CRIBBENS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Rye, Sussex, England. Oct. 25—(CP) — For the second time since 1830 the shutters are up in the 500-year-old Mermaid Inn.

Once the haunt of smugglers and highwaymen, the picturesque Mermaid has passed into the hands of Colling — and a new purchaser is wanted.

Two years ago Vancouver-born L. M. Wilson reopened the hotel as "England's most famous-inn." He spent thousands of pounds renovating the Mermaid's old oak rooms, lavishly panelled ghost rooms and smugglers' well, and had a well-known London artist paint the rooms with period-style murals.

A year later Wilson sold out to a local inkeeper, Capt. R. Colling, and sailed back to Canada. But the demand for capital to keep the hotel going proved too much for Colling. The hammer falls this Thursday and a new owner takes over. Meanwhile Colling and his wife are staying on guard in the silent house as caretakers.

The Mermaid is associated with the notorious Dr. Syn, who figured in the novel of that name. Syn is said to have been an ex-pirate who became a Vicar of Rye. He used the money derived from smuggling to carry out charitable work in the neighbourhood, and his ghost is still said to haunt one of the rooms.

"In the past many guests at the Mermaid has complained of weird and terrifying experiences," said employee of the hotel said.

"In the early '30s a woman woke up screaming and rushed out of her room. She said a ghostly figure hovered over her bed and there were continued rappings on the wall behind her.

Proposes Drive To Build Trade In Dollar Area

BY J. C. GRAHAM
(Canadian Press Correspondent)

Wellington, N.Z. —(CP)—Proposals for expanding New Zealand's trade with dollar countries by the development of exports of a wide variety of commodities, principally primary products are being studied by the Federated Farmers, New Zealand's central farmers' organization.

A comprehensive report on the scheme has been submitted to the Dominion council by R. G. Buckleston, who recently visited the United States and Canada.

The principal suggestion is that a dollar trade development company or a dollar trade export corporation be set up to foster and expand trade from New Zealand. The proposed company should comprise representatives of the government, the Federated Farmers, woollen mills, importers from dollar sources, the Associated Chambers of Commerce and a member of the Aid for British Council.

The report submitted by Buckleston tabulated New Zealand products which he considered could be sold in North America. They included frozen lamb, mutton for the Canadian and United States canning trade, animal glands, frozen rabbits, selected pelts for mats and floor coverings, selected shorn lamb pelts for mutton coats (particularly in Canada), baby lamb pelts for Canada, medicine lanolins, frozen and dried venison casings, body and tail half, bones and glue, stock, an extension of the market for carpet wools, butter for Hawaii and the Caribbean, casein, sugar of milk, bobby calf skins, second grade powdered milk for stock food, frozen and smoked blue cod, crayfish both whole and tails, tuberos soup, whitebait, paua meat from a New Zealand shellfish, fish liver oils, clams and mussel soup and canned oysters, rugs and motor robes, men's socks and women's tain New Zealand breeds of pedigree stock in North America, particularly Corriedale, Romney and Southdown sheep, and Friesian and Jersey cattle. They suggested that this should be taken up with the breed societies to encourage the sale of New Zealand sheep and cattle in Canada and the United States. They also suggested that a bloodstock review be published for the United States.

The restoration of the tourist trade, not only by individuals but also by organized parties was also advocated.

Buckleton claimed that the greatest aid New Zealand could give to Britain was to expand dollar earnings.

The proposed initial capital for the dollar development company should be $15,000, three-fifths of which would be required to be available in the United States. The objects of the company would be to take action to obtain goods in New Zealand and promote their sale in the United States and Canada.

AMPUTATE FOOT AFTER ACCIDENT

His right foot was removed in hospital and it is feared he may lose his other leg and perhaps his arms as well. — Central Press Canadian.

Would Encourage Line of Thought Developed by Tito

Toronto, Oct. 24 — (CP)—Hector McNeil, United Kingdom delegate to the United Nations General Assembly, said today the west should support any move among Russia's satellites toward independence.

Mr. McNeil, British Minister of State, said in an address prepared for delivery tonight to the Canadian Club and the United Nations Association in Canada that it is "of the utmost importance" to encourage the line of thought developed by Tito of Yugoslavia in opposing Russia's attempt to eliminate nationalism among the nations of Eastern Europe.

The threat of war would be "very much lessened" if it could be seen "by everyone behind the iron curtain that such a thing as the National Communist idea was possible, as opposed to a Soviet-dominated one."

Pastor Takes Pity On Church Audience

Fitchburg, Mass., — (CP) — What church congregations need is a good seventh-inning stretch —so says Canadian born minister who spent a week on the other side of the pulpit.

In fact, decided Rev. C. Fraser Kelrstead, a native of Amherst, N.S., it's often easier for the preacher to give the sermon than for members of the congregation to sit and listen. He said he found hard pews "numbing and tiring."

That's why —well along in his services at the German Congregational Church here—he began the innovation of saying, "Let us all stand and take a seventh-inning stretch and relax."

The 39-year-old clergyman who conducts a Harvard University divinity school seminar, also says that sermons must run no longer than 20 minutes.

"If a sermon can't be delivered in 20 minutes", he explains, "I don't believe a man should attempt to deliver it at all."

Mr. Kelrstead graduated from the University of Manitoba and attended Gordon College, Boston, and Tuft College Theological School. While at Tuft he sold an encyclopedia and worked in a factory besides doing wartime service as an atomic guard.

71,000 Prairie Farmers Suffer Drought Damage

By DOUGLAS GREEN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Regina, Oct. 25.—(CP)— Ol' Debbil Drought has been kicking 'em on the knees again on the Prairies.

R. F. McGregor, director of the Prairie Farm Assistance Act estimates that drought destroyed or damaged the crops of some 71,000 Prairies farmers in 1949. That's reminiscent of the dust-bowl days of the 1930s.

The vast grain-growing lands of Saskatchewan took the biggest jolt. About 45,000 farmers in the southwestern corner of the province suffered loss. Alberta's figure is put at 25,000 while Manitoba came off best with about 1,000 farmers affected.

These farmers will be able to draw PFAA benefits—"grocery and clothing money" as such payments have been nicknamed. Mr. McGregor said preliminary estimates indicate PFAA will shell out $17,000 in benefits this year.

Only in 1947 were payments larger in the life span of PFAA. That year 76,787 farmers collected $17,252,876. The act was set up in 1939 on the suggestion of Federal Agriculture Minister Gardiner. Farmers contribute one per cent. of their cash crop proceeds on all wheat, oats, rye and barley delivered to elevators.

Since 1939 farmers through the Prairies have contributed $39,000,000 while the federal treasury footed and deficits, in drought years prior to inception of the act farmers had to go directly to municipalities for financial aid to tide them over to the next harvest.

PFAA pays on this basis: A farmer with no crop gets $500. In a township—23,040 acres—in which the average wheat production is four bushels to the acre or less, a farmer receives $2.50 an acre to a maximum of $500. Where the average yield is more than four but less than eight an acre, the payment is $1.50 an acre to a maximum of $300.

The man on the land in the drought areas is not entirely without resources. Raising of beef cattle is one source of income.

JUST LIKE NOAH

Member Praises Transport Board

Ottawa, Oct. 25—(CP)—Gordon Graydon (PC-Peel) Monday night in the Commons said he wanted to give the Board of Transport Commissioners "a pat on the back."

He said the Board should be congratulated for suspending sharp increases in railway commuters fares which were to have gone into effect two weeks ago. He spoke during discussion of transport department estimates.

Increased rates would have affected all densely-populated areas in Canada, including the Toronto area, where some 500 daily commuters have banded together to lodge protests against increases.

GOVT. CONSIDERS

There were 118 ships in the Canadian fleet and at present 23 were laid up through lack of cargoes. The United States had laid up 2,050 war-built ships.

The effects of devaluation on Canadian shipping provided the big question mark which held up definition of a government policy. The results could not be seen yet and any policy announced at this time would be of little real use.

Mr. Isnor suggested that subsidies might be given to Canadian shipping in the form of freight assistance on outgoing cargoes.

Mr. Chevrier said he was unable to see whether this would be of assistance now. But it would receive consideration.

Shipping problems occupied the Commons at most of the night sitting after Rodney Adamson (PC—York West) adjourned until today debate on the budget.

Prime Minister Nehru of India, on a three-day visit to Ottawa, addressed the two houses of parliament from the floor of the Commons Chamber as the regular afternoon sitting was delayed 1-1-2 hours.

At the opening of the sitting Prime Minister St. Laurent tabled correspondence with Premiers Douglas of Saskatchewan and Duplessis of Quebec on the proposed Dominion-Provincial Constitutional conference.

Discontinue Correspondence

Mr. St. Laurent had advised Mr. Duplessis in one letter that he could see no purpose in continuing correspondence at this time on their constitutional differences. The matter might be raised again when the Federal Government was in position to extend the actual invitations to the conference.

Two Western members —Irvin William Studer (L—Maple Cree) and William Bryce (CCF—Selkirk)—took part in the budget debate.

Mr. Studer, a farmer, urged the government to assist the farmers of Southern Saskatchewan's drought-stricken areas. He emphasized it would not be charity but rather an investment which would pay off with dividends. He asked for increased crop failure payments to western farmers.

The Saskatchewan dust belt, he said, could be made into a steady, productive area by irrigation.

Mr. Bryce said there is evidence that the Canadian Pacific Railway is attempting to make Western Canada Trucking into a monopoly. The CPR was buying out small independent truckers by offering prices they couldn't afford to refuse. Something should be done to see that the CPR did more than just talk about free enterprise.

Free-For-All Squabble

Pipelines—a matter which has sparked several spontaneous debates at this session—were the subject of a free-for-all squabble

Progressive Conservative and CCF members—including Howard Green (PC — Vancouver-Quadra), R. R. Knight (CCF—Saskatoon City) and Angus MacInnis (CCF—Vancouver East) were opposed to construction of oil pipelines with outlets in the United States.

George Cruickshank (L—Fraser Valley) supported the opposition stand, while A. Wesley Stuart (L—Charlotte) said he could see nothing wrong with Canada shipping oil to the U.S. after all the years of depending on the U.S. for her oil needs.

Mr. Cruickshank contended, however, the oil should be used to develop Canada and not sent out of the country until home needs were supplied.

At one point Mr. Chevrier rose to ask Mr. MacInnis to withdraw a remark which, he said, implied that he took orders from commercial oil companies.

Mr. MacInnis said he was willing to withdraw the remarks. He had not intended them for Mr. Chevrier, but for the whole government.

Replies to Request

What he meant, he added, was that the government, believing in free enterprise, was allowing commercial companies to make their own policies.

Most controversial example of the pipelines proposal is the one being constructed to Lake Superior which will have its outlet at Superior, Wis., instead of Port Arthur and Port William as some members suggest. The line will carry oil from Alberta.

During the shipping discussion, Mr. Chevrier also replied to a request by Mr. Isnor that the age limit of 30 on wartime merchant seamen applying for vocational training should be abolished. This request was previously made by Mr. MacInnis and Mr. Green.

Mr. Chevrier said the age limit was placed in the order-in-council on the subject after it was recommended by the Commons committee on veterans affairs. He didn't indicate whether the age limit would be changed.

lawyer. Mr. Dube, making his third federal election attempt, ran previously as a Conservative and later as a supporter of the Union Des Electeurs, an off-shoot of the Social Credit Party

Independent has 3,000 Majority.

Vote in the constituency, made vacant through the death of Benoit Michaud, Liberal member from 1945; Dube 9,336; Pichette, 6,754. Five polls still are to report.

In Montreal Jacques Cartier, Edgar Ledue, an Independent, won with a majority of more than 2,200 over Sarto Marchand, the Liberal candidate. Mr. Ledue lost the Liberal nomination convention to Mr. Marchand by three votes and then decided to run on the Independent ticket.

He polled 9,009 votes to 6,740 for Mr. Marchand with two polls still unreported.

The seat was held from 1939 by Elphege Marier, a Liberal, who was elevated to the Quebec Superior Court last August.

The Maisonneuve constituency elected Arthur Masse, an Independent Liberal, over Gerard Lesesque, a Liberal.

The seat gave Mr. Masse 9,-015 votes to 5,181 for Mr. Lesesque with one poll still to report.

The vacancy occurred when Eugene Marquis Liberal representative from 1945, was appointed to the Quebec Superior Court.

Two of the four seats retained by the Liberals formerly were represented by Cabinet Ministers —Hon. Joseph Jean Soliciter General and member for Montreal Mercier, Ernest Bertrand, Postmaster General and member for Montreal Laurier. Both were given bench appointments after the general election.

Liberal Wins Easily

In Montreal Laurier, Liberal J. E. LeFrancois won easily. He polled 10,204 votes to 709 for Pierre Gelinas, Labor-Progressive, who lost his deposit.

The Montreal Mercier seat was carried by Marcel Monette, Liberal, with a plurality of 6,-822. With two polls still unreported, Mr. Monette had 8,884 votes. Wilfrid Latraverse, Independent Liberal, 2,062, and Leon Bertrand, Independent, 1,197.

J. Celestin Nadon, former member of the Quebec legislature, carried Gatineau for the Liberals.

With 16 polls still to come, Mr. Nadon had 4,706 votes, Anastase St. Jean, Progressive Conservative, 2,135, and Marcel Bernard Bonnier Independent 1,585.

The seat was won in the last election by Leon J. Raymond, Liberal, since appointed as clerk of the Commons.

In New Westminster, a seat vacated when Thomas Reid, Liberal, was appointed to the Senate, the Liberals won with William Malcolm Mott. With five polls still to report, he had 8,426 votes to 6,345 for Elmore Philpott, well-known news commentator and Independent candidate; 5,855 for Ronald W. Irvine, C.C.F.; 2,962 for James Christmas, Progressive Conservative, and 624 for Maurice Rush, Labor-Progressive.

MEMBERSHIP SWELLS

The Canadian Junior C. of C. had its membership increased by 8,000 with a stroke of a pen Monday when John Shepherd of Hamilton, national president of the Jaycees, and Jean Paul Gregoire of Montreal, president of the Quebec Federation of Junior Chambers of Commerce, signed a pact of unification. Here Sheppard, left, and of the 30,000-member English-speaking group, hands over the pen to the leader of the French-speaking organization during a meeting of the national Jaycee executive in Toronto.—(CP Photo.)

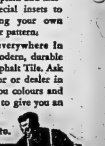
"And it's perfect for basement floors!"

Armstrong's Asphalt Tile can be installed anywhere—in basement game rooms, in homes without basements, over subfloors of concrete, wood or metal.



This modern flooring is not harmed by the moisture and alkalis that come up through concrete floors laid in direct contact with the ground.

The cost of Armstrong's Asphalt Tile is surprisingly low—even lower today than it was in 1939. And, because it is installed tile by tile, you can have your own custom-designed floor.

There's a wide range of plain and marbleized colours and special insets to choose from in creating your own attractive, distinctive floor patterns.

Flooring contractors everywhere in Canada are installing modern, durable floors of Armstrong's Asphalt Tile. Ask any Armstrong contractor or dealer in your locality, to show you colours and sample floor designs, or to give you an accurate, free estimate.

BRITISH MOVIE "OLIVER TWIST" BANNED IN QUE.

Premier Duplessis Says It is Likely to Arouse Racial Prejudice

Toronto, Oct. 25. —(CP)— Scoundrelly old Fagin, the "Oliver Twist" character who ran a crime school for London waifs, has been banned in Quebec.

Max Seigler, Montreal city councillor, announced at Monday's closing session of the Canadian Jewish Congress that Premier Duplessis has forbidden showing of the British-made movie "Oliver Twist" on grounds that its portrayal of Fagin, a major character in the Charles Dickens story, might provoke racial and religious prejudice.

Gerard Gagnon, Quebec's chief motion picture censor, said later in Montreal that he had not yet heard of the ban.

The Jewish Congress had asked that the film be withheld in Quebec. It was shown several years ago in Toronto without incident but riots broke out when it was shown in Germany.

President Re-elected

Samuel Bronfman of Montreal, who has served for 10 years as head of the Congress, was re-elected president for a further two-year term, with Michael Garber of Montreal as vice-chairman of the national executive.

Nea Rizzhih of Halifax, elected honorary vice-president told the gathering that religious education of Canadian children should be emphasized.

"Whether it is carried out in the home, in public schools, in parochial schools or in the church, it is the foundation of all other training or education which we may give our children", he said.

Congress Cautioned

Louis Henkle of Brantford cautioned the Congress against overlooking the claims of small cities and towns.

"We know that life can be rich and colorful in these limited social environments and fine intellects have come forth from these centres. The small communities should not be neglected."

The work of rabbis, especially in small communities, was praised by R. D. Gravnek of St. Catharines, who urged the Congress to intensify its interest in the technical training of rabbis and Jewish social workers.

"Perhaps the most important of the rabbi's functions is as a leader of youth. It is his function to bind them to the historic and cultural traditions of our people and to interpret these conditions in keeping with the ideals of Canadian democracy and with current living conditions."

Canada Should Throw Growing Wealth, Power into Struggle For Freedom, Plenty in Asia - - - Nehru

Ottawa, Oct. 25. —(CP)—One of the giants of the East has told Canada she could throw her "growing wealth and power" into the struggle for freedom and plenty in Asia.

The issue, India's Prime Minister Nehru told the Canadian Parliament, Monday, is no less than peace itself. Given freedom and an end of "dire poverty", Asia will become a "powerful factor in stability and peace", Dr. Nehru said, there can be no lasting peace.

Before a Commons chamber packed with dignitaries and plain people, the leader of 360,000,000 Indians declared "the differences that have existed in our minds about East and West have little substance today and we are all partners in the same great undertaking", the search for peace and freedom.

India, he said, champions freedom and racial quality in Asia and Africa but she desires "no leadership or Dominion or authority over any other country."

Compelled to Play Part

"We are compelled by circumstances to play our part in Asia and the world because we are convinced that unless the basic problems of Asia are solved there can be no world peace. Canada should understand our purpose and our motives and use her wealth and her power to expand the horizons of freedom, to promote order and liberty, to remove what might thus ensure lasting peace."

In his 3,000 word address, Pandit Nehru spoke both French and English in a voice so low that many people in the Commons could not hear him. But they applauded him with warmth and Prime Minister St. Laurent and the speakers of both chambers joined him and thanked him formally with the same warmth.

Many Welcome Visitor

Dozens of people stood in the corridors to welcome the small slight Prime Minister, here for the two full days as a break in his tour of the U.S.

Monday night he was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. St. Laurent at a state dinner. Today he will join a ceremony at the National War Memorial, will be a guest of either Mr. St. Laurent or External Affairs Minister Pearson at lunch, of former Prime Minister Mackenzie King at dinner and of the Indian High Commissioner at a reception.

Parliament and at a press conference Monday, he unfolded his views on a host of subjects and invitations.

He pictured Asia as a renascent, unsettled area in the twilight of imperialism and said the remedy for its discontents lay in an accelerated trend towards freedom and the removal of want. He so-called revolt, he said, "is a striving of the legitimate pride of ancient peoples against the arrogance of certain western nations."

India's most urgent mission now was the rapid improvement of economic conditions for the people. The main problem was not over-population but food supply. The government hoped to close the gap in two years.

Externally, she was remaining within the Commonwealth when she becomes a republic in three months time. The people largely had accepted the step and the bitterness and suspicion of the days of "British Imperialism" had vanished. India would line up with no powers blocs in the cold war but would co-operate in seeking peace because "our freedom and peace are becoming indivisible."

Reds Face Loss In Elections Held in Iceland

Reykjavik, Iceland, Oct. 25 (AP)—First vote returns in Iceland's general election today showed a loss for the Communists, who had campaigned against this island country's membership in the North Atlantic pact. The Communist party which held 10 seats in the last 52-member althing (parliament), lost one seat to the Progresive (Agrarian) in the city of Reykjavik. Final results are not expected before Saturday.

15 ARE EXECUTED, SOME SENTENCED IN RECENT PURGE

Executioner Stalks Through Red Countries

Prague, Oct. 23 (AP)—The executioner stalks through supposedly conscious Communist eastern Europe these days.

In a single day three countries —Romania, Hungary and Czechoslovakia — announced Monday they had executed or sentenced to death 15 persons for espionage or other subversive activities.

More than a score of other persons were sentenced to prison terms ranging from 5 to 25 years.

And nobody knew how many trials were going on in secret with their verdicts not yet announced.

Hungary's hangman executed four persons.

Two of them, Lt.-Gen. Gyorgi Palffy, formerly Hungary's highest ranking army officer, and Col. Bela Kovendy, were confidentants of the late Laszlo Rajk, former Hungarian Foreign Minister, executed a fortnight earlier for espionage and treason. The government announced also all of them of plotting with Yugoslav and American agents to overthrow their country's Red regime.

No Details Announced

The other two executed in Hungary were Dezso Demeh, former Hungarian military attache in Moscow, and Col. Otto Horvath, both of whom the details announced" concerning the charges against them or their trial.

Romania sentenced seven persons to death and 10 others to long prison terms for "terroristic subversive activities."

Four of the 18 sentenced to prison got life. Details of their alleged crimes were not made public.

In Czechoslovakia, where purge roundups recently have thrown thousands of persons into prisons and forced labor camps, the state court Monday night sentenced four persons to death, four to life imprisonment, and an unstated number to prison terms ranging from four to 25 years.

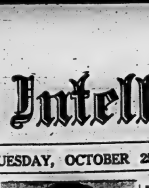
They were charged with espionage and terroristic activities including the attempted assassination of unnamed government officials.

Taft Proposes Monroe Doctrine For West Europe

Toledo, O., Oct. 25 — (AP) — Senator Robert A. Taft believes the United States should make clear to Russia that if she attacks Western Europe "we will throw herself at war with us."

The Ohio Republican Senator made that proposal in a speech last night before the Toledo United Nations Association.

This, he said, would amount to a Monroe Doctrine for Western Europe and would be far more effective than the Atlantic Pact, which only promises aid.



The Monroe Doctrine, one of the United States' main foreign policies in the 19th Century, warned Europe that war against South America would mean war against the United States.

Student Dies, Victim of Rare Neck Disease

Stratford, Oct. 25 — (CP) — A pathologist and other doctors today were examining tests taken from Harold Yndt, 18-year-old collegiate student, who died suddenly Monday from a rare neck disease, Ludwig's Angina.

"Fortunately this disease happens only in very isolated occasions," said Dr. David Smith, the boy's doctor. He was assisted by Dr. T. R. Nichols and Dr. George Ingham in treating the case, in which penicillin, streptomycin and other drugs were used in an unsuccessful battle against death. The boy died within 24 hours after the first symptoms were discovered.

Dr. John Penisten, pathologist, also was associated in the study of the case.

"We do not know the cause in this particular case and laboratory investigation is underway to find out the organism responsible," said Dr. Smith. "Usually it is a streptococcus infection."

The boy's neck swelled four inches. Action of the disease prevents swallowing and finally cuts off breathing.

A shoulder injury last week, when the boy chipped a shoulder bone throwing a ball, apparently "covered up" symptoms of the fatal disease, X-ray disclosed the fracture and that seemed to be the only trouble at first, said Dr. Smith.

CAR RUNS INTO HOUSE

Brantford, Oct. 25—(CP)— A car in charge of a driver trying to elude a pursuing police cruiser here Monday night failed to negotiate a turn at an intersection and smashed into a house.

Stanley A. Fearn of Brantford, has been charged with careless driving.

Damage estimating at $25 was done to the house occupied by E. H. Archer. A cellar window was smashed.

AUSTERITY PLAN NOT ENOUGH SAY LABOR CRITICS

Some See Political Motives in Program

London, Oct. 25—(AP)—Prime Minister Attlee hit a political storm today — a whirlwind of protest that left no two timid withconomies meant to keep Britain from going broke.

Even large sections of his own labor party were let down by the Attlee austerities discussed before the House of Commons Monday—A plan for whittling £2,250,000,000 ($6,750,000,000) from the country's £3,300,000,000 budget.

For two weeks the country had been built up to expect a really drastic belabouring. When it came, Conservative leader Winston Churchill summed up the reaction of many: "Is it adequate to the need in which we stand?"

Labor criticism rifled through a caucus of the party's legislators this morning. Its results were unknown, but Attlee previously has been able to whistle rebels to heel. Some of the opponents saw political motives in his failure to swing the economy axe wider. Attlee must call an election before the government's five-year term expires next year.

The Prime Minister called for a vote of confidence in his government—the second in a month. The vote will come Thursday night, after a debate on the new program. There seemed little doubt Attlee would win it.

Declared to Stem Inflation

Attlee's economies were designed largely to stem inflation feared as a result of the devaluation of the pound from $4.03 to $2.80 in U.S. funds last month.

They hit hardest at new building projects. The Premier cut down on house building and many other kinds of construction, including schools, hospitals and power projects. He promised to save £30,000,000 on defence, and to trim administration costs in other ministries.

But the ones that struck the taxpayers were measures to increase by a few cents prices by removal of subsidies. A charge of 1s 6d (21 cents) on medicines previously given free under the National Health program, and a similar charge on the cost for school lunches.

Heaviest criticisms from the Labor Party centred on the school meals price rise, the charge for prescriptions and the relatively small cut in defence costs. Attlee said opportunities existed." The Daily Express called it the "biggest flop" of any government declaration.

College Qualifies For $50,000,000 Bequest

Washington, Mise., Oct. 25 (AP)—Uncommon military aptitude qualified for a $50,000,000 bequest by agreeing to teach white supremacy.

The school's announcement Monday night came from Alexander A. Armstrong, business manager and son of George Armstrong, benefactor of the 102-year-old prep institute.

The college declined to publicize its enrollment, but estimates place it at between 80 and 90 cadets.

Young Armstrong said his father had notified his board of trustees he would give them school all of h' mineral rights in Mississippi, with certain restrictions.

These conditions which Armstrong said, the school had accepted, were: The exclusion of "any instructor or employee of the college known Communist, or ha communistic leanings or who is of African or Asiatic origin."

The agreement under Armstrong specified that the faculty and student body be composed primarily of persons of Anglo-Saxon and Latin American antecedents who hold the true Christian faith."

The endowment includes three producing oil wells and overall the bequest probably would exceed $50,000,000 Armstrong said.

Seaman Killed 2 Injured as Blast Rips Hatch Covers

Captain Blames Explosion On Gas Pocket in Hold

Montreal, Oct. 25 — (CP) — One man was fatally injured and two others seriously hurt when an explosion ripped the hatch covers off the British freighter Peter Dal at sea last Friday.

The 5,600-ton coal-laden freighter put in here during the night after landing the dead and injured at Havre St. Pierre, on the Gulf of St. Lawrence north shore 600 miles northeast of Montreal.

Capt. J. N. Marcomb said the dead man was Llewelyn Bassett and the two injured men were identified as James John and Michael John McMann. McMann and John were taken to hospital at Havre St. Pierre where Bassett was buried.

Capt. Marcomb said the explosion occurred about 4.30 p. m. Friday while the ship, bound for Montreal from Barrow, England, was steaming through the gulf.

He said the Gas Pocket in the hold, hurled the hatch covers in the air, the debris falling on the three men who were working nearby.

Capt. Marcomb said he thought the three men were beyond medical aid. They were taken to the ship's hospital where radio messages were sent out for help. The nearest ship with a doctor aboard was the cargo-liner Limoria 85 miles away.

The master said a message from quarantine officials at Quebec City advised him to steam towards Havre St. Pierre which he reached six hours after the blast in time to provide hospital treatment for the two men but not in time to save Bassett's life.

The Peter Dal, which will load locomotives in Montreal for India, was not badly damaged by the blast.

The captain had no details on the ages or home towns of the dead and injured.

MEDIATOR PLANS DIRECT REPORT TO PRESIDENT

May Prompt Revision of Administration Strategy in Dealing With Strikes

Washington, Oct. 25 —(AP)— The United States Government's top labor troubleshooter, Cyrus S. Ching, planned a direct report to the President today on the deadlocked coal and steel strikes.

His report of lack of progress toward settling either of the economy-damaging walkouts may prompt a revision of administration strategy in dealing with the crisis.

So Truman faced a decision of now taking a personal hand or asking Ching to try again. The President could put Taft-Hartley Labor Law emergency provisions into motion, with their eventual strike-ending court injunctions.

Ching suspended his talks with the United States Steel Corporation in New York Monday night and returned here.

Growing Steadily Worse

Meantime, efforts of the two strikes on the rest of the economy was growing steadily worse. The coal strike has been going on since Sept. 19, the steel strike since July 1.

A government order for railroads with 25 days or supply or coal or less to cut operation of coal-fueled passenger trains by 32 per cent was due to become effective at midnight tonight. Three lines, the Pennsylvania, Erie and Island and the New York Central, said they planned to stop 202 trains.

Steel fabricators were feeling the pinch more and more.

The argument in the steel dispute is over the method of payment for non-worker protection. The industry wants the workers to pay something toward their retirements, the CIO wants the industry to bear the whole cost. In coal, the John L. Lewis is asking for any-pension improvements.

Corporation Scolded

A major stockholder scolded the United States Steel Corporation publicly for inaction. He was James W. Gerard, one-time United States Ambassador to Germany. He said his family owns more United States Steel stock than all the company's directors put together.

Gerard said a presidential factfinding board's recommendations for company-paid pensions for steelworkers—the point the union is insisting on—is a prudent concession to labor.

Meanwhile Philip Murray, president of the steelworkers made plans to get the other CIO unions to chip in toward a final steel strike fund.

An estimate of the necessity of the strike funds was an incident at Baltimore. It indicates the steel strike demand unless headquarters to obtain food and food orders. Extra police had to be called to maintain order.

, DIRECTOR RESIGNS

Peterborough, Oct. 25—(CP)— Jack Dane, recreational director in Peterborough for three years and the steel strike demand unless of the post of director of Forest Hill village's recreation program Mr. Dane was offered the position by the summer by the Forest Hill commission, but refused. However in recent weeks Peterborough's city council has been critical of recreation expenditures and Mr. Dane tendered his resignation.

World's First Jet Airliner Averages 450 M.P.H.

London, Oct. 25 — (AP) — The world's first jet airliner, the British-built DeHavilland Comet, whipped from London to Castel Benito, Tripoli, in North Africa, and back on a mail-carrying flight today at an average speed of about 450 miles an hour.

The plane flew the 1,490 miles from London to Castel Benito, Tripoli, in North Africa, and back on a mail-carrying flight today at an average speed of about 450 miles an hour.

After a 30-minute refuelling stop, the plane zoomed back to London in three hours, 13 minutes, making the average speed of about 463 miles an hour.

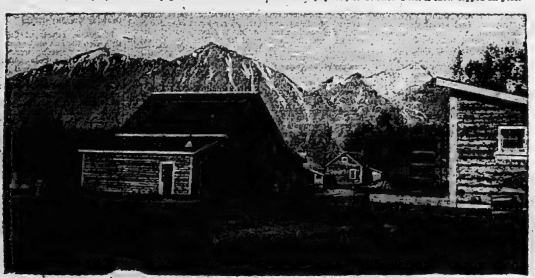
The 36-passenger Comet is intended for transatlantic service to New York in 1952 or 1953.

Autumn Rains Help Pastures

Toronto, Oct. 25 —(CP)—Excellent weather conditions in September and the first half of October brought pastures into good condition, the last crop report of the Ontario Agriculture Department said today.

Rainfall was heavy and more general in the latter period than previous this season, while the temperatures were fairly high and frosts were light.

"If the open weather continues there will be a considerable saving in hay and other winter feeds," the report said.



Timothy and clover grass in all parts of Ontario and are making good growth. Fall seeding of new seedings of hay and clover crops have also shown considerable recent improvement, and prospects for next year's hay crops are less gloomy than at the first of September.

Fall wheat, late root crops and late vegetables are all reported to have made splendid growth. Frequent rains, however, are delaying the completion of the dry beans and soy bean harvest. Fall plowing is progressing satisfactorily.

FRANKFORD

Seven New Members Were Invested Into Lions Club

Frankford.— The bi-monthly meeting of the Frankford Lions' Club, was held in the Frankford Community Memorial Hall on Wednesday evening, with a large number present. Following a fine repast and period of Community-singing, Lion Gerald Dickson was called on to give a talk on his recent trip to the Southern States. Lion Gerald gave a very interesting account of the trip, and was heartily applauded by the Lions present.

The evening was a special occasion for the club, as seven new members were invested into the organization. The new Lions are Ralph Putter, Delbert Badgley, Dr. John Beach, Gordon Green, Wilmot Rose and Cooney Heidman. Denton Spencer of the R.C.A.F. was made a member-at-large, which should bring him in contact with new friends in strange towns where he may be posted.

The giant Bingo Wednesday night was discussed, and plans completed. Boys' and girls' work was also discussed, and it is hoped that a complete program for the younger members of the village is expected to be completed soon. The meeting closed shortly after 8.00.

Love Triangle Ends in Suicide Pact for Two

New York, Oct. 25 (AP)—Two women loved Joseph Fish, 36.

There was his wife, Jean, the mother of his four children. There was Caroline Kageler, 33, a pretty brunette with whom he went to live last May.

Police told this story:

Sunday night Caroline Kageler called Jean Fish and proposed a triangle love bargain: Joseph would return to his wife provided Caroline Kageler could see him once a week.

"No!" cried Jean Fish.

"All right," said Caroline Kageler, "if I can't have him and you want him back, I'll send him back to you — in a box."

For 12 hours Jean Fish frantically tried to find where her husband and Caroline Kageler were living. Then police called and told her.

Both were found dead on the floor of an apartment Monday. Four gas jets were turned on. Fish was raked. Caroline Kageler wore a light blue negligee.

A suicide pact, the detectives said.

10,000 Varsity Graduates Expected At Homecoming

Toronto, Oct. 25. — (CP)— Up to 10,000 Varsity graduates of the University of Toronto are expected here this week for the all-Varsity homecoming weekend.

Because of the anticipated influx of grads, Varsity Stadium, with a 19,500 capacity, already is sold out for Saturday's football game between Toronto and the University of Western Ontario, London.

Festivities will start Friday night with a pep rally, fireworks and street dance on the campus. A parade of floats honoring the various faculties and colleges is scheduled for Saturday morning.

One feature that night will be a coon-around dance. At the same time, undergraduates will stage a variety show in Convocation Hall.

Five church services will be held Sunday. A tea and reception will be held Sunday afternoon. Most of the principal university buildings will be open to visitors that day.

PUPILS SHELL OUT

Sedgewick, Alta. —(CP)— A movie projector for the Stronie school and a radio for Quarrel rural school have been approved by the Killam school division board. But to promote a sense of responsibility on the part of the pupils, they must pay half the net cost of the equipment.

CATCH KILLER

Darling, Alta. (CP)—A posse of four district farmers cornered and killed a 450-pound black bear near here. They caught the bear only after it had entered a sheep pen and killed six sheep and one goat.

Just how much will it cost you to send your son or daughter to University? What are the items of cost? How much do they total? What offsets are there against these expenses? What is the net cost, all things included?

As a service to its policyholders, Canada Life undertook to get authoritative answers to these unanswered questions, by asking the student body. A cross-section of Canadian university students was questioned by scientific research methods. The resultant facts were so useful that Canada Life decided to make them available, without obligation, to Canadian parents.

This is information, never before available from any source, which every Canadian parent should have. So send for your free copy of the booklet, "How to Estimate the Cost of a University Education". Clip the coupon and mail it today.

Gonzales Makes Professional Debut in Garden

(By The Canadian Press)

Pancho Gonzales, the 21-year-old California-born Mexican who sky rocketed to fame on the amateur tennis courts of the world, begins cashing in tonight when he makes his professional debut against Jack Kramer, currently rated as the game's best.

Their match, carded for three out of five sets, is to feature the opening program of a professional tour that will carry them to at least 90 cities.

It will be played on a green canvas court stretched tightly across the floor of New York's Madison Square Garden, where Kramer also started earning an annual income in six digit figures less than two years ago.

Frank Parker, who comes from Los Angeles as do both Kramer and Gonzales, also makes his bow into the money game on the same program. He is to play Pancho Segura, the little two-fisted Ecuadorian, in the first match, scheduled for two out of three sets.

Last event of the evening will be a doubles match with Kramer and Parker teaming up against Gonzales and Segura.

With ticket prices ranging from $1.50 to $8, a crowd of some 15,000 is expected.

Members of last year's Montreal Juniors Monday attended the funeral services at Ottawa for Taggart (Tag) Millar, who coached them to the Canadian junior hockey championship and their first Memorial Cup last season.

The 36-year-old centre-ice star died in a Montreal hospital last Friday after an illness of several months, blamed on last season's championship grind. A kidney ailment produced a general breakdown in his health.

Millar, a native of Ottawa, began his colorful hockey career with the Ottawa Primrose Juniors and went to Montreal cup heights with them in 1931.

Wally Halder has been appointed coach of the University of Toronto hockey team, University athletic director Warren Stevens announced Monday night. He succeeds Irvin (Ace) Bailey, who resigned to accept a position at Welland.

Halder, a lieutenant in the RCNVR Fleet Air Arm during the Second World War, captained Varsity hockey clubs in 1945-46 season after his discharge.

Halder was captain of the winning RCAF Olympic hockey team. He turned down several offers to join professional teams, preferring to stay in amateur ranks.

Sidney Smith of Doncaster, Yorkshire, Monday led George Chenier of Toronto 9-4 at the end of the first day's play in their 37-frame heat of the £1,-500 ($4,550) news of the world handicap snooker tournament at London.

Chenier, Canadian snooker champion, dropped his first heat in the round-robin tournament to Peter Mans, South African titlist. Mans won the match 23-14. Under the handicap system, Chenier gave Mans three points a frame. He is playing Smith on even terms.

Pete Mead, middleweight fighter from Truman, Ark., Monday was signed by promoter Jack Solomon to meet Dick Tiger of England in a 10-round bout in London Nov. 15.

Mead lost his first fight in London Oct. 11, when he was outpointed in 10 rounds by Dave Sands, Australian middleweight.

Boston Bruins of the National Hockey League Monday night farmed out defencemen Bob Kyanzowski to Hershey Bears. Kryanzowski, who came to the Bruins from the University of Toronto, was sent to Hershey of the American Hockey League on 24-hour recall option.

Scotty Mair Heads Senior Scoring Parade

Toronto, Oct. 25 —(CP)—With eight of Marlboro's 16 goals to his credit, Scotty Mair today heads the OHA senior scoring race. Scotty also has three assists.

Next in line are teammates Johnny McCormack and Al Buchanan, with seven and five points respectively. Billy Flick of the Kitchener - Waterloo Flying Dutchmen, with four points, is tied with Doug Gillespie and Jack Ingoldsby, both of Owen Sound Mercurys for the fourth spot.

Red Sullivan of St. Catharines Teepees leads the junior parade with 11 points, made up of six goals and five assists. Two more St. Catharines players follow in second and third positions. Jack McIntyre has nine points and Ken O'Brien, eight.

The Junior goalkeepers are led by Don Lockhart of Toronto Marlboros with an average of only .80 goals against him in four games. Art Childs, Hamilton Tigers veteran, tops the seniors with an average of 2.5 goals against in two games.

Jack Lamotta To Meet Cerdan In Title Bout

Jake, who lifted Cerdan's crown in Detroit last July 16, had been glated to give Marcel a return shot in Yankee Stadium Sept. 28.

But six days before the contest, Jake said he had injured his right shoulder. The fight was postponed indefinitely.

That gave rise to rumors that LaMotta was backing out and had no intention of giving the 33-year-old former champ his deserved return crack.

The conversation reached LaMotta's ears and he replied, "I'll fight Cerdan when my shoulder is okay. I ain't afraid of him or anybody else."

The main reason why the agreement wasn't reached sooner was television. The International Boxing Club had a contract with the Boxing Managers Guild for all Garden fights.

It calls for main eventers getting $1,000 each as their share of the video rights.

"Why should I only get that for defending my title?" the champ squawked.

But Lamotta finally gave in to the arguments of Jim Norris, president of the I. B. C. and accepted the $1,000 scale. Norris, no doubt, explained that Jake's end of a possible $200,000 gate would be $45,000.

In addition, about $13,000 of LaMotta's purse for the first Cerdan fight, is being held in escrow until he fulfills his next engagement with Cerdan.

Disaster Boy, Eddie Zastre, Wins by K.O.

Toronto, Oct. 25 — (CP)—Eddie Zastre, 170-pound Winnipeg "disaster boy," came from behind Monday night to gain a technical knockout over Jack Herman, 207, of Montreal at the 1:37 mark of the seventh round of their scheduled 10-round heavyweight fight.

Three looping rights to the head by Zastre sent Herman down for the nine count. He rose, took two more smashing rights, and Referee Sammy Luftspring stopped the bout to save the dazed Montrealer from further punishment.

This was the second time the two fighters have met. In their first fight Herman was knocked out by the fiery Zastre.

The judges counted the first two rounds even and gave Herman all the others until the seventh when Zastre drew on a powerful reserve to smash the Montrealer to the canvas.

In the semi - final of the five-bout card, Vern Mitchell, 168, of London, Ont., won a 10-round decision over Ted Lowry, 177, of New Bedford, Mass.

Other fights:

Joe Cardinal, 147, of Oshawa decisioned Bill Zaduk, 148, of Toronto, in six rounds.

FIGHTS LAST NIGHT

(By The Associated Press)

Chicago: Pat Jacobucci, 127, Cincinnati, outpointed Bobby Henry, 125, Milwaukee (6).

Scranton, Pa.: Ike Williams, 141½, Trenton, N.J., outpointed Al Mobley, 14, Elizabeth, N.J. (10) (non-title).

Toronto: Vern Mitchell, 168, London, Ont., outpointed Ted Lowry, New Bedford, Mass. (10).

New Britain, Conn.: Sal De Marino, 154½, Hartford, Conn., knocked out Tiger Flowers, 148½, Worcester, Mass. (1).

New Orleans: Richie Clura, 135½, Pittsburgh, drew with Keither Hamilton, 137½, New Orleans (10).

Ronty, Lindsay Scoring Leaders In N.H.L. Race

Montreal, Oct. 25 — (CP) — Boston's Paul Ronty and Detroit's Ted Lindsay have his answer in command of the National Hockey League scoring race by a one-point margin.

Official league statistics released today showed that left winger Lindsay and right winger Ronty are evenly matched in goals and three assists for a six-point total — one more than Toronto's Sid Smith and Boston's Johnny Peirson. Last week Smith was the top-performer. He has two goals and three assists while Peirson has assisted four times and scored once.

The third-place spot is split seven ways among seven players with four points. They are: Maurice Richard and Elmer Lach, Montreal Canadiens; Captain Ted Kennedy, Howie Meeker and Fleming Mackell, Toronto Maple Leafs; Metro Prystai, Chicago Black Hawks; and Ken Smith, Montreal Bruins.

In the goal-scoring department, Richard continues to lead the front with four — one more than he had last week. Peirson leads the assist division with four.

Durnan Much the Best

Big Bill Durnan, who allowed only one goal in two games last week to bring his goals-against average to .80 per game, has proved the biggest stumbling block to opposing forwards.

The Canadien goalie also heads the shutout division with two. Rookie Jack Gelineau of Boston is Durnan's closest competitor with a 1.80 goals-against average and one goose-egg.

Montreal's lead is the penalty parade with 14 minutes spent in the box.

Nursing a one-point margin, Montreal Canadiens are on top of the league race. Boston and Detroit are tied for second-place with five points. Leafs follow one point behind while Chicago and New York, who have yet to win a game in four starts, share the cellar spot with two points.

Thrilling Duel Expected Between Coaltown, Capot

Baltimore, Oct. 25 (AP)—The hand on the stopwatch pointed today to a thrilling duel when Coaltown and Capot meet Friday in the winner-take-all Pimlico special.

Both have burned up the turf in recent workouts, with Coaltown bettering the track record for a mile in last Sunday's outing over the old hillsop course. His 1:37 2-5 clipped one-fifth of a second off the mark set in 1923 by June Grass.

Capot, the Greentree Stable hope for "horse of the year" honors, turned in a brilliant workout Monday at Belmont. He toured a 1 1-8-mile main course in 1:52 after covering the first mile in 1:37 3-5.

The $15,000 special is 1 3-16 miles.

Friday's meeting will be the first between Coaltown and Capot since the Sysonby mile, when Capot handily handed the Calumet campaigner his only unavenged defeat so far.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.

New York, Oct. 25 — (AP) — The principal reason for the upsets and big scores in American football season — from our personal and not-too-expert observations — is that football has become essentially a gambling game. About every third time a quarterback calls a play these days he is gambling that it will score a touchdown. The lads just don't go for that safety and four yards any more . . . so when a team is hot, or just a little better than the opposition, the results of those plays come off to produce a big score.

And, on the subject of scores, how about a post-season "conversion bet" game to provide some consolation for Princeton and Missouri? Each has lost two games by margins of points-after-touchdowns so far.

Mustard On Sundaes

Last word on the Tulane-Notre Dame gridiron massacre, says southern correspondent, came from a fan who remarked as he got back crossed the Tulane goal again: "I'd like to open a hot dog stand in Dame. Make plenty of money — lots of traffic."

The Wack Wack Golf Club is putting up $5,000 pesos ($17,500) in prize money for the Philippine Open golf tournament, Nov. 24-27. Sounds slightly wacky . . . Rex Barney, the Dodger pitcher, starts work Nov. 1 in a Brooklyn department store; Don Newcombe has a similar job as a clothing salesman in Brooklyn and Gene Hermanski follows the same trade in Newark . . . Must have been Branch (the brain) Rickey who figured how the boys could make money outfitting Dodger fans who lost their shirts on the World Series.

LEGION SQUAD WINS

Midland, Oct. 25 (CP)—Peterborough Legion, last year's Ontario Senior B champions, defeated Midland Flyers 7-4 in a fast exhibition hockey match here Monday night.

A big first period in which they scored four goals played a large part in the Legion victory. Hill led the visiting marksmen with three goals, with Fryer and Rochette, Parent and Greenlaw each getting one. "Fat" Sales and Len Lawton and Lou Dandeman were the Midland goal getters.

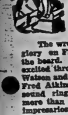
Do You Know...

where the name "hockey" came from?

The word 'hockey' is derived from the 'hooked stick' with which the game is played, from the Old French word 'hoquet', meaning 'shepherd's crook'.

Do You Know . . . that the general idea of ice hockey is not original with Canada? Many 16th and 17th century Dutch paintings show a game something like hockey being played with a stick shaped like a golf club.

Do You Know . . . that there are sharp differences of opinion as to exactly when and where the first ice hockey games were played in Canada? Although Kingston, Halifax and Montreal are most often mentioned in this connection, available records seem to suggest that the first organized games were played around 1881, between the Victoria Hockey Club and McGill University teams, in Montreal, and in Kingston between the Royal Military College and Queens University.



Do You Know any interesting and unusual facts? Our "Advisory Panel" will pay $25 for any authenticated readers' submissions if they are usable. All letters become our property. Write Black Horse Brewery, Station L, Montreal, P.Q.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

The wrestling season wound up in a blaze of spectacular glory on Friday night with all attendance records going by the board. The Memorial Arena rumbled to the roar of the excited throng as it long last the popular team of Whipper Watson and Pat Flanagan handed the roughie-toughie duo of Watson and Pat "Austrylian" and Hardboiled Hanalnan a Fred Astaire, the "Austrylian" and Hardboiled Hanalnan a send ring threading. And nobody enjoyed watching that more than we. This city, a number one spot for wrestling promotion, enjoyed one of the best wrestling seasons in its history and, as we are informed, has the best facilities between Toronto and Montreal. Substantiating that is the fact that over 5,000 fanatical fans nearly tore the rafters out of Memorial Arena on Friday night. Reserved seats were sold Memorial Arena on Friday night. Reserved seats were sold out before the first bout started and standing room was sold out before the first bout started and standing room was scarce. Promoter Walter Gerow did an excellent scarce. Promoter Walter Gerow did an excellent scientifically wrangled wrestling fare for his mat clientelle. He job in providing wrestling fare for his mat clientelle. He knew what they wanted, and he did his best to procure it for them.

* * *

Tragedy marred wrestling here this season in the sudden passing of the popular Phil Lawson, boom pal and trainer of the popular Whipper Watson. Pat Flanagan who has a heavy following here took over the Lawrencian job for Maurice Frank Tunney, and in conjunction with Manager Walter Gerow gave forth excellent fare. Now it is all over for another season, and it is to be hoped by the time the hockey clouds have cleared, there will be a flock of new wrestling faces sprinkling those on the veterans.

Napanee Athletics, Eastern Ontario OBA Intermediate "B" champions, winners of the Belleville District Baseball League and the Kingston Baseball League, entertained a large gathering of baseball fans at Gibbardville last year afternoon when they meet Wallaceburg, newly-crowned champions of Western Ontario in the first of the series for the Ontario title. Wallaceburg defeated Listowel in the western semi-finals series.

* * *

The game which gets under way at 2.30 should attract one of the largest crowds of the season. It should be a game in the archives as being of topflight character as both squads have defended the cream of the crop in their respective sections. Napanee are worthy champions of the east and they proved it on the week-end. They won the District League here, disposing of Picton in two straight games. Their crowning feat was the sweep, two straight, sensational sweep of the best teams in this part of Ontario during the Eastern Ontario Baseball Tournament held at Kingston. They rose to their baseball heights playing sensational baseball behind airtight hurling and emerging undefeated.

* * *

But they'll have a task on their hands tomorrow. Wallaceburg, we are informed, have a steady, hard-hitting team with a first pitching staff. The Gibbard Memorial Park should be "busting at the seams" when "Play Ball" is called.

* * *

Popularity of the game of darts is increasing here and has reached the inter-city stables. The other evening a banquet of Army, Navy, Air Force veterans players sparred to Kingston where they were the guests of the sergeant's mess at Fort Frontenac. There were some exciting games played, and all were closely contested. When the list of battle had cleared the heels had not only won the singles, 17-16, the doubles 6-2 and for good measure added the triples by a score of 5-1. However, it was all in good fun and while rivalry was keen, it was the friendly type. The "soldiers" will be the guests of ANAF Branch No. 261 here in the near future.

* * *

And while on this miniature harpoon subject, we might add that the local Service Darts League boasts some of the finest players in Eastern Canada. They have likewise the finest squad of darts crack out-of-town teams and right now the ANAF squad which won the league title for the past two years has its eyes on the Army, Navy, Air Force Trophy symbolic of the challenge championship. The trophy, put up by the Kitchener Branch can be challenged for by any other branch, and right now it is being held by the Lakeview Terrace branch of the Toronto Legion. The rose is still there enjoy each. A challenge from Branch 73 Belleville will be forthcoming if not already issued. In the meantime plans are being made to bring the Niagara Falls, Ont., branch here for a series of friendly matches.

A bit belated, but none the less sincere. The appreciation of this department and newspaper goes to Enos David, genial proprietor of the David Electric here, for his generous gesture in providing a fine battery-operated radio set for use during the recent world series. The reception from this fine Spartan model left nothing to be desired and we can readily recommend it to anyone desiring this type of radio.

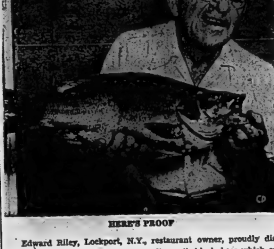
Driving Rains Soften Track At Newmarket

London, Oct. 25 (CP)—Driving rain during the last few days has softened the famed racetrack at Newmarket and made it just that much tougher to pick a winner from a field of about 40 horses which will contest the Cambridgeshire Handicap Wednesday.

The heavy going just about eliminates the chances of the heavily-weighed entrants in the handicap which ranges from 85 to 130 pounds over one mile and one furlong. Even last year's winner, Sterope, seems unlikely to tote top weight in the head beyond the post. The four-year-old colt won last year's race under 28 fewer pounds.



Several critics say they prefer the changes of Sterope's stablemate, Stormy Petrel, which is in at 120. Others high in the handicap which have been talked up in pre-race gossip are the Aga Khan's Moondust, 118, and the French-bred Hornet III 117.

Some of the less - heavily - weighted horses that the tipsters like include Yellow Idol, third in last spring's Lincolnshire Handicap, th Princess Royal's Orphan, which has won its last two races in strong style, and Normanton, fifth in the Epsom Derby.

If the veteran Michael Beary can boot Hyperbole home in front he'll be the most unpopular man in Britain among the bookmaking fraternity, which stands to lose hundreds of thousands of pounds if the double comes off. Many fans had coupled Strabrepey and Hyperbole in ipog-odds wagers before the Ceneswitch.

In at 115 pounds, Hyperbole is a more heavily handicapped than the majority of Cambridgeshire winners in the past, but at four years seems to have hit his best stride just at the right moment. He has won three of his last four races and was second on the other occasion.

HERE'S PROOF

Edward Riley, Lockport, N.Y., restaurant owner, proudly displays the eight-pound-one-ounce small mouth black bass which is the Department of Lands and Forests. Using a fly rod baited with crab meat, Mr. Riley was fishing in Algonquin Park on Sept. 1 when this monster struck. It won for him $200 in prizes from the Toronto Star in its 1949 fishing contest — $100 in the bass division and $100 for the finest fish in the contest.—(CP Photo.)

(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Montreal, Oct. 25 (CP)—Art Ross, elected last week for the Hockey Hall of Fame, still holds the distinction of the highest paid player in hockey.

Years ago Ross, now vice-president and general manager of Boston Bruins, received by Elmer (Montreal Herald) Ferguson who says the two newly-rich Northern Ontario towns in those days were "no hockey — and they essayed roles in the major league."

But, says Fergie, it is not because of this financial accomplishment that Ross deserves the honor of a place in the Hall of Fame.

"Ross deserves the spot because of his own playing feats, which were remarkable, and even more so for the fashion in which he pioneered the first invasion of hockey in the United States.

"Boston entered the National Hockey League in 1924 and that entry, says Fergy, "sparkeaded the invasion which resulted ultimately in the National League lifted from a leaky-roof circuit, literally speaking in some cases, to the greatest international sports body in America.

Mayhem or Worse

Hockey was introduced to Cincinnati this month and Fergy relays a story that the Cincinnatians are beginning to understand the game. He tells it:

Awed by the assault and mayhem nonchalantly inflicted by all players on all other players, an onlooker finally asked: "How can they get away with that?"

In a loud voice her hubby answered the action.

"Listen," he said, "they can do any damned thing out there but take off their skates and slit one another's throats."

FRANKFORD
Wooler Wins Trent Valley Softball League

It's all over in the Trent Valley Softball League, except the weeping. Wooler looked like the champions they are, in handing Frankford an 11-3 lacing in the final game of the best of three series for the league championship. Don Boyle pitched a good game for the losers, but lack of support from his team cost him another loss he didn't deserve. On the other hand, Farrar should be given due credit for a great pitching job for the winners. Twice he retired the side, once with the bases loaded and nobody out, the other time with two on, and none away. If Frankford team had a few hitters like McColl and Redcliffe of the Wooler Club, they would be a team to beat. Wooler sluggers readily admit that Boyle's pitching is just as tough to hit as any they have faced, including their long playoff series in the O. A. S. A. However, for their first year in intermediate ball, the boys made a very commendable showing, and perhaps another year will bring a few more breaks for the boys. The town of Frankford is proud of the showing made by the merchants, and everyone joins in wishing them good luck another season.

Stratford Coach Resigns Office

Stratford, Oct. 25—(CP)—Leo Barbini today announced he had resigned as coach of Stratford Kroehlers of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A group. He said he was discouraged and disappointed over the showing of the team which had lost its last four games after winning its first one.

In verifying the resignation, Alf Riches, secretary of the club, announced that a new coach would be named by the management of Cleveland Barons of the American Hockey League. The Stratford club has a working agreement with Cleveland.

Riches was unable to say who would handle the Kroehlers in their game with Guelph Biltmores here Wednesday night, but expected fat a successor to Barbini would be announced within the next day or two.

Barbini was appointed coach for the 1948-49 season and was successful in piloting the Kroehlers into th eO.H.A. play-offs. They lost to Toronto Marlboros in the semi-finals.

Top Hatters strengthened their hold on first place in the standings, as they dropped the Head Pins deeper into the cellar, taking all three games. The Top Hatters admit quite frankly that the Head Pins were tougher opponents than some of the teams they had met previously, and it is almost a certainty that the Head Pins will really find their stride one of these nights. The Greenhorns upset the highly favored Uniques, taking five points, while the Aristocrats move ed up a notch in taking five points from the Skyliners. The high-flying Merry Macs downed the Happy Gang for seven in the other tilt. Jack Arbuckle rolled a new high triple with 741.

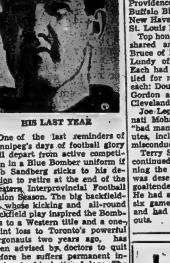
CORUM MOVES TO FRONT



Louisville, Ky., Oct. 25 — (AP) — The name of Bill Corum, New York sports columnist, was moved to the head of the list today as the likely successor of the late Matt Winn as organizer of the Kentucky Derby.

One member of the Churchill Downs committee going over the list of prospects to carry on for Winn, who died this month, confirmed Monday night that Corum had been interviewed by the committee.

TOP SCORER

Calgary Stampeders' chances of repeating last year's Grey Cup victory took a sharp upswing when young Vern Graham appeared in the backfield this season and started booting placements. Pressed into service when ace place-kicker Freddie Wilmot left the club at the start of the campaign to attend McGill University, the 26-year-old flying wing kicked his way to the top of the eastern Provincial Football Union scoring race. A product of Calgary Junior football, Vern didn't even make the Stampeders last year.—(CP Photo.)

HIS LAST YEAR

One of the last reminders of Winnipeg's days of football glory will depart from active competition in a Blue Bomber uniform if Bob Sandberg sticks to his design to retire at the end of the Western Interprovincial Football Union Season. The big backfielder, whose kicking and all-round backfield play inspired the Bombers to a Western title and a couple of loss to Toronto's powerful Argonauts two years ago, has been advised by doctors to quit before he suffers permanent injuries to his battered legs. The University of Minnesota import will play out the string for the lowly Bombers this season and then continue his work in Winnipeg as an architect.—(CP Photo.)

Douglas Retains Scoring Lead In Hockey Loop

New York, Oct. 25 — (CP) — Although held pointless in three games during last week, Les Douglas of Cleveland Barons maintained his scoring lead in the American Hockey League with 18 points.

Second in total points was Fern Perreault of New Haven Ramblers with 11. Tied for third with 9 points each were Jack McGill of Providence Reds, Ab DeMarco of Buffalo Bisons, Jackie Gordon of New Haven and Cliff Simpson of St. Louis Flyers.

Top honors in goals scored were shared among Douglas, Gordie Bruce of Hershey Bears and Pat Lundy of, Indianapolis Capitols. Each had six. Five players were tied for most assists with seven each: Douglas, McGill, Perreault, Gordon and Danny Lynn of Cleveland.

Joe Lopine of the new Cincinnati Mohawks was the league "bad man," with 32 penalty minutes, including one 10-minute misconduct.

Terry Sawchuk of Indianapolis continued to show that his winning the rookie award last year was deserved as he led in both goaltender average and shutouts. He had allowed only 10 goals in six games for a 1.67 percentage and had chalked up two shutouts.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Nip and tuck went the battle for a recent team of four state championship. Neck and neck did it come to a finish with only half a point separting the five top teams.

In a match of this kind, one pair of a team plays north-south. At the same time at another table is their other pair seated east-west. Each pair plays against a pair from another team.

The same hands are played at both tables. The score made in the same deal at one table is compared with the score made at the other. This determines which team made the best score both ways.

If both teams tied, each receives a half point. If one team has a total score of more than the other team, the winner receives one point; the loser takes a zero.

This is regardless of the size of the score made in any deal. A part score of 80 is as good as a slam for 1000. Providing, of course, the other team has a lower score.

In this sort of competition, however, it behooves a pair to bid each hand to the hilt. Why? The opposing pair at the other table no doubt will. And the most possible tricks must be tried for.

Among the many deals in this match were a few heart breakers, as usual. A deal that hurt at some tables was the one shown here:

NORTH
♠A 6 3
♥K 8 3
♦A K Q 5
♣10 6

WEST	EAST
♠Q J 10 7	♠8 5 4
♥Q 6	♥8 7 5 4 2
♦6 4 3	♦10 9 8
♣K J 8 4	♣9 7

SOUTH
♠K 9 2
♥A 10
♦7 2
♣A Q 5 3 2

Where they ended at game and made two overtricks, some were pleased. Until they saw what happened at other tables. It turned out that several bid and made six no-trump with south as declarer.

In each such case the opening lead from west was the queen of spades. At first glance it looked bad for south. With 11 top tricks sold, a 12th must be found.

There is a loser in spades to consider and the club finesse is off. But this did not stop 12 tricks. You see why, of course.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Oct. 25.—(AP) — Alan Ladd has a beef—about "beefcake" the new Hollywood trend toward exposing the male chest.

Ladd, along with Victor Mature, Richard Conte, Robert Ryan and others, has been shown stripped to the waist in movie ads. "I don't like it", Ladd said. "I wish I could talk them into letting me stay covered up.

"I especially don't like the way they advertise a picture by showing you stripped to the waist. Usually if you do appear that way in the picture it's only for a few scenes."

"The Great Gatsby", was the film exploited with Ladd's bare bosom. "That's foolish", he commented, "because I was playing a character role, not a pretty-boy personality. And the only line my chest was shown was during a swimming scene where I was shot."

Tuesday Tidbits

Peggy Lee appears in her first full length movie with Bing Crosby in "Mr. Music". The appearance was by request of Mr. Crosby, on whose air show she sings, she'll play a songstress name of Peggy Lee.

Dick Powell returns to hardshoe routines in "Right Cross." He'll play a tough newspaperman (aren't they always tough in movies?) Ricardo Montalban portrays a prizefighter.

This actually happened: A star proposed closing a recent picture with a simple 'I love you' between the romantic couple. The producer disagreed. "That's an old line" he said. "That line is 50 years old."

Capsule Review

"The Heiress (par) is a splendid job recreating a century-old era and three characters thereof. William, Wyler has made a fine film, avoiding the pitfalls of costume drama. Olivia DeHavilland etches a true portrait of a sky heiress and Montgomery Clift convinces as the fortune-hunter. Tops is Ralph Richardson as the father. Film and players are Academy fodder.

Saving is Small Under This Plan

Wendell, Mass., Oct. 25 (AP) — This community of 350 Monday night voted to save money by having men on the welfare role chop wood to heat town-owned buildings.

But the saving won't be so noticeable.

Welfare Board Chairman Ray Clark said there is only one person on the relief list — a woman.

$10,000 Paid For Bull Calf At Cattle Sale

Toronto, Oct. 25 (CP)—Top price of $10,000 was paid for the six-month-old bull calf, Glenafton Trademark, at the 41st Canadian sale of purebred cattle here Monday.

The animal, son of Marksman, six times all-Canadian bull, was bought by the Waterloo Cattle Breeders' Association from J. J. E. McCague, of Allision, Ont. The Waterloo Association also paid $2,500 to Elmcroft Farms, Oshawa, for a four-month-old bull calf.

Cattle buyers from many parts of the western hemisphere were along with him Monday as he drove a motorload of trash to the city dump.

He saw in the rear-view mirror that the trash was alive. He stepped on the gas to beat the fire to the dump.

Rounding a curve, the car door swung open and Field fell out. The driverless auto with the children aboard sped crazily down the highway.

Then the car hurried itself around in the road and came back toward Field, ran him down and knocked him to the pavement.

The car stalled. Field was treated for cuts on the head but the children were unhurt.

APPEAL QUASHED

Toronto, Oct. 25 — (CP)—Appeal by Wilfred Landgraaff against his two-year sentence for theft of copper pipe valued at $43.50 was quashed Monday by the Ontario Court of Appeal. Landraaff was sentenced in Esponola, Ont., April 22. Time served pending appeal was allowed on sentence.

My and pop were taking a walk for the good of pop's appetite, and we came to the Pockadoppolo flower store, and pop said, Ben, smiles it's been days since I sent four mother flowers. G, pop, it's been longer than days, I said, and he said, Oh, I dont think so, If just seems longer to your mother.

And we went in and pop picked some different color flowers and told Mr. Pockadoppolo to send them rite away, and Mr. Pockadoppolo said, You want to write a card?

Oh no, the lady will know what gallant swain to thank for them, pop said. Flowers speek plainer than cards, he said.

And when we got home ma said to pop, William, come in here.

Meening in the living room, and the flowers were there already, in the blue vase, and pop said, Well well, what misterious smiles has been sending you roses?

He's not so misterious as he thinks he is, ma said, and pop looked like somebody trying not to shiish, saying, Oh, really?

They're from Horace Entwhistle, believe it or not, ma said, and pop said, I'll believe it not. Why, that rerly headed sap moved out of town years ago.

He must of been here on a flying visit, because Maud Hews saw him downtown yesterday and there's no use calling him nervious names, ma said, as soon as these flowers came without a card, I knew in a flash that Horace just couldn't resist sending me a proof that the past may be gone but it's still partly alive. Wasn't that silly and sentimental of him, William? she said, and pop said, My dear, I'a wink.

never saw you so foolishly pleased over a few weeds, and I wish you many happy returns of the day.

And he gave her a kiss and me

Couple Unhurt Though Car Skids 40 Feet on Side

Toronto, Oct. 25. —(CP)—Mr. and Mrs. John Smith of Port Credit, were unhurt when their small automobile last night after their car, out of control, turned over and skidded 40 feet on its side. The car's door handles were ground off as though they had been filed, police said.

Mr. Smith told police he applied his brakes when he saw a barricade lantern warning of a sewer excavation. The light car skidded on loose gravel and toppled over.

IT WORKS TOO

With an old Model T generator, a 12-volt storage battery, $35 and several evenings' work, Walter Foster of Toronto built this electric car for his three-and-a-half-year-old daughter, Barbara. Here Mr. Foster checks the power plant while Barbara, the envy of her playmates, looks on.—(CP Photo.)

WHITE'S DISTRICT

White's District—Mr. and Mrs. C. Rush were last Sunday visitors of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Rush of Colborne. They also called on Mr. and Mrs. W. H. May of Colborne.

Mr. J. C. White has returned home after visiting his sons Mr. and Mrs. Ross White and family and Mr. and Mrs. Lorne White of Toronto. He also attended the International Plowing match at Burford.

Mrs. Harry Rush of Colborne spent the past week with Mr. and Mrs. C. Rush. Mr. Harry Rush spent the weekend with his uncle and aunt.

Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Sadler, Miss Doris Sadler and Mrs. S. Murphy of Stirling and district were last Sunday callers of the Brown family.

Mrs. C. Rush and Mrs. H. Rush were last Monday tea guests of Mr. and Mrs. Clare Millar of Belleville.

Mr. and Mrs. Ritchie Ketcheson attended the funeral of their aunt Mrs. John Ketcheson of Thurlow on Tuesday.

Mrs. M. Bowers and Mr. Gerald Brown called last Sunday on Mr. and Mrs. O. Coutts of Trenton.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Rush and Mrs. H. Rush were Wednesday visitors of Mr. and Mrs. Murney Jeffery of Aiken's District.

Anniversary dinner guests on Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Jeffery were Mr. and Mrs. W. H. May of Colborne and, Mrs. Denton of Trenton.

W.A. Entertains Guests

A pleasant social time was held at Wesley United Church, Bayside last Wednesday afternoon when the ladies of the Woman's Association were hostess to the ladies of Avondale, Centenary and White's.

Mrs. Fred Denyes, president of the local association presided over a brief but entertaining program of music and readings provided by the visiting ladies. The program opened with the theme song with, Mrs. T. A. Irwin at the piano. Mrs. H. L. Mooney extended a warm welcome to the visitors and hoped all would enjoy their visit at Wesley.

The program consisted of the following numbers: Reading by Mrs. Fliyer of White's entitled "The Lord's Day"; solos by Mrs. Daniels of Avondale, readings by Mrs. F. Aikens of Centenary entitled "Spring and Daffodils"; solo by Miss Lawrenson accompanied by Mrs. E. Ray both of Centenary, reading by Mrs. Tucker, Avondale, entitled "The Last Hymn."

Afternoon tea was served with Mrs. W. Rutter and Mrs. E. Palmer pouring tea and with the following conveners Mrs. J. L. Stewart, Mrs. W. Denyes and Mrs. H. Rutter as their assistants. Mrs. Charles Wilson had charge of the tables where the parcel post sale was held. All parcels were readily sold. Mrs. R. Edmondson and Mrs. Fliyer on behalf of the guests thanked the ladies of Wesley for an enjoyable afternoon.

Plans are in preparation for the 82nd anniversary of Wesley United Church on Sunday with morning and evening services. The Rev. E. H. Hillis of Bellville will be the guest speaker. Centenary choir will assist in the morning service and White's choir in the evening service at which the pastor the Rev. A. C. McCallum will also be present.

Mesdames W. A. Jeffery, Walter Jones, R. Fliyer, E. Reid and Frank Sandercock of White's, W.A. were among the ladies who attended the Wesley W. A. at Wesley Church on Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Clare Miller, David and Stephen were anniversary guests of Mr. and Mrs. C. Rush.

WEST HUNTINGDON

The Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Clarke opened their home for the October meeting of the West Huntingdon W.M.S., and also the Thomasburg charge

The call to worship was given by the president who opened the meeting. General Thanksgiving was repeated by all. Portions of the Missionary Monthly were read alternately by the president and members. Bible quotations from Genesis, Psalms, John and Acts were read by Mrs. H. Elliott of Thomasburg , Mrs. Richardson, also of Thomasburg, read from the Psalms, Isaiah, and Revelations. Mrs.. McCurdy of West Huntingdon, read from Matthew, John and Romans. Mrs. H Clarke and Mrs. G. Morton favored with a lovely duet "Whispering Hope".

Collection and Thank-offering envelopes were taken and Mrs. Richardson gave the offertory prayer. Mr. Clarke gave a very fine address.

During the business part, Mrs. Hammond gave the treasurer's report. It was decided to hold a circuit supper in the hall at Thomasburg, and plans were made for same.

Mrs. Hammond voiced her appreciation on behalf of West Huntingdon W.M.S., for the lovely afternoon and to Mr. and Mrs. Clarke for opening their home. Mrs. Elliott spoke on behalf of Thomasburg Auxiliary. Mrs. Clarke and her helpers served dainty refreshments and a social half hour was enjoyed by everyone.

WORKERS' BONUS GROWS

Jamshedpur, India — (CP) The employees of the Tata steel works here are to get about $1,650,000 as a profit - sharing bonus for 1949 as compared to $1,200,000 allotted in 1948. The steel works, biggest in the east, employs more than 40,000 workers.

A TOUGHER QUESTION

Ottawa — (CP) — Canadian wildlife experts want more information about Arctic whales and plan to try a number to trace their movements. The right kind of tag is available, but the problem of catching and tagging the whales is still to be solved.

NORTHLAND NURSE

Career girls might take a leaf from the notebook of Jean Whitney, a pert Saskatoon miss who follows the "go north young woman" technique. The charming, red-haired nurse says the north offers a "wonderful opportunity" to anyone interested in life and people. She has spent her last three summers nursing in Canada's northland and now is starting her third year in medicine at Queen's University, Kingston, Ont. This photo shows her giving an Indian youngster a ride while working in the James Bay area last summer. — (CP Photo.)

Girl Should be Charged Says Police Chief

Port Credit, Oct. 25 — (CP)— If any charges are to be laid in connection with a 13-year-old girl found in a drunken stupor last Sunday, they should be laid against the girl, not the 70-year-old railway worker who supplied the beer, Police Chief Garnet McGill of Toronto township, said today.

Chief McGill said the man had been drinking beer on his verandah and the girl "crept picking up his glass and taking sips of beer. When he went into the house she stole several quarts and, apparently, drank them all."

He said she "crept right on drinking, even though four people tried to stop her."

Bright Outlook For Plow Co.

Brantford, Oct. 25 — (CP)— Bright outlook for Brantford's 1950 industry came today with a report from the Cockshutt Plow Company, one of the city's biggest industries, of continued activity in its export trade, particularly in the United States.

Company officials said that its United Sales distributors, including co-operative organizations, were laying plans for increased sales effort and that original estimates of 1950 requirements have recently been increased.

"The overseas export trade is also evidencing a brighter picture, while domestic trade gives promise of a solid backbone for 1950 production," the report said.

Cancer Surgery Risk Reduced Greatly in 10 Years

Toronto, Oct. 25—(CP)— The risk of major surgery in cancer operations has been greatly reduced in the last 10 years, the executive director of the Canadian Cancer Society said today.

Dr. O. H. Warwick, writing in Health, a magazine published by the Health League of Canada, said improvements in anaesthesia technique and in care of cancer patients has helped.

Another advance was the discovery that certain compounds will halt tumor growths for "periods of a few weeks to several years".

"It is the investigations of the method of action of these compounds which holds so much for the future. In at least six of our Canadian University laboratories such studies are being pursued."

GOT RESULTS

Regina. (CP)— The junior chamber of commerce has long campaigned for water to be piped into Regina from Buffalo Pound Lake on the South Saskatchewan River. So several days ago some members of the chamber sprinkled water from the lake on the city hall lawn for five minutes. They brought the water in a tank truck.

Black Boom

By Paul David Preston

"I feel grand, Jason, It's a lovely morning.'

"Ain't no mo' lovely than we been havin'. You got some plans up this early?"

"I'm going horseback riding."

"She nuff?"

"Uuh huh. Now don't wake mother and Baby yet. You be quiet. I'm going up to dress for it."

"You needs me to escort you, ma'am? You aims to ride Mr. Henshaw's hosses?"

"Thank you, no, Jason. Not this time."

In times past old Jason had ridden out with Lillian and Baby Doll, staying 50 yards or so behind as a watchful protector. But that was before the girls "grew up", years ago in fact. Lillian smiled fondly at him. She was actually humming when she went upstairs again.

Then in her own doorway facts suddenly assailed her. She was still engaged to Thad Monroe.

The humming ceased. She went on dressing automatically. Modish riding togs she hadn't worn in months, a little bit loose now because she had lost weight lately. She glanced casually out the window. Before 6.30 she was all ready. She sat down on her bed to think.

"I have to go out with others some, to keep the secret", told herself anew. "Thad agreed to it. And anyway, I don't care!"

She felt almost defiant. She couldn't have explained the thrill of anticipation at going out with Dal Tower here at dawn. She had seen him almost every day —but that had been impersonal, during charity case work, and today was a genuine date with him! Of course it was still not an impersonal, friendly date, for exercise; just being genial. She suddenly remembered the expensive gifts Thad had been sending her. She had taken all them to her closet or dresser, including even her engagement ring. She dismissed that thought too, however, and tip-toed downstairs again.

She saw Dal riding up the street leading her horse, and she went hastily out the side gate and down Mrs. Halton's lawn to meet him.

"You look great this morning!" he said, and meant it. "Feeling better aren't you?"

She blushed almost guiltily. Jason had said the same thing! She looked up at broad shouldered Dal Tower and experienced that same little breathless excitement he had caused in her when they first met weeks ago. It pushed her fiance further back into some forgotten nook of her mind.

"Cat got your tongue?" he teased smiling fondly.

"Oh, I was rude, wasn't I? I was thinking. Thinking that you look really nice yourself, Dal. Did—Did you ever consider a stage career? Dramatics in school, or anything?"

He laughed, "Judas priest Me? I'm the brutiest type, myself. Full-back, wrestling, rowing. No glamor in a town full of Towers. But go on and tell me some more I like it."

"No, You'll be insufferable. Vanity ill becomes you, sir."

They were off to a good start. Easy, free, congenial. Lillian's horse was a gaited fellow who felt zestful this morning himself and he wanted to run. They cut off Marshall street quickly to get away from the pavement, rode down an alley and into the railroad right-of-way.

"Prettiest part of the county lies towards Buford's pond", Lillian reminded him. We can cut across G.W.L. Smith's meadow."

It was a tactful way of riding away from all derricks and all that they connoted, including the smell. Lillian led off. Dal galloped a block and reined beside. He admired the way Lillian rode obviously she was a born horsewoman for ever her mount seemed to sense her skill.

In the fertile pastures a yearling bull showed up unexpectedly and decided to challenge the riders. He tossed his tail, pawed earth and roared "Bawr-r-r-r!" Lillian's horse backed its ears and charged right at the bull pell mell. The bull gave ground, swirled and ran.

"Tally ho, Dal!" Lillian shrieked. "See my fox?"

"Yes for your life! I might be a lion!"

The other bull was scared silly by now. He ran to a fence and ducked .hastily into brush that grew there, but Lillian's horse stretched out and took the fence in a graceful leap, disdainful of the smaller animals. Dal's own horse wouldn't jump and they had to ride a quarter-mile to a gate.

"Sissy! Sissy!" Lillian teased. They enjoyed their play no end. When they had .rub until the horses were blowing a bit they settled to a walk out the old Tatum dirt road which paralled the pavement for a ways, and in half an hour they had come to a farmer's house. The farmer was outside. He called a cheery greeting—"You all traveling or going somewhere?"

His crack brought smiles, then a pause for friendly conversation, neither Dal nor Lillian knew his name but he said he was new in the county.

"Would it be reasonable to ask you to serve us breakfast?" Dal suddenly asked. "We're starved and there's no restaurant for miles."

"I'll ask.m'wife", he said. "I'm shore she will.

To her own astonishment, Lillian did not protest. While coffee, fried ham, biscuits, scrambled eggs, butter and blackberry jam were being set on the table, the fruit and the cheese sandwiches she had eaten earlier this morning seemed very remote. She ate as much as Dal, which was embarrassing. Moreover, everything—every little thing Dal said and almost definitely the farm family ventured—was exceedingly gay or funny to Lillian. She laughed at the slightest provocation. Humble as the surroundings here were, simple as was this little morning adventure, she couldn't remember ever having such a grand time anywhere else.

The delightful mood did not change when they rode on. She wanted to sing and did so. Riding now at a walk, side by side, she and Dal sang together the snatches of all the songs they knew. She could remember, as they dozed under low limbs of sweet gum trees, past walnuts and pines and dogwoods and oaks, over grassy pastures and up the slopes of the farm lands.

"Violets are in your eyes" said Dal.

"Goodness! Just like high school poetry!"

"Okay, okay, cynic! I'll stick to lilies, Lillies for Lillies. How's that?"

"Hardly any better. I'm afraid you're a realist and not a romantic, Dal. But I like you that way. You never delude yourself, do you?"

"Sometimes I'm afraid I do. With hopes, at any rate." He was suddenly serious. At the water edge he dismounted, took a long stick and raked in a lily bloom for her. With the same stick she smacked at lily pad mows which streaked off in fright Out 30 feet or so a game fish leaped to catch an insect in the air, or perhaps just in sheer play spirit. Across 200 yards to the other shore, great trees were upside down in the lake in minute perfection until the waves Dal caused spread over there and gave them a new shimmering design.

Buford's pond, like Thompson's pond had been until recently, one of those countless spots of natural beauty which adorn the Southland. Not spectacular scenery, but quiet, restful, ,gemlike tableaux in emerald settings. The spell of such a place was almost insidious this morning, Dal felt. He looked at Lillian and her horse now and sitting with infinite grace on a fallen pine log. She was the very personification of all that was lovely and desirable. Dal trembled slightly, gritted his teeth, "Go easy; Easy" he warned himself, silently.

To be very safe, he switched the conversation to casual, factual things.

"I was talking with my good friend Jason last night" he began, handing her her lily bloom. "You can't imagine what the old darky was doing."

"No. What, Dal!"

"He was buying paint. Gallons of baby blue paint."

"Imagine! Whatever for?"

Dal grinned in amusement. "He wouldn't say. He intimated that it might not be any of my business. He did mention that he expected to be very busy this morning though."

When Martin Deale made up his mind to propose to Lillian, he went into the privacy of his room and read an hour from his favored poets, and although his mind kept slipping back to material things, he did create what he felt was the proper mood. Martin worked a great deal on moods. They had to be right before he could do much with his painting, his reading, or even his exercise. In his room now he even wrote down the reasons why Lillian should marry him. He listed her needs and her family's needs and what he sincerely believed to be his own good traits. Then, inevitably, a sense of fairness stirred, so that he decided to list his bad points as well. He was almost childish about it, but the introspective young man saw it not as something trivial or amusing, but as a deadly serious enterprise.

All at once, then, a forgotten fact assailed him. He was under technical arrest, out on bond! He faced a felony charge. His case would soon come up in court. Obviously that disturbing, disgraceful fact offset all of his assets which he might muster.

"I cannot ask her now!" he reminded himself grimly. "I must wait until I am freed. If—if I am!"

Black despair gripped him. His own lawyer had told him that his only course was to plead guilty and beg for leniency of the court. Defensively, he hadn't a leg on which to stand. There could be a severe fine, a penitentiary sentence, or both. Martin looked again at his calendar, a thing which had begun to haunt him of late.

At 12.15 p.m. Sunday Dal Tower turned in his saddle to face Lillian.

"I'm starved again", said he. "Nora will give us lunch."

"A thousand thanks but—I'd better eat downtown."

"Please Dal. It has been such a lovely morning."

"It has that. But I'm still the jinx boy. I mean, I'm afraid to go to your house, really. Things happen; you know what I mean. Anyhow I'm scared to push my luck too far; You've been your old self today. Happy and vivacious as you were at first, and actually friendly again!"

Northern Air Sovereignty May be Lost

St. Jovite, Que., Oct. 25, —(CP)— Canada's supremacy in the northern heabiths may be "open to doubt" if civil air lines do not take over RCAF operations.

This warning was issued Monday night at the annual convention of the Air Industry and Transport Association by President H. C. Cotterell of Winnipeg.

He said the RCAF now is flying northern routes to supply communities which could be serviced by private aviation companies.

"By allowing private companies to take over in the near future", he said, "a back-log of experience would be gained for any military contingency in the north and the RCAF could be free to concentrate on other jobs."

He told the 181 delegates that the United States Air Services would be pressed into service if civil air lines do not take over and "this would mean Canada's sovereignty in the north would be open to doubt."

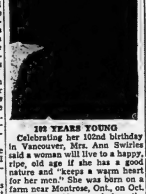
Dr. Harrison F. Lewis of Ottawa, chief of the Dominion Wildlife Service, told the representatives of 80 aviation and aircraft-manufacturing companies that the uncontrolled use of aircraft for hunting and fishing would destroy these sports.

He suggested that the aircraft industry could be the federal and provincial governments impose controls on the use of planes for sports purposes.

Manhole Covers Fly into Air, Two Workers Hurt

Montreal, Oct. 25, —(CP)— Three men were injured in downtown Montreal Monday night when a flash explosion sent two manhole covers flying into the air as a crew of hydro workers attempted to repair a power failure in the area. Injured were hydro employees William Raynor and E. Proulx who suffered first degree burns to the hands and face and taxi driver Gerard Leduc who escaped with only superficial burns.

Allege Youth Held Up 18 in Revenge For Poker Loss



St. Catharines, Oct. 25. —(CP) —A youth, wielding a pearl-handled cap-pistol and seeking "revenge" for the $96 he lost in a poker game, held up 18 men in the downtown club Waverly Monday night.

He escaped with $21 and was nabbed by police a block from the club. Police identified the youth as W. H. Brocklebank, 22, of Canboy.

"I lost $96 playing poker in here two weeks ago, and I just got that money back", the holdup man was quoted as saying.

Describing the robbery, one of the victims said: "He stuck the gun in Sammy's back, and said 'If anyone makes a move this guy gets it.' He made us put money, rings and watches on the pool table."

The robber returned some of the money to the club members saying it could be used as taxi fare, and left the watches and rings behind.

102 YEARS YOUNG

Celebrating her 102nd birthday in Vancouver, Mrs. Ann Swirles said a woman will live to a happy, ripe, old age if she has a good nature, keeps a warm heart and for her men." She was born on a farm near Montreal, Que., on Oct. 19, 1847 — 10 years before the Confederation — and moved to Vancouver. "A young woman of 81" in 1938. — (CP Photo.)

BACKS UP SENTENCE ...

Toronto, Oct. 25 — (CP) — The Ontario Court of Appeal has quashed an appeal by Richard McKeen against the 18 month sentence for escaping custody. The court Monday backed up the sentence received at Kirkland Lake June 30, but allowed the time served on his sentence pending his appeal.

14 DEAD, MISSING AS GALES LASH BRITAIN

3000 G.M. Workers at Oshawa on Strike

Protest Working Conditions at Big Automobile Plant

Dispute Dismissal of Four Employees Earlier in Week

Oshawa, Oct. 26 — (CP)—Employees of General Motors of Canada, Ltd., went on strike today in protest against dismissal of four workers who had objected to an alleged speed-up plan by the company.

Between 2,500 and 3,000 employees, members of the United Automobile Workers (C. I. O.), voted to strike at a mass meeting which followed the third walk-out from the plant in the last five days. The Union said the company attempted to speed up production on one assembly line from 40 to 46 cars.

The strike vote, passed just before noon, was effective immediately.

It applies to all workers in the General Motors plant here, employing about 5,000.

While a committee was being established to handle the strike for the union, there was no indication of when a further meeting would be held between union and company.

Union officials placed two motions before the meeting, one to hold a strike vote, and the other to go on strike. Both were carried by a show of hands.

The dispute was over the company's dismissal of four employees Tuesday. The men were dismissed for refusing to work and for inciting others to sit down.

The union said the trouble stemmed from the company attempts to speed up production on one assembly line from 40 to 46 cars.

No Agreement Reached

The union said a meeting between company and union officials this morning at which no agreement was reached on the union demand for reinstatement without penalty of the dismissed workers.

The company said in a statement that executives met with union officials regarding the strike this morning at the request of the union to discuss the dismissal Tuesday of four employees, in connection with Tuesday's walkout, by the plant "and other matters."

"The chairman of the bargaining committee claimed the discharges were unwarranted and demanded reinstatement of the four men without penalty," said the company statement.

"The company pointed out the seriousness of a situation where employees took the law into their own hands in defiance of supervision and in violation of grievance procedure. The company felt the dismissals were justified

MRS. ARTHUR PITRE ASKS IMMEDIATE SUMMARY TRIAL

Unexpected Request Brings Sudden Adjournment of Hearing

Quebec, Oct. 26. (CP)—An unexpected request by defence counsel for immediate summary trial for Mrs. Arthur Pitre on an attempted suicide charge today brought a sudden adjournment of her preliminary hearing in the case of the key witness in the air disaster murder case.

Shortly after Mrs. L. Pitre appeared for voluntary statement—a step in the preliminary hearing at which the defence may present its evidence—her counsel, Irenee Simard asked for immediate trial before a judge instead of allowing the case to proceed to the court of King's Bench stage before a judge and jury.

Crown Counsel Noel Dorion objected but Judge Alphonse Garon adjourned the hearing until Nov. 2 to study the defence request.

The 41-year-old Quebec woman provided clues to the fate of a parcel-bomb explosion which police say wrecked a Canadian Pacific airliner at nearby Sault Au Cochon Sept. 9, killing 23.

Police described her as a friend of J. Albert Guay, the 32-year-old jeweller who is charged with the murder of his wife in the air disaster.

During Guay's preliminary hearing—he will face court of King's Bench trial—within two months—Mrs. Pitre testified that Guay had told her to commit suicide by taking sleeping tablets and to leave a note admitting responsibility for the breach.

Later, she admitted delivering a "parcel" to the plane at Guay's request before it took off, but she thought the package contained a statue.

Police claim that the parcel contained a home-made bomb which exploded while the plane was in mid-air.

Guay is awaiting trial on the murder charge, set for Jan. 9.

MEMBER URGES GOVT. TO FINANCE RESEARCH WORK

Believes Oil Can be Produced From Coal

Ottawa, Oct. 26 — (CP) — A man who wielded a pick and shovel in Nova Scotia coal mines for more than 18 years before entering politics has urged the government to finance research into the production of oil from coal.

Clarie Gillis (CCF— Cape Breton South) said in the Commons Tuesday that the government has practically nothing to help research on the possibilities of getting oil from coal. It should, he said, carry on continued debate on the 1949-50 budget, undertake such research as a possible insurance against the eventual disappearance of natural oil resources.

He made the statements after saying that the abolition of the eight-per-cent tax on fuel oils would result in a cut in the consumer by government order.

Oil is considered the fuel of the "near future," he said. But oil reserves in Northern America were not inexhaustible and the day might come when supplies would begin to dwindle.

Canada's coal resources "are a great national asset," he added. But if the present trend continued toward greater use of oil as fuel, the coal fields of both Alberta and Nova Scotia would lose their places in the economy.

Prairie Belief Indian Summer Before Nov. 1st

Winnipeg, Oct. 26 — (CP)— To give voice to a prairie belief:

Indian Summer's gay reprieve
Must come before November's eve,
Else stormy winter's dreary touch
Is here till spring doth shake its crutch.

Old wives and the weather man agree that Indian Summer, Nature's farewell to summer, is the first cold snap and the serious business of winter, must start in the west by Oct. 31 if it is not to strike the back.

The prophecy—to consider the 6.3 inches of snow that have already fallen, buries up these heavy coats, and wonder if this is one of the old seasons. Only 12 times in 75 years has October been worse.

Britain Cannot Exist On U.S. Charity Cripps Tells House of Commons

London, Oct. 26. (CP)—Sir Stafford Cripps solemnly warned Britain today it could not exist on the charity of the United States.

Opening a two-day debate in the House of Commons on the government's new £250,000,000 ($688,000,000) economy drive, the chancellor of the Exchequer said:

"At the root of our success or failure lies our own capacity to produce. The only real solution for our difficulties is more and more economical . and efficient production."

The cut in dollar imports—such as tobacco, food, cotton and gasoline—and a slash in government spending are essential, he said "but cannot of itself bring" success.

He said Britain wants to be able to afford a high standard of living "not through the charity of some friendly people, but because we can and do produce enough currently to supply all our own wants."

Britain spent $1,600,000,000 last year in importing raw materials, it slashed dollar buying for the remainder of this year to an annual rate of $1,200,000,000.

Sir Stafford said there is no short cut to filling the dollar gap.

"There is only one thing that can do it," he said, "with the full help of our American and Canadian friends on the other side of the Atlantic, and that is by our own effort. And by that I mean the individual effort of every person in our country.

Hon. Peter Beatty Plunges to Death At London Hotel

London, Oct. 26 — (AP) — The Honorable Peter Beatty, son of a famed Admiral and grandson of the Chicago Merchant Prince, Marshall Field, Sr., plunged to his death today from a sixth-floor window in the fashionable Ritz Hotel.

He had just been told he was going totally blind.

The 39-year-old race horse owner fell to the ground at the rear of the Ritz, which is in Piccadilly, in the centre of London.

Beatty, a handsome, wealthy aristocrat, was born with a serious eye affliction. He spent thousands of dollars for operations both here and in the United States.

His sight was so poor that his manservant had to help him wherever he walked. For years he had been unable to see his horses run. He went to the tracks and had his manager describe the races to him.

Beatty's mother was the former Ethel Field, daughter of Marshall Field, Sr., the Chicago department store magnate. She divorced Beatty's father, Sir Alfred Beatty, who died in 1932.

Beatty had been staying at the Ritz Hotel, in the heart of London, with his brother, the second Earl Beatty. Their father, Earl Beatty, won fame as the Admiral commanding the Royal Navy forces at the Battle of Jutland in the First World War.

Central Fire College Will be Established

Toronto, Oct. 26—(CP)—Some 500 fire department officials from 154 Ontario municipalities were told today the provincial government intends to establish a Provincial Fire College to expand training in technical and scientific firefighting methods.

The officials are taking a fire training course at the University of Toronto.

Attorney-General Porter said he had authorized the formation of a fire college advisory board which would advise Fire Marshal W. J. Scott as to the scope of the new college. The board will be organized tonight.

REMANDED WEEK

Lindsay, Oct. 26. —(CP)—John Crowley, 24, of Peterborough has been arrested by Lindsay police and charged with attempted false pretences. Police said Crowley has been trying to obtain goods from Lindsay merchants by a mythical riding academy near here. Crowley has been remanded one week.

Russia Demands Recall of Tito's Envoy to Moscow

By EDDY GILMORE

Moscow, Oct. 26 — (AP) — Russia has charged Premier-Marshal Tito's Ambassador to Moscow with anti-Soviet spying and declared that he can no longer serve as the Yugoslav envoy here.

A Soviet note delivered Tuesday to the Yugoslav Embassy said the Budapest treason trial of Hungary's former Foreign Minister Laszlo Rajk and his wife revealed that Yugoslav Ambassador Carlo Kramoric "had for a long time engaged in spying and subversive activities against the Soviet Union."

Mrazovic left Moscow for Yugoslavia in August and has not returned since, though technically he remains Ambassador to the Soviet Union. He is also presumed he would return to the Russian capital eventually.

The Kremlin's note said also that Mrazovic "while being Yugoslav Ambassador in the U. S. S. R., had come out in the Yugoslav press with slanderous fabrications against the Soviet Union."

Mrazovic came to Moscow June 16, 1948, after serving as Yugoslav minister to Hungary, the scene of the alleged treason plot, one which the Russians based their espionage charges against the Yugoslav diplomat. Rajk and four co - defendants were executed after being convicted of treason. Don't Mean Break

The Soviet action does not mean a break in diplomatic relations with Yugoslavia, since the Kremlin announced he is going to recall only their Ambassador, but their diplomatic mission in Moscow.

107-Year-Old Veteran Dies In Ohio

Columbus, O., Oct. 26 — (AP) — Howard Osgood, an Old Age Pensioner believed to be 107 years old, was found dead in a rooming house here Tuesday by police. Mrs. Jennie Mahon, operator of the rooming house, said Osgood's favorite pastime was reading the back yard counting a "huge roll of paper money." When police inspected his room they found only the rent due. All but $40 of the roll was play money.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

Toronto, Oct. 26 — (CP)—Synopsis: A deep low pressure trough in the upper air spread to the most southern portions of the provinces this morning, with showers occurring along its leading edge as it advanced eastward. The low pressure will remain under the influence of this centre as it moves through Thursday and temperatures will drop to freezing or below in most localities tonight. There will be considerable cloudiness today with scattered snowflurries indicated for northern regions. Thursday promises to be sunny for southern districts but will continue cloudy in Northern Ontario.

CAMBRIDGESHIRE WON BY STEROPE FOR SECOND TIME

Favored Hyperbole Runs Out of Money

Newmarket, England, Oct. 26. —(CP)—Sterope today won the one mile and one furlong Cambridgeshire Handicap, Britain's last major classic of the fall flat-racing season. Sterope was a 33 to 1 choice.

Good Taste was second in a photo-finish with Sterope in the classic on which the Irish Hospital Sweepstake was based. Sterope won the race last year as well.

Third place went to Meysey Hampton. The official decision was that Sterope won by a head. Good Taste had a three-length margin over Meysey Hampton.

"Owner John Townley thus scored a sensational double when his colt Sterope won the Cambridgeshire for the second year in succession. Sterope was carrying top weight of 130 pounds and was ridden by Charlie Elliot.

The field was narrowed to 39 runners.

Wins in Successive Years

Sterope is the first horse to win the race in successive years since Christmas Daisy did it in 1909 and 1910. Time for the mile and a furlong of sticky going was 1-5 1-5 seconds faster-than last year.

The winner earned $9,647.50 for owner E. S. Townley.

Good Taste and Meysey Hampton both were approximately 2½ to 1 as they paraded to the post.

Sterope started at the same price as last year and was drawn in the same position—25th.

The race was run in a howling gale and jockeys had hard work to battle against driving rain.

Elliot brought Sterope to the front in the last 100 yards and held off a strong challenge by Good Taste to get home by a head.

Snowflurries In N. Ontario

Toronto, Oct. 26—(CP)—Arctic air from the Hudson Bay far north today brought scattered snowflurries to northern Ontario, with rain at the leading edge of the wave.

Light weather bureau here estimated the mixed fall of snow and rain at Sault Ste. Marie at 2.3 inches in the past 24 hours.

In southern Ontario the forecast was for frost in many localities tonight.

New Theory That Earth Originated From Dust Instead of Fire Advanced

Rochester, N.Y., Oct. 26. (AP)—A theory that the earth originated from dust instead of fire was unfolded before the National Academy of Sciences today by one of the world's foremost chemists.

The author of the new theory is Dr. Harold Urey of the University of Chicago—eminent atomic bomb scientist and Nobel prize winner and discoverer of heavy water.

Urey did something unique. He looked with a chemist's eyes at the earth beneath our feet to find there the signs and clues to its origin.

The first thing he found was the temperature which had to exist in the long crust of the earth about 1,000,000,000 years ago to form the present chemical compounds of the ground. That temperature was nearly 2,000 degrees fahrenheit.

But that temperature was not the creation, he reasoned, of a 1,000,000,000 years still earlier fire which was cool, just a huge aggregation of dust gathered into a ball as the Sun passed through one or more vast dust cloud in space.

This primeval dust contained every kind of chemical, including a lot of radio-active dusts. The heat generated by the earth began rising, due to the heat from this radio-activity, and the great pressure of gravitation on the dust got denser. Thus it rose to nearly 2,000 degrees.

Iron and everything else was uniformly scattered through this dust ball. That would be impossible according to former theories, which required a liquid ball of fire in order for iron to concentrate in the core of the earth, where it now is.

Torrential Rains Flood Roads, Aid Services Cancelled

Winds Drive Ships Aground, Seaside Resorts Battered

London, Oct. 26. —(CP)—The heaviest October gale in 25 years today battered Britain and the continent. At least 14 persons were reported dead or missing.

The winds drove small ships aground, smashed fishing craft and swept sight seamen and two fishermen to their deaths. Three seamen were reported missing. One person was drowned.

An English Channel steamer with 300 aboard was unable to go on to Dover or return to Dunkerque. The storm prevented the docking. Seaside resorts on Britain's Channel coast estimated their property damage at £200,000 ($620,000).

Flares were grounded, trains were delayed and torrential rains flooded highways.

At the peak of the storm the Belgian channel steamship Konig Albert, breaking adrift from her moorings in Dover Harbor, was involved in a collision with British railway steamer channel vessel, Maid of Orleans.

The Konig Albert was anchored five miles out of the harbor this morning, a harbor official said damage was slight.

A British collier, the 147-ton Archgien, was driven ashore near Dover. Lifeboat men rescued members of the crew ashore by Breech's buoy.

Seas Batter Boats

Shipping passing through the Straits of Dover had a terrific battering. The Cunard White Star cargo liner Fort Spokane (7,128-ton) took four hours to pass through the Downs Roadstead off Deal, a journey usually done in 20 minutes.

Eight Herefords Valued at $2,000 Are Stolen

Mono Mills, Ont., Oct. 26—(CP) —Cattle rustling has broken out again in this area, with the theft of eight head of registered Hereford cattle from the farm of Gordon Mitchell here near here.

The missing cattle are valued at $2,000.

Cattle thefts have been reported before from farms in Simcoe, Dufferin and York counties. In some cases, the thieves are bold enough to slaughter the cattle on the spot and carry the carcasses off in a truck.

FOUR ARE KILLED, PRIVATE PLANE CRASHES IN MD.

Machine Plummets Out of Overcast Sky Into Side of Hill

Port Deposit, Md., Oct. 26.— (AP)—A private plane plummeted out an overcast sky and crashed into the side of a hill Tuesday night, killing four persons, including H. L. Straus, a wealthy Norseman.

The plane was owned by the American Totalizator Company, of which Straus was president.

Others aboard were identified as A. J. Johnson of Baltimore, general manager of the company; Walter Mayer of Palm Beach, Fla., the pilot, and Delton R. Osbourne of Palm Beach, co-pilot.

Straus was president of Tropical Park Race track in Florida. He also developed the American Totalizator, used at tracks throughout the country in computing track odds and prices.

STOLEN AUTOMOBILE FOUND NEAR PERTH

Stolen last night from where it was parked in front of Duffy's service station on Front Street, a 1935 auto owned by Gerald Radford, R. R. 5 Belleville, was recovered early this morning near Perth. When the auto was reported stolen police in the district were notified. The car was found abandoned five miles north of Perth but was otherwise undamaged.

WEATHER FAVORS DUCK HUNTERS

Cooler weather with light winds sent duck-hunters to their favorite haunts in greatly increased numbers this morning. No reports of any large bags had been received at press time, but the reports of guns were heard all morning. Some hunters state that the mild weather of the past few days with little wind has been a deterrent to successful hunting.

WATER LEVELS LOWEST IN YEARS

Water levels of the Moira River and its tributary streams, and the Bay of Quinte are the lowest in years, it was stated today. Farmers of the district report an extended shortage of water if more rain is not forthcoming. Northern residents of the county state that creeks in some sections are "bone" dry.

BALLET TICKETS ARE AVAILABLE

Rotary Club officials announced today that there are still tickets available for the club sponsored Volkoff Ballet scheduled for the Collegiate auditorium Thursday, Nov. 3. Tickets can be secured from any Rotarian.

ATTEND INSPECTORS' MEETING

C. W. Lees, Lindsay, was elected president of the Trent Valley Group of School Inspectors at their annual convention held in Peterborough on Monday. Hastings County inspectors who attended were: Dr. H. Hackett and L. A. Kells included A. W. McGuire, Tweed, and D. W. Simpson, Bancroft. Superintendent W. A. Morrison of the OSD here was also in attendance as was A. F. Brown, Picton.

MOCK BATTLE PLANNED FOR WEEKEND

Arrangements are being made for a mock battle to take place in a selected spot on the Bay of Quinte over the weekend which will serve units of the three armed services taking part. More details regarding attending schools will be published as soon as possible.

Fees to be Charged Board Deciles

Fees will be charged by the Belleville Board of Education for children who are not the public school parents reside on Albert College property, it was decided by board members at their last meeting.

It was pointed out to board members that as Albert College is an educational institution it pays no school rates to the city, therefore children of teachers and others employed at the college residing on college property are being educated by the city without payment.

The board decided it could no longer entertain such children without payment being made.

Members of the property supply committee were authorized to install new lighting in the Queen Alexandra, Sidney Smith and Queen Mary public schools, following a report from engineers as to the type suitable for the buildings.

Discussion was heard regarding the employment of a caretaker for Bridge Street and Rose Avenue school now in course of construction. In all probability one of the present school caretakers will be transferred to the new school with an additional caretaker to be hired.

Chairman of the Board, Miss Josephine Tickell was named to represent the Board of Education on the proposed Citizens' Committee, while Miss Tickell was also named to represent the Board at the Centotaph for the program in connection with Remembrance Day.

An expenditure of up to $300 was authorized for the construction of a new fence along the east boundary of Queen Mary school grounds and south of the school.

Obituary

FRED S. PARROTT

Fred Stanley Parrott died suddenly while sitting in his chair last evening at his home 225 Bridge Street east. He was in failing health for some time.

The late Mr. Parrott was in his 72nd year and was born in Napanee, his parents being the late Mr. and Mrs. Jonathan M. Parrott. He was educated in the schools at Napanee and upon graduation from the Napanee Business College he went to Rochester, N.Y., where for some time he was engaged as an accountant with the Eastman Kodak Company. Eventually he returned to this district and took up farming in the first concession of Thurlow township where he operated a fine mixed farm for some years ago when he retired and took up residence in this city. During the time he lived in the country he took an active interest in the affairs of the township and was a member of the school board. In the community where he lived for so many years and also in this city he was highly esteemed and his death has brought much regret to many friends. He was a member of Bridge Street United Church.

Surviving him are his wife, the former Maude Lillian Parke, and one son, Mr. Fred M. Parrott, Thurlow township.

Resting at the Belleville Burial Company Funeral Home, Campbell Street, until Thursday morning, Oct. 27, when at 10 o'clock the funeral announcement is made in this edition.

MRS. KATE STOCKMAN

Mrs. Kate Stockman, 7 Ridley Street, widow of Leonard Stockman, died in the Belleville General Hospital on Tuesday after a brief illness.

Born in Cornwall, England, the late Mrs. Stockman was in her 71st year and was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Henry Fairbank. Her husband predeceased her. She came from Plymouth, England, to reside with her daughter, Mrs. Grant (Blanche) Blakely in this city. Mrs. Stockman was the last of a family of nine and is survived only by her daughter and four grandchildren. She was a member of the Church of England and was a parishioner of Christ Church.

Resting at the Belleville Burial Company Funeral Home, Campbell Street; the funeral announcement is made in this edition.

LATE JOHN REID (Frankford)

Frankford, Oct. 25—(Special)—The funeral of John Reid was held from his late residence here on Saturday afternoon last and was largely attended. The service was conducted by Rev. James Hall, assisted by his brother-in-law Rev. B. Harpell.

The bearers were Walter Tweddy, George Tweddy, Joseph McCumber, Fred Smith, Erastus Boote and George Kelly.

MRS. MARGARET BLUE (Madoc)

Madoc, Oct. 25—(Special)—Mrs. Margaret Blue, widow of Duncan F. Blue, died suddenly at her home in Huntingdon on Wednesday. She was in her 56th year and was born in Scotland, the family name being McFarlane. For the past 46 years she made her home in Madoc and was highly esteemed. She was a member of St. Peter's Presbyterian Church and fraternally she was a member of the Order of the Eastern Star No. 143.

Surviving her are her sons, Douglas Blue, Toronto; two daughters, Miss Frances Blue, Toronto; Miss Helen Blue, Regina, N. Kingston, and one sister, Mrs. William (Elizabeth) Kelly, Kingston. Her husband died 14 years ago.

The funeral announcement is made in this edition.

EDWARD JOSEPH LAWLOR (Centreville — Castleblate)

Centreville — Edward Joseph Lawlor, one of our most esteemed and highly respected young men was suddenly called to his eternal reward while working in the bush miles from anywhere last. He and a fellow worker were on night shift when a mass of debris unexcecidely giving way, almost completely covered him. The other man hurriedly rushed for assistance but he was liberated too late to save his life. The sad details of his untimely death at the early age of 36 years, was given to his bereaved family by four of his most intimate friends who motored down on Sunday to be present at his funeral on Monday. The large funeral procession, and the many spiritual and floral tributes testified to the high esteem in which he was held by young and old. Surrounding the coffin were two lovely wreaths from his friends in Sudbury, also one from the Creighton Mine and one from the Post Local Union.

The funeral mass was sung by Rev. Fr. Haley after which his remains were placed in the family plot. He was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Michael Lawlor and leave to mourn his loss three sisters, Mrs. John Hanley Read, Mrs. Joseph Whalen, Stoco, and Mrs. J. Flynn, Marlbank and one brother James on the homestead.

The honorary pall bearers were William Burns, Kenneth Darby, Hiram Rupert and Stanley Call all of Sudbury.

The bearers were James Kennedy, Harry Doupe, Gerard Dillon, John Dillon, Thomas Kearns and John Finn.

Prizes Presented For Winning Essays at B.C.I.

Winners of the High School division of the essay contest, which was run in connection with the "Enjoy Shopping in Belleville" campaign, were presented with their prizes this morning by T. E. Schwab during the assembly period at the Belleville Collegiate. Mr. Schwab pointed out that one significant aspect of the contest was the fact that the prizewinners were all girls. He complimented the students on the quantity and quality of the essays and expressed the appreciation of the Retail Merchants executive to the cooperation of the students and staff.

Mr. Schwab told the assembly that the essays were judged by a competent and impartial judge in the person of Dr. Bert Howard of Albert College.

Second prize of a Royal Portable Typewriter, donated by Schwab Office Supplies, was won by Margaret Wakefield, B. C. I. form G11-A;

Second prize of a Bulova watch, which was donated by Ronald Keel, Queen's Hotel, was awarded Jean Morrell, Grade 12, of St. Michael's High School;

Marion Hawkins, G-D, B.C.I. won the third prize of a Sheaffer Pen and Pencil Set, which was donated by McKeown's Drug Store.

Just 22 Out In Guess, Wins First Prize

Twenty-two numbers out in a guessing contest may seem a bit wide of the mark, but the number 2444 was nevertheless a lucky guess for Miss Olive Robinson, 82 Cedar Street. Miss Robinson won first prize of a pressure cooker in the nail guessing contest staged by Seymour Hardware in connection with the "Enjoy Shopping in Belleville" week.

The actual number of nails in the jar was 2456.

Second place winner of a coffee percolator was Fred Cooke, 8 Strachan Street with a guess of an even 2500 nails. Third prize winner of a quart of Spred Satin paint, was won by Mr. C. Mitchell, 1 Moira Street, West. Mr. Mitchell's guess was 2363.

Elks Hold Most Successful Institution Ceremony Presented by Toronto Lodge

With the Orange Hall at 315 Church Street filled to its capacity, Monday evening a colorful scene was presented when the official institution of Belleville Lodge No. 325 of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks of Canada took place under the personal direction of P. A. Miquelon of Winnipeg, Dominion Grand Organizer, and assisted by M. A. Moran, Grand Lodge representative, both of whom have been in the city for the past month directing the organization. All wearing the fez in its traditional colors of purple, gold, and white officers of Toronto lodge, No. 302 accompanied by a dozen other members of that lodge were in attendance to welcome into the ranks a the Order the "baby" lodge of the province, Lodge No. 325.

Dispensation Read—

Following the roll call of applicants, Mr. Miquelon read the dispensation from the Grand Lodge authorizing the official institution of the new lodge and then in their order introduced the visiting officers to occupy the various stations of the lodge. These were: J. N. S. Dixon, Exalted Ruler, John F. Claxton, Leading Knight (also having the distinction of being District Deputy Grand Exalted Ruler for Ontario), Dick McGrandle, Loyal Knight, Wm. Manning, Lecturing Knight, Tony Costigan, Esquire, H. Poyner, Tyler, W. J. McGrandle, Secretary and W. J. Copeland, Pianist.

With all candidates for membership present, the lodge was opened in due form in an impressive ceremony. Initiations followed with two exemplifying candidates. This was carried out with proficiency, decorum and dignity. A slate of officers committee, a membership committee formed or local members was submitted by Mr. Miquelon and accepted by the lodge.

Officers Installed

Assisted by Mr. Claxton, Mr. Miquelon then proceeded with the installation of those officers who are to guide the destiny of Belleville Lodge of Elks for the coming year. They are: Exalted Ruler, J. P. Howe, occupying the chair Messrs. Dixon, Claxton and Miquelon briefly addressed the assembly all expressing their pleasure in seeing Belleville lodge a strong unit in the realm of the Order of Good Citizenship.

Congratulatory telegrams were read from the Grand Exalted Ruler, Grand Secretary-Treasurer and other Grand Lodge officers. At midnight refreshments served in the banquet room of the hall brought to a close an important event and a very pleasant evening.

Following are the officers of Belleville Lodge No. 325 and the "Elks" Exalted Ruler, J. P. Howe; Grand Secretary, D. D. Turkington, Loyal Knight, Jas. Montgomery, Lecturing Knight, Wm. Tice; Treasurer, H. L. Borland, Treasurer, Al Dustin, Esquire, Fred Bottrell, Inner Guard, John C. Hegan, Tyler, Chas. R. Hewson, Trustees, Al Reynolds, George Reid and Don A. Thomas. (Belleville lodge numbers 104 charter members).

STRICKEN WITH POLIO

Kirkland Lake, Oct. 26 — (CP) — A 19-months-old girl was stricken with polio Monday, bringing the number of cases this year in Kirkland Lake to four. All have been within the last month. There were no polio cases here last year and one in 1947.

The newest case is not serious, but has caused paralysis of the left arm.

Congress Requests Investigation Of Building Costs

Ottawa, Oct. 26 — (CP) — A public investigation into homebuilding costs was asked of Reconstruction Minister Winters today by the Canadian Congress of Labor.

A. R. Mosher, president of the 380,000-member Congress, made the proposal in a letter to Mr. Winters, Minister in charge of housing for the federal government. He suggested immediate establishment of an investigating Royal Commission of a Parliamentary Committee.

Mr. Mosher said $8,000 was practically the minimum price of a house — exclusive of interest rates — and that placed new homes out of the reach of most Canadian workers, who averaged slightly more than $40 a week in wages.

Mr. Mosher said that four reasons generally were given for the high cost of residential construction:

Excessive profits by contractors; high labor costs and the claim that construction workers were not "doing a proper job" on home-building; decentralization of the industry making for high unit costs, and high interest rates.

"One presumes that the operations of real estate interests are a contributing factor to high costs as well," Mr. Mosher said in his letter.

Declaring the high cost of housing is perhaps Canada's outstanding domestic problem, Mr. Mosher added:

"Labor Congress believes that the spotlight of public inquiry should be directed into every aspect of the high cost of home construction which makes it impossible for literally tens and hundreds of thousands of Canadians to own their own homes."

Wellington Dog's Offspring Win Ottawa Prizes

"Pal" a beautiful merle collie, constant companion of his owner Norman Clinton, well-known dairy rancher and trainer, of Wellington, Ont., is the proudest dog in the district these days.

For "Clinton's Blue Boy" handsome adult male collie, and son of "Pal" came first in all classes shown at the recent Ottawa Dog Show. Others of "Pal's" offsprings won the best Canadian-bred pup award and reserve winner for the best dog in the show.

Mr. Clinton has upwards of thirty fine collies in his kennels in Wellington, as well as an assortment of other animals and birds, including Angora goats, orange-eyed Siamese cats, mastiffs, and hounds.

Cairn Exodus Led By Two Boys

St. Catharines, Oct. 26—(CP)—Two unidentified boys set the pace Tuesday night for a calm, orderly exodus from the Capitol Theatre after fire broke out in an ushers' room at one end of the stage.

They got up from their front-row seat, walked quickly to usher and ushers and reported the fire.

Asks Investigation Of Three Fires All on Tuesday Night

Toronto, Oct. 26—(CP)—Fire Chief Ivan Nelson of suburban North York today asked officials of the Toronto Fire Marshal's office to investigate three fires which have occurred during the last six weeks—all on Tuesday nights.

North York residents have kept a vigil to capture the "phantom arsonist" whom they blame for starting fires on the lonely Don Mills road every second Tuesday. Despite their care a deserted two-storey house in the area burned last night.

PROTEST WORKING

but expressed willingness to arbitrate the matter according to the terms of grievance procedure.

Terminate Meeting

"The Union Committee then abruptly terminated the meeting without reference to the other issues they had expressed a desire to discuss.

"The company added that three of the dismissals were cases where men refused to go to work on instruction of supervisors. Their refusal evidently was part of a plan to slow down production below the level for which the assembly line was adequately staffed.

"The fourth dismissal was in the case of a Union Committee man who incited employees on the chassis assembly line to support the body shop men by refusing to carry on their work."

The union said Tuesday that the company was trying to speed up production on one line from 40 to 46 cars . A mass meeting Tuesday had voted to return to work today on assurance that the company would meet the Union Committee this morning.

The whole G.M. plant closed down when the company sent home employees who remained in the plant when the protesting workers walked out. A company spokesman said three employees in the body shop were dismissed when they refused to work.

Last Friday, 5,000 production workers took a "holiday" because of what the union called unsatisfactory negotiation of four issues.

Durante at Opera Can't 'Unnerstand Single Word'

Los Angeles, Oct. 26—(AP)—Jimmy Durante went to the opera last night and was he mortified—he "couldn't understand a wold."

The schnozzola startled first-nighters at the opening of the San Francisco opera company's season here by appearing among the minked and ermined crowd. The music-lover, dapper in a tuxedo and specially bought black hat ("cost me 20 smackers") claimed he recognized several barber friends in the lobby.

Perched attentively in his aisle seat, Durante convulsed in the middle of the first act, "I can't understand a thing they're saying —is the acoustics bad in here?"

It was explained the opera, "Manon Lescaut," was in Italian.

"Mlleh as well be Greek," he shrugged.

He was amazed at the shouts of heave'm an Aria by Jussi Bjoerling. "They're shouting bravo and they don't even know what he's saying!"

Durante said he rubbed elbows with the Los Angeles social set in the bar during intermission. "I had to rub elbows, nobody would shake hands with me," he added.

He claimed he detected some shades of "Schnozzlekadoo" in the score of the second act. "I could hear that rap (Puccini) for plasterin'" he said excitedly. "But I'll let it go. Live and let live, I say."

He was intrigued with part of the second act. "It's just like a burlesque show," he said. "They were running in and out of closets and waving swords. But where are the dancing girls?"

Summing his review of the performance, Durante declared:

"In the overture all eyes were on the conductor. In the first act all eyes were on the soprano. In the second act all eyes were on me. No wonder—I was asleep!"

Anglican Laymen Urged to Greater Work in Church

In a speech high in spiritual content, Reginald H. Soward, K.C., layman and chancellor of Toronto diocese, challenged the Anglican laymen of this vicinity to address themselves to the present day task of the Church.

Christ's Church Parish Hall was filled to capacity for this annual Prince Edward Deanery Laymen's banquet which was chaired by Alfred Evans of this city, with Christ Church Men's Association acting as hosts under Chris Leggat who welcomed the guests.

Chancellor Soward, the youngest layman ever to hold that post spoke of the geographical problems of the church, the personal problems and the problems of laymen. Stirring appeals were made for more candidates for the ministry, and for increased financial support to the ever-widening work of the Church of England in Canada. In closing his speech, which lasted nearly an hour and held everyone with rapt attention, he called on the men to work more, to pay more, to worship more. If having done this, they would gain more, Mr. Soward was introduced by Dean the Reverend J. Ernest Sparling of Christ Church with the following being elected:

Archbishop Responds

The Archbishop, the Most Reverend John Lyons, replied to the toast to the Church and Clergy. He said that the clergy in his diocese were the finest in the country, but it was impossible to think of the church without both layman and clergy. This toast had been proposed by Col. E. A. Green.

The toast to the laymen was proposed by the Reverend W. G. Hope Swayne of Picton who read from the Synod Journal of 1897 how the original layman's association in the diocese was constituted. Mr. Frank Creegan replied and explained the necessity of increased missionary offerings to take care of the increase in expenses of the clergy in assisted parishes.

Archdeacon, the Venerable Arthur Smith said grace. Harold Amos had Phil Huddleston lead the gathering in community singing. The men of Christ Church choir sang several religious and classical numbers under the baton of Arthur Simpson with Dana Cooke at the piano, Maurice Button expressed the thanks to the ladies of the Parish Guild who catered under the convenership of Mrs. Jordan. Mrs. Lazenby, Mrs. Button and Mrs. Kempton along with other members of the Guild.

New Officers

At the conclusion of the gathering, the election of officers for 1950 was conducted by Rural Dean the Reverend J. Ernest Sparling of Christ Church with the following being elected: President, E. Shannon of Picton; Vice-President, A. Lewis of Bethelville; Secretary Treasurer, J. Arnaud of Picton with Arthur Simpson and Frank Creegan as representatives to the Diocesan Council.

DUCK LICENCE SALES IN EXCESS OF LAST YEAR

The call of the elusive duck and the brilliant of the marsh, swamp and other hunting haunts has apparently been stronger this year than last according to Licence Issuer Ed. Thomas. Well over 1,000 game licences have been sold thus far, a number well in excess of that a year ago.

Deer hunters, however, are in no great hurry to secure the legal parchments. Very few have been sold as yet, but as Mr. Thomas remarks, the most of them wal until the last minute.

WILL ATTEND KINGSTON MEETING

A number of city restaurateurs will attend the all-day conference tomorrow of the Kingston and District branch of the Canadian Restaurant Association. William J. Henderson, M.P., Kingston will be the guest speaker at the noon-day luncheon. An exhibit of restaurant equipment will be on display. George D. Herkman, Montreal, president of the CRA will be guest of honor at the charter night banquet. The conference is being held in the Kingston Odd Fellows Hall.

"THAT TIME OF YEAR"

More than hints have been given by the weather that as this month of October hastens to its close, the summer is now long since past and that austerity of conditions is not to be avoided. Climatic changes have come about as might be expected as a sequel to the storms which swept the Atlantic a few days ago. These put in their appearance for the first time and will become more and more familiar from now on.

How accurate the forecasts of Monday were is shown in the temperatures hereabouts during early Tuesday morning. The probabilities stated that the mercury would dip to 25 degrees. It went one degree lower and in the morning air on Tuesday there was felt the tang of frost.

That was the first real touch of chill in this late season, for the year is far advanced with Hallowe'en just ahead with All Saints' Day. November draws near when the bleak winds blow through the woods and growth on earth has at last come to a rest. Since Tuesday morning there has been an unusually heavy fall of leaves and the trees have become almost stripped showing "the bare recent choirs where late the sweet bleeds sang."

But though colder it will be, there is hilarity and there is gaiety ahead. Hallowe'en is in the offing when the human spirit laughs and is merry in spite of the promise of the growing rigors of late autumn. And there is still to come that season of wistfulness known as Indian Summer, some time after the first frosts.

It is very late autumn and summer is far away.

JET AIRLINER'S ACHIEVEMENT

Feat of modern transportation was before the minds of all readers on Tuesday as they noted that the world's first jet airliner had made a flight at 440 to 463 miles an hour.

Time was when man in going on a journey bade farewell to his friends and started off on an extended trip of a few score of miles. Today the rate of travel by horse and buggy or carriage at the rate of six or seven miles an hour is eclipsed to such a degree that it seems almost incredible that a plane could fly from London to Tripoli, North Africa and be back in London in a few hours. The return trip was faster than the outbound journey, the 1490 miles to Castel Benito, being covered in three hours and 25 minutes at the speed of 440 miles an hour and after refuelling for two hours zoomed back to London in three hours and 13 minutes for a rate of 463 miles an hour.

This British-built DeHavilland Comet which has a capacity of 36 passengers will take to the transatlantic service in 1952 or 1953.

So records are made. For those who plan to travel by the Comet in the years immediately ahead, a unique experience is in waiting.

The past few decades have witnessed developments which could not have been dreamed of even by Jules Verne, master of romantic tales of a generation or more ago. Man has become the fastest moving of all living things, the chariot, the stage coach, the buggy and the sulky have been left far behind as means of travel and man travels in the air faster than the rate of the mightiest winds that ever blew.

So the older generation this age of "miracles" in so many things has meant such progress as no person in any other age has experienced. He who first hitched a horse in the long ago to a conveyance on wheels thought he was accomplishing wonders and so he was. In the nature of things that was to be the way for ever and ever. But in the course of time generations which burst forth with a profusion of experiments and achievements in not only travel but in every form of experience. To the younger generation these achievements are to be expected. That is the experience of life. And yet these youngsters of today who know their motor car and their airplane as well or better than any adult will see in their coming time wonder crowning wonder. In truth man has taken the wings of the birds and has come to the age of flying.

Even the middle and older generations are in the mood to see more and more of this progress of man with the powers of nature at his call.

YELLOWJACK STRUCK

Yellow fever made its first recorded appearance in North America in 1668 with severe epidemics breaking out in New York and Philadelphia.

ENGLAND'S CLAIM

JUST FOLKS

NEW YORK INCIDENT

Sometimes it' ponder I have been inclined
What hidden care lies on the human mind,
Which knows, I'd pity,
Now I've been told, and think it rather odd,
By a policeman of the traffic squad
In New York City.

Not certain that the way to pity I knew,
I asked direction of the man in blue,
And he's missus must have
And he looked worried. had a row

But more bewildered than before was I
When I received from him
this strange reply:
"Man don't get married!

"If you desire to lead a peaceful life,
Don't ever take unto yourself a wife.
I give you warning."
I chuckled as I left him;
chuckle now.
He and his missus must have
That lovely morning.
